An especially interesting feature of the evangelistic services being now held daily in the Presbyterian church, is the morning meeting held just one hour from 10 to 11. All are welcome.

The voters of Auburn now have a chance to select between the two tickets for town officers. As a whole the democratic ticket is far the best as any business man will say. Individually, the men on both tickets are good citizens.

The meetings at the Presbyterian church are largely attended, and the sermons very interesting. Dr. Wells is certainly a speaker of more than ordinary power. Mr. Healy is tireless in his efforts to get out the people, and to keep up an interest.

There will be Easter exercises at the Christian church in Corunna next Sunday evening, April 24. A good program has been prepared. The entertainment will close with an exercise entitled "Gates Ajar" by fifteen young ladies and gentlemen.

Mrs. Roxana Knott of Butler township, was up here last week, looking up matters in regard to the estate of her husband, the late Samuel Knott. She is evidently a capable business woman. She was at Detroit recently, and brings word that Mr. and Mrs. Frank Holman, her former neighbors are getting along all right. Our impression is, that we would have met Frank up there about six weeks ago, but for the fact that we were both looking for Grover.

J. F. Housel, the gentlemanly postmaster at DeKalb was here last Wednesday. He reports a singular condition of things at his office, which is the result of having a postoffice with the same name as the county. Letters are often mailed to DeKalb county, Indiana, and then for want of knowledge are sent to DeKalb postoffice. Then Mr. Housel often has a job of looking up the place in this county where they should be delivered. This causes him some trouble, and is the reason for his having to report so many letters in the advertised list, for so small a place.

A letter from Frank Hoff says he arrived safe at the old home in Germany, but had been there only two or three days, when the authorities went to arrest him for services due in the army; in other words, they considered him a sort of deserter, as he had come away, after being drawn for service in the army. Not caring to be arrested and pay $1,000, besides serving three years as a soldier, Frank moved over into Holland, to a point near by, as the boundary is about three miles away. Here his parents can visit him daily. But in the meantime, there is likely some danger. We would advise Frank to come back while the walking is good.

The Demorest Medal contest at the M. E. church Thursday evening, called out a good attendance. The speaking by the little boys and girls, was very fine, and it must have been hard work for the judges to decide between them. Indeed our people are still divided as to which stood the highest. Gertie Caruth received the medal, though it was a close race between her and Pearl Kelley, who also did splendidly. The others were Bertie Spitler, Frank Northam, Bertha Blany, Maud Link and Ethel McKay, Rev. O. E. Eagy presented the medal in a neat little speech. May Rose presided over her little class very gracefully. Mrs. Cuppy and Mr. Hastings sang well, as they always do.

John Provines of Spencerville gave his friends in the COURIER office a visit while here Friday. We are glad to see him looking in better health, than when we last saw him. He is now devoting some time to his farm, and perhaps the out door excercise is what does it.

Do you know what the Young America is? What! Have you been in this neck of the woods for six hours, and don't know anything about that famous brand of cigars? Well, just go right up to the factory on North Main street, and inquire of Kessler Bros., just what it is.

The town board at its Monday meeting decided that all money due the town for sidewalks must be paid at once, or suit would follow. It also bought a new road machine of the Auburn Foundry & Machine Works, and traded in the old one as part pay. It is right to patronize home institutions.

Unknown burglars tried to break open the safe of the Monitor Windmill Co., at the Junction last Wednesday evening. They drilled a hole into it, put in a charge of powder and fired it. But the door did not give way. It is supposed the fellows then left, for fear the explosion had given the alarm.

Among those who attended the county meeting of the W. C. T. U. at this place last week, were Mrs. Morell and Mrs. B. B. Long, of Waterloo, our old neighbors; Mrs. J. D. Leighty, of St. Joe; Mrs. S. S. Shutt, of Spencerville, with Mrs. J. K. Stafford, as president. Our Waterloo friends will remember Mrs. Stafford as Miss Duncan, who taught in the schools there. Mrs. Cady and Mrs. Jones, of Garrett, were also among the workers.

Burglars broke into the Lake Shore passenger office Friday night of last week, by prying up the lower sash of the window with something like a chisel or small crowbar. After getting into the office, they pried open the money drawer, but got nothing. They were probably some of the many tramps who had infested the town that day. Mr. DeLapp leaves no money there since the burglars appropriated $10 of his cash a few months ago.

DeKalb county, as usual, got front seats last week at the Presbyterian missionary meeting for this district. Miss Ida Blair of Waterloo was chairman of the committee to decide on the place of the next meeting and also was leader in one of the discussions. Mrs. W. H. Rakestraw was on the committee on resolutions; Mrs. D. S. Ober read a paper on the benefits of monthly meetings, and took a leading part in the discussions; Mrs. J. A. Barns was elected president for the coming year. Mrs F. J. Yesbera was selected to sing for the association, but could not attend. At the close they had a pleasant reception at the Westminster seminary, and altogether consider the meeting a delightful one.

The Bible reading of the Eternal and Unchangeable Nature of God's Law last Sunday afternoon was interesting—so much so that some were led to exclaim, "What wonderful things there is in God's law." "The World's Four Monarchies brought to view in the dream of Nebuchadnezzar," is the theme for next Sunday afternoon.

The City Ticket.

The democrats nominated a good ticket at the caucus last Thursday, and it should, and we believe it will receive the support of every democrat, and no doubt of some republicans. The candidates for councilmen are sound business men. One, Mr. Potter, has served on the board several terms, and will bring a ripe experience to the work. Mr. Baird and Mr. Brandon, are both young business men, and will, we believe, manage the business of the town carefully. In this they will have the valuable assistance of two experienced members, Mr. Lanning and Mr. Ensley, who have already proved capable councilmen. Mr. Pfefferl, is our present marshal, and although he has had a hard year to fill he has done his work well, and performed his duties as nearly to the satisfaction of all as it is possible for a marshal to do. Mr. Jones as treasurer, has been faithful and efficient, and will of course be a satisfactory officer. Mr. Murphy, the candidate for clerk, is a new man in the race, but is a capable and wide awake young man. He is a member of the popular firm of Schaab & Murphy, and his business training insures that his duties will be well done. The retiring clerk, Mr Grund has been a good officer, doing his work carefully and attending the board meetings faithfully. Although a candidate for re-nomination he did not work for the place. His two terms of faithful work will always stand in his favor, and he will step out of public life without a regret on his part.

A Month in a Vault.

A week or two ago, we gave an instance of the success of arterial embalming of the dead, in the case of Mr. Kosht's wife, done by G. S. McCord, now in the employ of the Schaab Furniture Co., of this place. To-day, we have another account of a success in this same art of embalming. About six weeks ago, Abraham Joliff of this place died, and it was decided to take him back for burial at the old home, Wooster, O. He was prepared for the grave by Mr. McCord, and the arterial embalming successfully done. The body was taken to Wooster and placed in a vault. Here it remained one month and four days, when it was taken out, and placed in the grave. An inspection of the remains was made, when it was found that the very features of the deceased were all as natural as life, even to the color of the flesh, being just as when the coffin was first closed on it. The long time that had passed, makes it all the more wonderful. Who shall say that even the sad work of the embalmer has not its features of interest, if interest not only to the friends but to the embalmer himself?

An Exchange.

And yet, a sort of robbery. The joke is on our young friend U. S. Weaver, and it is too good to be held back. Mr. Weaver boards at James Griswold's on West Seventh street, and a nice place it is too. But the best of men get swindled now and then. About a week ago, a stranger came there, and wanted to get board, saying he was going to work at Eckhart's. He paid his board for a day or so in advance. But next morning bright and early he was gone. But he left an old coat and vest, and took away a new fine coat and vest, belonging to Mr. Weaver, and the latter could not go to Sunday school that day. They had been worn but a time or two. Though sorry for Mr. W., the other young men can't help having a little fun over it, and are still offering to trade clothes with him "unsight unseen."

EMPEROR WILLIAM has laid his plans for the enjoyment of a whaling expedition. Some of his late exploits indicate that he went upon entirely too few of these in his youth.

THE aspiring female politicians of this country want the political doors thrown wide open to them. They are weary and disgusted at just peeking in or climbing through the transom.

IT is about time that this farce of having American troops cavorting around border land trying to carrol Garza, be put an end to. What would the country do with this adventurous dodger if they had him?

WARD MCALLISTER preserves his complexion by keeping his thermometer at 58 degrees during the winter. Better accustom yourself to a very much higher temperature than that, old boy. There will be special comforts for the 400.

THE Chinese residents in America have petitioned the Emperor of China to retaliate on this country for excluding the Chinese by driving the Americans out of the Celestial Kingdom. John soon learns how to be alle same Mellican man.

QUEEN VICTORIA might just now take a hint from the established precedent of picnic parties where "ladies are requested to bring cake." Kaiser Wilhelm is going to call upon her and unless he brings his own gunpowder the inevitable celebration will cost quite as much as his erratic society is worth.

INDIANA has determined to enforce the game and fish laws. Col. Dennis, Fish Commissioner, has been spending some weeks in Northern Indiana, has prosecuted many violators of the law, and captured hundreds of gill nets and seines. He finds the people in full sympathy with the law. Such laws are in the people's interests, and they should give full aid to the authorities in enforcing them.

A LEARNED writer in the Monist philosophizes thus over the harrowing spectacle of a baby pricked by a pin: "Surely the pain experienced by the baby is not experienced by the perceptually realized baby, not by the baby existing as interpreted perception in the consciousness of him who perceives it." Fathers who seek to assuage the clamorous woes of perceptually realized babies at 2 a. m. will do well to ponder this problem that they may learn how sweet are the usages of philosophy.

IT is now announced that William Astor will vacate his present palatial abode and will move further up town. The family cannot brook the vulgar proximity of William Waldorf's big hotel accross the way. The New Yorker's misfortune was exactly duplicated by Queen Victoria while on her recent continental tour. That lady complained bitterly because on one occasion her apartments were overlooked by a large hotel. Thus do we see that the royal highnesses of every country have troubles in which the common people do not, perhaps, sufficiently sympathize.

LORDSBURG, a little town about half way between Los Angeles and San Bernardino, near the coast in the southern part of California, is reported to be the center of an intense mining excitement which has spread far and wide. Silver is stated to have been discovered there in such profusion as to throw even Creede, Colo., into the shade. It is said a lead has been struck that is far richer in ore than any ever met with in Colorado, and some specimens have been assayed with the result of yielding $1,800 to the ton. A tradition has existed in that region for the last thirty years to the effect that Hines, one of the Mormons who settled San Bernardino, uncovered a silver ledge there and died before he could guide any one else to the scene. Possibly this is the very same ledge, or at least near it.

AT the meeting of Methodist ministers in Chicago Rev. Mr. Levelle read a paper in which the statement was made that the American people were a nation of "smatterers." The blame for this state of affairs was laid at the door of the press and the newspapers were also charged with printing all the evil news and of omitting the good. The only answer to be made to such a statement is that it is grossly and absurdly wrong. America's average intelligence compares favorably with that of any nation in the world. In addition to that, America's very learned men and women are known the world over. The press is the great educator of the masses. It records both the good and the bad, thus allowing the minister to rejoice in the effects of his labors or to redouble his efforts against the powers of satan. The truthful minister who reads his newspaper must admit that he finds every good or bad deed of any importance therein chronicled. Even when a party of censorious preachers meet and criticise the press, a faithful account of the proceedings appears in the press of the next day.

THE brutal hanging by a mob at Findlay, Ohio, of Joseph Lyttle, an old soldier, and recently the inmate of a soldiers' home, serves to call attention to the deplorable prevalence of the mob spirit throughout the country. Lynchings are becoming alarmingly common and are confined to no particular section. Only a few weeks ago seven men were acquitted in a court at Darlingron, Wis., on the plea of insanity, of the crime of participating in the mob which lynched Anthony Siebold last November. The disposition of citizens to take the law into their own hands cannot be too severely condemned. The mob idea is fraught with the gravest danger to any community that encourages it or sympathizes with it. It is amazing that a quiet, orderly, thrifty town like Findlay should be so convulsed by any occurrence that its inhabitants would resort to mob law. Yet that is precisely what has happened. And while the crimes of Joseph Lyttle were great, his murder by his enraged neighbors is absolutely without excuse. When law is openly and shamefully violated in a town of Northern Ohio, what may not be expected to happen in the bottoms of Mississippi and Arkansas?

IT is not surprising that many tourists should be frightened away from Paris by the last dynamite explosion. The Anarchists are striking at the greatest feature of Parisian life—its cosmopolitan greatness. In no other city can be found such a congregation of nationalities as in the gay French capital. It is has thousands of tourists and the old aristocratic residence quarter of Rue Clichy is now the center of many quiet boarding-houses for those who go from America and England to spend a few weeks or a few days in Paris. The Anarchists claim to act on their individual responsibility, and the alarm is greater because an explosion in one part of the city is no prophecy as to where the next attack will be made. They strike at the barracks of the soldiers one day, in student quarter another time, and in the residence quarter next. They are able in this way to excite general distrust as to where is a place of safety. The visitor is not safe in the great hotels nor in the quiet pensions and boarding-houses. It is a well-planned though a most cowardly method of attacking the city and it should spur the authorities to the greater diligence because it is making the whole city unsafe for those who give it the greatest prosperity it enjoys.

OUT of poverty little Nevada, the poorest and least considered of the States, has set a worthy, though, perhaps, not altogether willing, example to the sisterhood of States. She has definitely abandoned the site assigned her in the north end of Jackson Park and will concentrate her resource in an effort to make the best exhibit she can where the exhibition will count—in the mines and mining building. The north end of the park is to be littered by a lot of State buildings, the tremendous Illinois junk shop dominating all of them. Logically they can show nothing, because whatever is properly entered for exhibition goes necessarily to its place in the classified buildings. These showy and extensive buildings will be sheer waste. They will be excrescences upon a ground which may justly claim a pretentious architectural exhibit in the buildings necessarily erected. The State buildings will be headquarters for expansive State commissioners and their retinue, and will be of no general utility whatever. This general feature is the very poorest of the exhibition and the most destructive, for it transforms a beautiful landscape improvement into a barren site for a cluster of architectural abominations with a job perhaps in every one of them. Poverty has given Nevada good sense.

Fatal Accident to "Steeple Jack."

"Steeple Jack" of Portland, while repairing the spire of a church at South Livermore, Me., fell from the top and was instantly killed. He started to repair the steeple at an early hour. His lantern was seen on the roof for a long while, and as it seemed that he was gone a longer time than necessary search was made and his dead body found on the ground beside the church, with a piece of broken rope clutched in one hand. It is supposed the rope broke as he was lowering himself. The name of the unfortunate man was Charles Shaw, and he was considered the most expert steeple-climber in the country. He has worked in all the principal cities of Europe and America. He began climbing at the age of 7 on high chimneys in Manchester and Sheffield, England. He afterwards climbed to the top of the Cologne Cathedral. He came to America when 25 years of age, his first climb here being the big chimney of the Clark Thread Factory at Newark. He never used staging, preparing a chair and apparatus by night and doing his work by day.

WAGES AND THE TARIFF

PROTECTION THAT DOES NOT PROTECT.

Pianos and the McKinley Tariff—Under This Glorious (?) Protection System the Sugar Trust Will Make a Profit of $25,000,000 Per Year.

Workings of the Tariff.

John De Witt Warner represents in Congress one of the largest manufacturing districts in the country, the Eleventh New York City District. The workmen employed in the factories are intelligent, and understand the effect of the tariff on wages. During the debate on the Springer bill, Mr. Warner thus described the labor question as his constituents understand it.

The labor question, Mr. Speaker, is one in which I feel a peculiar interest. In the first place, sir, I come from a district which, in the amount of wages paid for skilled labor each year, and in the extent and variety of its industries, is perhaps the greatest manufacturing district in the United States; more than that, I come from a district where there is perhaps a more thorough organization of skilled labor on an intelligent and independent basis than in any other district in the United States.

The wage-earners there, sir, are perfectly aware of what there is in this tariff matter. They know perfectly well what it means. They see a ship coming in opposite the street in which they live and from it coming, without any duty, the men whom their employers can hire to take their places—free trade in flesh and blood. At the same time they see on the decks of that ship goods they want, but are not allowed to buy until they have been through the custom-house, in order to make them take the alternative of buying foreign goods at higher prices or paying an additional bonus to their employers. And they have sent me here by a majority of between 8,000 and 9,000 to say to my colleagues in Congress and to wage-earners all over the land that they do not want any protection. All they want is a free field and no favor and the same right and privilege to buy whatever they need wherever they can get it cheapest, as their employer now has to buy the labor that crowds hither duty-free from foreign nations.

They are not afraid of fair competition, sir. They are ready to meet it from any quarter. What they demand, however, is fair treatment. They demand, sir, the chance to get the full value for their wages, and not to be compelled to expend them at the great national pluck-me-store of the protected industries that our tariff has built to fleece them.

It is fair, too, that on behalf of the manufacturing employers in my district I should make a brief statement. Many, if not the majority of them, are engaged in what are known as protected industries. A large proportion of them are enthusiastic Democratic reformers or free-traders. And of the small minority who still vote with the Republican party and who profess allegiance to the doctrine of protection, there is but an insignificant number who do not frankly admit that, so far as their own business is concerned, they would be better off were there no tariff whatever.

The Game Is Up.

The sugar trust, now that it has secured complete control of all of the refineries in the country, and expects to make a profit of over $25,000,000 per year by advancing prices, has stirred up a great deal of excitement among those high-tariff papers which, when the McKinley tariff was being discussed, insisted that only raw sugars should be put on the free list. They wanted to let the trust get its share of the taxes which are wrung from the people by the tariff, and so induced McKinley to leave a large duty on refined sugar. But now that the sugar trust is collecting its share of the tariff tax, these organs find fault with it because it does not wait until after the Presidential election. The Manufacturer, the organ of the high-tariff Manufacturers' Club, of Philadelphia, calls the trust to account as follows:

"Within a few months the political parties will enter upon one of the most important campaigns in the history of the country. The contest will be made chiefly upon the issue of continuance of tariff protection to American industry as that system is exemplified in the McKinley act. The men whose function it is to maintain the cause of protection before the people, in the press and on the platform, have intended to present as an important part of their argument the fact that the removal of certain of the duties from sugar, by the McKinley act, has conferred large benefit upon consumers without injuring any domestic industry. This is a fact that has come within the personal experience of everybody, and it should have great value in commending to the people the new tariff law and the principles embodied therein. But, before the campaign has begun, certain refiners of sugar, protected in their operations by the tariff law, propose to put the entire refining industry into the control of a trust, which shall use the monopoly thus obtained to force up the prices of sugar. Congress has provided that many millions of revenue heretofore obtained from sugar duties shall be diverted from the public treasury and be given to the people. The trust, unless the duties given to it by Congress for a wise and fair purpose, proposes in turn to divert a portion of this money from the pockets of the people to the pockets of the members of the trust.

"Brethren, we say to you that, if the protective system is to be employed for such purposes as this, the game is up. No champion of that system can succeed, even if he were willing to try, in commending to the people, at one and the same time, the protective system and the sugar trust. It is quite impossible to expect the nation to regard with enthusiasm, because it proposed to reduce the price of sugar, a law which enables the sugar trust to defeat that intention. What the purpose of the act is, consumers do not so much care. The thing that appeals most strongly to them is the actual fact that sugar prices have fallen; now, if sugar prices shall again advance under the manipulation of a protected conspiracy against the people, it will be useless to commend consumers to the purpose of Mr. McKinley. They will conclude, and regretfully, that if the whole benefit of the home duties is not to come to them, it should go once again into the Treasury of the United States. The opponents of the protective system will have placed in their hands, at the most critical moment in the history of American protection, a potent weapon with which to assail the protective theory; and we venture to say that there is small reason to doubt that the result will be overwhelming defeat for the protective system. Openly, in view of every man in the nation, there will be unanswerable demonstration that the free traders do not lack justification for their oft-repeated allegation that the protective tariff is used by manufacturers for the purpose of enriching themselves at the cost of their fellow-citizens."

Pianos and the McKinley Tariff.

The year 1891 was one of the dullest known in the history of the piano industry, and the prospects are not flattering for 1892. For many months in 1891 numerous factories were running on half time, and not a few gave their employes extended vacations. Factories that usually turn out forty or fifty pianos a week last year made but twelve or fifteen a week. A prominent manufacturer said the other day that the McKinley tariff bill has increased the cost of making pianos from $4 to $6. Tuning pins, hammer felt, music wire, etc., cost more than formerly.

Some of the larger manufacturers, however, say that the extreme dullness in trade is not due so much to the increased cost of producing pianos—which is comparatively small—as to the evil effects on the country at large of the McKinley measure. Several prominent manufacturers, who stood by "protection" two years ago, are now outspoken enemies of that misnamed system. Handicapped as our manufacturers have always been under "protection," they have, by superior ingenuity and ability, been able to compete in the markets of the world, and our exports of pianos have exceeded $250,000 a year. With free raw materials our exports would soon exceed $1,000,000. It never occurred to McKinley that by giving raw materials free to our manufacturers he would not only enable them to sell cheaper at home but to compete abroad, sell more goods, increase their plants and employ more men at better wages. It has, however, occurred to thousands of workmen who have had their wages reduced, or are thrown out of work, because of high-priced, restricted, "protected" markets, and they will as speedily as possible stop the career of this robber of the poor man—"protection."

The World's Sheep.

Countries.	Year.	Sheep.	Square miles.	Sheep per sq. mile.
New Zealand	1891	18,117,186	104,471	173.4
Victoria	1891	12,736,143	87,884	144.9
France	1890	21,658,416	204,078	106.1
Germany	1883	19,189,715	208,587	92.0
Denmark	1888	1,225,196	14,638	83.7
Argentina	1891	70,461,665	1,125,086	62.6
Netherlands	1888	778,000	12,471	61.1
Belgium	1880	365,400	11,373	32.4
Queensland	1890	18,007,234	668,497	26.9

From the above it will be observed that the number of sheep kept per square mile is greatest in the United Kingdom, and least in the United States. The former admits all wools free of duty, while the latter imposes a higher duty on wool than any other country. Under free wool the number of sheep kept in the United Kingdom has shown a considerable increase for several years. Under high duties on wool the number of sheep kept in the United States has not increased but actually decreased.

Of the above countries, the United States, the Argentine Republic and Russia, are the only ones which levy a duty on the importation of raw wool. Does not this show clearly that no amount of duty can make the keeping of sheep for wool profitable in the greater part of the United States? The farmers of all the European countries have solved the difficulty, and are keeping sheep for mutton, wool being only an incidental product. Is not this a good policy for the farmers as distinguished from the ranchmen, to adopt?

The Jewel in the Soup.

"See what I've found in my soup," remarked a guest at a Woodward avenue restaurant to her friend.

"Oh, isn't it rich? What will you do with it?"

"Keep it. It's mine. Didn't I pay for the soup?"

"Yes, but you didn't expect such a find as that. How much do you think it's worth?"

The other rolled her treasure between her thumb and finger, then held it up critically to the light.

"A hundred dollars, perhaps. If it is, dear, I'll divide with you. Don't let's tell a soul about it."

"You will have a lawsuit with the restaurant keeper; he will claim it for sure."

"How is he to know where I found it? It was in the soup. Let us go and see how much it is worth."

As the two ladies arose from their untasted meal, the waiter inquired:

"Any thing wrong with your stews, ladies?"

"No," they answered in concert, and then they went out and at once proceeded to a jeweler's store."

"I have a valuable pearl I would like to dispose of," said the finder.

"This way, ladies;" and the jeweler led them into a little private office, gas-lighted. Then he produced a pad of jeweler's cotton, and the pearl was deposited carefully thereon.

The jeweler looked at it a moment as if overcome by its size and weight, then he burst into an eclamation:

"Why, it's been cooked!" he said.

"How much is it worth?" asked the two ladies anxiously.

"About the value of a shoe button."

As the two went out slowly and sorrowfully, the same thought found expression with each: "We lost our oysters. Wish we'd swallowed the old thing!"—Free Press.

Results of McKinleyism.

The Arlington Woolen Mills of Lawrence, Mass., of which William Whitman, the President of the Wool Manufacturers' Association, is President, earned a dividend of 50 per cent. in 1891. The high duties on woolen goods imposed by the McKinley tariff made these enormous earnings possible. At the hearings before the Ways and Means Committee, Mr. Whitman asked for these high duties, not for his own interests to be sure, but for the interests of his workmen. The sequel of this has now come to pass. Fifty weavers in his mills have struck against a reduction in their wages from $8 to $6 per week, not produced directly but by an underhand method in the classification of new work." What a comment is this on the idea that a high propective tariff is in the workingman's interest.

Disgraced Forever.

The Boston Symphony concerts have become, in a way, sacred ceremonials, at which even those not born with a musical ear must assist in becoming fashion. One Friday afternoon the two little daughters of a certain family returned from the music hall "in a state of mind." One of them was evidently scornful, and the other depressed.

"What's the matter?" asked some one. "Wasn't the concert fine?"

"The concert was all right," said Ethel, superbly, "I don't complain of the concert!"

"Then what did go wrong? Something, I'm sure."

"The amount of the matter is," said the young lady, looking haughtily at her drooping sister, "that Mildred has disgraced herself. She sneezed in the middle of the symphony!"

THE body of every spider contains four little masses pierced with a multitude of holes, imperceptible to the naked eye, each hole permitting the passage of a single thread; all the threads, to the number of one thousand to each mass, join together when they come out, and make the single thread with which the spider spins its web, so that what we call a spider's thread consists of more than four thousand threads united.

THE NATIONAL SOLONS.

SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Our National Lawmakers and What They Are Doing for the Good of the Country—Various Measures Proposed, Discussed, and Acted Upon.

Doings of Congress.

On the 12th, on motion of Mr. Hayes of Iowa, a bill was passed authorizing the Illinois and Ohio Railway and Terminal Company to construct a bridge across the Mississippi River at Moline, Ill. Representative Cooper, of Indiana, made a statement before the House Pension Office Investigating Committee in denial and in explanation of the charges made against him by Commissioner Raum. In the Senate Mr. Cullom introduced a bill to authorize a National Bank of Illinois to establish a branch on the grounds of the Columbian Exposition; and it was referred to the Committee on Finance. Representative Lane, of Illinois, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported to the House a bill authorizing the Secretary of War, upon the application of the Governor of a State or Territory, to issue for the sole use of the National Guard of such State or Territory any three and one-half inch muzzle-loading rifle field guns, wrought iron, or three and two-tenths inch breech-loading rifle field guns, steel or machine (Hotchkiss or Gatling) or rapid fire guns, with implements and harness for the same which may be on hand and not needed immediately for the service of the regular forces. In the Senate the silver question was the subject of extended debate.

The Senate, the 13th, passed the following bills: for the better control of and to promote the safety of national banks; authorizing the Secretary of War to cause an exploration and survey to be made of the interior of the Territory of Alaska; to establish lineal promotion throughout the several lines of artillery, cavalry, and infantry of the army. For the examination and promotion of enlisted men of the army to the grade of second lieutenant. To increase the pay of certain non-commissioned officers of the army. Appropriating $60,000 for a public building at Grand Island, Neb. To amend the railroad land forfeiture acts so as to permit actual settlers to purchase the lands within three years after forfeiture. For the relief of purchasers of timber lands and stone lands under the act of June 3, 1878. To provide for fixing the uniform standard of classification and grading of wheat, corn, oats barley and rye. For the preservation and custody of the records of the volunteer armies (creating a record and pension office in the War Department). It was World's Fair day in the House, and no business was done.

In the Senate the 14th bills were passed as follows: Appropriating $75,000 for the foundation and pedestal for a bronze statue of Christopher Columbus at Capitol grounds. Granting the Topeka Water and Electric Company the right to erect dams across the Kansas River in Shawnee County. Authorizing the Quincy Pontoon Bridge Company to construct a pontoon bridge across the Mississippi at Quincy, Ill. To authorize the Grand Rapids Water and Electric Power Company of Grand Rapids, Mich., to construct a dam across the Grand River. Extending the privileges of the free delivery of mails to cities and towns with a population of not less than 5,000 and where the postoffice gross receipts for the previous year amounted to $5,000. More than two hours of the time of the House was consumed in determining whether Messrs. Stone of Kentucky, Fithian of Washington, Johnson of Ohio, and Bowman could publish in the Record at the public expense, and distribute under the Government frank Henry George's book on "Protection and Free Trade." Mr. Burrows' attempt to have the Henry George matter expunged proved unsuccessful. The book has been published practically in full in the Congressional Record. The remainder of the day was consumed in the consideration of the naval appropriation bill.

The House had passed a bill to promote the safety of national banks. The bill reached the Senate the 15th, there was attached an amendment authorizing the banks to extend their circulation to the full amount of the bonds deposited by them in the Treasury. When the bill was returned to the House and laid before that body no attempt was made to concur in the Senate amendments; but on motion of Mr. Bland the bill was referred back to the Committee on Banking and Currency to be divested of the objectionable amendment. The bill for the relief of the heirs of H. H. Sibley (the inventor of the Sibley tent) again proved an obstacle to the transaction of business in the House, and the whole day was consumed in its consideration. No quorum was present.

THE Missouri World's Fair Board has forwarded to Chicago nine tree trunks to compose three of the columns of the rustic colonnade around the Forestry building.

THE Commercial Exchange of Des Moines, Iowa, has resolved in favor of raising $20,000 for the purpose of securing a creditable representation at the Exposition.

R. S. MOORE, of Newberne, N. C., claims to have fragments of the chain which restrained Columbus when he was in prison, and he intends to exhibit them at the Fair.

A NUMBER of owners of steam yachts in New York intend to utilize them to transport themselves and their friends to the Exposition by way of the St. Lawrence and the Welland Canal.

THE main Exposition buildings require for their ornamentation 160,678 separate pieces of staff work. Of these, 108,000 have been cast, and more than 59,000 have been put in place on the buildings.

INTENDING exhibitors at the Exposition can get the general rules and regulations for exhibitors, and the special regulations pertaining to exhibits in the department or departments in which they may be particularly interested, by addressing Director General Davis.

FROM the reports and estimates prepared by the Exposition authorities for the Congressional Investigating Committee the following interesting facts, among many others, appear: To complete the Exposition and conduct it to its close will require of the directory a total expenditure of $22,246,403. Up to March 1 the total expenditure was $3,860,934. The liabilities under contracts already made are $4,692,724. The receipts have been $6,252,404, and the amount due from stock subscriptions and city bonds, $5,713,051. The National Commission has expended $184,522, and estimates that $1,067,983 more is needed, including $700,000 for awards. The lady managers have spent $57,811 and think they require $227,574 more up to the close of the Fair.

It seemed that I had recovered from the fever to die of starvation. I took pepsin compounds, bismuth, charcoal, cod-liver oil and malt until my physician confessed that he did not know what else to try. Everything I took seemed

I began taking it and soon began to feel better. I have now taken a little over two bottles and can truthfully say I feel well again, and can eat anything without distressing me, even to pie and cheese, which I have been unable to touch for years. STYLES OF THE SEASON.

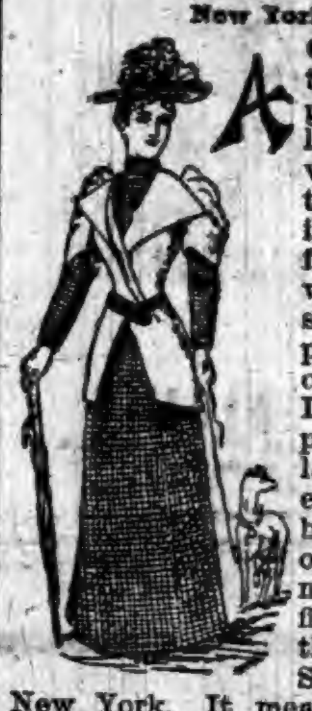
FASHION'S DECREES TO BE IMPLICITLY OBEYED.

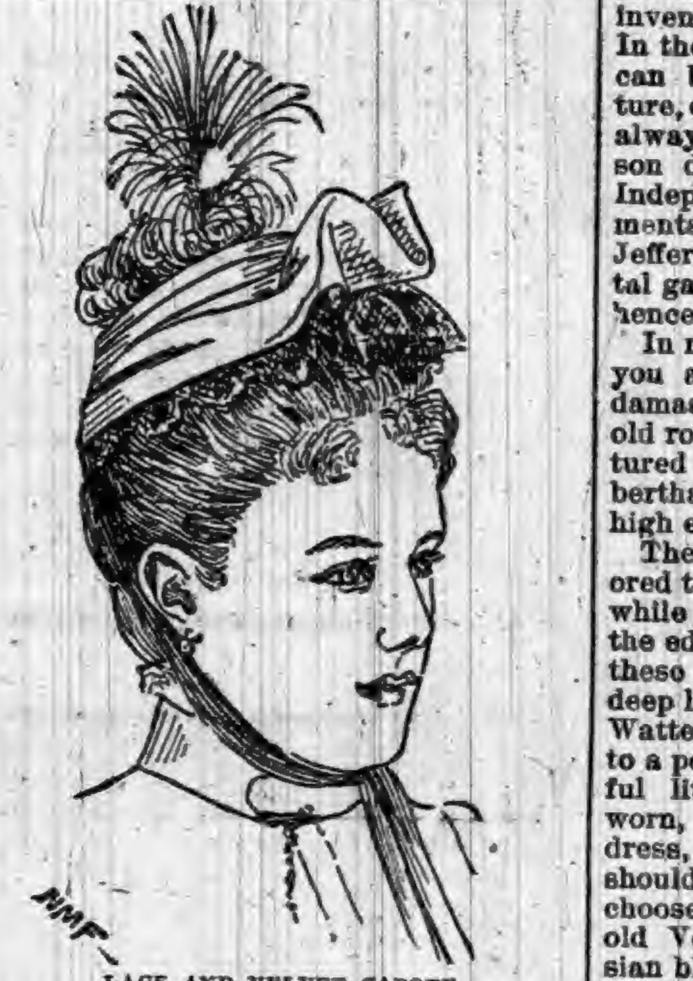
In Order to Be a Thoroughly Well-Dressed Woman You Must Dissolve Self and Pour It Into the Mold Which Fashion Furnishes.

New York Letter.



A CELEBRATED authoress, who displayed most excellent judgment and a very keen appreciation of the beautiful in "dressing" her female characters, was once asked why she took so little pains to adorn her own person. "Oh, I'm the awful example," she replied, laughingly; "I sharpen my imagination by the contemplation of my own plainness." There is a fine philosophy in this reply, writes Shirley Dare from New York. It means that you must suppress personality if you would be great in art; that in order to be a thoroughly well-dressed woman you must dissolve self and pour it into the mold which fashion furnishes you. The moment you attempt to create a style to suit your particular case, you become an eccentric; you may look picturesque, but you can never hope to look stylish. Take, for instance, the present ultra medish skirt; you must accept it or reject it—to modify it is to ruin it. It must not show a wrinkle, and there is but one way to accomplish this. Make up the skirt with its silk lining so as to reach an effect of one thickness, and wear it over a cuirass underskirt, fitting the hips like a glove, in one piece, as it were, with the lining of the corsage.

In my initial illustration you will find represented a very stylish spring walking dress with jacket in chocolate woolen stuff, with added basques longer at the back than in front, and skirt, sleeves and plastron in an embossed velvet in light and dark shades of brown. The skirt is cut bias, just grazes the ground, and is lined with silk. The revers should not be lined, in order to get a better draping effect. The large sleeve puffs are sewed on with reversed seams and the puffing should be completed before they are sewed to the lining. The straight collar is made of a strip taken on the cross, and has a seam in the middle in order the better to match the design of the velvet. The coming season will show no weakening of the rage for old French styles. Every epoch will be drawn upon for novelties, if you will pardon the bull. For example, the Valois will furnish us toques and puffed sleeves; Louis XIII. will contribute lace effects, berthas in particular; Louis XV. will suggest flowered silks, ribbon effects, bow and Watteau folds and jeweled buckles. From Louis XVI. we shall get, among other things, the Marie Antoinette fichus, while the Directory will make itself felt in the line of large revers and pocket flaps, and the times of the Empress Josephine will be remembered in our girdles and low necks.

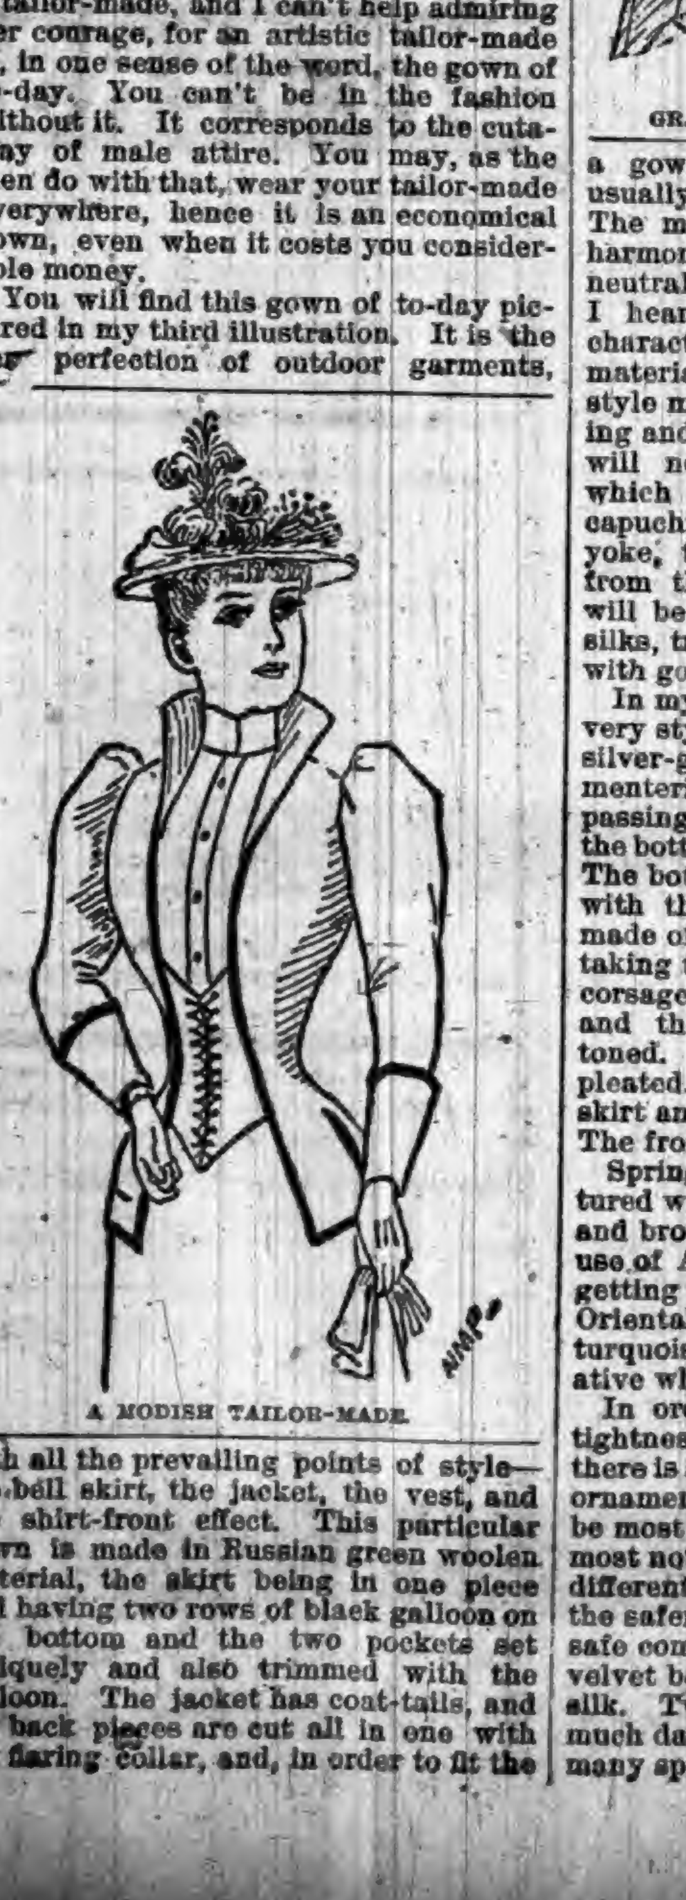


LACE AND VELVET CAPOTE.

I show a dainty capote in my second illustration, a thing of dark-green velvet and passementerie, the velvet being a double fold in front and resting upon a broad band of passementerie, or, if you choose, of gold lace, fluted with an aigrette and ostrich tips at the back.

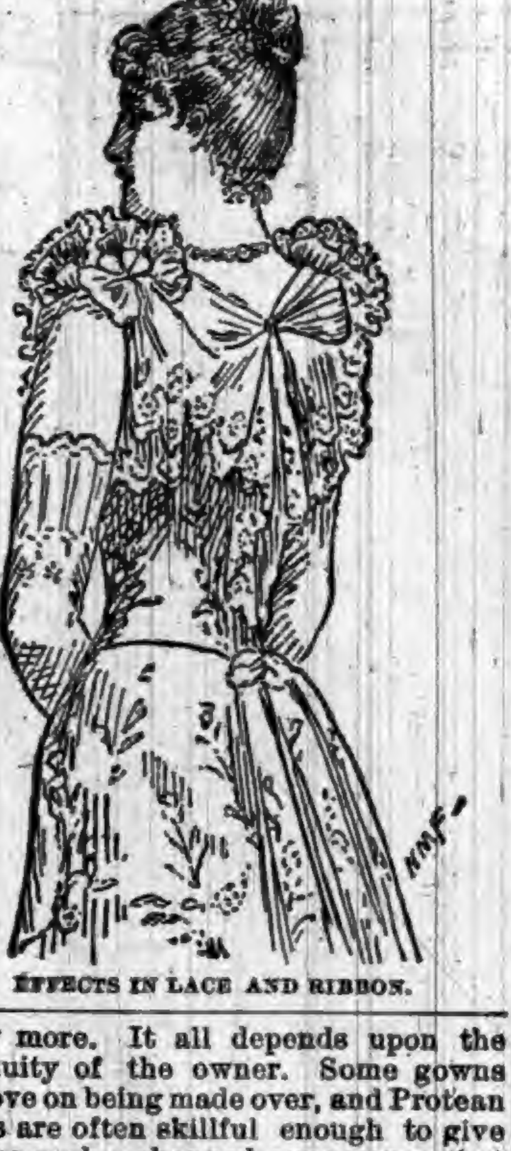
The tailor-made walking dress will hold its place more tenaciously than ever, and it deserves so to do, for the great designers have literally lain awake over the problem of how to make it more fascinating than ever. No woman will admit that she doesn't look well in a tailor-made, and I can't help admiring her courage, for an artistic tailor-made is, in one sense of the word, the gown of to-day. You can't be in the fashion without it. It corresponds to the cutaway of male attire. You may, as the men do with that, wear your tailor-made everywhere, hence it is an economical gown, even when it costs you considerable money.

You will find this gown of to-day pictured in my third illustration. It is the very perfection of outdoor garments, with all the prevailing points of style—the bell skirt, the jacket, the vest, and the shirt-front effect. This particular gown is made in Russian green woolen material, the skirt being in one piece and having two rows of black galloon on the bottom and the two pockets set obliquely and also trimmed with the galloon. The jacket has coat-tails, and the back pieces are cut all in one with the flaring collar, and, in order to fit the lining to the material they must be cut on the cross. The lining of the collar must be sewed to the side pieces. The shoulder seams extend to the edge of the collar. The seams between the coat-tails and the side pieces are left open so as to insert the galloon, which runs to two points marked by buttons, man style. The fronts of the jacket are double, the corselet forming the pointed vest. The plastron shirt-front may be either of beige or gray cloth or in gold-yellow bengaline and is made with a single pleat in the middle, with small gold buttons for ornament only, as the plastron hooks under the pleat. The sleeves are puffed at the top and end in flaring cuffs trimmed with the galloon, and so are also the fronts of the jacket and the basques. The cuffs must be stiffened with buckram.



A MODISH TAILOR-MADE.

When Lent ends, the dancing will begin again; and fortunate are those who have not exhausted their supply of party dresses. But because a party dress has made half a dozen public appearances, is no reason why it should not make as many more. It all depends upon the ingenuity of the owner. Some gowns improve on being made over, and Protean hands are often skillful enough to give a dress such a changed appearance that its most intimate friends would fail to recognize it. True, this is quite as much of a talent as the skill of original invention, only it is of a different kind. In the strict sense of the word, no one can be original either in music, literature, dress or anything else, but one can always be quick at adaptation. Jefferson didn't originate the Declaration of Independence, he adapted it. Its sentiments were modish at that time, and Jefferson made such an admirable mental garb of them that it fitted all minds; hence, it was a great success.

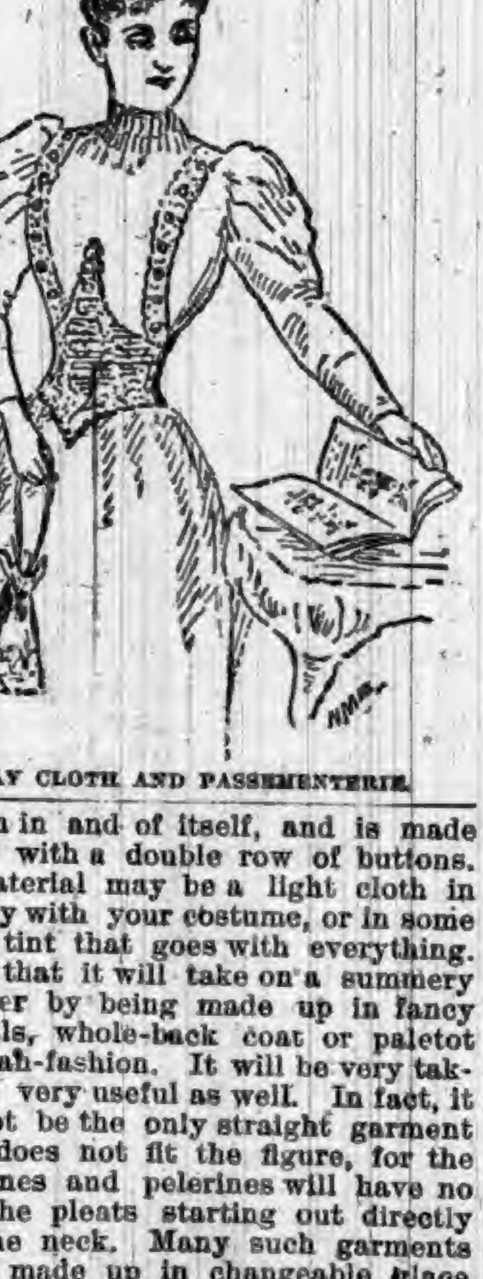


EFFECTS IN LACE AND RIBBON.

In my fourth illustration I set before you a charming evening costume in damask, a straw-colored ground with old rose and blue flowers, richly garnitured with lace and ribbons. The lace bertha is very rich and elegant and has high epaulets of lace and bows.

There is also a lace front over a colored transparency, caught up with bows, while below straight ribbons continue to the edge of this lace front. In some of these elegant evening costumes, the deep lace bertha ends each side of the Watteau pleat and cascades beneath it to a point below the waist. The delightful little sleeveless figaros are much worn, and they fit almost any house dress, but it is quite essential that they should be richly embroidered. You may choose either velvet, an old brocade, or old Venetian guipure. The long Russian blouse is also in vogue. With it you must wear a Byzantine girdle, passing it under the Watteau fold. I need hardly say that grays are to retain their popularity—light grays, silver grays, nickel grays.

There is every reason to believe that the spring jacket will figure at the cool seaside and on the mountain during the entire summer. This modish garment is so long that it really constitutes almost a gown in and of itself, and is made usually with a double row of buttons. The material may be a light cloth in harmony with your costume, or in some neutral tint that goes with everything. I hear that it will take on a summery character by being made up in fancy materials, whole-back coat or paletot style man-fashion. It will be very taking and very useful as well. In fact, it will not be the only straight garment which does not fit the figure, for the capuchines and pelerines will have no yoke, the pleats starting out directly from the neck. Many such garments will be made up in changeable glace silks, trimmed with lace and jet mixed with gold and fringed all around.



GRAY CLOTH AND PASSEMENTERIE.

In my last illustration you will find a very stylish design for a gray gown, a silver-gray vicuna cloth, with passementerie corselet and braces, the latter passing under the belt and reaching to the bottom of the skirt with fringed ends. The bottom of the skirt is also edged with the passementerie. The skirt is made of a single piece of the material, taking the width for the length. The corsage is pleated at the neck in front and the sleeves have long cuffs buttoned. The straight collar is also pleated. The corsage passes under the skirt and hooks invisibly at the back. The front has no seam.

Spring toilets for indoors are garnitured with lace, black as well as white and brown, for which purpose you make use of Alencon and Chantilly, not forgetting the Russian, which, with its Oriental richness of gold, silver, pearl, turquoise and coral, is extremely decorative when applied with artistic hand.

In order to atone for the striking tightness and plainness of the skirts, there is at times an inclination to over-ornamentation of bodices. This should be most carefully avoided, at the very most not introducing more than three different kinds of materials, two being the safer course. Silk and velvet are safe combinations with jet trimming, the velvet being a darker shade than the silk. Two shades of cloth, one very much darker than the other, are seen in many spring costumes.

A MOST GRAPHIC STORY.

IT IS TAKEN DIRECT FROM REAL LIFE.

A Charming New England Lady Tells Her Experience Both Abroad and in America.

The unwritten romances of life are more wonderful and far more interesting than the most vivid works of fiction. The one we are about to relate occurred in real life, and is both interesting and instructive.

Mrs. Jennie Ray formerly lived in Manchester, N. H. Her home was pleasant, her surroundings comfortable. In the year 1880 she visited England, and while in that country began to experience strange sensations. At first she attributed them to the change of climate, but they continued and increased, until finally, like many another woman, she became utterly discouraged.

It was while in this condition that Mrs. Ray returned to America and her home. Thousands of women who read this story can appreciate the condition in which Mrs. Ray then was, and sympathize with her suffering. Two prominent physicians were called and endeavored to do all in their power for her relief. In spite, however, of their skill Mrs. Ray grew weaker and more depressed, while the agony she endured seemed to increase. It was at this time that a noted physician who was called declared Mrs. Ray was suffering from cancer, said there was no help, and told her friends she could not live more than a week at the farthest.

And here comes the interesting part of the story, which we will endeavor to tell in Mrs. Ray's own words. She said:

"Unknown to all these physicians, I had been using a preparation of which I had heard much. I did not tell the physicians because I feared they would ridicule me, and perhaps order its discontinuance. During all the while that the physicians were attending me the preparation was steadily and faithfully doing its own work in its own way, and I had faith in its power. At last the doctor said there was no use of his coming, for he could do me no good. I had suffered so much that I was quite willing to die, but it seems I was nearer relief than I knew. One week from the day the doctor last called a false growth, as large as a coffee cup, and which looked as though it had been very large, left me. I sent for a doctor, and he declared it was a fibroid tumor, but said he had never known one to come away of itself before. I immediately began to gain health and strength, and I unhesitatingly declare that my rescue from death was due solely to the marvelous effects of Warner's Safe Cure, which was the remedy I took unknown to the physicians, and which certainly rescued me from the grave. It is my firm belief that many ladies who are said to die of cancer of the womb are cases like mine, and if they could be induced to use Warner's Safe Cure they, like me, might be saved."

The above graphic account is perfectly true in every respect. Mrs. Jennie Ray is now living at 142 West 6th street, South Boston, Mass., and if any lady doubts the above statement she can address Mrs. Ray, who will gladly answer all questions or grant an interview of a confidential nature to any lady who may choose to call upon her. It is said that "truth is stranger than fiction," and when the thousands of suffering, helpless women who are upon the road which physicians say leads only to death, consider the story as above given, there is reason for hope and joy, even although they may be now in the depths of despondency and misery. To such ladies the above truthful account is willingly given.

Didn't Want a Pony.

Small Boy—Papa, Willie Winkers 's got a pony.

Papa—Has?

"Yes, and it's the bee-utafulist pony I ever saw."

"You don't say!"

"Just as gentle as can be. I rode on it, an' didn't fall off once. A boy couldn't get hurt on that poney."

"I suppose not."

"It eats hardly anything, too, and doesn't cost much to keep."

"It doesn't?"

"Not anything, hardly. Willie said his papa bought it real cheap."

"No doubt."

"And he said there was plenty more where that came from."

"Humph! Do you want me to buy you a pony?"

"N—o. I was only thinkin' what a nice pony Willie Winkers has."

"Oh!"

And This in Ohio.

A most horrible instance of filial ingratitude came to light at Akron, Ohio, a few days since. For a year William Ager has been keeping his father, 90 years old and almost helpless, in a pen attached to his barn. He has been fed with scraps from the table and kept warm with filthy rags and a little stove. Ager's wife would not have the old man in the house, saying that he was too filthy to live with her. The case was discovered through the curiosity of the next-door neighbor, who was annoyed by the stench from the old man's pen and peeped in to see what was kept there. When the old man saw her he begged to be either rescued or killed. He was removed to an infirmary.

A REMARKABLE SUCCESS.

What Ability and Research Accomplish.

There is the widest difference in the world between the study of a profession and its practice. Experience, practical knowledge from real cases, is the most essential material in building up any profession. Physicians frequently disguise from patients their true condition, because of their inability to provide a successful remedy. With twenty-one years' experience as a practitioner I can conscientiously say that I have never used a preparation with such uniform good results as that attained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. It is a veritable discovery and as such is an inestimable acquisition to medical science. I have prescribed this remedy in many of the worst kidney and bladder disorders, both in acute and chronic cases where the patients presented the most complicated and alarming symptoms, and have noted with great interest its effect. The results have been most satisfactory. Its action on the affected kidneys and bladder and consequent disordered liver and digestion has been gentle yet immediate, the relief speedy and the cures permanent. I have found it a most invigorating tonic in broken-down constitutions, La Grippe, and in other cases where the vitality has been greatly wasted and enfeebled.

Falling Over a Precipice

Is a terrible thing even in dreams. The victim of this frequent form of nightmare awakes with a start and a cry; his limbs bathed in cold perspiration, his heart thumping tremendously. Moral: Don't sleep on your back, particularly if you are troubled with dyspepsia and nervousness, and use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to cure these joint troubles. For sleeplessness, the inseparable attendant of chronic dyspepsia, and its offspring as well, the Bitters is a surpassing remedy. The disordered stomach is the progenitor of numberless harassing symptoms, and the organs of thinking are a faithful reflector of its disturbance, in which the liver and bowels also share. If we are to restore quietude to the brain and nervous system, we must re-enforce the stomach and regulate the action of the digestive, secretive, and evacuative organs. Prevent and remedy malaria, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, debility, heartburn, sick-headache and la grippe with this remedy, which has received the unqualified sanction of eminent physicians.

The Age of Organization.

New Boarder—Well! well! This is the first place I've struck where they have preserved strawberries and peach jam instead of stewed prunes.

Old Boarder—All owing to organization, my boy. Us boarders have a mutual protective association with iron-clad rules and heavy penalties.

"Oh, ho! You kicked against prunes, did you?"

"Not much we didn't. We passed a law that whenever prunes came on the table every member should eat a quart or pay $10 fine. That settled it. The landlady found prunes too expensive."—New York Weekly.

Petroleum Production.

Petroleum production in the United States in 1891 surpassed all previous records. The output was 50,150,000 barrels, against 46,000,000 in 1890 and 35,163,000 in 1889. In 1891 Pennsylvania, New York, and West Virginia produced about 34,500,000 barrels; Macksburg less than 400,000 barrels; Lima about 14,500,000 barrels; California 250,000 barrels; Colorado 325,000 barrels, and the rest of the country 50,000 barrels.

Don't give up and say there is no help for Catarrh, Hay Fever and Cold in Head, since thousands testify that Ely's Cream Balm has entirely cured them.

I have been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years; I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did, my sense of smell seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh. —Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Rendrill, Perry Co., O.

A Contractor's Advice.

Messrs. Dullam Bros.—Gentlemen:—I take great pleasure in testifying in behalf of Dullam's Great German blood, liver and kidney cure. I can safely say that I never took such medicine as that to cleanse the liver, stomach and kidneys. I was suffering for years with biliousness, indigestion, and loss of appetite and sleep. One bottle did for me more good than six months other treatment, and I feel it my duty to testify in its behalf, so others may try it and get cured.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

W. J. McELROY, Macon, Ga.

CORRESPONDENCE

WATERLOO.

Nora Butler went to Ft. Wayne Monday.

Monday night Mr. Armstrong left Waterloo to make a journey to Iowa.

Frank Kennedy has rented part of his house to C. S. Harper for six months.

Sanford Smith has the contract for building a barn for Frank Zerwis which is now under way.

Mrs. Marshal and children left Waterloo Tuesday for their new home in South Dakota, where Rev. Marshall now is located. The climate there is favorable for his health.

Isaac Speer and wife, J. A. Dennison and wife. Mrs. Klotz, Mrs. Seery and Mrs Rempis went to-day to attend the missionary convention of the U. B. church, at Churubusco.

The L. T. L. continues to increase in in numbers rapidly. An arrangement has been made by which the services will be held hereafter in the M. E. church every Sunday at 3 p. m.

A runaway occured on our streets Monday evening. A horse belonging to R. J. Fisk, and being driven by a trainer, became unmanageable and threw the driver out hurting him quite badly.

Samuel Till an old resident of Smithfield, and this place died Saturday at the age of 69 years and was buried from the U. B. church, Monday, Rev. Klotz officiating. He was buried at Cedar Lake cemetery.

The supper given by the Y. P. C. U., of the U. B. church, Saturday, was a success, both in numbers attending and financially. The gross proceeds were a little over $30, which will be used in repairing the church.

Mrs Jerry Boyer went last week as delegate to the missionary convention at Ft. Wayne. Meedames Jackman, Waterman, Long, Smith and Miss Blair attended as visitors. They seem to have had a pleasant time.

Miss Nettie Carpenter has been sick for about two weeks. She was taken suddenly with paralysis of the nerves, which affected her whole right side. On Sunday, she seemed worse than at any time before, but became comfortable by Tuesday.

The Radical U. B's. are negotiating for the purchase of the Reformed church and parsonage, on Center street, and Euclid avenue. If they conclude this arrangement, of course no church will be built on the lots bought of Henry Hood, on corner of Wayne and Maple streets.

The new minister of the Methodist church, filled the pulpit morning and evening, Sunday, and his hearers speak in high terms of his sermons. The ladies have attended to cleaning and putting the parsonage in good order in anticipation of the arrival of the Rev's. wife.

Mrs. Julia Lochamier, a former resident of this place, died at the county house and was buried at Barker's church Saturday, Rev. McCloe officiating. Her son Daniel, gave her a respectable burial, and would have been glad to furnish her a home in his family but she would not permit it.

The musical and elocutionary entertainment at the Presbyterian church last week, was well patronized, the audience room being filled. Those present, spent a highly enjoyable evening. The Quant Quartet, all Waterloo people are familiar with, and expected a treat, and those who have before been favored in listening to and seeing Miss Hartman in her impersonations, looked forward with pleasure to hearing her again, and were delighted and surprised at her great improvement and perfect impersonations.

BUTLER.

William Scovill, of Stafford, was quite severely injured recently by being partially thrown from a horse.

A large force of more than thirty men are employed on the waterworks and are making the dirt fly at a lively rate. The mains are nearly all down on North St.

Adam Chubb, of Orangeville, who left several financial mourners in Butler when he so suddenly spirited himself away, has returned to his home, caused perhaps, by a lively remembrance on the part of Uncle Sam, who remembered him to the amount of $2,500. The hearts of his mourners will no doubt rejoice when he gladdens them by a fulfillment of his promises.

The republicans of this city met in caucus last Saturday evening and placed in nomination for city offices the following named gentlemen: For trustees, Ira Kinney and Thomas Rudd; for treasurer, Geo. Geddes; for clerk, Frank Stewart; for marshal, Isaac Hose; all being successors to themselves except Ira Kinney. They adjourned without endorsing any one for President.

Mrs. Haney, of whose serious illness mention was made last week, grew worse suddenly, at the hospital a day or two after being placed there and died. Her remains were brought to Butler for interment last week. Her funeral took place from the Lutheran church, Rev, Diffenbaugh officiating. The family have the sincere sympathy of their many friends here in their sad bereavement.

One of the saddest events in the history of our place occurred last Thursday, resulting in the violent death of one of our most esteemed young men,—Adam Prosser. Mr. Prosser was a fireman on the Wabash, and on the fatal day, was on his trip to Detroit. At Alvordton the train stopped for water. The engine was cut from the train, and run ahead about twenty rods, to the tank, leaving the train standing on the track. After getting water, Mr. Prosser went under the engine to clean the ash pan, a very dangerous thing to do, and one among the barbarous things that railroad companies fail to provide means of avoiding. While Mr. Prosser was beneath the engine, the train, which was standing on a slight decline grade, started, both brakemen observed it and climbed on top and attempted to stop it and nearly succeeded. The engineer, Lavering; and conductor, Campbell; were in the cab, and in the dense snow storm that prevailed at the time did not observe it until the cars struck the engine, with only force enough to move it about fifteen feet, but with fatal results to Mr. Prosser, who was caught under the drivers, crushing one arm, and completely severing his head from his body. His remains were brought back to Butler that night to his young wife of less than a year's marriage, whose grief has nearly cost her life. The company sent passes to Thomas Carr and wife, her father and mother, at Thayer, Mo., who came on immediately. His funeral took place last Sunday from the M. E. church, Rev. Stone officiating. The large church, seating between seven and eight hundred, was filled and a large number failed to even get inside. His remains were taken to Auburn for interment, the company furnishing a special train, and also bearing the funeral expenses. The accident appears to have been unforeseen, and no particular blame seems to attach to the employes. Mr. Prosser was a bright, jovial, good natured, cheerful young man, highly esteemed by all who knew him; a member of the M. E. church, and idolized by his wife and parents, brothers and sisters, and his sad death has cast a gloom over our community.

Democratic Caucus.

The Union township caucus met at Ensley's Hall Saturday at 4:30 p. m. and after some delay, were called to order by C. A. Picker. D. D. Moody was chairman and J. A. Barns secretary. Names of the committeemen were called, and I. N. Cool, John Groscop, C. A. Picker, D. T. Smith, Emanuel Stafford, John Picker and Phil. Myers responded, being all present but G. H. Oberholtzer. It was decided by vote that these committeemen should be a committee to make up a list o' names for delegates to the county convention, which list would be submitted to the house for approval or rej ction. A motion was made by Nus baum that we present two names for each of the other conventions, and when all names were in, then vote on them. Amendment by J. B. Baxter that the country voters select one delegate and the town voters one for each convention. An amendment to this, was made by W. B. Brown, that we give the country half, and the town half. but all vote on the choice. Several discused these motions but the substance of the Nusbaum motion prevailed, though half the delegates were selected from the country. Names were then presented, and afterwards voted on by ballot, except the delegates to the judicial convention, Theo. Kessler and A. E. Tanberg, who were elected by acclaimation. The vote for state delegate, resulted in the selection of P. F. Ryan and Harry Reed, over C. C. Shaffer and D. T. Smith. For congressional delegates, J. M. Hook and H. A. Winslow were elected over M. Boland and W. H. Mader. S. J. Brandon and H. J. Shafer were chosen for senatorial delegates. The board of committeemen then reported 46 names for delegates to the county convention, and the list was adopted by the house. The congressional delegates were instructed to support McNagny. A motion by Brandon that it is the sense of the meeting that we should abandon this loose way of holding a caucus and adopt the primary election system, was carried. There had been much confusion and bad blood exhibited all through the meeting, and twice an adjournment was attempted. Two many came there with an ax to grind, and all couldn't get to the grindstone at once. Give us more democrats and fewer statesmen, and our caucuses will take on once more the pleasant phases of old days. A little less wire pulling, and a good deal more fairness, are what we need in our councils just now. The delegates selected are good men, but they could have been chosen without a wrangle. The delegated are given elsewhere.

The City Caucus.

The democratic caucus for the nomination of candidates for the several town offices was held last Thursday evening, April 14, in the court room. There was a good attendance in spite of the bad weather. The meeting was called to order by J. F. Aber, one of the committeemen, and on motion Henry J. Shafer was made chairman. He made a brief speech of thanks, and then D. Y. Husselman was made secretary. On motion of Mr. Boland, the meeting proceeded to nominate candidates. Dr. D. A. Sebring, Sylvester Rogers and Ira Brandon, were nominated for trustee in the first ward; J. A. Potter, John Treesh and J. A. Clifton, were nominated for the third ward; Thomas Baird and Willis Madden were nominated in the fourth ward; Mr. Madden declined to run, and as there was left but one candidate, Dr. Nusbaum moved the nomination of Mr. Baird be made by acclamation, which was done. Joseph Pfefferl was nominated for marshal, and as there was no other nomination made, Mr. Moody offered a motion seconded by S. J. Brandon, that Mr. Pfefferl be declared the unanimous choice of the meeting This was carried C. H. G. Jones, for treasurer was also nominated by acclamation. For clerk, two candidates were named, Geo. Grund and Andrew Murphy. Before balloting, it was decided the chair should appoint three tellers, one of whom received the ballots and gave them to the other two, who were also to assist in counting. M. Boland, D. D. Moody and R. Blum were appointed. The voters filed past this election board as they deposited their ballots, the south half of the audience going first. The first ballot for first ward, resulted; Sebring, 19; Rogers, 46; Brandon, 84; total 149 75 being necessary to a choice Brandon was declared nominated. On third ward there were three ballots taken as follows:

J. A. Potter	55	65	81
J. A. Clifton	38	34	21
John Treesh	49	46	42

Total 144; necessary to a choice, 73, and Potter got it on the last ballot The vote for clerk resulted: Grund, 51; Murphy 88, and Murphy was nominated. J. F. Aber, F. A. Borst and W. B. Brown were re-elected committeemen. The greatest of harmony prevailed throughout the meeting.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

About the middle of July, Mr. Rhodes disposed of his stock of goods to S. W. Ralston, who had been a prominent member of the mercantile circle of Auburn in former days and who again resumed business in the "brick store."

About the same time, the drug store of Mercer & Bro. passed into the hands of M. F. Pierce, ex-auditor, who aided by a previous experience, in his turn continued to conduct this popularly supposed, renumerative business.

Not very many remember the old framed building that preceded the Swineford Hotel on the southwest corner of Main and Ninth streets and would recognize it in the dwelling which occupied a lot just west on Van Buren street. It bears the appearance of a roomy house, but disappoints expectation when viewed as the structure classed in 1861 as "a first-class hotel capable of accommodating fifty guests." The ideal of a first-class hotel has been marvelously improved upon in thirtv years.

During the year in question, this stand was taken in hand by John Butt and by him thoroughly refitted with new furniture from the cabinet warerooms of the Ettingers, and the event of opening the house to the public, was celebrated by an old fashioned entertainment on the evening of Feb. 15th.

The program consisted of a ball and a supper at which the managers were R. J. Fiske, A. J. Ralston, W. Park and W. W. Straight. The room manager was Guy Plumb and the music was furnished by Forsythe's Band.

Despite absorbing interest in the war and diverse opinions as to its conduct, the people were not forgetful of home measures calculated as in times of peace, to improve the condition of the farmer. Hence a meeting on Jan. 21, 1861, at the old court house of the DeKalb Agricultural Society and an election of officers for the year and an arrangement for a two days' fair on their leased grounds. W. Griswold was chosen president, R. Culbertson, vice-president, S. B. Ward treasurer and W. H. Dills secretary.

The executive committee was composed of R. Culbertson, J. R. Cosper, J. N. Chamberlain, J. Griswold, Henry Willis, R. S. S. Reed and A Provines.

A director was chosen from each township as follows: L. S. Holmes, A. Provines, James Draggoo, S. Ellis, Mr. Greenwood, of Stafford: John Mease, J. Griswold, James McCrum, John Buchanan, R. M. Lockhart, M. Waterman and G. C. Everetts.

The fair was held on Oct. 4, and 5, and the enrollment of members was sixty-five.

The first day was pleasant and promising but on the second day rain fell continuously and materially affected the attendance. Despite effects of unfavorable weather there was a good exhibit of stock, of farm and garden products and of mechanical implements.

The receipts were but $231.60, and the cash balance over unpaid premiums was $74.31 which from a Micawber point of view was an index of prosperity.

Assuming the award of premiums to have been a true test of merit and hence of interest to those now competing at our fairs for superiority, the names of some of those who were rated as having the best are as follows: On horses, James Griswold won first for blooded, B. F. Greenwood for light draft and saddle, and J. J. Holmes for heavy draught. On cattle, E. White, blooded, D. Altenberg cross-blooded and no report on natives.

J. M. Brumbeck was accredited with the best yoke of work cattle, A. M. Brumbeck took first premium on long wooled sheep and J. P. Boyer on fine wooled W. Griswold won first on hogs and H. Willis on wagon and buckboard.

In the culinary department, Mrs. T. Weldin took first on preserves, Mrs. H. Willis on currant wine and jellies and Mrs. C. Sheets on loaf of bread.

Interest in Auburn respecting municipal affairs was at low ebb. Ordinances were not enforced nor regarded, and apathy prevailed. As regarded growth, the place was stationary for the town's finances had become involved, and the funds were in a bankrupt condition. Both the school funds, common and special had been overpaid and the balance of the municipal revenue was but $1.74 with no statement nor knowledge of what amount of debt was represented by outstanding orders.

Prof. Hodge desirous of teaching a spring term of select school as was the custom of those teachers of but a year in Auburn, made application for use of the school house.

The request was granted coupled with the condition that he pay a rent of $15 to satisfy repairs made necessary. This unusual course gave rise to divided opinions and adverse criticism. Notice was therefore given that to test the views of the townspeople, signatures for free use of the building were invited, and the vote being greatly in favor of such use, established a consequent rule.

Mr. Hodge taught school at Le Raysville, Penn., where he became acquainted with Miss Julia E. Mott, a student from Auburn at the eastern seminary and to whom he was married on April 14, 1873, by Rev. Randall Faurot.

He enlisted, but the rigors of army life were beyond his endurance and he engaged in practice of law at Auburn in company with J. B. Morrison with office in the new court house. Later he removed to Pierceton, where he resumed teaching, an occupation for which by nature and education he was admirably adapted and finally returning to Auburn, located upon a fine tract of land, just north of the suburbs of the town and there died in 1889. While absent from Auburn, he also taught at Lagrange, Pierceton and Warsaw. He had charge for a time at the last named place, of the "Indianian" newspaper.

Mr. Hodge was slight of form, refined in feature, exact in speech and in the school room, an ideal teacher. Visiting the Auburn schools in company with the writer, during the superintendence of Prof. M. B. Harrison, he commented freely upon the conveniences and arrangements as contrasted with his experience in the academy and congratulated him upon the great improvement evident.

Obituary.

Phebe Oster was born in Wierbach, near Hessenheim, Rheinprovince, Germany, Nov. 14, 1824, and died at Butler, Ind., April 9, 1892.

While still a young girl she sailed from the port of Havre for America. After a voyage of six weeks reached New York and from thence to Buffalo. After about six weeks her parents came to Fulton, Stark county, O. In the spring of 1844 they moved on a farm four miles south Fulton. On Jan. 2, 1845, she was married to John P. Wagoner. After remaining in Stark County, Ohio, for a season, in company with her husband, she came to Indiana and settled upon a farm in Franklin township, DeKalb, Co. Here she resided for nearly thirty years, and then moved to Butler. To this worthy couple five children were born, two of whom preceded the mother to the better world. About twenty-two years ago she united with the M. E. church, of which she was a member for nearly sixteen years. She then united with the Lutheran church, of which she was a member at the time of her death. She was the eldest of eleven children, all of whom, except one, a brother, have gone on before to the better world.

The funeral services were conducted at the M. E. church by Rev. F. M. Stone.

Refreshing Retreats.

Summer days are fast approaching and now is the time that excursionists, pleasure seekers and sportsmen should figure out a route for their summer vacation. In doing so, the delightfully cool summer and fishing resorts located along the Wisconsin Central Lines come vividly to view, among which are Fox Lake, Ill., Lake Villa, Ill., Mukwonago, Waukesha, Cedar Lake, Neenah, Waupaca, Fifield, Butternut and Ashland, Wis. Wisconsin has within the last five years become the center of attraction for more pleasure seekers, hunters and fisherman than in any other state in the union, and each visit increases the desire to again see the charming landscapes, breathe the balsam fragrance that is a part of the invigorating atmosphere, wander through the colonnades of stately pines and hook the speckled beauties with a hand-made fly.

For pamphlet containing valuable information, etc., apply to D. W. Janowitz, T. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind., or Jas. C. Pond, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

Sec. 2. Any person who violates the provisions of this Act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than one dollar nor more than ten dollars.

Fail to do Our Duty.

Everybody has at times failed to do their duty towards themselves. Hundreds of lady readers suffer from sick headache, nervousness, sleeplessness and female troubles. Let them follow the example of Mrs. Herbetcher, Stevens Point, Wis., who for five years suffered greatly from nervous prostration and sleeplessness, tried physicians and different medicines without success. But one bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine caused sound sleep every night and she is feeling like a new person. Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, Laramie City, Wyoming, who tried all other remidies, declares that after three week's use of the Nervine for headache, nervous prostration, etc., she was entirely relieved. Sold by F. E. Davenport. Trial bottle free. 1

MERIT WINS. We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits.

Fell Dead.

These words are very familiar to our readers, as not a day passes without the report of the sudden death of some prominent citizen. The explanation is "Heart Diseases." Therefore beware if you have any of the following symtoms: short breath; pain in side, smothering spells, swollen ankles, asthmatic breathing, weak and hungry spells, tenderness in shoulder or arm, fluttering of heart or irregular pulse. These symptoms mean heart disease. The most reliable remedy is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which has saved thousands of lives. Book of testimonials free at F. E. Davenport's who also sells the New Heart Cure. 1

The New Great South American Kidney Cure.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. This new remedy has been thoroughly tested by learned physicians and found far superior to any medicine yet discovered for quickly relieving all weaknesses, aches, pains and distresses arising from disease of any part of the urinary passages. It is a great relief for the old, middle aged and children, male or female. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. It may be worth to many a hundred times its cost. This is a remedy of great value to ladies, because they are very liable to weakness and pain peculiar to their sex. The President on the Monetary Conference—A Canadian Cyclone—Bank Robber Sentenced—William Astor Dead—Electric Companies Combine—Big Fire in Chicago.

A BIG FIRE.

The Chicago Athenæum Destroyed.

The Chicago Athenæum building, a seven-story structure adjoining the art institution on Van Buren street, was destroyed by fire. The loss cannot be definitely stated, but is estimated at $150,000. There were over 400 persons in the building attending the law school and other classes when a terrific explosion, followed by the sound of crashing glass and timbers was heard on the seventh floor. The building was shaken to its foundations and fire at once broke out. A terrible panic ensued, but it's said all the occupants made their escape. The flames spread rapidly and soon were blazing fiercely in every story. Woods Hotel which adjoined the Athenæum on the west caught fire at one time but the blaze was extinguished with slight loss, though the guests were badly frightened and rushed pell mell into the streets. Several valuable paintings belonging to the Chicago Society of Artists were destroyed in the Athenæum building. At one time the fire communicated to the Art Institute, but was quickly extinguished. The cause of the explosion is a mystery, but it is said to have been due to escaping gas.

The President on the Monetary Conference.

The President has sent to the Senate a communication in answer to a resolution from the Senate for information concerning an internal monetary conference. The President's letter after acknowledging receipt of the resolution says: "I beg respectfully to inform the Senate that in my opinion it would not be compatible with the public interest to lay before the Senate at this time the information requested; but that at the earliest moment after definite information can properly be given all the facts and any correspondence that may take place will be submitted to Congress. It may not be inappropriate, however, to say here that believing that the full use of silver as a coin metal upon an agreed ratio, by the great commercial nations of the world would very highly promote the prosperity of all her people, I have not and will not let any favorable opportunity pass for the promotion of that most desirable result, or if free international silver coinage is not presently attainable, then to the largest practicable use of that metal."

A Canadian Cyclone.

Belleville, Ont., special: A report has reached here of a destructive cyclone, which visited the northern townships of Hastings County, leaving widespread ruin in its wake. The force of the storm was most severely felt in the townships of Carlow, Mayo, and Mount Eagle. Thomas Lebo of Mount Eagle and James Robinson, had all their buildings blown down, killing part of their stock. Louis Laveis' barn was carried away and torn to pieces and Alfred Armstrong's house was demolished. The cyclone passed through Carlow, about six miles wide, and swept everything before it. No further particulars have been learned, although greater damage is supposed to have been done.

May Shake Omaha.

Paul Van Dervoort, of the People's party, says that there's a possibility that the National Convention of that party will not be held at Omaha as is expected. The local hotel keepers promised to give rates of $3 to $5 a day, but have raised them to $5 to $8 per day. Letters from the leaders of the party say that if this is not remedied that they will transfer the convention to another city.

The Lutherans Will Exhibit.

The Lutheran Synod of the Central District, which has been in session at LaPorte, Ind., for the past week, reconsidered its decisions to make no World's Fair exhibit, and decided as a church to participate in the exhibition and make a complete exhibit by photograph of the finest school buildings, a complete set of its school books and a statement showing the branches taught.

Electric Companies Combine.

An electric trust, having for its object the control of the trolley overhead wire railway system, the electric lighting system, and in fact the general electric business of the country, has been formed by the consolidation of the Edison, Thomson-Houston, and Fort Wayne companies. The trust is capitalized at $50,000,000 and has its headquarters in New York.

William Astor Dead.

A special from Paris says William Astor of New York, father of Mrs. J. Coleman Drayton, died of heart failure. William Astor was next to his nephew, William Waldorf Astor, probably the richest citizen of America, his wealth being recently estimated at $60,000,000. He was a brother of the late John Jacob Astor, who died February 22, 1890.

Served His Time.

Ferdinand Ward, whose financial operations in the firm of Grant & Ward caused such a stir a few years ago, has been liberated from Sing Sing. There is still an indictment pending against him in the United States Court, but it will probably not be acted upon.

Bank Robber Sentenced.

At Ottawa, Ohio, the jury returned a verdict of murder in the first degree against Frank Van Loon, charged with killing Farmer Vandemark in an attempt to rob the Columbus Grove bank last September.

Issue of Silver Dollars.

The issue of standard silver dollars during the week ending April 30, 1892, was $368,118. The issue for the corresponding period of last year was $332,213.

Oklahoma Boomers Shot Down.

KINGFISHER (O. T.) special: In a running fight at Watonga, between Texas and Kansas factions of townsite boomers, Harry Hill of Kansas, known as "Oklahoma Harry," was shot and instantly killed by Fred Grimes, a Texan. The Indians of the South Pauls Valley have taken sides with the Kansas men and a bloody battle is hourly expected.

Oklahoma City (O. T.) special: A settler who has just arrived from the western part of the Territory, says he saw eight boomers shot and killed by soldiers under command of Capt. Woodson. As the hour of noon approached, the men got very much excited and several premature rushes were made. There were fully 10,000 men there and when they had been twice driven back by the troops with much difficulty, the Captain rode forward and said to them he would give his soldiers orders to fire if they rushed again. Then the third rush was given, and eight men fell in their tracks.

OUT OF JAIL.

Indianapolis special: The Terre Haute Express will again be edited outside of the county jail. The Supreme Court, all the judges concurring, reversed the decision of Judge Taylor of the Vigo Circuit Court, by which George M. Allen, proprietor of the Express, and G. W. Fishback, editor of the paper, were committed to jail for twenty and thirty days respectively, for contempt. The court held that there might be cases in which editors of newspapers could be punished for contempt for criticising the judiciary, but that the rule would not hold good in this case. In the opinion, written by Judge Olds, it was stated as applicable to the case that though the grand jury may have stopped the examination it was no bar to further investigation. The investigation might have been resumed at any time so that the publication of an article upon the grand jury tending to bring it into disrepute could under certain conditions be subject to the cognizance of the court. The court further said that it is legitimate and proper for the press to call the attention of the judge and grand jury, and officers of the law to violations of the law believed to have been committed and ask that an investigation be made. This, the court said, had been done by the Terre Haute papers in this instance. The court then reviewed the articles which had been printed in the Express, and held that they did not cast any reflection upon the court. They were rather in the nature of the criticism of the grand jury. Farther along in the opinion Judge Olds says that it ought to be understood that the public press has rights with which courts have no power to interfere. It is also recognized by him that there is a limit beyond which self-respecting newspapers should not pass. He says in this connection that it is seldom that a self-respecting journalist so far forgets himself as to trespass upon the rights of the judiciary.

In summing up, the court holds that the defendants were entitled to acquittal on their answer, and the decision is therefore reversed and the case remanded back for a rehearing. But one opinion was written, and that in the case of Fishback. The opinion is made applicable to both cases.

A CYCLONE

Does Considerable Damage in Texas.

A cyclone of fearful velocity struck near Gladwater, Texas, twelve miles west of Long View on the Texas Pacific railway, and demoralized everything in its path. Fortunately, however, the country over which it swept is sparsely settled and no loss of life has been reported. The first damage was to a lumber shed at Gladwater which was shook down. Next the log house of Dick Spencer was badly damaged, roof, chimney, and shed-room being carried away. James Bell's house and out-houses were all damaged. There the storm changed its course to the northeast, passing uncomfortably near William Daniel's log dwelling, partly wrecking an addition and leveling all out-houses.

Three hundred yards farther on in the same direction the twister struck J. M. Munger's dwelling, a strong six room house. Then the whole structure was carried east fifty yards and let down on several bee hives. Not one plank remained in its place, while most of them were completely splintered. In this house seven people were assembled at breakfast, all of whom staid in the building during the ordeal and not one was killed outright. Of all this large house, none is now higher than three feet, while the heavy sills were broken like straws. All the inmates were able to get out. J. M. Munger had his collar bone broken and received slight bruises. His wife, who had a 6-months-old infant in her arms, had her ankle broken and was otherwise injured. A girl of 14 received an ugly wound on the left leg.

SOLD ON THE BLOCK.

Four Negroes at Auction in Missouri.

Fayette (Mo.) special: This town is again on the verge of a race war because of a vagrant sale of negroes which took place here. About a month ago these dispatches told of the excitement that the sale of three vagrant negroes occasioned. The other day the feeling was intensified by the public sale on the block of three men and one woman because they could not offer visible means of support. Henry Thompson, William Miller, and John Wilkins were the men. All are hearty negroes, who were never before arrested on any charge. The woman was an aged mulatto, Mary Whiteside. She was accused of vagrancy.

The colored people were brought into the public square at 11 o'clock and a great crowd of both colors gathered. The whites made fun of the poor victims and the blacks freely expressed their displeasure at the scene that so cruelly brought to their minds the days of actual slavery. The woman was put up first. She brought $10 for sixty days' work that the county find her. The men sold for $10, $12, and $13 respectively, being taken by reliable farmers hereabouts. The woman will work in a good family in town. Negroes declare that this must stop or that the whites must be sold with the negroes. The sale took place on a block, Sheriff Crigler officiating.

CROOKED SERVANTS.

Custom House Officials Conspire to Defraud the Government.

New York special: The Custom House authorities for some time past have been quietly investigating what has turned out to be a gigantic conspiracy of the Custom House employes, brokers, and importers, who have for a number of years been defrauding the Government by under valuing imports. Three arrests have been made and it is learned that thirty persons are to be arrested soon. These include a few importers, two or three brokers and the rest are custom employes. The Government has evidence that forty-five others are implicated, but there is not sufficient proof of their guilt at present to warrant their arrest. Collector Hendricks and Special Treasury Agent Whitehead held a conference in regard to the matter, but neither official would talk of the case at present. They said all the facts in the case would be made public soon.

Officer and Burglar Fight.

Columbus (Ohio) special: The other morning officer Kunkle found a man in Krummer's grocery, on Mound street, and attempted to arrest him. A most desperate fight occurred between the two men, resulting, after a long and bloody tussle, in which the officer was stabbed in the face, in the burglar being captured. He was identified at the police station as Joseph Harrison, alias Joseph Brennan, an Eastern crook of considerable reputation in his line.

Oh, What a Roast!

London special: A woman who is very near the throne at Windsor is authority for the statement that the Emperor of Germany has forbidden the reading or admission of American newspapers and periodicals in the national barracks and at military clubs. It is further declared he has written to his brother sovereigns in Europe asking them to issue a similar interdict in their dominions. The Emperor is said to have written to Chancellor Caprivi saying he considered it beneath the dignity of any German gentleman to pollute himself by reading such stuff as regularly appeared in the New York and Chicago periodicals.

Shaken Up Again.

San Francisco special: Shocks were felt here the other morning, and at Woodland, where chimneys fell and walls collapsed. It lasted about twenty seconds.

At Chico the vibrations lasted thirty seconds and many clocks were stopped.

At Benicia windows rattled and buildings swayed.

At Vacaville it was not so severe as the previous shock.

At Biggs a heavy shock was felt and eight distinct vibrations noted. Plaster fell and clocks stopped all over the town.

At Reno, Nev., the shock was a slight one. It was felt at 9:47.

At Winters many frail buildings were destroyed and goods demolished in houses. Several people were injured by falling brick and stone.

Twenty Thousand Texans Threatened With Famine.

San Antonio (Texas) special: For three years the counties of Starr, Hidalgo, Porticas, Zabata, Mexico, and Duvall have been subjected to a drought of such severity as to render the production of the necessaries of life impossible. The season for planting has passed and early crops having been killed by frost there is no hope for relief unless summer rains should secure a light fall crop. The losses on cattle, the principal industry of this section, are estimated at 80 per cent., and in Nueces County alone 60,000 head have died. The famine district contains a population estimated at 20,000 people, and probably one-fourth of this number require assistance. The people have issued an appeal to the public for help.

Miss Zigler Still.

Indianapolis, special: Miss Mollie Zigler of Southport, has made the astonishing discovery that she was the victim of a mock marriage. Some time ago she eloped to this city with William R. Cashion and Cashion absented himself ostensibly to produce a license and a clergyman. He soon returned with what she supposed to be a certificate and a minister, and the wedding followed. A few weeks ago Cashion disappeared and for the first time a doubt was cast upon the legality of their union. Investigation developed that no marriage license had been issued and that Miss Zigler had no legal right to call herself a wife.

Indiana Tax Law.

The Indiana Supreme Court made public a decision on one point in the celebrated tax law cases. The corporations have claimed as one great reason for their refusal to pay the increased tax that they were not notified that the raise had been made in their assessments. The court, in its decision, says that the law itself was a sufficient notice to corporations as the State Board is given power to fix the assessments. This knocks out one of the main stays in the railroads and other corporations fights against the new law.

Struck a Bonanza.

Ernest Ragnon, an ex-resident of Jeffersonville, Ind., who located in Salt Lake City, Utah, a short while since, has struck a quarry of lithographic stone on his land, which seems nearly inexhaustible. At present the world is supplied with the precious stone from only one small section in Bavaria, and the discovery is worth more than a silver mine. The stone has been tested in New York, Chicago and other places, and pronounced even better than the German product.

Death in a Collision.

A collision between a freight train and a wild engine running at full speed on the Chicago and Grand Trunk railroad, occurred three miles west of Lapeer, Mich., and caused the instant death of two trainmen. Many others were injured. The cars were piled up high by the force of the collision, and it is thought that other trainmen are underneath the wreck.

A Missing Judge.

Judge Marr of the Criminal District Court of New Orleans, is still missing. His mysterious disappearance has caused great excitement throughout the State. About 7 o'clock Wednesday evening he was seen walking near the new levee at Carrollton, and the police now believe that he fell into the river and was drowned.

Forty French Anarchists Arrested.

The police of Lyons, France, made a raid upon the haunts of the Anarchists and arrested forty, sixteen of whom were subsequently released. A search in the dwellings of the prisoners led to the seizure of a quantity of explosive substances and revolutionary literature.

No Miners' Strike This Year.

The block-coal miners' and operators' committees met in Brazil, Ind., and signed a mining scale for another year, the miners accepting the same price as last year.

Not a Candidate.

Gov. McKinley denies the report sent all over the country that he is a candidate for the seat in Congress from the Stark, Columbiana, Mahoning district.

GROVER, THEN GRAY.

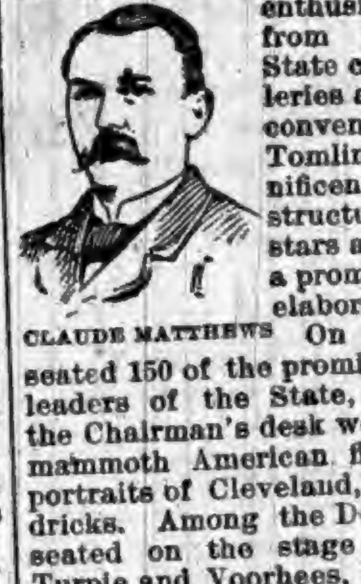
HOOSIER DEMOCRATS DECLARE THEIR CHOICE.

Lively Convention at Indianapolis—Cleveland Is Indorsed and Matthews Selected for the Governorship—The Ex-Governor Fares Well—Favor Honest Money.

The Ticket.

Governor	CLAUDE MATTHEWS
Lieutenant Governor	MORTIMER NYE
Secretary of State	CAPTAIN W. R. MYERS
Treasurer	ALBERT GALL
Auditor	J. O. HENDERSON
Attorney General	GREEN SMITH
Supt. of Instruction	HARVEY D. WHITE

The above is the head of the ticket—a ticket as long as a comet's tail—that was placed in nomination by the representatives of the Democracy of the Hoosier State in convention assembled. It was one of the most orderly, well-behaved, business-like and enthusiastic State conventions that ever met in Indianapolis, and the ticket nominated is confessedly one of the strongest that the Democrats of Indiana have ever submitted for the suffrages of the people.



CLAUDE MATTHEWS

Every county in the State was represented by a full delegation and 3,000 enthusiastic Democrats from throughout the State crowded the galleries and aisles. The convention was held in Tomlinson Hall, a magnificently decorated structure, in which the stars and stripes played a prominent part in the elaborate adornments. On the stage were seated 150 of the prominent Democratic leaders of the State, and overhanging the Chairman's desk were half a dozen mammoth American flags, bearing the portraits of Cleveland, Gray and Hendricks. Among the Democratic leaders seated on the stage were: Senators Turpie and Voorhees, William English, Vice Presidential candidate on the Hancock ticket; Chairman Taggart, of the State Central Committee; S. P. Sheerin, Secretary of the National Democratic Committee; Congressmen Jason Brown, George W. Cooper and W. D. Bynum, a dozen ex-Congressmen and all the State Delegates to the National Convention.

Senator Turpie Presided.

The convention was called to order by Chairman Taggart. Ex-Senator Smith invoked divine blessing.

There were loud cheers when the Committee on Permanent Organization reported United States Senator Turpie as chairman of the convention and Senator Voorhees, Hugh Dougherty, Charles L. Jewett and Samuel E. Morse as delegates-at-large to the National Convention.

Senator Turpie made a forcible speech in support of Democratic principles and attacked the billion-dollar Congress and the administration of Mr. Harrison.

Among other things he said:

This convention means much more than the selection of the different candidates for the State offices to be filled next November. It is composed of the constituent elements of the Democracy of Indiana, assembled to take measures for the advancement of their cause and for the public welfare. It means absolute freedom and equality of elections in the several States. It means the defeat and overthrow of all force bills and Federal returning boards. It means the perpetual establishment of elections by the people and for the people as the chief art and part of political liberty. And we may note now, since the defeat of that nefarious measure, what a cessation there has been of mere sectional strife and racial hatred. The "Southern outrage," formerly manufactured daily, has ceased to be a commodity on the market. Quiet and tranquility have followed the defeat of sectional fanaticism. Peace—domestic peace—has flowed in on us like a river and has visited all our borders with its most gracious benediction.

This convention means reduction of the rates of taxation, the readjustment of those rates so that the public burdens shall not be placed merely upon man's daily necessities, but in some degree upon their wealth and ability to bear and pay them. The proposition that all land and labor of the country must be specially taxed for the benefit of a comparatively small portion of the community—what are called the protected industries—this small portion being in corrupt alliance with certain political agencies of the Republican party, and being vested with the taxing power of the Government to enrich themselves by a forced levy and daily pillage of all the men and women engaged in other trades and vocation—this proposition is one from which reason and justice alike recoil. This is a policy which the voters of the United States have, as long ago as November, 1890, by a firm and immutable decree, determined to erase and expunge from national legislation.

Our presence here also implies the immediate reduction of public expenditures; it signifies the political death and burial of all the supporters and advocates of that mammoth extravaganza, the billion appropriation bill, and especially it indicates the early political obsequies of that very demure and reticent billionist who has his lodgings at present in the White House, who signed and approved that bill, without whose name and signature this enormous draft upon the moneys of the people could neither have been made, paid nor presented.

A return of the administration of the government to the ancient line of wise and strict economy and the highest integrity in public expenditures will give us the more abundant funds for the purpose of meeting the just and necessary demands upon the National Treasury. And this assembly, therefore, means that the pensions due to the soldiers and sailors in the service of the United States, their personal representatives during the war for the Union, shall be punctually and promptly paid, as provided by law. The army pensions shall be generously sustained and approved. The tariff pensions, the tariff bounties, subsidies and monopolies must all go upon the list of rejected claims—must be totally abolished and finally repealed.

The most complete personification, the veritable flesh and blood embodiment of the fallacies, falsehoods and follies of Republicanism is found in the present occupant of the presidential chair. At the commencement of the present session of Congress the President sent a message to the people, through their representatives at that time assembled. The period when the message was sent was one of much depression. There were thousands of laborers, miners, mechanics, waiting and waiting in vain for the increase in wages promised by the McKinley bill. There were other thousands waiting for work, for employment at any wages, promised after the passage of the same measure. The great agricultural products—cotton, corn, wheat—were depressed in prices and sustained nothing like the values which they had before the adoption of what is called the protective policy.

But in this message so delivered not a word was said about the increase of wages; no suggestion was made with reference to additional chances for work and employment. There was a dead silence as to the depression in the price of farm products. There were very voluminous utterances concerning Behring Sea and Balmaceda. There were some very misty predictions and mysterious prophecies about the benefits to be conferred upon this portion of mankind following from that very attenuated and shadowy hull of reciprocity. One would think from reading the President's message and making a fair and full interpretation of it—and of course I would make no other—that the people of the United States actually had no other means of redress, of escape, from the restrictions and exactions of McKinleyism than be the special grace and favor of some ambassador of the treaty-making foreign powers; the minister from Brazil, the Spanish cortes, the Captain General of Cuba, the Governor of Porto Rico—these can change, alter and amend the tariff rates in the McKinley bill, but it is claimed that the people of the United States have no such power.

It will be shown in November next by many infallible proofs that the voters of this country have that power in their own hands. They will make and find a more excellent way than any that has been dreamed of in the riddles or bubbles of diplomacy. Yes, the President sent to the people a message last December, and in November next the people will send a message to the President. It will be the same message that was sent to another ruler in another age: "You have been weighed—you have been weighed in the balance and you are found wanting."

The Platform Adopted.

The Committee on Resolutions reported the following platform, which was read amid cheers and adopted by acclamation:

We, the Democracy of Indiana, in delegate convention assembled, reaffirm our devotion to the time-honored principles of our historic party. We believe that the powers delegated by the people should be strictly construed; that the autonomy of the States and the rights of local self-government and home rule should be zealously guarded; that no money should be taken from the people under any pretext for other than public purposes; that the strictest economy should be exercised in all governmental expenditures, whether local, State, or national; that legislation should be confined to the legitimate objects of government; that public office is a solemn public trust.

We are uncompromisingly opposed to the enlargement and concentration of Federal powers; to the usurpation by the Central Government of the functions of the States; to bounties and subsidies in every form; to every species of class legislation and Government partnership with private enterprise to the whole theory and practice of paternalism.

We believe that in a free country the curtailment of absolute rights of the individual should only be such as is essential to the peace and good order of the community, and we regard all legislation looking to the infringement of liberty of person or conscience not absolutely necessary to the maintenance of public order as vicious in principle and demoralizing in practice.

We arraign the administration of Benjamin Harrison for its subserviency to the interest of the money power which created it and its indifference to the welfare of the people; for its brazen violation of its solemn pledges to the country to elevate and purify the public service; for its shameless prostitution of the public patronage to the vilest partisan purposes, as illustrated by the sale of a Cabinet office to John Wanamaker; by the employment of the Pension Bureau as a party machine, and by the promotion of William A. Woods to a higher post in the Federal judiciary as a reward for his services in saving the "blocks of five" conspirators from the penitentiary; for its contemptuous repudiation of its promises to the veteran soldiers of the Union; for its wicked attempt to fasten upon the country the odious and un-American force bill, intended to deprive the people of the right to regulate their own elections; for its weak and demagogical foreign policy, which has exhibited the American government to the world as a bully toward the feeble and a truckler to the powerful.

We favor such a radical and comprehensive measure of tariff reform as shall relieve the necessities of the people and crude material of our manufactures from federal taxation. We condemn the so-called reciprocity policy as a transparent attempt to impose upon American people the shadow of commercial freedom for its substance, in order to perpetuate the existing system of licensed spoliation for the benefit of trusts and monopolies, which are the chief support of the Republican party.

We believe that there should be kept in constant circulation a full and sufficient volume of money, consisting of gold, silver and legal tender paper currency, at par with each other.

We favor the election of United States Senators directly by the people, and commend Senator Turpie for his efforts in Congress to secure this great reform.

We indorse the course of our distinguished Senators, Daniel W. Voorhees and David Turpie, and we favor the re-election of Turpie to the position he has filled with such ability.

We most heartily applaud the action of our two last legislatures in passing the school-book laws, thereby giving the people of Indiana a complete series of school text-books equal to those formerly used at one-half the trust prices. We pledge ourselves to resist every attempt of the school-book combine to regain their control of Indiana and by that means bring about the frequent and expensive changes in books of which the people justly complained in former years.

We approve the Australian election system introduced in Indiana by the Democratic party. It has stood the test of experience, and we are in favor of maintaining it intact.

This convention hereby renews the expression of appreciation of the patriotism of the soldiers of Indiana in the war for the preservation of the Union and we favor just and liberal pensions for all disabled soldiers, their widows and dependents, but we demand that the work of the pension office shall be done industriously, impartially and honestly. We denounce the administration of that office by the present commissioner, Green B. Raum, as incompetent, corrupt, disgraceful, and dishonest, and we demand his immediate removal from office.

We heartily indorse the new tax law as a wise and beneficent act by which the increased revenues necessary for the support of the State Government are raised entirely from the corporations of the State that had heretofore unjustly escaped their fair proportion of taxation.

We commend the Legislature for refusing to adopt Gov. Hovey's recommendation to increase the State levy from 12 cents to 25 cents on $100, and for meeting the necessary expenses of the State's benevolent institutions by a levy of 6 cents on the $100.

We denounce the infamous conspiracy of the Republican county commissioners, township trustees, and other officials of Indiana who for the purpose of creating unfair prejudice against the new law tax have wantonly and needlessly increased the local taxes in the forty-six counties controlled by them more than $1,250,000, a sum greater than the total increase of State taxes in the entire State. We call on the taxpayers of those counties to rebuke at the polls those local officials who have put this needless and oppressive burden upon them.

The Democratic party stands by its record as the friend of the masses as against the classes, and calls the attention of the laboring men of Indiana to the fact that it has given to them the eight-hour law, the law to prevent blacklisting, the law prohibiting truck stores, the law for the protection of miners, and laws which make it impossible for Pinkerton detectives to arrest and slay laboring men in Indiana because of their efforts toward self-protection.

For thirty-five years the Republican party has legislated for the rich and powerful and in the interests of corporate wealth. The Democratic party pledges itself to remedy the evils growing out of such class legislation, and in future contests stand by the great producing masses, whose toil and self-sacrifices are the foundation of all national wealth.

We commend the organization of the industrial classes for self-protection against trusts, combines, and monopolies, and call attention of the farmers and laborers to the fact that every evil complained of by them is the result of Republican legislation.

Resolved, That this convention indorses the wise and patriotic administration of Grover Cleveland; that the Presidential campaign of 1892 should be conducted on the issue of tariff reform as defined by the Presidential message of 1887; that, upon this issue, Mr. Cleveland is the logical candidate of the Democratic party.

Resolved, That the Democratic party of Indiana expresses its unalterable confidence and attachment to its gallant leader, Isaac P. Gray; that it holds him to be worthy of any honor in the government of the American people, and that his name be presented to the convention by the delegation this day appointed, and in the event that the national convention deems the nomination of Mr. Cleveland inexpedient, the delegation is instructed to use every honorable effort to secure the nomination of Gov. Isaac P. Gray for the Presidency.

Named for the Supreme Court.

Jeptha D. New, of Jennings, and William R. Johnson, of Dearborn, were placed in nomination for Supreme Judge of the Second District. Before the roll-call was half over Judge New had been nominated. Judge Johnson withdrew, and New's nomination was made unanimous.

For Supreme Judge of the Third District, Judge C. F. McNutt, of Vigo, and James McCabe, of Warren, were placed before the convention. The contest was very close, but near the end of the call McCabe began to forge ahead, and at the close was nominated by a vote of 729⅓ to 573½. On motion of McNutt, the defeated candidate, the nomination of McCabe was made unanimous. For Supreme Judge of the Fifth District Timothy E. Howard, of St. Joseph, was nominated on the first ballot.

Appellate Court Nominations.

George L. Reinhardt of Spencer County was nominated for Judge of the Appellate Court for the First District, Frank E. Gavin of Decatur County nominated for Judge of the Appellate Court for the Second District, and Theodore P. Davis of Hamilton County was nominated for Appellate Judge of the Third District. For Appellate Judge of the Fourth District O. J. Loty of Delaware was nominated on the second ballot, and for the Fifth District G. E. Ross of Cass County on the third ballot.

Turned His Face to the Wall.

At this juncture one of the most amusing incidents of the day occurred. Large-sized portraits of Gray, Cleveland, and Hendricks had been suspended in a row above the stage during the proceedings. Suddenly the portrait of Gray begun to swing, probably impelled by slight draughts of air, and finally turned with the face to the wall, resting in that position. Instantly there was a wild yell of applause from the Cleveland men, who regarded this as an omen of the retirement of Isaac Pusey Gray from the Presidential arena.

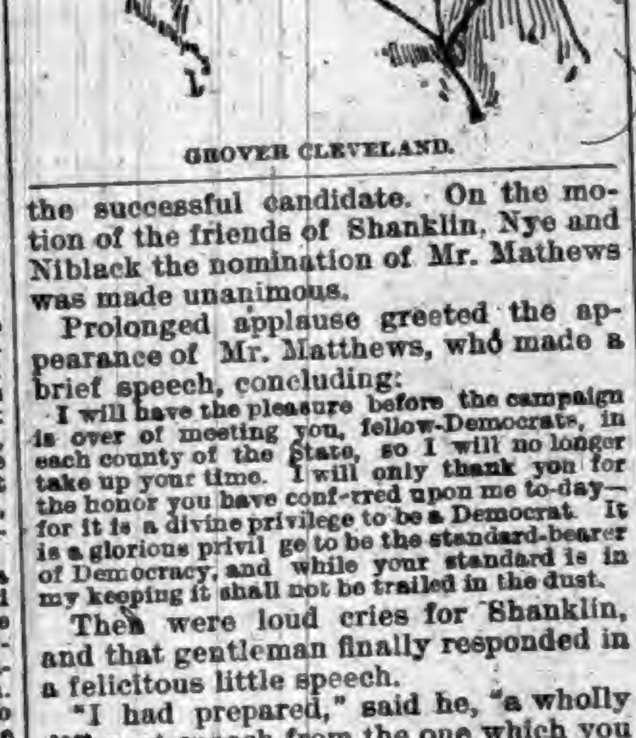
Frantic attempts were made by the Gray men on the stage to restore the picture to its original position, but it persisted repeatedly in swinging back with the face to the wall, and each unsuccessful attempt to readjust it was only the signal for jeers of hilarity from the Cleveland men and cries of "They turned his picture to the wall!" The Gray men finally desisted and the ex-Governor's portrait remained for an hour with his face to the wall, until some thoughtful genius inserted guy cords to keep it steady.

While these wild attempts were being made to preserve the Gray portrait in a dignified position, another draught of air caught Cleveland's portrait and it, too, began to swing to one side. Immediately there were deafening cheers of delight from the Gray men, but their enthusiasm was short-lived. The portrait only swung half way round, and when it stopped, facing the ladies' gallery, and the fair admirers of the ex-President applauded this unconscious deference to their sex, the Cleveland men caught it up and the late mishap was made the occasion for another enthusiastic Cleveland demonstration.

Contest for Governor.

The greatest contest of the day began when the nomination of a candidate for Governor was in order. John G. Shanklin of Evansville, Mason J. Niblack of Vincennes, and Mortimer Nye of Laporte were each placed in nomination with the usual manifestations of enthusiasm, but the wildest demonstration of the day took place when Claude Matthews of Clinton was presented as "the farmer candidate." His followers leaped to their feet en masse when his name was presented, and, tossing their hats and handkerchiefs in the air, gave cheer after cheer for their candidate, until the galleries caught the infection, and for three minutes it looked as though Mr. Matthews must be nominated by acclamation.

When the roll-call began Mr. Matthews forged ahead from the very beginning. The conclusion of the ballot showed Mathews within a few votes of the nomination, the result being: Matthews, 618; Shanklin, 360; Niblack, 173; and Nye, 160. Immediately St. Joseph County changed her 26 votes to Matthews, and when Tippecanoe followed by giving her 21 votes his nomination was assured, and as the band struck up "Auld Lang Syne" cheer after cheer was given for the successful candidate. On the motion of the friends of Shanklin, Nye and Niblack the nomination of Mr. Mathews was made unanimous.



GROVER CLEVELAND.

Prolonged applause greeted the appearance of Mr. Matthews, who made a brief speech, concluding:

I will have the pleasure before the campaign is over of meeting you, fellow-Democrats, in each county of the State, so I will no longer take up your time. I will only thank you for the honor you have conferred upon me to-day—for it is a divine privilege to be a Democrat. It is a glorious privilege to be the standard-bearer of Democracy, and while your standard is in my keeping it shall not be trailed in the dust.

Then were loud cries for Shanklin, and that gentleman finally responded in a felicitous little speech.

"I had prepared," said he, "a wholly different speech from the one which you are about to hear. I had pictured myself the possessor of the nomination of the party to which I have always belonged—the great object and ambition of my life. But I am here now as a Democrat, and although this convention has presented the cup of disappointment to my lips and I turn from its tasting with a little tinge of sadness, perhaps, yet that disappointment is not one which will rankle in my heart."

Messrs. Niblack and Nye also made brief speeches, and pledged their cordial support to the nominee of the party in the coming campaign.

Mr. Matthews Is a Farmer.

Claude Matthews, the nominee, was born Dec. 14, 1845, at Bethel, Bath County, Ky. He graduated at Center College, Danville, Ky., in June, 1867. He married Jan. 1, 1868, Martha R. Whitcomb, only child of the late James Whitcomb, who was Governor of Indiana in 1843 and 1846. Mr. Matthews moved to Vermillion County in 1869 and located on a farm three miles west of Clinton, where he has resided ever since, engaging in farming and stock breeding. In 1876 he was elected to the Legislature. In 1890 he was elected Secretary of State by a plurality of nearly 20,000. He has always been a Democrat and never engaged in any other business than that of farming. He is a member of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association and is expected to receive great support from the agricultural organizations.

Other Nominations.

For Lieutenant Governor the following candidates were proposed: Mason J. Niblack, Mortimer Nye, Samuel W. Axtell, John G. Shanklin, and I. B. McDonald. Marion County nominated Shanklin, and the nomination was immediately withdrawn by Shanklin's own county. When Knox County was reached Mason J. Niblack's name was withdrawn, but not upon his authority, it was alleged. Other counties continued to vote for him. The first ballot resulted in no choice, but on the second ballot Mortimer Nye, of La Porte, was nominated.

The following candidates were then nominated by acclamation, and the convention adjourned: Secretary of State, William B. Myers; Auditor of State, John Oscar Henderson; Treasurer of State, Albert Gall; Attorney General, Alonzo Greensmith; Reporter Supreme Court, Sidney R. Moon; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Hervey D. Voreis; State Statistician, William A. Peelle.

CHAPTER :—Continued.

"Oh, my," Mary added, as Mrs. Thomson returned with the glass of milk and a generous wedge of gingerbread, "this is what I call good."

"Do you know," she continued, after a few moments' silent enjoyment of her refreshments, "I believe Weston has really grown since I saw it last."

"I don't know about that, Miss, but I do know we are improving wonderful. So many city folks come here for the summer. Next year we are going to have another hotel, and everybody that's got a spare room is set on taking boarders."

"Are you?" asked Mary, setting down her empty glass.

"Oh, no, Miss. I haven't a corner. Besides, I'm too far from the town. Take some more milk, Miss Mary."

"No, thank you. You gave me such a large glass." She walked to the window as she spoke, and glanced down the broad, shady street.

"You have some very pretty girls," she added, after a second, as her eye followed two young ladies on horseback. "Are those two natives or visitors?"

"Them?" said the woman, looking in her turn. "They live here. That tall one's Miss Ellis. She goes to New York a good part of her time. She's going to be married in a few months."

"Ah, is she? How happy she must feel. Looks, I mean."

"People think she has reason to be happy. She's going to do very well. They say Mr. Beverly is a——"

"Mr. Who?" cried Mary, turning quickly.

"Mr. Beverly," repeated Mrs. Thomson, slightly surprised at Mary's tone. "A mighty nice young man. He doesn't live here, of course; he comes from New York, and I daresay when they're married they'll go there altogether."

Mary still stood by the window. She could feel her knees tremble under her, and a stange, numb sensation creeping about her heart.

"Will you tell me this—this gentleman's name?" she asked, after a second, striving to make her voice calm and to keep all emotion from her face.

"Christian name?" repeated the woman, knitting her brows in her effort to remember. "I've heard it, I know, and yet I can't, somehow, recollect."

"An uncommon one, perhaps," suggested Mary, in a strange voice. "It is nothing like—Jack."

There was a slight lingering over this name, as though she half feared to let it leave her lips, but Mrs. Thomson took it up eagerly.

"That's it, Miss," she said, with decision. "Sometimes you know a thing, but can't just think at the time, and if somebody mentions it——Ah, Miss, what's the matter? Are you ill?"

Mary had clutched the window for support, but at the woman's question she stood upright again.

"No, no, not ill," she answered, painfully. "I may be tired. I'll sit here for a few minutes, then I must be going."

"You look rather pale," was the somewhat anxious reply. "Perhaps I might get something to make you feel better."

"Thank you. Nothing could make me feel better now. I think I am rather interested in Miss Ellis. Are you sure about this engagement, and that his name is—Beverly?"

"Yes, Miss. Everybody here knows it; and as for Mr. Beverly, I've spoken to him. He's nice in his manners—good-looking, too. I saw him not two hours ago. He was with Miss Ellis then."

"Two hours ago," thought Mary. This, then, was the reason for his going to New York. How often during the hours that she was not with him had he come here to be with her?

Of course he had known her in New York, had perhaps been engaged when he came to Robin's Rest. She had served to amuse him. The world would call it a flirtation—nothing more. He had been amused, and she had been a fool to think him in earnest.

She could realize now how unreservedly she had given her heart to him; how utterly she had staked her life's happiness on the weight of his word. He had seemed so true, so earnest. Even in the face of such overwhelming testimony it was hard to doubt him while she remembered his words and glances. Mary never knew how she reached home. Her pale cheeks awakened her grandfather's concern at supper. She pleaded headache as a cause, and as soon as possible went off to bed.

The night was filled with miserable thoughts. Hour after hour passed, and she tossed restlessly on her pillow. At one moment she would tell herself that she no longer cared; that Jack had quite passed out of her heart and life; and at the next she would pray that her walk and its bitter revelations might prove only a dreadful dream. Oh, if she could but wake to find the world as bright, and herself as happy, as hopeful, and as trusting as she had been but twenty-four hours before.

But morning found her sick and faint from want of rest and sleep.

"I must get up, though," she said to herself. "They must not know. Nobody must know. He has stolen my happiness from me. Yes, stolen it. I was so contented here with grandpa until he came, and now—— Everything is so different. Ah, he had so much; why should he have taken the only thing I had?

"I won't care, though," she added, indignantly, dashing a tear from her eye. "I must not give up to this weakness. If I don't hate him, I must despise myself. I must—I do hate him."

Breakfast proved a most trying ordeal. Jeannette's sharp eyes and her grandfather's anxious inquiries were difficult to evade, and when the meal was scarcely half over she left the table with the half-trembling words:

"Grandpa, don't be anxious; I am perfectly well, but there are times when I cannot bear your kindness. Please don't speak to me now."

"There is something wrong," said Mr. Millard, with a grave glance at Jeannette. "I never saw her act so strangely before."

"She doesn't look over and above well," was the answer, "and if she hadn't seemed so bright yesterday morning I'd say she and Mr. Beverly had been a fussing, as they've been doing the best part of the last three weeks, but now I can't make nothing of it. I don't think it's anything serious, though. Nothing that won't come right."

Jeannette was rather surprised when Mary came to her twenty minutes later, and putting a note in her hand, said:

"Give it to Mr. Beverly when he comes to-day. If he does come," she added.

"Give it to him?" returned the old woman, glancing from the note to Mary. "What am I to do that for? I must say I don't like the looks of things."

"Will you give it to him or not?" asked Mary. "If you will not, I will take it to Toby."

"I'll give it to him; but I must say again, I don't like the looks of things."

Two hours later she put it in Jack's hand, with the words:

"I don't know what's in it, sir. It may be something not very pleasant; if it is, don't mind it. Miss Mary has more humors than a cat has lives. It comes of her grandfather ruining her when she was young."

Jack scarcely heard these remarks—he was reading his note.

It was written in pencil, and contained these words: "I write this to spare myself the humiliation of ever seeing or speaking to you again. I have discovered all your miserable conduct, and if you have one spark of manliness in your nature you will spare me the sight of your face again."

"Where is she?" he cried, hoarsely, when he had gathered the full meaning of the bitter lines. "I must see her."

"She's gone riding," replied Jeannette, rather startled by his face. "I couldn't say where, sir. She'll be coming back soon. I guess maybe you had better wait."

Jack found this waiting miserable enough. Dinner time came, and Mary did not appear, a fact which so disturbed Mr. Millard that he failed to notice Jack's peculiar mood.

It was not until late in the afternoon that Jack, standing near the gate, caught the first glimpse of the approaching Prince.

He waited until he was almost upon him, and then starting quickly forward grasped the bridle, bringing horse and rider to a sudden and rather sharp standstill.

"Do you know why I have stopped you in this way?" he asked in a stern voice.

"No," responded Mary, with darkening eyes and a face from which every particle of color had fled, "unless you wish to add another insult to your long list."

"You shall explain what you mean by that," he exclaimed passionately. "And by this, too."

He drew her note from his pocket and held it before her eyes.

A slight change passed over her face.

"The meaning is clear. If you wish another answer, ask your own conscience."

She jerked her bridle from his hand, and giving Prince a smart cut, dashed by him without further words.

"I will have an explanation," he muttered, looking after her.

Returning to the house he tore a sheet of paper from his note-book, and hastily scrawled upon it:

"I must see you."

Jeannette carried this to Mary, and returned looking both angry and perplexed.

"She says you have her note, sir, and she hasn't any more to say. I'm very sorry, sir," added the woman, feeling something was wrong.

"Thank you, Jeannette. I must be getting my things together. I will have to leave you to-night."

"Oh, sir, that's too bad. Mr. Millard will be so sorry. I suppose you couldn't change your mind?"

"Impossible. And Mr. Millard must think business calls me away. It will be better so."

"Yes, sir; I understand. It's a shame Miss Mary's temper——"

"I cannot discuss that," Jack replied, with much pain in his voice. "It is something more than temper, though; I'm positive of that. I'll find out what in some way."

Mr. Millard saw Jack depart with genuine regret. He had built many hopes upon this visit, and their failure disappointed him keenly.

Mary's spirits worried him also. He attributed her present melancholy to a cause perfectly natural under the circumstances.

The idea gave him such pain that he decided to take Jeannette into his confidence.

"I have been noticing Mary's indisposition," he said, in breaking the subject to her, "and I have feared—it may be quite groundless, I hope it is, but yet it is possible—that she cared for Jack. Give me your opinion. You should be able to judge much better than I."

"I know this much, sir," returned Jeannette, unable to hold back longer, "I know she sent him away. Whether she cared for him or didn't care for him, he cared for her and she sent him away. She wrote him a note. I don't know what was in it, but I do know it made his face as white as your shirt. He tried to see her, but she wouldn't have it, and then he left, as any self-respecting young man would."

The gentleman's face had undergone various changes during the progress of this speech, and when Jeannette concluded he regarded her in pained surprise.

"I don't understand it," he said in a musing tone. "I can't understand it."

"No, sir; nor no one else. You might live to be a hundred and not understand Miss Mary."

Mr. Millard remained in deep thought after Jeannette's communication, and when Mary sat by him in the study that night, he said to her, quite suddenly:

"My child, you are not happy."

Mary looked away from him.

"I have been in low spirits lately," she rejoined, "but I shall get over it in a day or two, if you will try to bear with me a little while longer, and not be too good to me."

"But why should you be in low spirits, Mary? If there is a reason, surely, I should know it."

Mary looked pained and troubled. Once more she turned away.

"Grandpa," she said at last, speaking with an effort, "when I have found a reason which I can acknowledge to my own self I will tell it to you. But it only hurts me to speak of it now. In a few days everything will be as it used to be. We will be happy together, sha'n't we? Nobody will ever come between us now."

"I can scarcely tell whether Jeannette was right, or wrong," mused the old gentleman when reflecting on Mary's words.

CHAPTER X.

"You won't get no room down here, sir. There's only one hotel in the place and that ain't nothing to speak of; and such as it is, it's full. There's quite a big house up to Weston, sir. You might be able to put up there. As it's no great ways, I can drive you."

"Very well," replied Jack, in a relieved tone. "I don't feel like getting back to New York to-night, and I must find some sort of a lodging. Get me there as quickly as you can and I'll give you your own price."

"Kind 'er unsettled," muttered the old farmer, as he watched Jack's long, impatient strides before the stable door. However, the suggestion of money proved an incentive to extra exertion, and the old horse was soon ready for the road.

"Now, sir, I guess we can start."

"All right," responded Jack, jumping into the somewhat dilapidated-looking vehicle. "I hope your horse is a good traveler."

"Fair, sir, fair. I can't complain of him."

Jack did not hear these words. Lighting his cigar, he leaned back in his seat and maintained an unbroken silence for the rest of the journey.

"At last," he said, as they pulled up before the door of the worthy Mrs. Shrimp.

But here a new disappointment awaited him. Mrs. Shrimp hadn't a corner, she declared, with many regrets. People had come down on her so, she'd been driven to find a spot for John and herself.

Jack regarded her with a helpless air. "I have come from South Weston," he said, "in the hope of finding a room here. I might return to New York, of course, but that would inconvenience me greatly. Perhaps you can suggest some house——"

Mrs. Shrimp shook her head. All she knew of was full. "There was the Millers, with as nice and neat a room as one might wish. The gentleman might have had that. But then there was Mr. Miller——"

"What about him," interrupted Jack, foreseeing a possible lodging.

"Nothing, sir. Except he's dead. Died last night, and, of course, Mrs. Miller being up to her ears in mourning and sorrowing. Couldn't——"

"Certainly not," was the prompt response. "I didn't dream the poor man might be dead. I see, there's nothing but to return to New York."

At this stage of the conversation a young man, who had been sitting on the other side of the room, laid down the paper he held in his hand, and giving Jack a scrutinizing glance, left his chair.

"I beg pardon," he said, addressing himself to Mrs. Shrimp. "I have heard enough of your conversation to understand that this gentleman is looking for a room, and that you are unable to accommodate him. If he wishes to share mine it is at his service."

Mrs. Shrimp looked relieved and Jack gratified. "Mr. Beverly's room is one of the best, sir, large, airy——"

"Mr. Who's?" interrupted Jack with more force than politeness. "I beg your pardon, will you tell me to whom I am indebted?"

"My name is Beverly," answered the young man.

"The devil!" said Jack.

"No relation, I assure you, though I am what the laity consider the next of kin, a lawyer. If you feel disposed, I shall be happy to show you my room."

"The gentleman will register first," put in Mrs. Shrimp, with due respect for this always insisted upon preliminary. "Here, sir, if you please."

Jack took up a pen, but paused as a thumping noise was heard in the next room.

"It's only John," observed Mrs. Shrimp, with calm reassurance. "Not having no bed last night he's a little upset this morning." Apparently satisfied, Jack dipped his pen into in some rather thick ink, and wrote in a large, bold hand, 'Jack Beverly.' Mrs. Shrimp, standing near, regarded him with a slightly bewildered air. In her estimation he was upset also.

"You've made a mistake, sir, if I may be allowed so to speak. You've written Mr. Beverly's name."

"Have I," he asked imperturbably. "It can't be helped, for, if I may be allowed so to speak, it is mine, too. Are you a Jack also, Mr. Beverly?"

"I am, sir, as big a one as you are. A much bigger one than I ever thought myself before. Come to my room, for heaven's sake. I wan't to talk to you."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

The Royal Coachman.

There is, or was, an old Irishman at Lisbon, who was a royal coachman when the late King of Portugal was a child. One day the little prince was caught by the coachman up to some mischief in the royal stables. Without any regard for the princely dignity, Pat laid the heir of the House of Braganza across his knee, and spanked him soundly, despite his howls for mercy. The future King bore him no malice, however, and Pat was subsequently pensioned and lived on terms of friendly familiarity with Dom Luis and his family after his whilom victim ascended the throne.

A Valuable Relic.

The second book printed in the English language was "The Game and Playe of the Chesse," which the title page says was "Fynyshid the last day of Marche, the yer of our lord god a thousande foure hundred and LXXIIj." Only twelve copies of the work are now known to exist. In 1813 an Englishman by the name of Alchorne sold his copy for a sum equal to $270 of United States currency. Fifty-six years later, in 1869, the same volume (an imperfect copy) was sold for $2,150. The British Museum has refused an offer of $10,000 for its copy, which is imperfect to the extent of having seven leaves missing.

Waste Steam.

A Western engineer has patented a device by the use of which the steam that is often allowed to go to waste when a locomotive is standing at a way station taking wood or water, can be utilized for pumping water for the tanks or reservoirs around the station. It is customary, at most large stations, to have a stationary engine and steam pump for raising the water, but the inventor claims by an arrangement this cost of fuel is saved, while the cost of adding the improvement will be less than the cost of the pumping arrangement now in use.

Hunting the Hunters.

A party of young women of Fulton, Mo., got up a coon-hunting party a few days ago. The boys were rigorously excluded. The party started out with four dogs, two guns, two axes and a big basket of lunch. Early next morning the whole neighborhood started out to hunt the hunters, and found them deep in the woods, all sitting in a row on a log, crying dreadfully. They admitted that they got hopelessly lost in the woods within a couple of hours after the start.

Does It Run a Saw Mill?

In Waterbury, Conn., an engine which stands on the space of seven-sixteenths of an inch square and reaches a height of five-eighths of an inch has been made. It has 148 parts held together by fifty-two screws. The diameter of the cylinder is one-twenty-sixth of an inch and the whole weighs three grains.

Mountains of Mica.

A mountain of mica is reported to have been discovered on the Canoe River, about 300 miles north of the British Columbia boundary line.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE TONIC —AND— Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon: if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

WE find the Butler Record grumbling about the new tax law. We ask it, as we did the Dispatch last week, to give us all the points about the new law, that it don't like.

E. H. COWLES, Cleveland, is dead. He invented the process of extracting aluminum from clay by electricity, and also invented the overhead "trolley" used to propel electric cars.

EX SOLDIERS are not required to work a poll tax on the roads. The law was passed by the last legislature. Republican editors, however, insist that democrats are unfriendly to the soldiers.

ELECTION in Louisiana last week showed in round numbers, Foster, anti-lottery dem., 79,000; McEnery, dem., 46,000; Bureau, rep., 11,000. So it will be seen that the democrats in every shape, are ahead.

THE Chicago exposition grounds can now be visited by paying 25 cents at the gate, and thousands go there to see the wonderful change that has turned a nasty wild tract into a city of beautiful and artistic structures.

ROBERT MONDAY suicided last Wednesday, there being but one day between his name and his death. He might have lived till Thursday, but it was a center shot at the point where his brains should have been. His home was in Kansas City.

CONGRESS should sit down hard on the flap-doodle idea contained in the bill allowing the naval officers of the Charleston to accept decorations of Knighthood from the Hawaiian government. We have quite enough toadyism in this country already.

THE democratic state convention at Indianapolis last week was the largest ever seen there, and was perfectly harmonious. Not a jar marked its progress from the time Senator Turpie took the gavel, at 10 a. m., till its close at 6:30 p. m. It was sometimes noisy, but always good natured. The ticket in the main is a strong one,—the strongest that could have been chosen under the circumstances.

WE REGRET very much the failure of Judge Lowry to get the nomination for appellate judge in his district. Every county in this congressional district gave him its full vote, but there was evidently a deal between the two opposing candidates, for when one withdrew, his friends went solidly to Lowry's opponent. Lotz, the successful man, is quite young, and we presume, of all named for judgships, not one is as well qualified as Judge Lowry.

THE St. Joe News last week, in commenting on the big democratic caucus there says, "From the size of the crowd we are led to believe that they haven't all joined the Farmers' Alliance." Of course not. Democrats have no cause to leave a party that is already, and has been for many years, doing all it could for the people. There might be some excuse for a republican farmer to leave his party, for the republican bosses have always opposed every law or plan that would benefit the common people. Democratic workingmen have reason to feel proud of the democratic record. And they know that the only laws they ever got, were through the democracy, and that it is in the same way only, that they ever will get more. So democrats have no cause to leave their party.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

McNagny Nominated on the First Ballot.

The convention met in Kendallville, Tuesday, the 26th, at 2 p. m., in Spencer's Opera House, and was called to order by W. W. Rockhill, the district chairman. Hon. J. M. Barrett, of Ft. Wayne, was made permanent chairman and delivered a stirring and able address. J. A. Barns, of DeKalb, permanent secretary. The president then announced nominations in order. Judge C M. Dawson, of Ft. Wayne, in a fine vein, spoke for James M. Robinson, Allen county's candidate. T. R. Marshall, of Columbia City, nominated Wm. F. McNagny, in one of the delightful little speeches by which he has endeared himself to the democrats of this district. He was followed by Geo. Gordon, of Allen, who nominated P. S. O'Rourke. But soon after this, Mr. Smith, one of the Ft. Wayne delegates, arose on behalf of Mr. O'Rourke, and withdrew his name. This left but the two candidates, McNagny and Robinson. A ballot was then taken. Allen county came first in the list, and responded with 44 votes for Robinson, 3 for McNagny and one blank. DeKalb county had to be passed, as she was not ready. Lagrange came next and gave McNagny 8; Noble gave him 15; Steuben gave him 7; Whitley gave him 12, making 45 in all, lacking but 9 of a majority. Then came an exciting moment, for it all rested with DeKalb. Whatever caused her delay, had not been entirely removed, and for a few minutes all waited breathless, for the vote that didn't come. Then the other delegates crowded around them, asking that she "go solid" this way or that. But she did not lose her head. Dr. Wood was chairman, and when ready announced her vote 4½ for Robinson and 11½ for McNagny. And the vote resulted:

and McNagny was declared nominated. One vote in Allen was lacking. Robinson then came forward and made a bright, manly speech, promising a big vote from old Allen and his own best efforts for the nominee. Mr. McNagny was called and made a brief but telling speech, thanking his friends and the convention for the honor conferred on him. He was roundly cheered, and the convention was generally enthusiastic all through the session. It was a hot fight but honorably conducted, and both candidates spoke highly of the honorable canvass made by the other. The convention then adjourned.

Senatorial Convention.

The delegates of the two counties met in Gappinger's hall, after the congressional convention closed, and were called to order by W. L. Blair, of DeKalb. J. W. Morehouse, of Noble, was made chairman and J. A. Barns secretary. Call was read and all responded as present except one in Noble and one in DeKalb, which were then filled by those present. Nominations were then made. G. I. Patterson named Hon. Freeman Kelley; S. J. Brandon named Wm. H. Leas, and J. E. McDonald, of Noble was also put in nomination. C. S. Stoy, of DeKalb, and Mr. Myers, of Noble, were made tellers. The first ballot stood:

	Noble	DeKalb
Leas	5	12
Kelley		6
McDonald	10

This vote was not announced as DeKalb was only entitled to 16 votes, but had cast 18, her four half votes not being marked, had to be taken as whole votes, and no one could tell who they were for. If cast properly it is probable Leas would have had a majority on the first ballot.

SECOND BALLOT:	Noble	DeKalb
Leas	4	11
Kelley	3	3
McDonald	8	2
THIRD BALLOT:
Leas	4	10
Kelley	1	4
McDonald	10	2
FOURTH BALLOT:
Leas	2	10½
Kelley	1	4½
McDonald	11	1
(Noble being one vote short.)
FIFTH BALLOT:
Leas		6½
Kelley		6½

McDonald was nominated, having 17 votes—16 being a majority.

Kelley and Leas, in good natured speeches moved to make the nomination unanimous and after a speech from McDonald, the meeting adjourned.

CONVENTION NOTES.

The DeKalb Delegation had some little trouble, owing to the two votes of Auburn being cast for Robinson after the two delegates, Mr. Hook and Mr. Winslow, had been instructed by the caucus to vote for McNagny. The other delegates over the county either voted according to instructions, or as in most cases, not being instructed, voted as they thought best. The action of the Auburn delegates occasioned much unfavorable comment, and lost Mr. Robinson some DeKalb votes.

In the senatorial convention, DeKalb was divided, as will be seen. Had we been united, we would have won the place. But in any case, it was out of place for Noble county to ask the senatorship, as they have had it four years. But McDonald got it and DeKalb will give him her earnest support.

The delegates filled all vacancies, by voting in some man who was present from the unrepresented township. The vote in the congressional convention was taken orally, each one stating his choice to Dr. Wood, the chairman, who had a list of all the delegates, and recorded each vote as taken. In the senatorial convention DeKalb voted by ballot, but the Noble county vote was announced by their chairman.

A few names were omitted last week in putting up the list of delegates, among them being three in Concord: Fred. Johnson, J. W. Dills and John Moody. We gave the state and congressional delegates, but not those for senatorial joint-rep., and judicial. We did not get a list from Troy, Newville and the sixth precinct of Keyser.

Chaney & Spangle, the enterprising gentlemen who conduct the Reading Room, have taken the agency for the world's famous Singer sewing machine, which they offer to the public at terms that defy competition. These men are known in the business circles of this city, as having a good standing for push and energy, and they are here to stay, and propose to sell their sewing machine upon its merits. See locals.

It will be noticed that the vote for city government has been omitted from the corporation ballot this week. It has been thought best by the board, not to take the sense of the people, or at least not to have this on the ballot, as it is a question whether they have a right to do so. Those who want to change from a town to a city government will be obliged to get up a petition to that effect. It should be fully discussed by all, before it is adopted, as doubtless it will cost more than our present form. We do not believe in advocating a change for the sake of change, and then when we get it, complain of expenses. If the majority our people desire a city government, they ought to have it. for a majority should rule; and while we do not favor it just at present, if it should be adopted, we shall bear our share of the extra expense without complaining.

The Clipper an alleged paper published at Garrett, is again sticking its unwiped nose into Auburn's affairs, and as usual it goes back on the democratic candidates. That is one reason why we insist it shall not be classed as a democratic paper. What business is it, how ever, to the Clipper gang, who is put in office in Auburn? Are not Auburn people able to run their own election without advice from the drunken bum that fills the Garrett Clipper with east wind? The main objection it makes is to Marshal Pfefferl, and for the same reason as last year. And that is because he arrested, and had fined, the Clipper editor for his repeated and disgusting displays of drunkenness, on our streets. That is all there is to it, and they have never urged a single thing against him but this. Good citizens of all parties will see to it that no foreign bum shall dictate to us about our officers. Mr. Pfefferl has been faithful in all his duties and has kept our streets more nearly clear of drunks and other disorderlies, than we have ever had them. And as his efficiency is all the gang can urge against him, and as even this poor objection comes from an outside source, that has no business in the matter, it becomes every law and order man in Auburn to see that Mr. Pfefferl has such a majority as will lay the Clipper gang on its final cooling board.

Curtis F. Ash, well known in this county, is now in the sale of paper Kansas City. He had been working as agent for a daily paper two ar three years.

Jim Hazzard, now at Huntington, has received a letter from his brother Geo. who is now at Tacoma, Wash. Several of the older Auburnites will remember the Hazzards, we presume.

The "Marquis de Gooseaig" is out against Marshal Pfefferl again. Joe came so near calaboosing him on his last drunk, about two weeks ago, is the fresh cause of his trouble. The "Markee" and the marshal don't agree on the kind of order that should prevail in Auburn.

W. S. Dancer is authority for the statement that the recent republican caucus in Jackson township, would have numbered three in its attendance, but for a funeral near by, which kept two of the three away. The one lonely man present elected himself committeeman, delegate to five conventions, passed unanimously a resolution endorsing Harrison, and another nominating Blaine for president; and then as secretary, sent to the Dispatch a report of the "most harmonious meeting ever held in this old stronghold of democracy." And the ungrateful editor never published it.

Garrett's Pug Poodle.

Garrett had a little pug,
  Its nose was black as sin,
If Auburn had a 'lection,
  'Twas sure to stick it in.

What makes this pug hate Auburn so?
  This dirty, trifling pug?
'Cause when he's palnting Auburn red
  They'll put him in the jug.

What makes 'em want me in the jug?
  The ugly puggie whines.
'Cause that's the place we built for bums
  Until they pay their fines.

And so, each bumming animal,
  We coax into the jug,
They can't refuse, when Joe says "Come,
  Come puggie, puggie, pug."

Balmy Spring.

Get my chest protector out, my velvet ear muffs, too,
My thick chinchilla ulster, my porous plaster true,
Give me a quinine capsule my drooping heart to cheer,
And don't forget my rubber boots, for balmy spring is here.

See the undertaker and obtain a special rate,
Ask the railroad agent if he'll let me go as freight,
Buy a rosewood casket and have the parson near,
For I must walk abroad to day—and balmy spring is here.

Then go to the marble yard and choose a handsome stone,
Hire an elocutionist to teach you how to moan;
Hire six horses to the hearse, ten coaches in the rear,
For I must go down town to day—and balmy spring is here.

Don't put shells around my grave, the're not the proper cheese;
Give my fond farewell to all my friends and comrades dear,
And tell them to remain indoors when balmy spring is here.

COMPANY.

THEY WANT FREE WOOL

TEXTILE WORKERS PETITION TO THAT EFFECT.

The McKinley Tariff Shown to Be Positively Harmful—Protection in England—The People and the Sugar Trust—Oat Meal and the Tariff.

Want the Duty Removed.

The following is a portion of the petition in favor of free wool, and lower duties on woolens, sent to the Committee on Ways and Means by the Kensington Reform Club of Philadelphia. The club is composed of workmen in the large woolen factories of that city:

"Although labor is most directly interested in the arrangment of tariff schedules it has been customary for those who favor high protective duties to turn a deaf ear to its appeals, despite their protestations of solicitude for the welfare of the toilers, while the clamors of those who find a special interest in high duties, having the time and means to besiege the doors of Congress, have not been unheeded. The fat that is being fried out of the workingmen enables them to render special service to the partisan machine, and thus they can make their weight felt far better than the fleeced workingmen.

"Now, however, that there is once more an opportunity for labor to be heard upon an equal footing with the capitalists, we, the Kensington Reform Club, an organization composed of workingmen in every branch of the textile industries, send greeting to the friends of fair play and honest government, with a prayer for the immediate passage of the free-wool bill now under consideration in the House, which, while it may not fully meet our desires, is yet a measure offering great relief to the whole people.

"The labor in the woolen mills has never been in so depressed a condition as in the past year. The carpet industry was never so demoralized. Wages have been reduced both in a direct way and by the various subterfuges called adjustments, readjustments and fines, and yet the cost of living has been perceptibly increased until the condition of labor is well nigh unbearable. Employment has grown more unsteady, many mills working but partial time, some closed entirely, while in others the waiting for warp and filling amounts to a loss of from one-quarter to one-half time.

"This is no idle talk, but the result of investigation, as it is one of the missions of our organization to intelligently watch the effect of legislation upon labor; and we here add that there has never been an increase of tariff rates that was not almost immediately followed by reductions of wages. This is surely contrary to what was promised as a result of the tariff law passed by the last Congress, and it is therefore not surprising to find workingmen realizing that they have been fooled once too often.

"If, as has been asserted in Congress recently, the manufacturers do not need or want a high tariff, and that it is solely for the benefits of labor, which never gets any of them, then there is not the slightest impediment to a mutual agreement for its abolition. But since the gentlemen who make this assertion still oppose a reduction, the workmen, who do not want it either, are certainly justified in praying that these kindly souls may stop their benevolent endeavors to raise wages by laws, which they cannot do, and set about raising them in the mills, which they can do, and if they will only divide with their workmen that which they usually give to the party machine it will make a perceptible difference in the workers' pay-rolls.

"We here reiterate the fact that the greater cause for the inability of American manufacturers to compete with their foreign rivals is because of the unjustifiable tax on the raw materials, and not the difference in wages; and that this tax amounts to from three to five times more than the entire wage account in the product. It is needless for gentlemen to imagine that they can forever fool the workingmen by their expressions of solicitude for wages, while yet willing and even anxious to bear the enormous burden of this unnecessary tariff on the raw materials.

"To the workingman of ordinary intelligence this looks like trying to find excuses for the further reduction of wages; for so long as they can be made to believe that their wages are princely as compared with the wages of the workmen on the other side of the water, the more ignorant of them may be induced to submit to reductions without knowing that they are rapidly nearing the level of the so-called 'pauper labor' of Europe. Intelligent workmen, however, are praying deeply just now that their protectionist friends may cease their hard labors to raise the wind by tariff laws so as to take time to give their professions a practical turn by raising wages in fact. But if we may judge men by their actions we are justified in asserting that if these professional friends of labor thought that a tariff would raise wages they would drop it quickly.

"In a recent number of the Manufacturer, the organ of the protectionist manufacturers, its editor, in a labored article, tried to show that the English manufacturers were selling their goods here as cheaply as they did before the present law went into effect, and that this made it evident that the foreign manufacturers were paying the tax for the privilege of selling in our markets. In another article of the same number, the fact is stated that botany tops have declined in price in the London market 16 cents per pound, and this is given as a partial reason for their ability to sell at the old rates, but when we consider that this decline in wool prices is equivalent to a saving of 32 cents and upward on every pound of manufactured cloth, we may find it to be the whole reason. Here is a pretty mixture of fact and fancy; but then if the tariff advocates' facts were given without a mixture of fancies their cause would suffer badly.

"On a par with this is their averment that the materials of manufacture are not deteriorating. They dare not put their workingmen on the stand to testify to this under oath, for then there would be a full corroboration of the statements made to your honorable Committee of Ways and Means by the committee of the Wool Consumers' Association that the McKinley law has largely promoted the adulteration of woolen manufactures. It is only necessary to state one fact to expose the falsity of their claim. If all the wool in the country, domestic and imported, outside of that used in carpets, were made into pure woolen goods, we would not have over 80,000,000 pounds of clothes, dress goods, hats, blankets, underwear, etc., for our 62,000,000 people, or a little over 1¼ pounds for each individual.

"Who dares to say that this is sufficient to keep us from becoming a nation of shakers at the slightest blast of cold, and who dares to say that 80,000,000 pounds will cover all the goods that are sold to the American public as all-wool manufactures in a year? One must be silly indeed to believe this. But we must not forget that they have learned to manufacture wool by putting old cast-off clothing through a chemical process which eats out all but the wool in them, and this residue is recarded and used to mix with other wool, but as the life is out of it it is no better than cotton, and thus between the cold and diseases transmitted through the old clothes there is at least one infant industry well protected—that of the doctors.

"With reference to the difference between American and foreign wages we are prepared to show that in many branches our rates are even below the English rates, and the same is true even of actual earnings. The rate paid for woolen weaving in the Huddersfield (England) district varies from 1 cent for eight picks to 1 cent for six picks, according to the rate of work, with extra pay for extra heddles, extra colors, and extra beams, while ours is from 1 cent for nine picks to 1 cent for five picks, with no extras. Thus for sixty pick work the English rate is 7½ cents to 10 cents per yard, extras to be added, while our rate is from 6 cents to 12 cents per yard and no extras.

"If the American weaver earns more money in a week, it is simply because he works faster and turns off more product.

"Now we declare, without fear of contradiction, that there is not now a woolen manufacturer in Philadelphia who does not privately long for free wool, and those who openly advocate taxed wool are actuated by partisan rancor, and we are still more emphatic in the declaration that there is not in Philadelphia one woolen worker in a hundred who would not openly ask for free wool if he were free from the sinister influences of the bosses. As we prefer our own prosperity and bread and butter to party success, we ask for free wool without reference to its effects upon party.

"The stubborn perversity and dishonesty of the protectionists is nowhere better shown than in their steady refusal to correct the glaring inconsistencies and mischievous discriminations of the tariff laws even after their attention had been called to them repeatedly. One is the discrimination against American manufactures involved in the adjustment of duties between the raw materials and the finished products, and the other the placing of a heavier tax upon the poor man's necessities than upon the rich man's luxuries. We called their attention to these points as far back as the spring of 1886, and the protectionist National Association of Woolen Manufacturers pointed out substantially the same errors in their letter to the Secretary of the Treasury in the fall of 1885, and hence they could not consistently overlook it, and yet in the make-up of the McKinley act this infernal piece of injustice was not only retained but made worse than ever.

"This shows that in a vicious and determined purpose to serve a few masters they lost sight entirely of their duty to do justice to the people. In fact it appeared to be a pleasure to them to shift the burdens of taxation off the shoulders of the rich to those of the poor—to make labor the pack-mule of the rich. The unanimous cry of the protectionist manufacturers now is that the McKinley law be let alone because it is doing the manufacturers a great deal of good. Yet in the face of this there is yet to be recorded one important instance of a raise of wages, while instances of the paring down of wages are numerous."

Protection in England.

Edward Atkinson writes as follows on the history of protection in England: A very common but utterly erroneous idea prevails in this country that Great Britain only gave up the system technically called protection when by means of this system she had attained conditions of great prosperity and a substantially commanding position in manufactures and commerce.

The very reverse is true. The protective system was given up by Great Britain under the pressure of pauperism and bankruptcy in which it culminated in the years immediately preceding 1842, when Sir Robert Peel presented and carried his first great measure for the reform of the British tariff.

The origin of customs in England was in the time of Edward I.; thenceforward duties were added and multiplied, each rate being devoted to a specific purpose, until in 1784 as many as fifteen separate duties were levied upon the same article. In 1787 William Pitt carried through an act for consolidation without reducing the number of articles taxed; this measure left 1,200 articles subject to duty, and in order to bring the act into force 3,000 resolutions were required in the House of Commons. In 1797, however, the laws relating to customs filled six large folio volumes unprovided with an index. The great subsequent wars rendered nugatory all of Pitt's efforts to relieve commerce; between 1797 and 1815 600 additional acts were passed, and in fifty-three years of the reign of George III. the total number of acts relating to duties on imports was 1,300. At length taxes became so numerous that nothing was left untaxed; even premiums offered for the suggestion of fresh subjects for taxation failed to stimulate invention.

In 1824, under the lead of Huskisson, several of the crude materials necessary to British industry had been put into the free list, of which the most important was wool. This change had worked great benefit to both wool-grower and manufacturer; the price of domestic wool advanced, while the manufacturer was enabled to reduce the cost of goods through the opportunity given him by freedom from taxation on imported wool to buy, sort, and mix his wool in the most effective manner.

The first decisive step in tariff reform was brought about in 1840 by the appointment of a Parliamentary committee at the instance of Mr. Joseph Hume. The condition of the country was then desperate. The most concise account of the case is given in Noble's "Fiscal Legislation of Great Britain," but all authorities—Liberal and Tory—are substantially at an agreement upon that point. It is written that "every interest in the country was alike depressed; in the manufacturing districts mills and workshops were closed and property daily depreciated in value; in the seaports shipping was laid up useless in harbor; agricultural laborers were eking out a miserable existence upon starvation wages and parochial relief; the revenue was insufficient to meet the national expenditure; the country was brought to the verge of national and universal bankruptcy.

"The protective system, which was supported with a view to rendering the country independent of foreign sources of supply, and thus, it was hoped, fostering the growth of a home trade, had most effectually destroyed that trade by reducing the entire population to beggary, destitution and want. The masses of the population were unable to procure food, and had consequently nothing to spend upon British manufactures."

A large part of the burden of taxation rested either upon necessary articles of food or else upon articles which were necessary component materials in British industry.

At that very time, when the protective system culminated in the desperate conditions of Great Britain in 1840, it will be observed that it was at the end of a period of profound peace which had lasted over twenty-five years, in which the personal wealth of the upper classes of Great Britain had become immense. [illegible] presenting his first [illegible] reform, Sir Robert Peel [illegible] after stating the deficit and [illegible] difficulties to be met: "You will bear in mind that this is no casual and occasional difficulty. You will bear in mind that there are indications among all the upper classes of society of increased comfort and enjoyment; of increased prosperity and wealth; and that, concurrently with these indications, there exists a mighty evil which has been growing up for the last seven years, and which you are now called upon to meet." This evil was the increasing poverty and destitution of the great mass of the working people. The remedy was sought in a redistribution of the burden of taxation. The tariff then covered 1,200 separate subjects of taxation, of which seventeen yielded 94 per cent. of the revenue; the rest were petty obstructions to commerce, imposed for the purpose of "protection with incidental revenue." That purpose was not, however, avowed in these exact terms at that time, as it has lately been in this country by the advocates of McKinleyism.

In the first measure Sir Robert Peel wholly abated or reduced the duty upon a consistent plan on 750 articles, and also caused an income tax of 7d. on the pound to be put upon classified incomes, which is a fraction less than 3 per cent., all incomes below £150 being exempt. From this income tax he anticipated a revenue of £3,770,000 in the first year. It yielded £5,100,000, conclusively proving that under the previous system, while the poor had been rapidly reduced to pauperism, the rich had become richer.

Like causes produce like effects. Under the pretext of protection to the miners of this country, and especially Pennsylvania, a duty has long been maintained upon the import of foreign iron ores; it is now 75 cents a ton, which is precisely equal to the labor cost of producing a ton of iron ore in Pennsylvania—according to the sworn statements of the ironmasters of Pennsylvania, by whom its iron mines are worked. The result of this system in the last census year—a year of the greatest activity ever known—was that 4,410 iron miners and workmen secured an income of $259 each, amounting in all to $1,141,239. There are ironmasters in the State of Pennsylvania whose single incomes in a single year have exceeded the whole sum earned by the protected iron miners.

The effect of the first measure of tariff reform in Great Britain—that of 1842—was not immediately perceptible, the evil effect of the previous conditions being very deep-seated; but before 1845 the beneficial influence upon every branch of industry, agriculture, manufactures, and commerce alike, had become so manifest that little opposition was met to Peel's second great act of tariff reform of 1845, by which 430 articles, consisting of the crude and partly manufactured materials which entered into the processes of domestic industry, were put on the free list, the duties on the lessening number of dutiable imports being at the same time reduced and adjusted to those new conditions. In 1846 the Irish famine forced the abatement of all taxes upon food, by orders in Council, subsequently followed by the repeal of the corn laws.

In 1847 Sir Robert Peel left office, but the immense benefits to every branch of British industry rendered it a comparatively easy matter to bring the tariff substantially to its present condition in 1853, coupled with a repeal of the navigation laws under the lead of Mr. Gladstone. Since that date the people of the United States have been forbidden by their own acts to compete with Great Britain in the construction and use of ocean steamships, while the commercial flag of Great Britain dominates every sea under the beneficent influence of freedom from all restrictions and by virtue of the protection which is given by exemption from taxation on all the materials used in the construction and in the subsistence of the vessels.

The People and the Sugar Trust.

WITH A TARIFF ON REFINED SUGAR.

The Sugar Trust is "protected:"

(a) By duty of ½ cent per pound on refined sugar. (b) By natural advantage or protection of ¼ of a cent per pound.

Present price of raw sugar, 96 degrees centrifugal, 3⅜ cents per pound.

Present price of refined sugar, granulated, 4⅝ cents per pound.

Cost of refining, not over ⅝ cent per pound.

Net profit on refined sugar, ⅝ cent per pound.

Net profit per barrel, $2.03⅛.

Net profit on 12,600,000 barrels, or minimum yearly production, $25,593,000.

Actual value of Sugar Trust properties, about $35,000,000. Rate of profit on actual valuation, 73.08 per cent. Sugar Trust capitalization: 7 per cent. preferred stock, $37,500,000; common stock, $37,500,000; 6 per cent. bonds, $10,000,000.

After paying 7 per cent. on preferred stock and 6 per cent. interest on bonds, the above rate of profit would yield 59.65 per cent. on the common stock.

WITHOUT A TARIFF ON REFINED SUGAR.

The natural advantage or protection to sugar trust is ¼ cent per pound.

Price of refined sugar, granulated A, 4 cents per pound.

Difference between above prices, ⅞ cent per pound.

Cost of refining, not over ⅝ cent per pound.

Net profit on refined sugar, ¼ cent per pound.

Net profit per barrel, 81¼ cents.

Net profit on 12,600,000 barrels, or minimum yearly production, $10,237,500 per year.

After paying 7 per cent. on preferred stock and 6 per cent. on bonds, the above rate of profit would yield 18.7 per cent on the common stock.

Proposed rate of saving to the people by means of free sugar, $15,356,000 per annum.

Present rate of extortion from the people by means of the tariff, ⅝ cent per pound or $15,356,000 per annum.

In the compilation of these figures we have treated the trust very liberally.

Is it not time that the wholesale extortion now practiced by the trust be stopped? Let us have free sugar in reality and not merely in name.—New York Daily Commercial Bulletin.

THE NATIONAL SOLONS.

SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Our National Lawmakers and What They Are Doing for the Good of the Country—Various Measures Proposed, Discussed, and Acted Upon.

Doings of Congress.

On the 19th the Senate ratified the convention providing for a renewal of the existing modus vivendi in Behring Sea. The bill to amend the act of June 25, 1890, approving the funding act of Arizona, was taken up and read. A provision that the interest on the bonds provided for in the Arizona funding act should be payable "in gold coin of the United States," was amended to read "in lawful money of the United States," and the bill passed. Mr. George's resolution relating to the low price of cotton and the depressed condition of agriculture was then taken up, amended and agreed to. The joint resolution to pay to the State of West Virginia the amount due to it under the "direct tax refund" act was then taken up and passed without any discussion. In the House the well advertised contested election from New York of Noyes against Rockwell was taken up, and consumed the whole time without definite action.

On the 20th, after the usual morning business, Mr. Sherman notified the Senate that further examination of the Chinese immigration question had convinced the Committee on Foreign Relations that the existing Chinese exclusion legislation would not expire till 1894, and that there was therefore no pressure for immediate action on the question. He would, however, call it up to the convenience of Senators who desired to speak upon the subject. Thereupon the silver resolution offered by Mr. Morgan was taken up, and consumed the rest of the session. In the House the Noyes-Rockwell election case was the sole subject of consideration. The discussion, though good from a legal and technical standpoint, was utterly devoid of interest from a sensational one. Pending further discussion the House adjourned.

In the Senate, the 21st, bills were passed as follows: House bill to create a third division of the district of Kansas for judicial purposes. Senate bill for the appointment of consuls to the Congo Free State. To amend the laws relating to purchase of and contract for supplies. Providing for sundry lighthouses and other aids to navigation. This bill appropriates $504,300 for a large number of lighthouses and other aids to navigation, mostly in the great lakes; to establish a military post near Helena, Mont. (appropriating $300,000). The House bill to prohibit absolutely, the coming of Chinese persons into United States was taken up for consideration, but not disposed of. The Noyes-Rockwell contested election case again consumed all the time of the House.

In the Senate, the 22d, the following bills were passed: House bill to amend act of Jan. 19, 1886, providing for the discharge of the duties of the President in case of his death, etc., by providing that the Secretary of Agriculture shall come in after the Secretary of the Interior. Senate joint resolution extending an invitation to the King and Queen of Spain and the descendants of Columbus to participate in the World's Columbian Exposition. Joint resolution requesting the loan from Spain of certain articles (Columbian relics) for the World's Columbian Exposition. Extending an invitation to the Presidents of the American republics and the Governors of the American colonies to participate in the World's Columbian Exposition. After some discussion a bill was passed authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to increase to $12 a month the pension of every pensioner who is now on the rolls at $8 a month on account of service in the Mexican war, and who is wholly disabled for manual labor, and is in such destitute circumstances that $8 a month is insufficient to provide him with the necessaries of life. The Chinese exclusion bill was then taken up. In the House, the Noyes-Rockwell contested election case was decided in favor of Rockwell, the sitting member.

A New York customs inspector the other day had his suspicions aroused by the actions of one of the passengers of the steamer Saale, just over from Bremen, and on examination it was found that the smuggler had several pairs of diamond and pearl ear-rings under a porous plaster on his back. The lot was valued at about $600.—Ohio State Journal.

Willie Tillbrook
Son of Mayor Tillbrook
of McKeesport, Pa., Cured of Scrofula in the Neck
By Hood's Sarsaparilla

All parents whose children suffer from Scrofula, Salt Rheum, or other diseases caused by impure blood, should read the following from Mrs. J. W. Tillbrook, wife of the Mayor of McKeesport, Penn.:

"C. I. Hood & Co.; Lowell, Mass.:

"My little boy Willie, now six years old, two years ago had a

Bunch Under One Ear

which the doctor said was Scrofula. As it continued to grow, he finally lanced it, and it discharged for some time. We then began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla, and he improved very rapidly until it healed up. Last winter it broke out again and was followed by

Erysipelas

We again gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla with most excellent results, and he has had no further trouble. His cure is due to the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. He has never been very robust, but now seems healthy and daily growing stronger. The doctor seemed quite pleased at his appearance and said he feared at one time that we should lose him. I have also taken myself and am satisfied that I have been helped by it." MRS. J. W. TILLBROOK, Fifth Avenue, McKeesport, Pa.

HOOD'S PILLS are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, do not gripe.

COLD AND BACKWARD.

SPRING CONDITIONS UNFAVORABLE FOR CROPS.

Reports Indicate a General Lateness and Backwardness in the Season All Over the Country—Spring-Seeded Crops Come Out of the Ground Slowly.

Condition of the Crops.

So far we have had a poor spring for getting anything into the ground, and it seems almost an impossibility to get it out even after it is in. This situation has been brought about by an excess of moisture, a lack of sunshine, and a low degree of temperature. The grass has made slow growth, the winter wheat ditto, and the oat crop is now only beginning to break through the ground. These conditions have been general all through the lower lake regions, the Ohio Valley, the Upper Mississippi and the Missouri Valley, and when we travel into the extreme Northwest we find all these conditions in a much more aggravated form. A year ago at this time all over these areas the weather was favorable, the growing crops in excellent condition, the oats were practically all seeded, and plowing for corn was in progress. The last week of April, 1891, closed with the whole Northwest and Southwest under full headway.

The wonderful revolution in farm machinery as applied to putting in and gathering the oat crop has pushed this important crop rapidly to the front during the last few years and in area it now comes next to the corn crop. Oat seeding commenced the present season the last week of March, but before much was put into the ground heavy rainstorms put a stop to seeding. Since April 1 the weather has been cold, cloudy, and wet, and as soon as the ground would get into condition to work more rain would follow. The consequence is that, taking the country over, not the usual acreage has been put in this spring, and a large proportion of that has been sown under great difficulty. On low, flat land, where the water has stood, the crop has more or less rotted. Last year, although the seeding of oats was late, the crop was all in the ground by April 15. The seeding of oats will end practically with this week. In one sense of the word the cloudy weather, with the ground so full of moisture, has been a favorable character in the history of the newly-sown crop; on the advent of warm, clear weather we ought to see rapid growth in this crop. There are, however, few fields to-day which look green and show an even stand.

Nebraska reports that they are only now just finishing up the seeding of the crop, that the job so far has been poorly done. A large percentage of it was practically "mudded in," and the earliest sown is coming up slowly. The ground and atmosphere are cold and damp and warm sunshine with occasional showers greatly needed.

In Iowa about two-thirds of the oats are now in the ground. On account of the low temperature vegetation of all kinds is making little headway.

Spring Wheat.

West of the Missouri River in North Dakota spring wheat seeding is going on. On the east side of the river, owing to so much moisture, they have barely commenced. Under the most favorable circumstances, through the Red River Valley on the Dakota side, it will take three weeks of most favorable weather for the ground to get into condition to let farmers onto the ground. Of course there will be isolated places where some spring wheat can be seeded, but general seeding cannot begin before the first of May. This is a month or six weeks late, and with these conditions frost is liable to catch the crop in August.

In South Dakota the wheat is practically all sown. The seeding is somewhat later than usual, but the soil is in fine condition, which will counterbalance that, probably, in the end. The weather, however, keeps cold, with more or less freezing every night. There have been some few reports of seed rotting in the ground.

In Central Minnesota about one-half of the spring wheat has been sown. None of the early sown has come up yet. Seeding will not be finished until May 1. The situation in this portion of the State indicates an increase of acreage, due more to the opening of new farms than to increasing old ones. In Southern Minnesota most of the farmers are entirely through sowing wheat. There has been little oats or barley sown yet. There is plenty of moisture in the ground, and wheat is just coming up. The weather is cold and warm growing weather greatly needed.

Winter Wheat.

Telegraphic reports from San Francisco show that drying winds have impaired previous favorable conditions. Prospects still, however, are fairly good with ordinarily favorable weather next month.

Texas reports that the young wheat will average ten inches high; the extremely late-sown wheat does not look as well. Corn is now large enough for plowing. What little wheat now remains in farmers' hands is still being firmly held. Farmers are all up with their work.

In Kentucky the early sown wheat is about knee-high. There is some complaint that it has been injured by frost within the last ten days, but this will, however, not amount to enough to make any serious loss in the aggregate. On account of the lack of sunshine and the excess of moisture wheat has made slow growth. The opinion seems to be now that the crop will be about as good as the one made last year. This statement is based upon the fact that the late wheat will turn out well.

Ohio reports that they need warm, dry weather for wheat at the present time. The average height of the crop is now from four to six inches. On low lands wheat is poor and spotted. In the northern portion of the State the cold weather is holding wheat back. Fields are spotted and many of them will not produce more than half a crop.

On the river bottoms in Southern Indiana the early sown wheat is now high and looks well. Late sown wheat is poor and thin on the ground. In Central Indiana wheat has done well during the last ten days, notwithstanding the weather has been cold, cloudy, and wet. The late sown wheat has improved some, though more or less spotted. In Northern Indiana late wheat is decidedly thin on the ground, but the early wheat promises to do fairly well.

In Central Illinois wheat has made but little growth during the last fourteen days. The color is good and the crop now averages from six to ten inches in height.

In Southern Illinois the general condition of the crop shows little improvement over that of fourteen days ago. The weather has been so wet and cold that in some of the best counties in this important area of the winter-wheat belt the crop has a sickly appearance, and some fields are turning yellow.

In Michigan the weather has been cool and wet. Wheat has made slow growth, and, on the whole, the crop has held its own. Spring work is backward, and there have been but few oats seeded yet. Farmers are selling but little wheat, and millers are carrying small stocks. Prices are low, and farmers will carry over a good deal unless the prices advance considerably.

Central Kansas reports during the last few days that there has been some slight improvement in the winter wheat situation. It is still small in growth, but is stooling out well. In Northern Kansas harvest will be ten days late. The crop has made slow growth, as the ground is packed from too much heavy rain. The general conditions are not as good as those of a year ago. The season is late and the outcome mixed. Southern Kansas reports that they have had little growing weather so far; that the wheat harvest will be from two to three weeks later than last season. The late sown is a better stand than the early.

Southern Missouri reports that the wheat is still small, and that with hot and dry weather in the near future the crop will not amount to much, but if the weather continues cool and damp the prospects are for a good crop; not as large as was made last year, however. A correspondent from Central Missouri says that "he goes a good deal on the pulse of the farmers;" they are quiet now on the wheat question, and so long as they keep quiet he considers the crop in fair shape; but the crop is not as good by 20 per cent. as it was this time last year.

Condition of Corn.

By the end of the third week in April at least two-thirds of the corn lands of the great corn surplus States of the West ought to be plowed and ready for planting. Such, however, was not the case this spring. It is only on lands which have been underdrained, and those are lands confined to the States of Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio, where there has been any progress in plowing for corn worth reporting.

In Kansas and Missouri there has been a little corn planted, but no matter how much land was ready, with the ground cold, wet, and soggy it would be simply the height of folly to attempt to put the seed in the ground, for it would only rot and have to be replanted.

There has been little land plowed for corn in Iowa, and the great surplus corn State, Nebraska, has made no headway with this most important crop.

The reserves of old corn in farmers' hands are still firmly held, and with the lateness of the season, the backwardness with the work on the farms, and the uncertainty which must necessarily follow a season like the present, farmers will not be inclined to sell their surplus after corn planting, as they usually do at that season of the year. Hence the surplus corn this spring will be carried over until late in the fall if not until the opening of 1893.

A REMARKABLE LETTER.

A Prominent Professional Man's Extraordinary Statement.

[New York Sun.]

To the Editor:

SIR—As my name and face have appeared in your paper and the public prints lately, and as many of my professional brethren are wondering at it, I feel it only just that I should make an explanation. The statement published over my name was made ten years ago, after long and mature investigation, and I have never changed my mind to the facts then stated. At that time I said, as a physician, that I believed Warner's Safe Cure was the best of all known preparations for the troubles it was advocated to cure, and I say so still. I know it is considered the proper thing for the medical profession to decry proprietary and other advertised articles; but why should they do so? As the late Dr. J. G. Holland, writing over his own name in Scribner's Monthly, said:

"It is a fact that many of the best proprietary medicines of the day are more successful than many physicians, and most of them were first discovered or used in actual medical practice; when, however, any person knowing their virtue and foreseeing their popularity secures and advertises them, in the opinion of the bigoted all virtue went out of them."

Dr. Holland was an educated physician, an unprejudiced observer, and he spoke from a broad and unusual experience. Proprietary medicines should not be decried. The evidences of their value are overwhelming. I have seen patients recover from gravel, inflammation of the bladder, and Bright's disease after using Warner's Safe Cure, even when all other treatment had failed.

I make this frank and outspoken statement in the interests of humanity, and because I know it to be true. I trust for the same reason you will give it to the public. Respectfully,

R. A. GUNN.

A Friend in Need.

Jinks—Hello, howdy do, Blinks? Say, old fellow, come home and take tea with me.

Blinks—Really, I am scarcely presentable in these——

Jinks—Bother the clothes! That's all right. Come right along. My wife and I value people at their true worth; we don't go by their tailors' bills. Come right along.

Sam Jinks (half an hour later)—Ah, here we are. My dear, allow me to present my friend, Mr. Blinks. Mr. Blinks, Mrs. Jinks. By the way, my dear, those things you told me to order I forgot all about until too late to get into the store.

Mrs. Jinks (aghast)—What! Forgot? Um—um—er—it's of no consequence at all, my dear, not the least. Happy to make your acquaintance, Mr. Blinks. What delightful weather we are having. Please excuse me one moment.

Jinks (in a whisper, after Mrs. J. has disappeared)—Worked like a charm.

Blinks—What worked?

Jinks—She didn't dare say a word about my forgetting those things with company present. That's why I brought you.—New York Weekly.

Why He Exacted Fare.

The failure of the potato crop created a general panic in a little Pennsylvania town several years ago. The merchants put the price of potatoes up to an exorbitant figure and there was distress through all the neighboring county. The keeper of the only hotel, Solomon Hanks, was vexed and troubled. He feared to drive away his patrons by raising the price of board, yet his profits were hardly large enough to keep his family. He began to cut down expenses, and the first thing that had to go was his free omnibus. For several months that crazy old vehicle carried the following sign: "Owing to the high price of potatoes guests must pay a fare of 25 cents to ride in this 'bus. S. Hanks."

Origin of "Sophmore."

Says a Cincinnati literary man: "I used to think that the word 'sophomore' was made up of the Greek word signifying wise and the English word 'more.' The word was thus applicable, I thought, to the second class in a college, because they were 'more wise' than their fellows in their own estimation. But it seems that the word has a purer genealogy and a meaning even less flattering to the class of collegians to whom it is applied. It was first used at the University of Cambridge, England, and in its infancy appeared in the form 'soph-more.' It was composed of the words 'soph,' a contraction for 'sophister,' and a Greek word meaning foolish (moros.)

Wrapped in a Poisonous Veil.

In the mists that we see rising from the shores of sluggish streams, from low lands soaked by freshets or from marshy muddy flats on the outskirts of populous cities, lurk disease and death. Inmeshed in this poisonous veil of mist are isolated business structures, manufacturing villages and humble tenements. For those who either from motives of business interests or dire necessity are daily constrained to breathe this envenomed atmosphere, there is no immunity save in an efficient medicinal safeguard. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters fully fills the need, protecting whole communities from the insidious attacks of malaria, a disease which in its more malignant forms is scarcely less to be dreaded in the individual than typhus. Every type of it is thoroughly eradicated by the Bitters. This peerless medicine also remedies dyspepsia, constipation, liver and kidney trouble, rheumatism and nervousness. 'Tis a restorative, too, of appetite, sleep and flesh.

An Alloy That Does Not Tarnish.

A new alloy which closely resembles gold is composed of one hundred parts of copper and six of antimony, which after being fluxed with carbonate of lime in order to increase its density. The alloy can be rolled, forged, and soldered in the same manner as gold, and when polished the gold color remains unchanged even after long exposure to ammonia and acid vapors in the atmosphere. The cost of the alloy in the ingot form is stated to be about 25 cents per pound.

When Nature

Needs assistance it may be best to render it promptly, but one should remember to use even the most perfect remedies only when needed. The best and most simple and gentle remedy is the Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

Lost Her Teeth.

A contributor to the New York Recorder says: "I met a hotel chambermaid the other day whose lower teeth were nearly all missing and from a singular cause. She had been, for a great many years, in the habit of holding the pillows in her teeth while she drew on the slips with both hands, and it resulted in the loosening and gradual loss of those teeth upon which the strain was the greatest. With forty or fifty bed's a day to 'change' and make up, one can easily see how such a loss was possible."

SPRING MEDICINE

Needed by Nearly Everybody.

In the spring months the necessity of a good blood-purifying, strengthening medicine is felt by the large majority of people. During the winter various impurities accumulate in the blood, as a consequence of close confinement in poorly-ventilated tenements, stores, and work-shops, or too high living. Therefore, when the milder weather comes, the blood is unable to sustain the various organs of the body which need additional strength, and the consequence is "that tired feeling," billiousness, sick headache, possibly dyspepsia, or the appearance of some blood disorder. So popular has Hood's Sarsaparilla become at this season that it is now generally admitted to be The Standard Spring Medicine. It thoroughly purifies and vitalizes the blood, creates a good appetite, cures biliousness and headache, overcomes that tired feeling, gives healthy action to the kidneys and liver, and imparts to the whole body a feeling of health and strength. Try it this spring.

A WEALTHY Austrian woman has just founded an asylum for mothers-in-law. The building, not yet completed, is to be big enough to accommodate 500 guests, and the institution will serve as a pleasant refuge for ladies whose company is not agreeable to the ungrateful men who have walked off with their daughters.

The Magnetic Mineral Mud Baths,

Given at the Indiana Mineral Springs, Warren County, Indiana, on the Wabash Line, attract more attention to-day than any other health resort in this country.

Hundreds of people suffering from rheumatism, kidney trouble, and skin diseases, have been cured within the last year by the wonderful magnetic mud and mineral water baths. If you are suffering with any of these diseases, investigate this, nature's own remedy, at once. The sanitarium buildings, bath-house, water works, and electric light plant, costing over $150,000, just completed, open all the year round.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A MOTHER

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is without a peer as a remedy for feeble and debilitated women, and is the only medicine for the class of maladies known as "female diseases" which is sold, by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers that it will give satisfaction, in every case, or the money will be refunded. It is a positive cure for the most complicated cases. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, and a soothing and strengthening nervine, imparting tone and vigor to the whole system. It's a legitimate medicine, too—carefully compounded by an experienced physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization.

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

Physicians Couldn't Cure Him.

SEDAMSVILLE, Hamilton Co., O., June, 1889.
One bottle of Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic cured me entirely, after physicians had tried unsuccessfully for eight months to relieve me of nervous debility.
W. HUENNEFELD.

LOWELL, Ohio, July 8, 1890.
I had epileptic fits for about four years, two every week, when Rev. J. Kampmeyer recommended Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic; since using it have had none. It is the best epileptic medicine I have ever used, and I have used many.
ADAM CRAMER.

NEW CORYDON, Ind., Nov. 18, 1890.
It affords me great pleasure to certify that my son, who for five and a half years was affected with falling sickness, was cured by using Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic. For two years past he has not had a single attack. Therefore, accept the heartfelt thanks of a grateful father.

The old saying that "consumption can be cured if taken in time" was poor comfort. It seemed to invite a trial, but to anticipate failure. The other one, not so old, "consumption can be cured," is considered by many false.

Both are true and not true; the first is prudent—one cannot begin too early.

An Important New Publication.

The issue of "King's United States of To-Day; a Handbook of all the States and Territories," marks the completion of a great enterprise. It is a marvelous summary of every fact covering the beginning, the growth and especially the present developement and resources of each state and territory. Prof. Greenwood, a prominent educator, says it is "the most complete, compact, solidified, instructive and useful mass of information of all the states and territories that has ever been published." It is commended in similar terms by such men as Pres. Dwight of Yale, Pres. Adams of Cornell, Pres. Patton of Princeton, Wm. M. Evarts, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Cardinal Gibbons and many others.

It contains complete maps of every state and territory, and about 3,000 fine engravings, showing the chief objects of interest, including grand scenery, chief cities, public buildings, educational institutions, manufactories, etc. These with the array of statistics and vivid, concise narrative, present a glowing picture with pen and pencil of the greatness and glory of our Republic, while the mass of information given is just what is needed for quick reference in every office, store, factory, shop and home in the land. It is sold by subscription, and as the price is only $2 50 it must meet with an immense sale. Agency may be secured by addressing C. B. Beach & Co., Publishers, Lakeside Building, Chicago.

The Dispatch on Town Finances.

The editor of the Dispatch will get his foot in it, if he goes on writing his own editorials on town finances. Last week he said: "There never was a more imperative need for a change in the administration of town officers than now," and right away after this queerly constructed assertion he adds: "During the past year the work has been largely done by one democrat and two republicans." Thus he admits what we have always said, that republican officers are a failure—not as capable or as painstaking and saving as are democratic officers. So let us put in a full set of democrats next Monday.

Then he goes on to say the town debt was only decreased $396 50 last year. This hardly seems possible. The editor of the Dispatch has watched over, advised, hinted, scolded, criticised, bullied and threatened the board, week in and week out, and constantly claimed he was saving the town's money. He was, in short, blossoming out into a great financial statesman, when the crash came. The crash, was the treasurer's report. This showed that the "two republicans and one democrat," with the valuable help of the editor, had only been able to save $360,—less than a dollar a day for the three councilmen and one editor. To see the airs he put on, and the weight he gave his own advice, one would have supposed that at least $1.10 each was being saved daily.

* * *

Then he complains that the board did not make "adequate levies." If they had made higher levies, he would have complained of high taxes, for higher levies make higher taxes. He himself admits this in regard to state taxes.

* * *

It would not pay to go into the details of his various childish articles or the wild assertions made in them. Let us be brief. Every improvement, every new wrinkle that would necessarily cost more money, the Dispatch has favored. Then, when it came to meeting these expenses, it has objected. Does any one believe that improvements can be made without money? Even now, he is asking for a city government, a change that no one doubts will add to our expenses. And if we should adopt that form, then by the end of the first year the usual growl would go up about the expenses. The sensible thing to do would be to stop asking for more expensive things, or stop grumbling about the expense. For our own part, but have favored many of the improvements we have not grumbled. We knew they would cost money. And we are not complaining now. We have something to show for our money and are satisfied. We don't whine over an expense we helped to create.

* * *

The necessary conclusion is, that the editor of the Dispatch lacks judgment or lacks honesty or both. If he is honest in going into improvements expecting they will cost nothing, then he lacks judgment. But if he knew in advance that these cost money, and after getting them, whines about the expense for the effect it may have on an election, then as we said lately he lacks honesty. The facts, as we must believe, are that he knows he is acting dishonestly in the criticisms he is piling on the town board. He is doing it as he promised "just before the town elections each year," so as to get into office a few more "incompetent men," two of whom "with one democrat" could not run the town government successfully. Who the one democrat was, we don't know. Nor do we know. why the editor did not give the other democratic members advice enough to make them fairly good members.

* * *

The COURIER believes in being fair and decent in its treatment of public servants. It has never said an unkind word about the republican members, nor hinted that they were either dishonest or incompetent, though the Dispatch has continually done this as to the democratic members. We believe the board has done well under rather adverse circumstances. Surely, they whose business it was to study the questions before them, must know more about them than any outsider—even an editor. The board had to do a great deal with small means, and if they made a mistake now and then it is not to be wondered at. We believe the town government has done as well, in the main, as it could under the circumstances, and that all the Dispatch cares for is political effect. And for this, it does not scruple to call some of the best citizens of Auburn, either dishonest or incompetent. Such a course is not honorable.

LETTER FROM HONDURAS.

PORT BURCHARD, HONDURAS, Central America, April 2, 1892:—

EDITOR COURIER:—I wish to speak to my friends through the medium of the COURIER, and tell them what I am doing and how things are done in this far away land of rainbows and summer sun, beyond the States, the stormy Gulf and the blue Carribean sea, where fickle fortune awaits.

Where in centuries agone, the native lived and died,
But now the white man stems the stormy tide,
Where for four hundred years, the Spaniard came and went,
But only for his selfish ends, without one good intent.
The Yankee now comes, leaving his native hearth,
To seek for loved ones, a paradise on earth,
Beneath lovely palms, where gentle zephyrs blow,
Where bread-fruit, orange and kindred fruits do grow;
To la grip we bid defiance, also to cold and snow,
While in a hammock we are swinging to and fro.

You see kind friends, many are the delights of a tropical clime, but we have our adversities as well as pleasures. For the past two months I been actively engaged in clearing some of my land which I purchased of the Burchard Honduras Fruit Co. The timbered lands in this country are practically impenetrable, as no person can travel through the timbered country without the aid of a machete, with which to hew his way through the tangled vines and underbrush. In clearing, we cut the vines and underbrush first; then the small timber; after all else is cut down we lay low the gigantic fig and monkey trees. I have seen ten men work half a day felling one tree. They will get on all sides and chop until the giant is brought down. After all the timber is cut down we let it lay about three weeks to dry, then set fire to it which burns up all the small branches. The ground is not plowed or otherwise cleaned up, but the large trunks are left to rot. But as soon as the burning is over, banana suckers are set in rows 15 feet apart each way, then we will set cocoanuts in every other row. In 8 or 10 months we will harvest a bunch of bananas and in five years the cocoanuts will begin to bear and will continue for fifty years. When the cocoanuts begin to bear the bananas are cut down. A good cocoanut tree will yield 200 nuts per tree per year which are now selling at $25 per 1,000 or, $2.25 per tree. We plant 50 trees per acre So you see that a cocoanut grove of 20 acres will support a family in luxury. I now have about 15 acres cleared ready to plant; then I shall turn my steps toward my northern home for I am getting lonesome to see my loved ones so far away beyond the dark blue sea, especially my little laughing blue eyed daughter of three summers. Her image is always before me. But these privations will be but pleasure to me if they will bring wealth and plenty to the dear ones for whom I toil. And I am now more than satisfied that there is a fortune in this business. I know of an American who came here five years ago with but $300 who is now in posession of $40,000, all made in the banana business. There are many other like instances. This is the last letter I shall write to your paper while I sojourn here. But in my next I will meet you face to face. I have up to date received three COURIERS, but no Dispatch has yet found my hiding place.

Yours Truly,
JOSEPH A. SHADE.

HON. MORTIMER NYE

Candidate for Lieutenant-governor.

The above is an excellent likeness of our candidate for second place on the ticket, and is taken from a recent photograph. Mr. Nye is fifty-two years of age, a true and sterling democrat. He is a native of Ohio, but has resided in Laporte county for the past fifty years. In 1862 he was admitted to the bar, and to day stands in the front rank of successful attorneys. He has been elected mayor of Laporte four times; was chosen a Cleveland and Hendricks elector in 1884, receiving a larger vote than any of his colleagues, and was additionally honored by them, by being selected as messenger to carry the vote to Washington. When the legislature provided for a supreme court commission, he was selected as one of its members.—Laporte Argus.

The Election Law.

There have been some changes in the election law. The big square around the rooster, eagle, etc., has been agreed on, and the man who wants to vote a straight ticket must stamp any where inside of that square, whether he hits the device or not. If he divides his vote, he need not stamp in the big square, but stamp the little square at the left of the name of EACH man he wishes to vote for. That gives a vote to each man he stamps. The poll clerks now sign their initials on the right hand upper corner of the back of the ballot instead of where they signed before. But if the initials are put somewhere else, it would not make the ballot illegal. Factories and other establishments that employ hands, must give their employes the first four hours after the opening of the polls, so they can vote. But employer and employes may agree on a different hour, but the four hours must be given at some time during the day, or the employer can be severely punished.

SOLOMON ENSLEY,

We copy from the Ontario, Cal., Record, the obituary of Mr. Ensley, brother to the late George Ensley. He was known by many of our older citizens.

"Mr. Ensley was born in Seneca county, Ohio, December 27, 1823. In 1841 he went to Indiana, living successively in DeKalb and Tippecanoe counties, and working at the carpenter trade. In March, 1853, his family joined a party bound for the then remote Pacific coast. They crossed the plains with ox teams, and after enduring many hardships reached Portland, Oregon, in October. Mr. Ensley decided to settle in Douglas county, and remained there until his health failed in 1880. He then came south and settled in Los Angeles, and in 1886 came to Ontario, where his brother, George Ensley, had already bought—and made some fine improvements. He lived a quiet but respected life here until his sudden death on March 28th.

Mr. Ensley had accumulated a good property, and was esteemed wherever he has lived as an honorable, upright man and a kind neighbor. He leaves a wife and five children—two daughters and three sons—who mourn the loss of a good husband and father.

Mothers and Daughters.

Over 12 years ago I was afflicted with a very serious female difficulty and for the last sixteen months was under treatment of three of the very best physicians that money could employ. Under their skillful treatment I gradually grew worse, until they decided they could render me no permanent help. One of my friends persuaded me to try a bottle of Dullam's Great German Uterine Tonic, and after taking three bottles, I am in better health than I have been for twenty years and am now 60 years old, but feel as young as at thirty. $1 a bottle.

MESSRS. DULLAM BROS.—Gentlemen: For over 4 years I have been afflicted with an eruption of the skin, which became very troublesome and I could get no relief. I was also troubled very badly with constipation, which nothing I tried gave any permanent relief until I took Dullam's Great German blood, liver, stomach and kidney remedy and since taking I have been entirely cured. AUBURN AND VICINITY.

In the fitness of things, Miss Julia Hodge, a talented and educated daughter, after an interval of thirty years is the teacher of the upper ward school in Auburn of to-day.

Following Prof. Hodge in the fall of 1861, came V. F. Wise, of Ft. Wayne. The latter had taught in the Newville Academy and on Sept. 30, opened a select school at Auburn in the school building, at which he endeavored "to render satisfaction to all who were pleasd to favor him with their patronage" and he had some excellent students, among whom were Solomon Barney and Harvey Widney, who were adepts in solving rapidly formulated mental problems.

Prof. Frank Wise was regularly engaged for the winter term, the town's financial condition being no tuition tax levied, admitting no longer period for this, and a number of succeeding, years.

Miss Lodema Tannehill, from Hicksville, Ohio. was the teacher in the grammar department.

The fact that Prof. Wise had the misfortune to be physicially deformed, weighed upon his sensitive and cultured mind and furnished occasion for a true love story.

He had fallen in love with a talented and beautiful young lady in Ft. Wayne. His regard for her was devoted and she reciprocated his affection. Her parents respected him highly and received him kindly, but could not consent to their union because of his affliction.

They persuaded her to accept another, and the day was set for the marriage, but as the time drew near, her health had declined until her life was despaired of, when her parents sent for Mr. Wise and assigned him the happy task of winning her back to health.

Sometime later, a gentleman in a stylish carriage visited Auburn and with him was a lady and it was said in reply to inquiry, "why, those are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wise."

Under the law of 1861, the number of school examiners was reduced from three, to one for each county; his term was extended to three years and he was entitled to a fee of $1.00 from each applicant for license to teach.

Acting in accord with the statute, the board of commissioners, on June 4, appointed Rev. Edward Wright to fill this undervalued but important office. This minister had been active in educational matters as well as energetic in his more immediate church work and the appointment gratified his many warm friends, not only because he was a worthy and deserving man of comprehensive attainments and long experience as an educator but because it was deemed just that he should enjoy whatever pecuniary benefits accrued to the office to offset a loss of support from a portion of his church on account of his strong loyalty to the government. Mr. Wright brought order and system out of confusion and chaos. He advertised and held public examinations during November, at Moore's Seminary at Waterloo, Faurot's Academy at Newville, Auburn Academy and at the school house at Spencerville.

Applicants were divided according to grade sought for, into two classes. The lower grades were examined orally but those expecting license in either of the two higher grades were expected to come provided with pen and paper, to answer questions in writing. Friends of schools and the public generally were welcome visitors at examinations.

He visited schools, conversed with teachers and encouraged their attendance upon educational meetings. Miles J. Fletcher, state superintendent of schools was invited to visit DeKalb county, and in official capacity accepting, he came to Auburn on Monday, Nov. 11th, and delivered a lecture at the court house to a small assembly of teachers on the topic: "Education and Common School Inst ruction."

Teachers had been assured that "time taken from school in such cases will not have to be made up by them," but apathy to instruction even from the highest school officer, kept most in their school rooms, and the character of their services was of a corresponding grade.

The town election this year was a farce as regarded one party which of sixty-two votes cast but one. In the first ward for instance George Keesler received fifty-seven votes and William Webster, one. S. B. Ward was called to take charge of an empty treasury; W. H. Dills was chosen clerk and John Moore became marshal.

The fall election in the county to fill the offices of treasurer and commissioner was a democratic triumph. Alexander Provines incumbent commissioner was beaten by John Brandon, and George Barney defeated Romeo Catlin by a vote of 1249 to 881, giving Barney a majority of 368, or double that known to have been previously attained by either party.

As a means of comparison, we give the vote for governor in 1860. Lane, republican received 1516 and Hendricks, democrat, 1372 votes. Lane's majority was 144.

The Era ascribed the result to popularity of the victors, while the Press located the absent voters in the armies of the Union. The following was the vote by townships:

I. N. Cool's Factory.

I. N. Cool has started up his new buggy factory in the Auburn Windmill building near the old Jackson depot. He will manufacture buggies and road carts, but more especially road carts, to which he will give chief attention. These he will push in the interest of his new device for a canopy top, for which he now has a patent. Road carts generally, have been used without tops, as it was thought as they were a cheap vehicle, it would not pay to put tops to them. His device, however, is so cheap and so easily adjusted, that it is likely the use of tops on road carts will become general. So the public will have a covered rig at a low price, Mr. Cool will have a full of set hands for both iron and wood work departments, and proposes to push the business from the start. We hope he may succeed, and not only make a good thing for himself, but add another to Auburn's growing industries.

Tar in the Arts.

In the preparation of tar, pine wood, which is unfit for timber, is usually employed. It is cut into billets of a suitable size, which are arranged into large conical stacks, or, as is sometimes the case in Europe, are closely packed in clay furnaces of a suitable shape. The stacks or piles are covered with a layer of earth and ignited above, and the draft is regulated so as to sustain a slow combustion without flame. The tarry products, as they are formed, gradually descend and collect in a cavity at the base of the pile. The tar obtained by slow combustion as described above, is largely employed in the arts for various purposes, and when divided into its constituent parts is in one form or another daily prescribed by the best physicians. It has long been known for its great anti-septic and healing qualities, and for external use has been prepared by Messrs. Jas. S. Kirk & Co., in a most convenient and delightful form, in their Dusky Diamond Tar Soap. In this form it should be classed among the necessities of every household, it is equally suitable for the delicate skin of the mother and the baby, or the hardened cuticle of the workman, keeps the skin soft, clear and healthy, is a sure cure and preventive of dandruff, and, used once a fortnight by ladies for shampooing, adds length, lustre and strength to their hair.

An Anecdote of the Emperor William.

The forces behind William II are such as have never been cultivated in Russia, whose Czar lives in hourly dread of assassination, and whose people are so many items of an official budget, so many units in a military report The German Emperor walks about the streets of his towns as fearlessly and naturally as any other man, although the life of his grandfather was twice attempted. One day in November of 1891, he was walking with a guest through the narrow and crowded thoroughfare of a city not far from Berlin. The sidewalks were narrow, and, as the Emperor is a fast walker, he frequently had to step out into the street to pass other pedestrians, and especially clusters of people who stopped for a chat. His companion, who had been in Russia, was struck by the democratic manner in which the German Emperor rubbed in and out amongst porters, fishwives, peasants, and the rest of the moving crowd, chatting the while, and acting as though this was his usual manner of getting about. He was struck still more by the fact that no precautions against a possible murderous fanatic appeared to have been taken, and ventured to speak of this. The Emperor laughed heartily, and said: "Oh, if I had to stop to think of such things, I should never get through with my day's work."—Poultney Bigelow, in the May Century.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

Mrs. Frank Leslie's vivacious chronicle of the grand transcontinental excursion and first annual convention of International League of Press Clubs appropriately leads the brilliant May number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly. Valerien Gribayedoff illustrates with some spirited drawings a timely paper, full of instructive interest, on the "Armies of Continental Europe," by Thomas Donnelly. "Felix Oldboy's Recollections," an idyllic description of New York city in the last generation, is the last piece of literary work done by its gifted author, the late Col. John Flavel Mines. It is charmingly illustrated by Joseph Becker. Other important contributions to this number are: "Thoreau," by W. I. Lincoln Adams; "Through the Jura;" "Von Moltke on the Franco-German War;" "A Nautical Gladiator" (the Swordfish), by Hugh M. Smith, of the U. S. Fish Commission; "Footsteps of the Swedes along the Delaware," by Richard J. Hinton; and the concluding articles on "Old English Porcelain," by Thomas L. Winthrop. The short stories and departments are as abundant and varied as is customary with this popular periodical.

Wisconsin has within the last five years become the center of attraction for more pleasure seekers, hunters and fisherman than in any other state in the union, and each visit increases the desire to again see the charming landscapes, breathe the balsam fragrance that is a part of the invigorating atmosphere, wander through the colonnades of stately pines and hook the speckled beauties with a hand-made fly.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. FROM EVERY CORNER

OF THE WORLD THIS FRESH NEWS WAS CLEANED.

Reunion of Mexican War Veterans at Chillicothe, Ohio—Tired of Anna Eliza—Tarred and Feathered—War Ships Ordered to Venezuela—Terrible Cyclone.

VETERANS' LAST REUNION.

Ohio Soldiers of the Mexican War Will Have a Final Meeting.

The people of Chillicothe, Ohio, are preparing for what will probably be the last reunion of the Ohio veterans of the Mexican war. There are now but about 500 of them living, many live in other States, a large percentage are over 80 years old, and very few are under three score and ten. The majority are poor, and all these things will combine to make this in all probability the last reunion of these men. The only surviving General is George W. Morgan, who lives near Mount Vernon, Ohio. He is in very feeble health. Gen. Denver of Wilmington, Ohio, was an officer of high rank, but did not become a General until after the war. The largest company raised in Ohio came from Clermont County, and the only surviving commander of it is Capt. W. Jamieson, a banker at Batavia, Ohio. Among those expected at this final reunion are Gen. Morgan, Gen. Cassius M. Clay of Kentucky, Maj. McFadden and Capt. Jamieson.

WIRE WORKING WOMEN.

A Woman Delegate to Be Sent from Wyoming to the Minneapolis Convention.

Cheyenne (Wyo.) special: There is every probability that for the first time in the history of the United States of America a woman will be a delegate to the National Convention, and Wyoming will have the honor of inaugurating the custom. Miss Emma Schulte and Mrs. Fidelia Elliott of this city are candidates for the position of delegate to the Republican National Convention at Minneapolis. Since woman suffrage was conferred on the sisterhood of this State they have become adepts in pulling the wire political. The first step in the journey to Minneapolis has been taken in their election as delegates from Laramie County to the State Convention. It is considered probable that one will be selected.

Tired of Anna Eliza.

M. R. Denning of Manistee, Mich., a rich lumber man and a member of the Legislature, put his property out of his hands and announced in the public prints that he will no longer pay debts contracted by his wife. He has left town declaring that he will never return. Denning married a few years ago Brigham Young's nineteenth wife, who was Ann Eliza Young, who acquired celebrity as a lecturer before she met Denning. Previous to entering Brigham Young's fold she was the wife of a Mr. Doe of Utah. She says she has borne much from Denning and professes to be the injured one.

Ward Scared 'Em Out.

Ferdinand Ward, the Wall street swindler just released from Sing Sing, had prepared a statement of the shady transactions of Grant & Ward. He threatened to publish this if he was rearrested on the old indictments. Influential people thereupon hastened to the Federal authorities and secured a promise that Ward would not be rearrested, so that the statement will not be published.

To Elevate American Literature.

The American Society of Authors has been incorporated in New York to have the rights of authors in literary property fixed and defined, and to endeavor to elevate American literature. The trustees are: Will Carleton, Alfred H. Moment, Charles H. Lewis, Katherine Hodges, Mary F. Zimour, Edward P. Ingersoll, Eleanor Kirk Ames and Julia V. D. Thompson.

Tarred and Feathered.

Frank Victors, a barber, was tarred and feathered in his place of business, at Oshkosh, Wis. He was charged with being the correspondent of the Chicago Sun, a sensational paper, and with having written several articles reflecting in the most scandalous manner upon a number of the most prominent citizens of Oshkosh.

War Ships Ordered to Venezuela.

London special: In the House of Commons Mr. James Lowther, Parliamentary Secretary of the foreign office, stated in reply to questions that the Government had no official news of the outbreak in Venezuela. The British war ships had, however, been ordered to Laguayara.

Chief Justice Fuller a Dark Horse.

There is considerable quiet gossip in Washington regarding the possible nomination of Chief Justice Fuller at the Democratic Convention. It is understood that Mr. Cleveland favors Judge Fuller as residuary legatee in case it should be found impossible to be nominated himself.

Death of William Henderson.

Threatened Lynching.

At Clay City, Ky., Wm. Bartley, a negro, attempted to outrage Miss Belle Hally, and a mob threatens to storm the jail at Staton where he is confined, and lynch him.

In the Throes of Revolution.

Advices from Venezula say that the capital is threatened by the revolutionists. A bad state of affairs exist, the prisons are full and arrests have ceased because the jails will accommodate no more. It is stated on good authority that President Palicio is preparing to flee, as the main body of his army is too far distant to succor him before the attack, and the garrison is too weak to offer prolonged resistance. The capital is full of rumors as to plots against Palicio's life and four men have been arrested and charged with a conspiracy to blow up the palace with dynamite. As there has been no trial or execution outside of prison walls, nothing is known as to the foundation of the accusations. Despite the accumulating evidence of his approaching fall, it is believed that Palacio will defer his flight to the last moment.

A FATAL PLUNGE.

Fearful Wreck on the Monon Near Michigan City, Ind.

Michigan City special: A bad wreck on the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago road occurred at Otis, Indiana, seven miles south of here, resulting in the death of the following of the train crew: Engineer J. C. Murray, Fireman James Brown and Brakeman Elmer H. Brown.

Engine 27, going from Monon to Michigan City, with a heavy train of freight cars, dashed through the trestle into the swollen mill stream beneath. Several miles above the bridge is a dam which gave way shortly before midnight, and tearing along bore with it a large saw-mill. It is supposed that the mill struck the trestle just as the loaded cars were on it. The bridge is a new one and made of oak and iron. The curve in the road and the darkness, together with the downpour of rain, made it impossible for the engineer to notice the washout and the engine and twelve cars went over, bearing with them the trainmen who were killed. The cars were loaded with pig iron and coal and crushed down upon the engine, which was buried in water.

WILL CHEAPEN TIN.

Welsh Manufacturers Must Come to America.

London special: The severe depression in the tin-plate trade of South Wales is leading to a new departure. The people are beset with two difficulties—the heavy tax imposed by the McKinley tariff and the opposition by the Welsh workmen to the introduction of automatic machinery by which alone the local industry can be properly carried out. The result is that three, if not four, of the tin-plate manufacturers of the Swansea and Llanelly districts are making arrangements to construct their works at first for a finishing department only, in New York and Pennsylvania and importing their own block plates from this country, like American finishers are doing at present, and employing for the final processes the same tinning machinery as is protected by their American rivals.

A TEST CASE

To Compel Indiana Railroads to Pay Their Taxes.

Indianapolis special: About fifty county attorneys and treasurers met in State Attorney General Smith's office recently to consult concerning the united efforts of different railroad corporations in trying to evade the assessment under the new tax law. It was decided after consultation to let the case now pending in the Marion County Superior Court be the test case, the railway attorneys agreeing. Suits in other counties now brought by the various railway companies, will be continued until the test case is settled. Attorney General Smith is confident of winning and says that the railroads were assessed under a law which is a direct copy of the Illinois law, which has been affirmed by the United States Court. The cases involve over a million of dollars of taxes to the State.

DOUBLE MURDER.

An Old Farmer and His Wife Shot by Unknown Parties.

Guerdon (Ark.) special: A well-to-do farmer, named Wetherton, and his wife were murdered while on a visit to the house of some relatives near Amity. The family were awakened in the night by some one in the room, but before the Wethertons could identify the intruders two shots were fired and the assassin escaped. When the remainder of the family reached the room they found Mr. Wetherton lying dead on the floor with a bullet in his brain. Mrs. Wetherton was lying across the bed. She had been shot in the left breast and died a few minutes later. There is no clue to the murderer nor is there any motive known for the deed.

Ditched the Train.

Train wreckers ditched the north bound California express a mile north of Myrtle Creek Station, Oregon. Two ties were placed crosswise on the track and the engine, mail and express cars left the rails. Engineer Morris jumped and escaped with cuts and bruises on the head. Fireman Galling was caught between the tender and tank and had both legs broken. He was badly scalded by steam. The track is torn up for 200 feet. There is no clue to the perpetrators, but robbery is believed to have been the motive. The train fell toward the bank. On the other side is a steep slope down to the river, and if the train had jumped in that direction the loss of life would have been heavy.

Imported from Indiana.

Dandridge (Tenn.) special: Jackson, Sevier, and Knox counties are in a panic over the operations of White Caps who are said to have a tri-county organization, with supreme and subordinate officers and lodges. The active leader, or manager, who is employed on a salary, is said to have been brought by contract from Indiana, where he was familiar with White Cap methods. So far, about fifty persons have been whipped. Amongst them was a minister, Rev. Mr. Jenkins. Eight or ten women have been chastised within a few days, and some of the leading citizens have been warned. Several of those whipped are in a precarious condition.

Cruelty to Convicts.

Vicksburg (Miss.) special: Indisputable proof of cruelty to convicts has finally been discovered. W. H. Fosseleman of Woodville, who, with 100 other convicts, was leased to Brit Lee of Washington County, was frightfully beaten by a negro by orders of the overseer and narrowly escaped death. Others of the same squad were almost killed. Manager Jenkins of the State Prison, and R. G. Wait, who is in charge of the convicts, have been ordered before the State Board of Control. Wait will be indicted and Jenkins severely dealt with.

A Startling Discovery.

A startling discovery was made at Tontogany, Ohio, recently. John Woodruff was preparing to clean out an old well, when he found a quilt floating on top of the water. He took it out and unfolded it and found a baby about 9 months old in it. It was fully developed, and of good size. The quilt was partly burned, and looks as though some one had tried to burn the child and failed, so they resorted to the old well. There are strong suspicions of the guilty party, but nothing certain is known.

Mrs. Osborne's Release.

London special: The release of Mrs. Osborne from Holloway jail, where she was met by her husband and taken to the home of her parents is not favorably received by the press.

The Star says it is not surprised, but believes the release will be a bad precedent, since it must be confined to aristocrats. The St. James' Gazette thinks it is time to call a halt in shortening the sentence of females who have been justly convicted.

Burned Off His Ear.

Masked burglars entered the home of John Daily, an aged pensioner, in Hollidaysburg, Pa., and demanded money. He refused to give them any and they at once began to torture him. Knives and pins were stuck in his neck, and one ear was burned off with a candle. The thieves finally left him lying senseless on the floor, and so far have escaped capture. Daily died as a result of the treatment.

Work of the Flames.

At Mount Sterling, Ky., the following business houses were destroyed by fire: The Sentinel newspaper office, J. H. Brunner's shoe store, the postoffice, Hainley's bazaar, Enoch's bargain store, business houses of T. P. Martin & Co., dry goods and notions; Walt M. Gay & Co., grocers, and Mrs. Kate O. Clark, millinery. The total loss is about $50,000, with insurance aggregating one-half that sum. The entire contents of the postoffice, valuable mail matter, etc., were destroyed.

William Astor's Will.

The will of Wm. Astor leaves the bulk of his fortune to his son, John Jacob, whose wife was Miss Willing of Philadelphia. Mr. Astor's entire fortune amounts to $70,000,000. Each of the three daughters will receive $2,700,000, and when the other bequests are distributed there will be in the neighborhood of $60,000,000 to be handed over to John Jacob. The widow will receive an annual income while she lives of $500,000. At her death this will go to her son, John Jacob.

Train Wrecked.

The Nashville and Hopkinsville passenger train was struck from the rear by a freight train near Gutherie, Ky. Charles Wallace, a fireman of that place, was killed and Engineer Norman Hiltner of Nashville, Tenn., sustained a badly mashed leg. An unknown negro, who was stealing a ride, was killed. Seven passengers were hurt, but none seriously. They were taken to Gutherie for medical attention. The crew of the freight train is to blame.

A $25,000 Fire.

A fire occurred in the State University building at St. Paul, Minn., which occasioned the sending of alarming reports which the facts do not warrant. An amateur entertainment was in progress when the front of the stage was found to be on fire, a leaky gas jet being the cause. The fire spread to the roof, which burned, and the top floor was gutted. The spectators were cool and dispersed with nothing approaching a panic. The loss was $25,000 and covered by insurance.

Base-Ball Umpire Shot.

A row over an amateur game of base-ball at Columbus, Ohio, nearly resulted in murder. Charles Dumont, pitcher for one of the clubs, objected to a decision by the umpire, who was a boy named Willie Miller. A quarrel ensued in which Dumont drew a 22-calibre revolver and fired five shots at Miller. Four of the bullets never touched him, but the fifth lodged in the calf of his leg inflicting a painful but not dangerous wound. Dumont fled and the police are scouring the city for him.

Deeming Sentenced to Death.

Melbourne special: Mr. Furlong, counsel for Deeming, summoned up for the defense at considerable length. The counsel wound up with a keen analysis of the testimony which he declared showed at every step Deeming's irresponsibility. The jury found him guilty and have sentenced him to death.

Paige Pleads Guilty.

Ralph K. Paige, Treasurer of the Painesville, Ohio, Bank, which failed recently, pleaded guilty before Judge Hamilton, at Cleveland, to having forged two notes of $3,000 and $2,000 respectively. He was then remanded to jail and will be sentenced to the Penitentiary in a few days.

Chilian Wheat Destroyed.

A special from Valparaiso, via Panama, says: An Osorono paper states that owing to the heavy rains the wheat crop in that department has been entirely lost. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000. Reports of damage to wheat come from Valdivia and other places.

Reciprocity with Honduras.

President Harrison has issued his proclamation announcing the establishment under the provisions of section three of the McKinley tariff law, of reciprocal trade relations with Honduras.

Bearding the Tiger.

Two women armed with hatchets raided the "blind tigers" at Corbin, Ky., and emptied every barrel of whisky and beer in the town.

Suing the Sugar Trust.

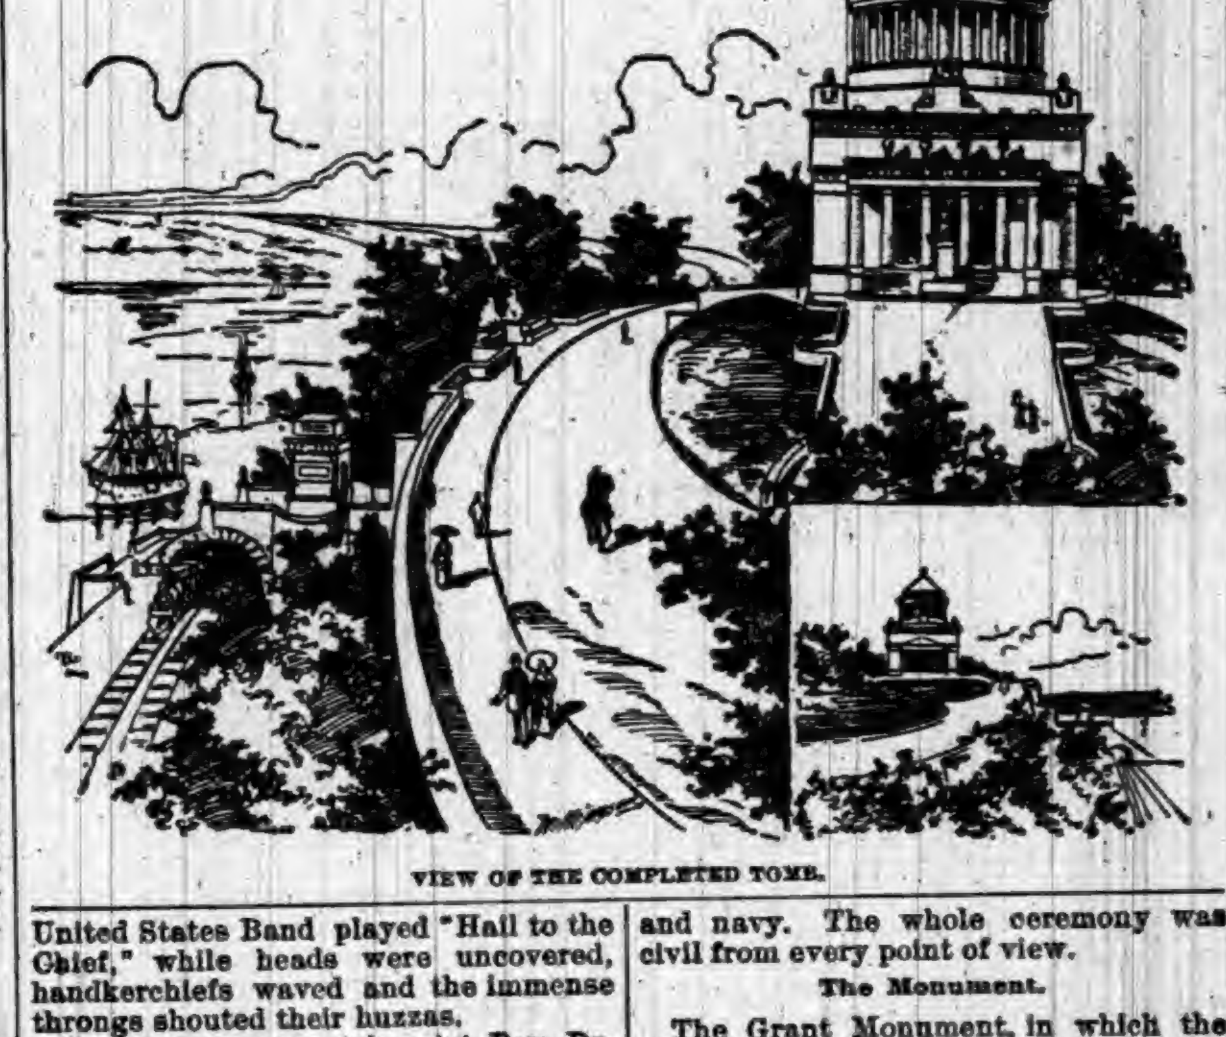
GRANT'S FAME IN STONE

NEW YORK HAS BEGUN ITS MONUMENT.

Ceremonies of a Most Elaborate and Imposing Character—President Harrison Wields the Golden Trowel—Appearance of the Completed Monument.

Honor to Gen. Grant.

The corner-stone of the nation's monument to Gen. U. S. Grant in Riverside Park, New York, was laid with becoming ceremonies. The weather was all that could be desired, a cloudless sky, bright sunshine, tempered by a moderate breeze blowing over the Hudson River. Long before the time fixed for the dedication ceremonies the immense grand stand, erected in close proximity to where the monument will stand and partly surrounding the corner-stone, began to fill with those who had been invited and had tickets, and by noon it was computed that there were fully eight or nine thousand persons on the stand. The large number of ladies, in their bright and showy spring costumes, heightened the already brilliant spectacle. This crowded stand, with about three thousand veterans of the G. A. R. formed in line around and about the resting-place of their dead hero, with the charming scenery along the Hudson River and the Palisades in the distance, formed a picture which has seldom if ever been surpassed if equaled.



VIEW OF THE COMPLETED TOMB.

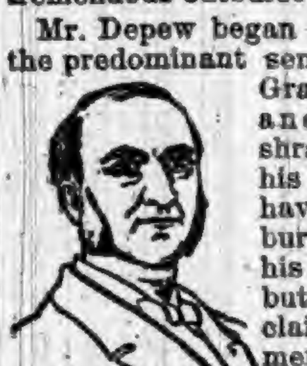
Shortly after noon the Presidential party, escorted by Troop A, of the National Guard of New York, left the Fifth Avenue Hotel and proceeded to Riverside Park. In the carriages were President Harrison, Mrs. Grant and members of her family, Secretary Foster, Secretary Rusk, Secretary Elkins, Postmaster General Wanamaker, Private Secretary Halford and many other distinguished guests. As the Presidential party approached the tomb the United States Band played "Hail to the Chief," while heads were uncovered, handkerchiefs waved and the immense throngs shouted their huzzas.

After a few moments' quiet Rev. Dr. John Hall offered up a prayer, which was listened to by all in deferential silence. The President of the Grant Monument Association, General Horace Porter, then delivered an address detailing in brief the doings of the association and their status since the inception of the project.

The event of the day was the laying of the corner stone by President Harrison. After putting mortar around the stone with a gold trowel that Superindent Brady had made for the occasion, the stone was lowered into position. The corner-stone box, made of copper, was then filled with the relics which will be buried in it. They were:

Constitution of the United States.
Declaration of Independence.
Articles of confederation.
The Bible.
Memoirs of General Grant.
Memorial Day pamphlet, May 30 and 31, 1886.
A copy of Mayor Grant's proclamation regarding the Grant monument.
A new American flag.
Medals and coins from the United States mint.
Various illustrated and daily papers.

President Harrison then briefly addressed the assemblage, after which the band played a selection of national airs. Chauncey M. Depew then stood up, giving the audience the signal for another tremendous outburst of cheering.



CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

Mr. Depew began by declaring that the predominant sentiment of General Grant was his family and his home. He shrank from display all his life, and would have preferred being buried by the side of his father and mother, but appreciating the claim of his countrymen upon his memory, he chose New York as his final resting-place, because it was the metropolis of the country. He made but one condition, and that was that his loyal wife should be buried by his side. He would have no monument, however grand, which would separate him from her during the unnumbered years of the hereafter. Continuing, the orator said:

> New York, in accepting this bequest of General Grant, has assumed a sacred trust. Upon no municipality and its citizens was ever devolved a more solemn duty. From the tenderest motives, he took from the national government the task which it would most loyally and lovingly have performed, and intrusted it to this great city. The whole country are enlisted in the army of reverence and sorrow, but he appointed New York the guard of honor. Let the monument which will rise upon this corner-stone be worthy of the magnitude of the metropolis and the grandeur of the subject. General Grant needs no stately shaft or massive pile to perpetuate his memory. The republic is his monument, and its history during what must always be its most critical and interesting period will be the story of his deeds.

> No man can be truly great unless he is also magnanimous. Grant was the most self-sacrificing of friends and the most generous of foes. "Unconditional surrender, I move immediately on your works," were the conditions Grant offered Buckner at Donelson, but in the darkness of the night he entered the prisoner's tent and said: "Buckner, you must have lost everything; take my purse." He had been for months making toilsome efforts to break through the confederate lines, but after the surrender of their defenders he refused to go within them. The failure to capture the confederate capital had exhausted the resources and impaired the reputation of all the generals, who had preceded him, but when it lay prostrate at his feet he sternly declined the triumph of an entry at the head of his victorious army.
>
> It was difficult to win his confidence, but when once gained, his heart, his efforts, and his fortune were at command. Neither secret nor open enemies, neither direct charges nor anonymous revelations could disturb his friendship for anyone he had once trusted. To Sherman and Sheridan he gave unstinted praise. He was so entirely free from envy or jealousy, so enthusiastic in his admiration of these lieutenants, that he awarded to them the larger share of credit for the ultimate triumph of the Union cause. But these same qualities, so creditable to his ingenuous and generous nature, became the chief sources of his mistakes and troubles when he was treading with untrained steps amid the quicksands of political and business life.
>
> The culminating triumph of Gen. Grant was that he received and returned the sword of Lee. The one act typified the victory and perpetuity of the Union and the other that its defenders forever after would be those who with equal and unequaled courage had fought to save and to destroy it.
>
> Grant's claims upon the gratitude of his countrymen are many. He will have peculiar remembrance for having, with President Lincoln, immediately recognized that the republic must live as the fathers had founded it. The most brilliant jewels in his crown of glory will be that, though a conqueror in the field, he counseled through life, and advised with his pen when in his last hours his voice had failed, peace and reconciliation among his countrymen, and that, though a soldier President, he successfully demonstrated the justice and wisdom of settling disputes among nations not by war, but by arbitration.
> The tendrils of loyalty and love stretch from this monument to every soldier's grave in the land. This imperial city proudly and affectionately assumes the custody of his remains. The people called from the absorbing cares of life by his natal day and this solemn ceremony take up again their burdens with lighter hearts and brighter hopes for their children and their children's children because of the career and the deeds of Ulysses S. Grant.

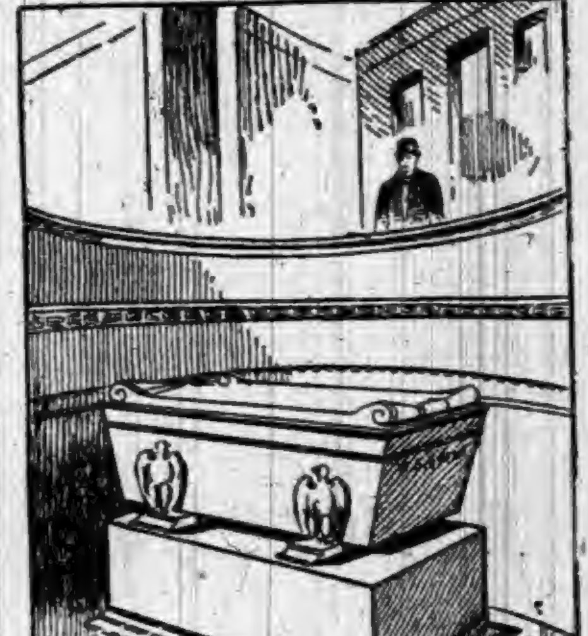
On resuming his seat it was several minutes before quiet could be restored, the repeated shouting and clapping of hands being almost deafening. Dr. John Hall then pronounced the benediction, and the services ended by the firing of a salute of twenty-one guns from the United States ship Miantonomah, stationed in the Hudson. The ceremony was marked as being without pomp or ostentation; in fact, such a one as the deceased general would have desired. There was no marked martial display, but here and there in the crowd was a sprinkling of officers of the army and navy. The whole ceremony was civil from every point of view.

The Monument.

The Grant Monument, in which the remains of the General are to lie, has been materially changed in the past month, but as far as the exterior is concerned it remains as impressive in appearance and design as at first planned. Many of the central columns within have been eliminated from the plans, and a good deal of the panel work will be omitted. The plan of the crypt has also been materially changed, and as now designed will be simply a circular opening protected by railings above, but without the ornamental work first planned for the sides.

The designer of the monument, Mr. John H. Duncan, has reluctantly made the changes advocated in the line of economy, and expressed himself grateful for the fact that the liberality of the subscribers has permitted the exterior of the monument to remain practically unchanged, but for some slight modifications at the southern entrance.

It is now about seven years since the death of Gen. Grant, and during that time the movement for the erection of this monument has been going on slowly. It took six years to collect the first $150,000—less than half the amount needed—and it has taken the reorganized committee little over six weeks to insure the collection of the remainder.



IN THE CRYPT.

Never in the history of similar movements has work undertaken under such disheartening circumstances been so enthusiastically and successfully concluded, and the praise must go to Gen. Horace Porter and his splendidly managed departments. Last year, on April 27, he was the orator of the day at Riverside Park, and his words then presaged that he was ready and willing to undertake what other men had failed to accomplish. He was made the President of the reorganized association, which was enlarged by legislative enactment, and night and day since that time he has spoken enthusiastically to meetings of citizens of every trade and calling, and has worked with a generalship worthy of the cause he has put his heart and soul in.

WE all enjoy doing that which we can do well; and one reason why the hours outside our work are so often meager in the pleasure they yield is because we attempt a dozen things, none of which we successfully accomplish. Of course the result must be unsatisfactory. If we will but submit to some degree of self-discipline in a single direction where we are interested, the pleasure we shall derive will be more than doubled, and the effective results will be an added happiness. Mr. Ruskin says it is not enough that the function of art be well imagined; it must task the beholder also to imagine well, and this so imperatively that, if he does not choose to rouse himself to meet the work, he will not taste it or enjoy it in any wise.

THE New York Legislature has adjourned.

AN animal curiosity was found by a Montpelier butcher in the country, five miles northeast of that city, on the farm of Thomas Scoot. It is a well-developed pig, having the ears, tusks and trunk of an elephant. The legs and feet have the form of the hog. It was the ninth and last of a litter of Poland China pigs, and weighed six pounds, but died in a short time.

THE City Council of North Manchester recently passed an ordinance compelling saloonists to remove all screens and stained glass from their fronts. It has greatly diminished the trade of all and almost entirely ruined the business of the two principal saloons. Henry Conrodt, who owns the finest saloon in the city, has already disposed of his tables, and announced his intention of leaving for a more lucrative field. Citizens who have been at the head of the movement are elated over the result.

WILLIAM KENNEDY, an old miner, working at No. 7 mine, owned by the Brazil Block-Coal Company, located at Cardonia, fell from the top vein to the bottom vein, a distance of about thirty feet, without receiving serious injuries. The water was in the bottom of the shaft, thus breaking his fall.

WHAT may yet end in a tragedy occurred at Yorktown. During a quarrel on the street John Applegate was struck with an iron weight on the head by Frank Fosnaugh, a young man who lives near Daleville, and formerly a saloon-keeper at Yorktown. Applegate is yet insensible from the blow.

AT Muncie, last week, Eli Hoover's cigar store was entered and $100 in money taken. Besides these a gold watch was taken from Haverstack's boarding-house, and Butch Carroll and John Collins, two glass-blowers, had money and clothing stolen from their room at Drake's Hotel. The police force is badly puzzled at the failure to catch the guilty persons.

A Pair of Jacks.

BY Lulu Jamison.

"Humph," commented the bewildered Mrs. Shrimp, "I have my idea of that young man. He's beginning mighty young, but he'll end up like John, sure's my name's Matilda."

Meanwhile Jack had been literally pulled up the stairs and into Mr. Beverly's room.

"Now," said the latter, closing the door, "are you really Jack Beverly?"

"Positively. I wish I was sure of everything as I am of that."

"Well, then, all I have to remark is that we are a fine pair of Jacks. I dare say it was a fellow feeling that drew me toward you when you came in to-night. I would have offered my room sooner, but my feelings were really so worked upon by the pathetic story of Mr. Miller that speech was impossible. Suppose I had not spoken at all? This revelation would not have been brought about. I'm beginning to see now. You are me. But who in the devil am I?"

Beverly looked so perplexed over this problem that Jack was forced to laugh.

"I don't believe I put that straight," remarked the former. "Let me see. I'll get it right presently. Sit down, and I'll follow suit. I'm upset, like the worthy John. Now, you are Jack Beverly, and I'm Jack Beverly. That point seems to be firmly established. But somehow we don't progress. Oh, I have it. You've been staying—where?"

"South Weston."

"Precisely. Just the place I started for. It isn't quite as clear as daylight, but mighty near it. I suppose you have been staying with Mrs. Millard?"

"No; Mr. Millard."

Beverly jumped up and sat down again.

"Just as I said. You are me, and hang me if I don't believe I'm you. You have a friend Frank and another John, and you had an idea of marrying Mrs. John, and Miss Harly is pining for you; and you bought an evening suit and a pair of gray trousers from Thomas Bailly, tailor, and haven't paid for the same?"

These questions were put with a rapidity that was ludicrous, and Jack, slightly unnerved by what he had lately discovered, could only pass his hand over his brow in a perplexed way.

"I know the people you mention," he answered, "and I have patronized Mr. Bailly, but I can't understand——"

"That's just it. I'm getting it, however. All that's clear just yet is that you've been visiting my friends and I've been dancing attendance on yours. Now we'll go at it again. I'll tell you a few facts which may help to unravel the tangle. To begin, then, I live in New York, where I practice law. I'm a lone orphan, with no memory of either father or mother. About three months ago I received a letter from a gentleman signing himself James Millard. According to his statement, he had been a warm friend of my father's, and, having heard through another friend of my existence, he was anxious to make my acquaintance, and so on. Well, the upshot of it was he invited me to visit him at his home in South Weston. I had the name of the place pat enough at the time, but, being a thoughtless fellow, as my friends have often kindly told me, I was scarcely surprised when I met a gentleman on the train who told me Mr. Millard lived in Weston. I naturally thought I had made the mistake, and there I was. I confess I found my welcome much less cordial than I expected, and I have been rather surprised at Mr. Millard's silence regarding my father and our letters. Lately I have suspected something, but for certain reasons I did not feel anxious to investigate. That's my side of the story. Yours, I know, will enlighten us still further."

"Well," he said at last;" how plain it all seems now. You see, I left New York with the intention of vacating for a month or so. One of my friends suggested Weston as a delightful place to rusticate. He had some friends there, he told me, and he would write to them immediately. He assured me I would like them, and that they would make my visit pleasant.

"Under the circumstances I set out for Weston, but through inattention when the station was called I left the train at South Weston. Imagine my surprise upon finding Mr. Millard's carriage waiting for me. I could not understand it, and I could only conclude that Frank's letter had brought about this unexpected welcome. I confess I have been surprised at a number of things, but I usually found, or thought I found, a reasonable explanation."

"It is curious, to say the least," remarked Beverly. "I don't regret the mistake, however. I have had some fault-finding letters, and been threatened with a lawsuit, but I forgive all, as, I don't mind telling you, I have found the happiness of my life."

Jack sighed.

"Why that sigh?" inquired Beverly, slapping him on the shoulder. "It strikes me you are rather down in the mouth. Now I am a thoroughly jolly fellow. I can't stand the 'blues' in my presence. Out with the trouble if you have any."

Jack was about to sigh again, when his face suddenly brightened.

"Tell me," he said eagerly, "is your engagement known here?"

"My dear fellow, Weston is a village. Need I say more? My affairs are probably canvassed from one end of the town to the other. I don't say this is the result of greatness. It is merely a nat—— What's the matter now?"

Beverly broke off thus abruptly as Jack, rising hurriedly from his chair, began to pace the floor.

"It is possible," was the answer, as Jack came to a standstill in the center of the room, "it is very possible that you have done me a great injury."

"That sounds ominous," was the grave reply. "Under the circumstances there is nothing for you to do but to tell me the whole story. There is a story, I see. I hope you are mistaken as to my agency."

"I may be," replied Jack, leaning against the window frame, "but in my present condition, I am glad to grasp the least straw of hope. The simple fact is, that I, like you, came to a little village to find the woman I would make my wife. Until to-day I cherished a possible realization of my hopes, but now——"

"Wait one moment. Does she know of your feelings?"

"Yes, two days ago I asked her to be my wife."

"Well?"

"Her answer was all that I could wish. At that time her heart was mine. Her lips, as well as her eyes, confessed it. To-day I returned from a short visit to New York, to find a note, in which, without further explanation, she denounced my conducted, and hoped in the bitterest terms, that I would never bring myself into her presence again. After her attitude of two days before, I was staggered."

"Did you allow it to stop there?"

"No, I forced myself upon her, and demanded an explanation. Her answer was: 'Ask your conscience.' I tried to see her again, and failed. Now you have heard all. Perhaps you will give me the benefit of your opinion. For myself, I am too utterly miserable to think. Can you see the drift of my suspicions?"

"Clearly—Miss——"

"Millard."

"Ah, you don't say. Well, Miss Millard has heard of my engagement, and imagines you to be the recreant. Perfectly natural, my dear fellow."

"Natural!" echoed Jack. "Good heavens! What do you think it means for me?"

"I know what it means for me," was the imperturbable answer. "It means a trip to South Weston, and a call upon Mr. and Miss Millard. I'll inform the old gentleman that I am the son of his old friend, etc., etc. See! It will all come right, and we'll both be benedicts before we are a year older."

Jack looked slightly dubious, but he tried to emulate his companion's sanguine spirits.

After more conversation, during which the young men became like old friends, Beverly proposed that they should turn in, cautioning Jack, however, to move with as little force as possible in bed, as he had not yet tested the full strength of that article of furniture.

CHAPTER XI.

Mary was lying in her hammock the next morning, when a shadow fell across the porch, and, starting up with a hasty exclamation, she found herself face to face with a young man.

"I beg your pardon," he said in a pleasant voice; "I fear I startled you."

"Only very slightly," she returned, trying to regain her self-possession. "Do you wish to see grandpa?"

"If grandpa is Mr. Millard, that is my wish."

"He is Mr. Millard. Walk in, please. I will tell him." Opening the door, she led the way to the parlor. "Will you give me your name, please?" There was a second's hesitation on the young man's part. Then in a peculiar voice he answered, "Beverly."

"Did you say Beverly?" she asked, with a disturbed air.

"Yes, miss, Jack Beverly."

"Jack Beverly. His name is Jack Beverly."

"Grandpa, his name is Jack Beverly."

"What, my dear?" questioned Mr. Millard, with decided surprise, as Mary came upon him with this announcement.

"A gentleman who wishes to see you, grandpa, and——"

"A strange gentleman, Mary?"

"Yes, a strange gentleman, and his name is Jack Bev——"

"So you have said, my dear. You are very nervous, Mary. What is it, my child?"

"I am afraid to think," she answered, as he laid his hand upon her head. "There are a thousand questions in my mind now. I—I cannot dare to answer them. You had better go, grandpa. He is waiting."

"It is strange," she heard him murmur, as he left the room.

"It is more than strange," she repeated, throwing herself on a chair and leaning her head upon the desk.

She was in this position a half hour later, when her grandfather returned.

"There has been a very curious mistake," he said as Mary looked up questioningly. "The Mr. Beverly I have just been talking with is the son of my old friend. He has been staying with another Mr. Millard, whom he has been taking for me, and——"

"How did he discover all this?"

"He has seen Jack, and they have been comparing notes. Each has found out that the other has made a similar mistake."

"Where is he?"

"Gone to look about the village. I have in——"

"I don't mean this Mr. Beverly," interrupted Mary with a quick frown.

"Oh, Jack. He is in South Weston."

"Did Ja—the other Mr. Beverly know this one was coming here?"

"Really, I did not ask, my dear; though it is very likely."

"You said you invited him to dinner, did you not? I must let Jeannette know."

A minute later, she entered the kitchen, with the abrupt announcement:

"Jeannette, Mr. Beverly will be here to dinner."

Jeannette dropped the potato she was peeling. "You don't mean——" she exclaimed.

"No, I don't mean that one," returned Mary, with a gulp in her throat. "This is quite another one entirely."

"Another one!" repeated the surprised Jeannette. "Mercy, save us. There ain't another one of them Mr. Beverlys a-coming."

"Another one of them Mr. Beverlys, Jeannette? What a peculiar expression. I only know there's a man coming to dinner named Beverly—and—and that's all I want to know."

"Queer," commented Jeannette, apostrophizing the potatoes. "I wonder how this one'll turn out?"

Beverly returned shortly before dinner, and Mary followed her grandfather to the parlor. She did not feel in humor for conversation. So she contented herself with quietly observing their visitor, conscious that he, in his turn, was likewise observing her.

"Miss Millard," he said at last, so suddenly as to almost make her start, "I have been telling your grandfather what a beautiful place Weston is. I dare say, however, you are more familiar with its charms, as no doubt you go there quite frequently."

"I haven't lately," she responded. "That is, not until the other day. I—I went there then."

"Ah!" he questioned, observing her nervous manner. "I dare say you have friends there?"

"Only one very humble one—Mrs. Thomson. You know her—that is, you have spoken to her, maybe. She told me about Weston and about——"

She paused in helpless embarrassment.

"I suppose I'm making a fool of myself," was her inward comment, "but I cannot help it. I'll die if I don't know. I shall have to ask him outright presently. Why won't he say something? How can grandpa sit here and talk so coolly of other things? If I only had a chance?"

She made her own chance after dinner. She was sitting alone with Beverly, her grandfather having left them, to find a book from which he had been quoting, when, without apparent reason, she dropped the subject they had been discussing, and, turning to him, asked, with noticeable eagerness:

"Do you know Miss Ellis? You have been staying in South Weston," she went on in explanation of her question, "and I dare say you have met her."

"I have," he answered," with a peculiar gleam in his eye. "She is Mr. Millard's—my Mr. Millard," he added, with a laugh—"stepdaughter. Therefore, I have had unusual opportunities to cultivate her acquaintance. We are, I am happy to say, very excellent friends."

"And more," added Mary, in a low voice. "I—I beg your pardon. I thought so."

With which ambiguous remark Mary gave him a questioning glance, and, reading her answer in his face, left her chair with the abrupt words:

"Grandpa is coming. Please excuse me."

"Going, Mary?" asked Mr. Millard, meeting her at the door.

"Please don't speak to me," she cried, darting by him.

The old gentleman looked surprised. Turning to Beverly he said, in some anxiety:

"Pray excuse me a moment, sir. My granddaughter does not seem well."

Lifting her with gentle hand, he drew her toward him. "Since when have I lost the right to your confidence," he asked, stroking her hair with a caressing touch. "You have something to tell me, dearest."

Mary buried her face on his breast with the passionate cry:

"It is no use to hide it, grandpa. I cannot hide it from myself. I have ruined my own happiness. Three days ago," she continued, with a half sob, "I was as happy as it is possible for anyone to be, and now——"

"Well?" he interrupted, with a gentle intonation, as seating himself in a chair, he drew her to his knee. "Tell me all that has happened since, Mary."

Then in a low and self-reproachful voice, Mary repeated all that had passed between Jack and herself from the moment he had asked her to be his wife to the time he left Robin's Rest.

"It was a hard thing to believe of him, a very hard thing," was Mr. Millard's answer, when Mary finished her recital. "Yet I must confess, you had great reason. If you had told me this before, we might have discovered the true state of affairs without all this heartache. I believe I should have had better faith in him."

"That is hard on me, grandpa. You cannot think of my feelings when you say it. I could not look at it coolly, or stop to consider a possible mistake. I felt myself wronged and outraged. I thought he had made a sport of my affections. For I had confessed my love for him. I had allowed him to kiss me, and, grandpa, it was humiliating, so bitterly humiliating, to remember that."

"I understand that, Mary," said her grandfather, kindly.

"I don't think you can quite understand, grandpa. No man could. And you don't know how hard it was for me to believe him guilty. My whole heart rebelled against it. But what could I think?"

"You could have told me, Mary."

She sighed.

"I don't think I wanted even you to know how weak and foolish I had been; and I was afraid you might think I cared more than I did. Of course, while I believed what I did, I hated him."

"Of course, my dear," was the quiet answer.

"Now I hate myself for having been unjust. Still, I had rather a thousand times suffer through my own injustice than through his dishonor. Don't scold me any more, grandpa. I've been punished enough."

"My dearest," he cried, pressing her to his heart. "I only wish to help you."

"It is too late for that."

"No," was the decisive answer. "You must not allow pride to interfere with the reparation you owe Jack, and the duty you owe yourself. This misunderstanding has not changed your feelings for him?"

Her face drooped.

"He cannot have forgotten what I said to him," she replied in a low voice. "He may even have grown to hate me. I can't ask him to come back to me, Grandpa; I can't ask him to do that, I'd die first."

Mr. Millard regarded the unmanageable Mary with a slightly perplexed air. "You will tell him you misgudged him, Mary? That is simply justice you know."

"How am I to do it?" she asked, anxiously. "If I should write it I should make a fool of myself, I know, and if——"

"Let me write it, my dear; you can trust me."

"I am not so sure, still you may write. Don't say too much. Tell him I misjudged him in a very grave particular, and that I am sorry, and—Oh, grandpa, you know how to express it. But please don't make it seem that I am so anxious, I should die of shame."

"I will take care of your dignity," he returned, with a smile.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

The Effect of Tight Boots.

This is what a physician says about tight boots and shoes: "It is impossible to stand or breathe aright if the feet are pinched. When correct posture and breathing are interfered with, the circulation is impeded, and deleterious substances in the blood tend to make the complexion bad. This is one of the many evils of tight shoes. To be well shod has a marked influence on style. The feet symbolize the body in their way as much as the hands. A clever shoemaker says that in a well-fitting shoe the human foot feels like a duck's foot in the mud; it is held firmly in place, but nowhere compressed. Nothing can exceed the vulgarity and hygienic wickedness of a shoe that is manifestly too tight. For misery-producing power, hygienically as well as spiritually speaking, perhaps tight boots are without a rival." Here, again, we learn on high authority how important a factor in human existence and human happiness is the foot-gear of mankind. Some one may say, "We breathe with our lungs and not with our feet." That may be, but I have myself observed how tight boots control the breathing arrangements of men and women. Instead of drawing a full breath with expanded chest, the sufferer walks humped-back, and gasps at every step, "Ah!" "Oh!" "Ugh!" etc. I don't know about the blood making the complexion bad, but the pain of the toe makes the face long and painfully serious. Then on the spiritual aspect of the question the doctor is also right, for it is hardly conceivable that tight boots can tend to spirituality, whether in or out of church. I commend the extract quoted to bootmakers to put in their window as a reason why the public should only buy their own particular good-fitting boots as tending to physical, moral, spiritual and eternal welfare. But you must use your own discretion as to the inelegant metaphor of the duck's foot in the mud.

Where They Differ.

Dudely Canesucker—I tell you what, Mr. Plaintork, the idea that there is a pwersonal devil nevah comes into my head.

Mr. Plaintork—That's just like my dog, but he never goes around howling about it.—Texas Siftings.

Salaries and Duties.

He—I think we need not worry about the future. I am now getting $2,000 a year as second assistant subeditor of the Daily Blower.

She—Yes; but you are killing yourself doing two men's work.

He—I know; but before long I may be promoted and then I will get $3,000 for doing one man's work; and if I have patience I will eventually reach a position where I will get $5,000 for doing nothing at all!—New York Weekly.

Imitating the Drop Curtain.

"Where are you going?" said Mrs. Murray Hill, as her husband started to go out at the end of the first act.

"Oh, no place much," he replied. "I notice that the curtain has taken a drop, and I thought of doing the same thing myself."—Texas Siftings.

Might Have Been Worse.

She—"I am very sorry our engagement must cease. I can never marry."

He—"My gracious! What has happened?"

She—My brother has disgraced us.

He—"Oh, is that all? That doesn't matter. I feared may be your father had failed."—New York Weekly.

Too Good to Tell.

Mrs. Sanger—What were you laughing at while papa was saying grace?

Edith—Jus' a joke.

Mrs. Sanger—Why, Edith! what sort of a joke?

Edith—A private joke.

Mrs. Sanger—Can't you tell me 'bout it?

Edith—No; it was jus' a private joke 'tween me an' Dod.—Smith, Gray & Co's Monthly.

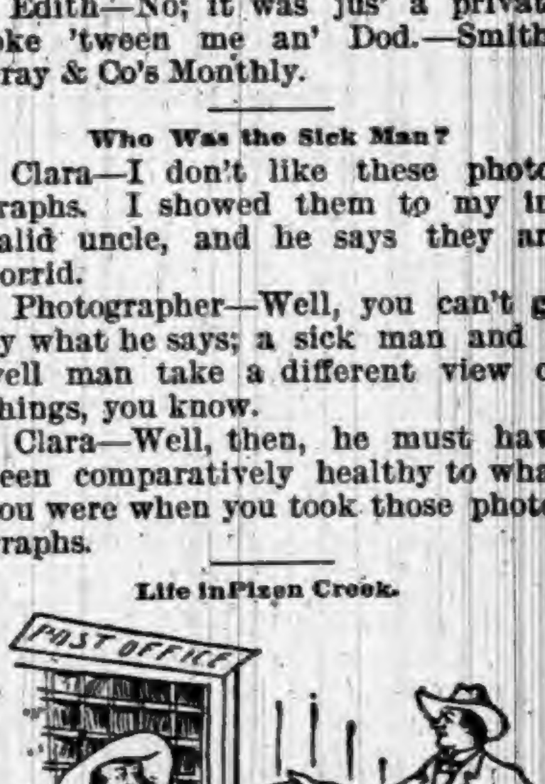
Who Was the Sick Man?

Clara—I don't like these photographs. I showed them to my invalid uncle, and he says they are horrid.

Photographer—Well, you can't go by what he says; a sick man and a well man take a different view of things, you know.

Clara—Well, then, he must have been comparatively healthy to what you were when you took those photographs.

Life in Pizen Creek.



Postoffice Inspector—Sir, there are complaints by Eastern recipients of letters from this office that you cancel the stamps by shooting holes in the envelopes.

Postmaster Whooper—That's where the Eastern recipients differ from the last sneakin' low-lived postoffice inspector that come here. I canceled him by shootin' holes in him too, but he didn't make no complaint. He was too thoroughly canceled!—Texas Siftings.

A Mistaken Policy.

First tramp—I say, Mike, th' fashion of gents like me an' you carryin' clubs is a mistake.

Second tramp—Git out! Clubs scares people inter bein' hospitable, don't they?

First tramp—They useter; but w'en folks began ter notice our clubs they began ter keep big dogs, an' now it takes all th' cold vittles they has ter feed th' dogs.—New York Weekly.

A Dreadful Threat.

An Austin colored man, with protruding eyes, rushed into Justice Tegener's office and exclaimed:

"I wants Col. Jones, who libs nex' door to me, put under $1,000,000 bonds ter keep de peace."

"Has he threatened your life?"

"He has done dat berry thing. He said he war g'wine ter fill de nex' niggah he found after dark in his hen-house plum' full ob buckshot."—Exchange.

"Perseverance," Etc.

How much a man may love a horse and hate to lose him has recently been shown in the case of an old farmer in Illinois, who traveled over 1,000 miles of country trying to find an old $25 plug which was stolen from him two years ago. He got the animal at last in Georgia.

Causes of Jersey Lunacy.

At a meeting of the Essex County (N. J.) Council, the lunatic asylum committee reported that the superintendent of the asylum had informed them that the chief cause of lunacy there was the marriage of cousins and the next principal cause was drink.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon: if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

An Important New Publication.

The issue of "King's United States of To-Day; a Handbook of all the States and Territories," marks the completion of a great enterprise. It is a marvelous summary of every fact covering the beginning, the growth and especially the present developement and resources of each state and territory. Prof. Greenwood, a prominent educator, says it is "the most complete, compact, solidified, instructive and useful mass of information of all the states and territories that has ever been published." It is commended in similar terms by such men as Pres. Dwight of Yale, Pres. Adams of Cornell, Pres. Patton of Princeton, Wm. M. Evarts, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Cardinal Gibbons and many others.

It contains complete maps of every state and territory, and about 3,000 fine engravings, showing the chief objects of interest, including grand scenery, chief cities, public buildings, educational institutions, manufactories, etc. These with the array of statistics and vivid, concise narrative, present a glowing picture with pen and pencil of the greatness and glory of our Republic, while the mass of information given is just what is needed for quick reference in every office, store, factory, shop and home in the land. It is sold by subscription, and as the price is only $2 50 it must meet with an immense sale. Agency may be secured by addressing C. B. Beach & Co., Publishers, Lakeside Building, Chicago.

A. Lewis & Co, Once More.

We have written several times about the lumber firm of A. Lewis & Co., and each time this popular firm has been mentioned in these columns, many persons have read the notice with great interest. Mechanics, contractors and builders, especially, are deeply concerned as to what Mr. Lewis has to offer them in his line, and anxiously await the announcement through the public press. It is an accustomed and long established fact that he handles only the best grades of lumber and materials, and by his pleasant, courteous, accurate and accommodating ways of doing business has won the confidence of an intelligent and enterprising community. His, a little less than a score years of practical experience, is an advantage and a blessing to those who buy building materials and rely upon the honest ability of the dealer, to furnish them such qualities and grades as would insure the cost of a good building within the reach of even an humble purse. Each season, he has sought with earnest efforts to gratify all new and legitimate demands for something novelistic and stylish, and has succeeded admirably in the years now past and gone. Art, inventive genius and mechanical skill have been surprisingly effective in doing away with the old-fashioned modes of preparing fine lumber for finishing purposes. Real works of art are no longer confined to the canvas hanging on the drawing room wall or the sculptured statues on the mantlepiece, but the mopboards, window casing, door facings and wainscoting, in a modern structure are each and all handsome models of beauty and artistic workmanship. Almost anything that an intellectual mind can conceive, deep thought conjecture or a constuctive brain formulate, in the line of figures, carving, scrolls, stamping, turning, embossing and pressed work in all the latest patterned designs, can be bought of this dealer at prices that make them more accessible than luxuries. Mr. L., has restocked his immense yards near the L. S. & M. S., elevators, with all the seasonable patterns in embossed casings, square-turned columns and posts, lap, matched and drop siding, plain and fancy shingles, sheeting, mouldings, lath, lime, hair, etc. He makes a specialty of embossed casings and turned posts and columns, and calls the attention of customers to the 150,000 red cedar shingles he has on hand. Surely, the most particular buyer can find something to suit him at this great emporium of varieties, where the interest of the patronizing public is considered.

The Essex, Can., Free Press, says: Our American cousins have a much better plan of righting wrongly addressed or stamped letters than we have. Over there the addresses of letters dropped in the office with an improper address, or without stamps enough on, are advertised in the local paper, or put on exhibition. Thus the sender whoever he may be, has a chance to make a correction, and the letter will go forward. Here such letters are sent to the dead letter office at Ottawa.

We have received from Richard A. Saalfield, 794, 796 and 798 Tenth Avenue New York, the first number of a musical monthly entitled, The New York Musical Monthly. It is a marvel of cheapness and excellence. It fairly staggers us. How any publisher can afford to to give so much for so little surprises us. We all know what music costs, but here is a publication of 32 pages of music, large size, large print, equal in every respect to high priced music, which is offered to the public at 15 cents per copy; or, $1.50 per year. post-paid. The number to hand contains, "Nightingale Song" from the Tyrolean, by Genee; "Ta-ra-ra Boom-de-ay," by Ascher; "Love and Duty," Song, by Dryden; "Serneta" (Italian) Waltz, by Jaxone; "Kitsmin Schottische Militaire," by Leggett: "Darkie's Dream," by Lansing; "Tyrolean" Waltz, by Pratt, any one of which is worth the price asked, while the "Ta-ra-ra Boom-de-ay" is the piece that is being sung everywhere and made such a success in London and Paris as to increase a certain singer's salary from $50 a week to $100 per night. The publishers advise us the May number will contain "Paderewski's Melodie; the famous song "For You;" the beautiful "Love's Dream After the Ball" Waltz, by Czibulka; "Paderewski's Minuet;" "Poor Girl Didn't Know;" the great song, "My Son, My Son, My Only Son;" the famous Swedish Song "Tystnad;" and last, but not least, Montenegro's famous "Oxford Berlin Polka," which is danced everywhere. This monthly is printed on elegant paper, and we can hardly say enough for it. Our subscribers would do well to send 15 cents for a sample copy, or, better still $1.50 for a yearly subscription to the publisher.

THE different effect produced by a mouse and a milliner's bill upon a woman is a striking illustration of the ancient saying "It is the little things that count."

EDWARD EVERETT HALE has been presented by his parishioners with a birthday present in the form of $13,000. Thirteen is not an unlucky number when employed in this fashion.

A FASHION note says: "It is now regarded as extremely bad taste to dye one's mustache." Such a punishment as being regarded a man of extremely bad taste is too mild for a man who dyes his beard. He ought to be pilloried.

AMOS J. CUMMINGS writes a letter excoriating the members of Congress who quote poetry in their speeches. Our caustic friend should remember how beautifully becoming poetry is in relieving the solid impression of the Congressional Record.

THE Queen of England began to rule when she was a lovely girl of eighteen summers. History points to no ruler who has had a more prosperous reign. Her family has grown, and taxes the public purse to the tune of $18,000,000 per year, but her subjects pay it without a growl.

SIR HENRY TRUEMAN WOOD sees in Chicago "strong evidence of a genuine desire to grow out of the vulgarity which attached in the past to the reputation of Chicago and to the methods of making money there." Sir Henry is really too kind. With advancing refinement and such gentle encouragement Chicago may yet attain that degree of culture which will permit the "upper clawses" to make their money at baccarat or on the turf.

MRS. FRENCH-SHELDON, the woman explorer of Africa, spent many months in the dark continent, the companion of natives and surrounded by wild beasts and great serpents without any show of fear. She was named "the Master woman" by the native chiefs, who were ever ready to do her bidding. She returned from Africa with many trophies of her hunting expeditions where she faced tigers and escaped the coils of pythons, but when she got back to England she confessed that there were just two things she feared—a drunken man and a cow. She said nothing about a mouse.

ONE of the leading rustlers in Wyoming is a Methodist preacher who bears the significant name of Rader. He first came into prominence by chastising a cattleman. This gave him an immediate popularity and finally a leadership in the forces of the rustlers. Mr. Rader is said to be a fearless rider, a good shot and an impassioned exhorter. On Sundays he zealously devotes himself to the work of recalling wandering sinners; and on other days of the week he engages with equal ardor in the pursuit and capture of stray cattle. There is a sort of homogeneousness, as it were, in the two callings which he finds very attractive.

ALL arrangements have been made for the German Emperor's whale-hunting excursion in Norway. As the Hohenzollern is too large to engage in such sport, the Kaiser will use a small fishing-boat on leaving the royal yacht. Whale-hunting is described as being a very exciting amusement and equally as cruel as the other sports indulged in by crown heads. The entertainment begins by a harpoon being shot from the gun on board the steamer into the whale, and when the line attached to it is tightened a shell fastened to the harpoon explodes and the unfortunate animal is killed. A more dangerous method is to approach the animal in small boats and make the attack with lances and hand harpoons.

THE death of Franc B. Wilkie in Chicago, removes from the profession, not a journalist "of the old school," a Bohemian, a vagrant trifler in the newspaper field, but an earnest, manly worker, fully abreast of modern thought and modern practice. He was connected with the business not for what there "was in it," but for his honest love of journalism, and a desire, which never wavered, to do his share in its advancement and encouragement. He never shirked a duty, nor did he hesitate to lend a helping hand to other and younger men. But for the "sham journalist," the youth who came in the cabin windows instead of up from the forecastle, the dawdler and worthless shirk, Franc B. Wilkie, had no mercy. He was an honor to the profession, and his loss will be deeply deplored in the city which for many years has been his field of labor, and with whose journalistic successes he has been closely identified.

THE death of E. P. Snyder in the Illinois Penitentiary gives an illustration of how justice is tempered with mercy in our courts. Snyder was an old soldier and was arrested for larceny. He was so far gone with consumption that two bailiffs had to assist him into the court-room. He was sentenced to eighteen months in the penitentiary and died the second day after he was taken to Joliet. He begged to be allowed to die in jail, where his wife might be near him, but justice could not grant such a boon to one who confessed himself a criminal. This case is in strong contrast with one in New York the other day, where a young, attractive woman, well educated, and said to be of a good family, pleaded guilty of petit larceny in having stolen clothes to the value of $90. In that case sentence was suspended and the prisoner allowed to go free. Circumstances alter cases when a pretty woman stands at the bar to confess her guilt in stealing what she desired to make herself more attractive, and when a dying veteran steals bread to keep life in his body for a few more days.

WE do some things much better in the United States than they do in England. Our registration system is better, for one thing. Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Labouchere, in a recent debate, called attention to the fact that parliamentary elections in England are usually held on a registry a year old or more. Thus elections occurring during the last half of last year were held on registries made up in July of the previous year. Mr. Labouchere, fearing that the Tories would defer the dissolution of the present Parliament to the fall, gave notice that he would present a bill to expedite the registration next July, so that the new voters may have a chance to vote at the general election following. He pointed out the absurdity of holding the general election in October or November of this year on the registry of July of last year. He said that in the workingmen's constituencies this would disfranchise 25 per cent. of the voters. Mr. Gladstone supported Mr. Labouchere, but Mr. Balfour, for the Tories, refused to consider the proposition for expediting the registration in July. That would not work to the satisfaction of the Balfourites. If Republicans or Democrats in this country resorted to the political sharp practices of the Tories as revealed in this matter, what pious lectures the Times, Spectator, Saturday Review, and other London journals would read us!

A METROPOLITAN journal, speaking of the difficulty experienced by young men in obtaining employment in the cities, says: The common schools, of which we justly boast, do much, but not all, and the most serious defect in the system of education now in vogue may be remedied, if not by the school managers, by parents. Is a boy properly prepared for the battle of life by leaving school with an elementary knowledge of mathematics, geography, history, and grammar? We think not. As population increases the pressure of competition becames more severe. As the world progresses the demand for a high order of skill in every department of activity increases. Specialization is the order of the day in every trade and profession. It is, therefore, of paramount importance that a boy should learn some trade or business before his school or college days are over. If he is fit to be a wage-earner he will make all the better employer of wage-earners later on. It may be plumbing, or it may be book-keeping, stone-cutting, or "clerking;" but it should be something. The merchant or the manufacturer has no time for the instruction of novices. The general laborer must be idle or "saw wood." The skilled laborer is almost always in demand. The late Emperor Frederick had one son taught shoe-making, another cabinet-making, another navigation, and so on. It is an impressive fact that the president of the greatest railroad in the country learned surveying in his youth and the first vice president became so perfect a master mechanic that when the Johnstown flood paralyzed the entire system he took personal command of the construction corps sent out. Yet neither President Roberts nor Vice President Thomson were poor boys, but both learned a trade. Teach your boy one.

A. D. 1892.

When the old gentleman saw her coming in the office he smiled, for she was petite and plump and fair to the eye.

"Is this Mr. Harry Heartley's father?" she inquired, addressing him.

"It is, miss," responded the old gent, rising and offering her a chair with a bow.

"Then I came to see you, sir, about your son, she said simply.

"My son?" and the father looked disturbed.

"Yes, sir; your son Harry. It is concerning a matter in which I am personally interested."

"What," glowered the father, "has that young rascal been—"

"I beg your pardon," she interrupted, "Harry is all right. I love him and he loves me, and I have asked him to be my husband. He has agreed to it, and now I am here to get your consent to our union. Do I get it?" and her tone had the ring of determination around it.

It was fifteen minutes before Harry's father recovered consciousness, but when he did he kissed the leap year damsel and she went away rejoicing.—Free Press.

SOME people imagine that the world stands still until it has heard their side of the story.

CREDIT TO M'KINLEY.

A LEAF FROM THE PROTECTION LEDGER.

How This Great Protective System Is Working to the Benefit (?) of the People—Poorer Goods and Higher Prices—Spreckels and the Sugar Trust.

The Account for One Week.

Credit these to McKinley. They are a few of the items on one side of the account of the "bravest and wisest of tariff measures," the "trust-killing tariff," as the New York Tribune fondly calls it. This bill that does not sustain a "higher rate of profits but a higher rate of wages," as Professor Gunton told the Republican Club of New York a few days ago. These are some of the items for the week ending April 15, 1892. When some loyal Republican has filled out the other side of the account so that it will not look too one-sided we will continue our side.

April 8—By a strike of 200 girls and boys in the Dolphin Jute Mills, at Paterson, N. J. The Press says "the boys had been getting $2.50 and the girls $2 a week" in this protected industry.

April 8—By reduction of wages of puddlers at McIlvane & Son's Plate Mill, Reading, Pa., from $3.75 to $3.50 per ton, and the announcement that next week Seifert's two rolling mills, employing 300 hands, five miles below Reading, will close down indefinitely.

April 8—By the determination of the furniture and cabinet manufacturers' association to keep their factories closed until the strikers give up their fight for eight hours.

April 8—By exactions of the rice trust which lead a committee of rice merchants at New Orleans to take steps to build a rice mill to circumvent the trust.

April 9—By consolidation of the six cotton seed oil mills of Georgia into the Georgia Cotton Oil Company. The American Cotton Oil Company owns 120 mills. For purposes of economy those in each State are being merged into separate corporations. All of the trust mills are now reorganized under State charters, except those in South Carolina.

April 10—By notice of general reduction of wages in all the furnaces at Newcastle, Pa. After April 17 the turn men will be reduced 15 cents, the day laborers 10 cents, and the iron men ½ cents per pound. This will give the turn men $1.75 and the laborers $1.35 per day.

April 10—By closing down of the Dolphin Jute Mill, at Paserson, N. J., because of the inordinate request of the boys for $3 and of the girls for $2.50 per week.

April 10—By strike of 200 electric-light men in New York.

April 10—By the announcement in the Tribune that Claus Spreckels cleared $5,000,000 when he sold his Philadelphia sugar refinery to the trust, giving the latter complete control of refined sugar east of the Rockies.

April 11—By a big marble trust which the Tribune announces is being formed in Georgia "to unite all the marble proprietorships in the country so that the output as well as the prices can be regulated." The duty on marble averaged about 50 per cent. under this "trust-killing tariff."

April 14—By the announcement that the whisky trust, whose total earnings for the year ending March 31, 1892, were $4,728,827, is to wipe out all opposition by a temporary reduction of prices.

April 14—By the formation of a trust composed of the thirty typefounders in the United States.

April 14—By the closing of the Spreckels enormous refinery by the sugar trust, so as to decrease production and maintain trust prices.

April 15—By the completion of the Diamond match trust, it having bought the Lebanon Match Company, of Philadelphia, for $125,000. This was the last company to surrender to the trust. The retail dealers in Philadelphia, upon advices from wholesalers, at once advanced the price of matches 50 cents per gross.

Poorer Goods and Higher Prices.

Mr. Whiting, a Congressman from Michigan, and one of the members of the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives, has an interest in a large mercantile firm in St. Clair, Mich. Being in the business he ought to know what effect the McKinley tariff has had upon prices. When he was asked, on his return to Washington from New York, where he had been buying goods, what effect the high duties have had upon prices, he said:

"The importers of New York are protesting with one voice against a policy of the custom house, which is now to exact the highest possible rates of duty, and to treat all importers as dishonest and guilty of undervaluation. I have no doubt that the moving cause is the fact that money is needed to fill an empty treasury, but the people must pay the bills. The high tariff now being collected encourages American manufacturers to support the Republican ticket with large contributions, and I have no doubt the administration knows what it is about.

"The claim that goods have not been made higher by the McKinley law I am able to deny with emphasis, after a practical experience of several days in purchasing all classes of importations as well as home goods. In many cases the quality of goods is degraded in order not to show increased cost. In other cases expensive goods are dropped from the counters of the wholesale houses and cheaper articles are substituted and introduced as a 'change of style.' It is but a poor subterfuge to make the poor consumer think he is paying no more for the same articles he purchased a year ago. I do not think any buyer is deceived.

"Hence it is that they are organizing a trust with the galvanizers in order to maintain the high prices which they are now charging for sheet iron.

"The only way in which the tin plate industry can be established in this country on a substantial basis is by putting iron and steel sheets, now controlled by a trust, upon the free list. Until this is done consumers will be forced to continue the payment of over $17,000,000 in duties on imported tin plate into the treasury of the United States."

A New Trust.

The Iron Age announces that "negotiations are in progress looking to the merging into one body of the Association of Iron and Steel Sheet Manufacturers, the National Association of Galvanized Sheet Manufacturers and the Tinned Plate Manufacturers' Association of the United States. This association when organized will be a powerful one, and is expected to be of considerable benefit to the trade. A general meeting of the above three organizations will be held in Pittsburg on Wednesday, June 10 next, at which it is expected the consolidation will take place."

This is just what the manufacturers of iron and steel sheets, who were chiefly instrumental in getting the increase in the duty on tin plate, have been aiming at all the time. The manufacturers of galvanized iron have such a complete control of that industry that when the prices of terne plate were advanced, in consequence of the higher duty, they were able to advance the prices of their galvanized iron in spite of the fact that the price of the crude iron had fallen. The makers of galvanized iron favored the advance in the duty on terne plate for just this purpose. On the other hand, the sheet-iron makers favored the duty in order to make the price of tin plate so high that the canners and other large consumers would be forced to build tinning stacks for making tin plates, and thus become their customers for iron and steel sheets. The makers of sheet-iron and steel never intended to engage in the tin-plate business, as the Iron Age has several times intimated. They know well that as long as the high duties on sheet iron can be maintained those who build tinning stacks will have to buy the sheet iron used of them.

Claus Spreckels and the Sugar Trust.

The New York Tribune of April 12 contains the following, "San Francisco, April 11. (Special.) One of Claus Spreckels' associates who is near to the old sugar king gave, to-day, the first inside story of the way the California millionaire made the Sugar Trust come to his terms. He said: 'When the Sugar Trust was formed, Spreckels had full control of all the territory west of the Missouri River. The leaders of the trust offered him good terms to enter the combination, but he refused. Then they declared war on him, and threatened to carry the fight into his own country. Spreckels is not a man who ever calmly took a challenge, and his first step was to carry the war into Africa by building a $3,000,000 refinery in Philadelphia. Then he began to cut rates, and he made things so lively for the trust that they were glad to make peace at any price. So they agreed to let him alone in his own territory, and to pay him $8,000,000 for his Philadelphia refinery. When the old man returned here last week, he was so elated over his profit of $5,000,000 that he divided $3,000,000 in equal shares between his sons John and Adolph and his daughter Emma. Now he is making arrangements to handle this season all the sugar of the Sandwich Islands, as the planters have got to come to him.'"

This same Claus Spreckels has for years been posing as the enemy of the sugar trust and the friend of the people. He has pretended to stand between the two, and to have prevented the trust from raising its prices even higher than it has done. Some credulous people have been foolish enough to believe that he was sincere in his opposition to the trust, and that he would do as he said and fight it as long as he was on top of the earth. The truth is that he has been doing some financiering on his own account, and that there has been more money for him to remain out of the trust and to work his Hawaiian monopoly, than to endanger it by selling out to the trust, at least until he could get his price, which, it seems, was no less than $8,000,000. Why he sold at this profit is clear when we study the situation a little.

Congressman Herbert, in the last North American Review, quotes from the report of S. G. Brock to the effect that under the reciprocity treaty of 1877 with Hawaii, which admits merchandise from Hawaii free, we have lost $43,898,978 in revenue. The two chief imports from Hawaii are sugar and rice. Mr. Herbert shows that because of the comparatively small supply of these articles from Hawaii the price of sugar and rice is not less in the United States because of this treaty. Mr. Spreckels for years had a monopoly of the sugar industry of Hawaii, hence Mr. Herbert says "every dollar of the $43,000,000 of taxes released on Hawaiian sugar went into the pockets of the producers of that article, Mr. Claus Spreckles and others." It is not surprising, then, that Mr. Spreckels comments in the North American Review of March, 1891, on "the wise and far-seeing policy embodied in the Hawaiian treaty." Since raw sugar is free he can no longer make an extra profit of from 1 2-5 to 2 cents per pound and the sugar industry of Hawaii is seriously crippled, and since he can by this sale make $5,000,000 and maintain his monopoly of the sugar market west of the Rockies, he has deemed it wise to sell at this sacrifice. His Eastern refinery could have earned him $1,000,000 a year as long as the present duty of half a cent per pound is maintained on refined sugar for the benefit of the trust, but perhaps Spreckels has had his ear to the ground and prefers a "bird in the hand to two in the bush."

Past Praying For.

The Rev. Francis Marsten, a Presbyterian minister of Ohio, has the rude vigor and grit of a Calvin. He was asked to open the Ohio Legislature with prayer, and this was the burden of his petition: "Remember, oh Lord, the welfare of these Thy servants, gathered here in this maelstrom of iniquity, fraud, and corruption. Thou knowest with what suspicion this Legislature is looked upon by the people of this great State. Lord, deliver us from the bribes, the bribers and the bribe-takers in our midst, and keep them from the ways of temptation which surround them on every hand, and may their acts be righteous and not corrupt." What a kick this Republican body made. It did not want any such deliverance, and in its kicking went so far as to propose that the reverend gentleman be called to the bar of the House for contempt. Never had Ohio a more corrupt Legislature and it is evidently past praying for.

Tariff Shots.

On women's and children's dress goods that can be bought for 7 cents a yard in Europe, the McKinley tax is 7 cents a yard and in addition thereto 40 per cent. of value—in all 140 per cent. The total revenue-only tax proposed by the Springer free-wool bill is only 35 per cent.

THE Century Magazine prints a careful description of the famous rebel yell. This will be very serviceable to such members of the Grand Army as Ingalls, who may want to use it in their political speeches, but who never heard it.

THE old legend was that "Trust was dead, bad pay killed him." Nowadays, however, the stronger the trust the more wages are cut down.

Who Did What?

Innocent gossip with no malice in it has often a charm for the best of people, as, indeed, why should it not? The person who takes little interest in the loves and hates, fortunes and misfortunes of his neighbors is far more likely to be the possessor of a cold heart than of a superior mind. but there is such a thing as being too inquisitive.

In the days when our grandmothers were girls, there came occasionally into the family of a good deacon with nine children a village dressmaker of the kind immortalized by Mrs. Stowe in "The Minister's Wooing."

She was neither as delightful nor as daring as Miss Prissy, but she had all of that good woman's interest in other people's affairs, and always looked forward with particular pleasure to the week during which she cut and fitted for the deacon's girls, knowing that his house was in some sort a social center, where she was likely to hear plenty of news and entertaining anecdotes.

One day she arrived late for work, and, as she entered the house, caught a glimpse of the six daughters already assembled in the family sitting-room, with their gowns and patterns, their workboxes, and their new roll of "Injy muslin."

But none of them were at work, for one was telling the others a story of such absorbing interest that they sat breathless and spellbound, with hands fallen in their laps or needles suspended in the air.

The sight was too much for the new comer. With one mitt on and one off, her unfastened pelisse dragging from her shoulders, her bonnet askew and its loosened strings streaming, she appeared suddenly among the astonished girls, crying as she came: "What? What? What is it? Who did what?"

She was answered, although giving a full answer involved the retelling of the whole story; but her comprehensive inquiry became thereafter a family byword.

Among the deacon's descendants to this day, if one shows signs of too great inquisitiveness, it is sufficient for any other member of the family to ask, with a lift of the eyebrow: "Who did what?"—Youth's Companion.

Wax Mines.

The wax mines or ozokerit deposits of Eastern Galicia, which a syndicate of American capitalists have leased or purchased, form one of the most curious fields of industry imaginable. They are at and around Boryslaw, which is also the center of the Eastern oil district of that part of Austria. They have been for generations in the possession of people who have worked them in the most primitive manner. The wax lies in beds, like clay, at depths of from three hundred and fifty to six hundred feet. Shafts are sunk in the beds. The sides are curbed with timbers, but in such a careless and unscientific way that they are constantly caving in and burying workmen in their depths. From four to six men are killed in this way every week. The owners of the mines are persistently refusing to go to the expense of making their shafts safe, and the laborers are at their mercy.

The Boryslaw wax field is only fifty acres in extent, and upon that ten thousand shafts have been sunk. Twelve thousand men live and work on that tract. The owners of the deposits have made immense fortunes from the product, as it is very valuable, bringing eight cents a pound at the pits. Its use until within a few years was confined solely to making candles, but the manifold uses to which paraffine has of late been adapted has given this Galician deposit a much wider utility. The ozokerit lies in veins sixteen inches thick. It is dug out with shovels, and raised from the shaft with buckets and windlass. The owners are the only merchants, bankers and hotel-keepers in the region. Everything is mortgaged to them. The men shave their heads, leaving only a tuft of hair at each temple. The women also shave their heads, wearing mohair wigs instead of their natural head covering.

When Divers Get Angry.

One of the strange effects that diving has upon those who practice it is the invariably bad temper felt while working at the bottom, and as this irritability passes away as soon as the surface is reached again, it is only reasonable to suppose that it is caused by the unusual pressure of air inside the dress, affecting probably the lungs, and through them the brain. My experience has been that while below one may fly into the most violent passion at the merest trifle; for instance, the lifeline held too tight or too slack, too much air or too little, or some imaginary wrong-doing on the part of the tender or the boys above, will often cause the temper to rise. I have sometimes become so angry in a similar way that I have given the signal to pull up, with the express intention of knocking the heads off the entire crew; but as the surface was neared, and the weight of air decreased, my feelings have gradually undergone a change for the better, until, by the time I reached the ladder and had the face-glass unscrewed, I had forgotten for what I came up.—The Century.

He Voted as She Desired.

Mrs. Seymour-Howells tells a story of a woman who had a husband in deadly fear of her, says the Kansas City Times. He was a member of the Legislature, and his wife had insisted upon his voting for a woman-suffrage bill. He had promised to do so, but his better half was afraid to trust him, and so on the day the bill was to come up she hied herself to the gallery in the legislative hall. The roll was being called, and when the husband's name was reached he got up and said: "Mr. Speaker, I regret to cast my vote against this bill, but——" At this instant a tall woman with a penetrating voice leaned over the gallery rail and said: "Wilbert!" And then Wilbert's knees began to shake. He said in a trembling voice: "Mr. Speaker, I vote aye."

A Decisive Blow for Freedom

From the tyrannical yoke of these despotic allies, dyspepsia, constipation and liver complaint, is struck when the quondom victim of their galling supremacy has taken a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Then they vamoose defeated, and health resumes its welcome sway. Such is the invariable experience of those who use the ruling alterative to get rid of these associate evils. Anti-dyspeptics, cholagogues, drastic cathartics are as the sands of the sea, numberless and—useless. The happy blending of remedial properties, derived from Nature's botanic storehouse, with a pure, modified spirituous basis existent in the Bitters, not only initiates but effectuates the joint cure of chronic indigestion, irregularity of the bowels and perversion of the bile. The surest defense against malaria is this agreeable fortifier and preservative of health under unfavorable atmospheric conditions. It counteracts a tendency to rheumatism, rouses the kidneys and b adder when sluggish, from inaction, and endows a debilitated, nervous invalid with vigor. Incomparable as a tonic.

THERE is no doubt about the difficulty of killing a cat, but even that so-called nine-lived animal is not to compare in tenacity of life with the South American condor. MEASURES CONSIDERED AND ACTED UPON.

At the Nation's Capital—What Is Being Done by the Senate and House—Old Matters Disposed Of and New Ones Considered.

The Senate and House.

In the House, on the 26th, Mr Blount of Georgia asked unanimous consent that the House go into committee of the whole for the consideration of the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. The House then went into committee of the whole (Mr. Oates, of Alabama, in the chair), on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. It appropriated $1,584,925, being $72,000 less than the current law, and $553,541 less than the estimates. The reduction on missions was $25,000; on consuls, $37,000; in the bureau of American republics, $10,000. After a long discussion, the committee then rose and the House agreed to the request of the Senate for a conference on the amendments made by the Senate to the Chinese exclusion bill passed by the House. Messrs. Geary, Chapman and Hitt were appointed conferrees. In the Senate the silver question consumed all the time.

The 27th, the House went into committee of the whole (Mr. Oates, of Alabama, in the chair) on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. Mr. Hitt of Illinois moved an amendment, having for its effect the separation of the missions of Colombia and Eucador, which the pending bill consolidates in one mission. The amendment was rejected. Mr. Hitt made several efforts to prevent the consolidation of missions and the reduction of salaries of ministers to the South American republics, but his efforts were of no avail. He then offered an amendment to restore to $7,500 the salary of the Minister of Venezuela (the committee having cut it to $5,000). No quorum voting on the amendment, the committee rose and the House adjourned. In the Senate, after routine business, the army appropriation bill was taken up, the question being on striking out the House proviso which prohibits payment of transportation of troops and supplies of the army over any of the bonded lines owned, controlled, or operated by the Union Pacific Railway Company (including the lines of the Oregon Short Line and Utah Northern Railway Company), or by the Southern Pacific Company over lines embraced in its Pacific system. After a long speech by Senator Morgan the House proviso was struck out; yeas, 26; nays, 20. The bill was then passed, and the Senate adjourned.

The House transacted no business the 29th, except that the Sibley tent bill, which has been clogging the wheels of private legislation for the past two months, was finally laid aside with a favorable recommendation, after having been amended so far as to refer the claim to the Court of Claims for adjudication. The Senate is discussing the different appropriation bills. It is stated by some Senators that Congress will probably be in session in September.

THE SARATOGA MIRACLE

FURTHER INVESTIGATED BY AN EXPRESS REPORTER.

The Facts Already Stated Fully Confirmed —Interviews with Leading Physicians Who Treated Quant—The Most Marvelous Case in the History of Medical Science.

A few weeks ago an article appeared in this paper copied from the Albany (N. Y.) Journal, giving the particulars of one of the most remarkable cures of the nineteenth century. The article was under the heading "A Saratoga County Miracle," and excited such widespread comment that another Albany paper—the Express—detailed a reporter to make a thorough investigation of the statements appearing in the Journal's article. The facts as elicited by the Express Reporter are given in the following article, which appeared in that paper on April 16, and makes one of the most interesting stories ever related:

A few weeks ago there was published in the Albany Evening Journal the story of a most remarkable—indeed, so remarkable as to well justify the term "miraculous"—cure of a severe case of locomotor ataxia, or creeping paralysis; simply by the use of Pink Pills for Pale People, and, in compliance with instructions, an Express reporter has been devoting some time in a critical investigation of the real facts of the case.

The story of the wonderful cure of Charles A. Quant, of Galway, Saratoga County, New York, as first told in "The Journal," has been copied into hundreds if not thousands of other daily and weekly newspapers, and has created such a sensation throughout the entire country that it was deemed a duty due all the people, and especially the thousands of similarly afflicted, that the statements of the case as made in the "The Albany Journal" and copied into so many other newspapers, should, if true, be verified; or, if false, exposed as an imposition upon public credulity.

The result of the Express reporter's investigations authorizes him in saying that the story of Charles A. Quant's cure of locomotor ataxia by the use of Pink Pills for Pale People, a popular remedy prepared and put up by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Morristown, N. Y., and Brockville, Ontario, IS TRUE, and that all its statements are not only justified but verified by the fuller development of the further facts in the case.

Perhaps the readers of the Express are not all of them fully familiar with the details of this miraculous restoration to health of a man who after weeks and months of treatment by the most skillful doctors in two of the best hospitals in the State of New York—the Roosevelt Hospital in New York City and St. Peter's Hospital in Albany—was dismissed from each as incurable and, because the case was deemed incurable, the man was denied admission into several others to which application was made in his behalf. The story as told by Mr. Quant himself and published in the Albany Journal is as follows:

"My name is Charles A. Quant. I am 37 years old. I was born in the village of Galway, and excepting while traveling on business and a little while in Amsterdam, have spent my whole life here. Up to about eight years ago I had never been sick and was then in perfect health. I was fully six feet tall, weighed 180 pounds and was very strong. For twelve years I was traveling salesman for a piano and organ company, and had to do, or at least did do, a great deal of heavy lifting, got my meals very irregularly, and slept in enough 'spare beds' in country houses to freeze any ordinary man to death, or at least give him the rheumatism. About eight years ago I began to feel distress in my stomach, and consulted several doctors about it. They all said it was dyspepsia, and for dyspepsia I was treated by various doctors in different places, and took all the patent medicines I could hear of that claimed to be a cure for dyspepsia. But I continued to grow gradually worse for four years. Then I began to have pain in my back and legs and became conscious that my legs were getting weak and my step unsteady, and then I staggered when I walked. Having received no benefit from the use of patent medicines, and feeling that I was constantly growing worse, I then, upon advice, began the use of electric belts, pads, and all the many different kinds of electric appliances I could hear of, and spent hundreds of dollars for them, but they did me no good. (Here Mr. Quant showed the Journal reporter an electric suit of underwear, for which he paid $124.) In the fall of 1888 the doctors advised a change of climate, so I went to Atlanta, Ga., and acted as agent for the Estey Organ Company. While there I took a thorough electric treatment, but it only seemed to aggravate my disease, and the only relief I could get from the sharp and distressing pains was to take morphine. The pain was so intense at times that it seemed as though I could not stand it, and I almost longed for death as the only certain relief. In September of 1888 my legs gave out entirely and my left eye was drawn to one side, so that I had double sight and was dizzy. My trouble so affected my whole nervous system that I had to give up business. Then I returned to New York and went to the Roosevelt Hospital, where for four months I was treated by specialists and they pronounced my case locomotor ataxia and incurable. After I had been under treatment by Prof. Starr and Dr. Ware for four months, they told me they had done all they could for me. Then I went to the New York Hospital on Fifteenth street, where, upon examination, they said I was incurable and would not take me in. At the Presbyterian Hospital they examined me and told me the same thing. In March, 1890, I was taken to St. Peter's Hospital in Albany, where Prof. H. H. Hun frankly told my wife my case was hopeless; that he could do nothing for me and that she had better take me back home and save my money. But I wanted to make a trial of Prof. Hun's famous skill and I remained under his treatment for nine weeks, but secured no benefit. All this time I had been growing worse. I had become entirely paralyzed from my waist down, and had partly lost control of my hands. The pain was terrible; my legs felt as though they were freezing and my stomach would not retain food, and I fell away to 120 pounds. In the Albany Hospital they put seventeen big burns on my back one day with red-hot irons, and after a few days they put fourteen more burns on, and treated me with electricity, but I got worse rather than better, lost control of my bowels and water, and, upon advice of the doctor, who said there was no hope for me, I was brought home, where it was thought that death would soon come to relieve me of my sufferings. Last September, while in this suffering and helpless condition, a friend of mine in Hamilton, Ont., called my attention to the statement of one John Marshall, whose case had been similar to my own, and who had been cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. In this case Mr. Marshall, who is a prominent member of the Royal Templars of Temperance, had, after four years of constant treatment by the most eminent Canadian physicians, been pronounced incurable, and paid the $1,000 total disability claim allowed by the order in such cases. Some months after Mr. Marshall began a course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking some fifteen boxes was fully restored to health. I thought I would try them, and my wife sent for two boxes of the pills, and I took them according to the directions on the wrapper on each box. For the first few days the cold baths were pretty severe as I was so very weak, but I continued to follow instructions as to taking the pills and the treatment, and even before I had used up the two boxes of the pills I began to feel beneficial results from them. My pains were not so bad. I felt warmer; my head felt better; my food began to relish and agree with me; I could straighten up; the feeling began to come back into my limbs; I began to be able to get about on crutches; my eye came back again as good as ever, and now, after the use of eight boxes of the pills, at a cost of only $4—see!—I can walk with the help of a cane only, walk all about the house and yard, can saw wood, and on pleasant days I walk down town. My stomach trouble is gone; I have gained ten pounds; I feel like a new man, and when the spring opens I expect to be able to renew my organ and piano agency. I cannot speak in too high terms of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, as I know they saved my life after all the doctors had given me up as incurable."

Such is the wonderful story which the Express reporter has succeeded in securing verification of in all its details, from the hospital records where Mr. Quant was treated and from the doctors who had the case in hand and who pronounced him incurable. Let it be remembered that all this hospital treatment was two and three years ago, while his cure, by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, has been effected since last September, 1891. So it is beyond a doubt evident that his recovery is wholly due to the use of these famous pills which have been found to have made such remarkable cures in this and other cases.

Mr. Quant placed in the hands of the reporter his card of admission to Roosevelt Hospital, which is here reproduced in further confirmation of his statements:

To verify Mr. Quant's statement our reporter a few days ago (March 31, 1892) called on Dr. Allen Starr at his office, No. 22 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City. Dr. Starr is house physician of the Roosevelt Hospital, situated corner of Ninth avenue and Fifty-ninth street. In reply to inquiry he said he remembered the case of Mr. Quant very well and treated him some, but that he was chiefly treated and under the more especial care of Dr. Ware. He said he regarded this case as he did all cases of locomotor ataxia as incurable. In order that our reporter might get a copy of the history of the case of Mr. Quant from the hospital record he very courteously gave him a letter of which the following is a copy:

"Dr. M. A. Starr, 22 West Forty-eighth street, office hours, 9 to 12 a. m., New York, March 31, 1892.—Dear Dr. Vought: If you have any record of a locomotor ataxia by name of Quant, who says he came to the clinic three or four years ago, No. 14037, of the O. D. Dept., Roosevelt, sent to me from Ware, will you let the bearer know. If you have no record send him to Roosevelt Hosp. "Yours, STARR."

By means of this letter access to the records was permitted and a transcript of the history of Mr. Quant's case made from them as follows:

"No. 14037. Admitted Sept. 16, 1889. Charles A. Quant, aged 34 years. Born, U. S. Married. Hoboken."

"History of the case: Dyspesia for past four or five years. About fourteen months partial loss of power and numbness in lower extremities. Girdling sensation about abdomen. (Nov. 29, 1889, not improved, external strabismus of left eye and dilatation of the left eye.) Some difficulty in passing water at times; no headache, but some dizziness; alternate diarrhœa and constipation; partial ptosis past two weeks in left eye.

"Ord. B F. Bi pep. and Soda."

These are the marked symptoms of a severe case of locomotor ataxia. "And Dr. Starr said a case with such marked symptoms could not be cured and Quant, who was receiving treatment in the outpatient department, was given up as incurable."

"There never was a case recovered in the world," said Dr. Starr. And then said: "Dr. Ware can tell you more about the case, as Quant was under his more personal treatment. I am surprised," he said, "that the man is alive, as I thought he must be dead long ago."

Our reporter found Dr. Edward Ware at his office, No. 162 West Ninety-third street, New York. He said: "I have very distinct recollections of the Quant case. It was a very pronounced case. I treated him about eight months. This was in the early summer of 1890. I deemed him incurable, and thought him dead before now. Imagine my surprise when I received a letter from him about two weeks ago telling me that he was alive, was getting well and expected soon to be fully recovered."

"What do you think, Doctor, was the cause of his recovery?"

"That is more than I know. Quant says he has been taking some sort of pills and that they have cured him. At all events, I am glad the poor fellow is getting well, for his was a bad case and he was great sufferer."

Dr. Theodore R. Tuttle, of 319 West Eighteenth street, to whom our reporter is indebted for assisting courtesies, said of locomotor ataxia: "I have had several cases of this disease in the course of my practice. I will not say that it is incurable, but I never knew of a case to get well; but I will say it is not deemed curable by any remedies known to the medical profession."

After this successful and confirmatory investigation in New York, our reporter, Saturday, April 2d, 1892, visited St. Peter's Hospital, in Albany, corner of Albany and Ferry streets. He had a courteous reception by Sister Mary Philomena, the Sister Superior of St. Peter's Hospital, and when told the object of his visit, said she remembered the case of poor Mr. Quant very distinctly. Said she: "It was a very distressing case and excited my sympathies much. Poor fellow, he couldn't be cured, and had to go home in a terrible condition of helplessness and suffering." The house physician, on consulting the records of St. Peter's Hospital, said he found only that Charles A. Quant entered the hospital March 14th, 1890, was treated by Dr. Henry Hun, assisted by Dr. Van Derveer, who was then, 1890, at the head of the hospital, and that his case being deemed not possible of cure, he left the hospital and was taken to his home, as he supposed to die.

Such is the full history of this most remarkable case of successful recovery from a heretofore supposed incurable disease, and after all the doctors had given him up, by the simple use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Truly it is an interesting story of a most miraculous cure of a dreadful disease by the simple use of this popular remedy.

A further investigation revealed the fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not a patent medicine in the sense in which that term is usually understood, but are a scientific preparation successfully used in general practice for many years before being offered to the public generally. They contain in a condensed form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood, and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases depending upon vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood and restore the glow of health to pale or sallow cheeks. In the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature.

On further inquiry the writer found that these pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ontario, and Morristown, N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, from either address. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

London's Wine-Vaults.

The wine-vaults of London are not to be seen every day or by every person. I was fortunate enough to secure a "tasting order," and I, in company with one or two others, made a tour of the St. Katherine's and London Dock vaults. I saw over 5,000,000 packages of port and sherry, over 1,000,000 of claret, and 500,000 of spirits. They were in vast tuns, hogsheads, casks, and barrels, and the total amount in storage was 260,000,000 gallons. In fact, there were six and one-half gallons for every man, woman adn child of the population of Great Britain. Some of it had been in store for years. The owners had forgotten about it, and the old and moldy casks had rotted away at their chines and had been several times replaced. One lot of 1,000 gallons of sherry had been in the vaults for nearly fifty years. It was brought from the South of Spain by its owner, who had fallen dead in the vaults. The wine, along with his other property, had passed into chancery, and the litigation, which has continued for nearly half a century, is as far from being ended, apparently, as when it begun. But the wine has been growing old and valuable, and if sold now would probably bring 5 guineas a gallon.

Let me explain that these vaults are simply great cellars under the dock-houses. In area they aggregate some thirty-five acres. They extend under the Thames on one side and well under Tower Hill on the other. They are about sixteen feet from floor to roof, and are by no means regular in form, but reach out in strange passages and alleys in all directions. They are bonded by the Government, and owners can have their property in them as long as they like without paying customs duties. A long, narrow flight of well-worn stone steps that have been in constant use since 1804 opened before our view, and at their foot were dim, twinkling lights that flickered fitfully, as if in a struggle to overcome the fumes of the wines that came up the stone channel like a breeze from a distillery. It was warm, rich with the odor of the wines, and musty and moldy. A sniff of it wasn't half bad, but you remember the fate of the Persian esthete who had his choice of death. "To die amid sweet perfumes," he said. So they chucked him into a hogshead of attar of roses and he expired in great agony. At the bottom of the flight of steps the guide met us, a tall, broad-shouldered ruddy cockney, who handed us each a lard-oil lamp, fastened to a straight stick about eighteen inches long. He began by asking us if any one was a teetotaler. None of us were. "Because," said he, "if you don't take a drop of something on your stomach you'll get screwed because of the smell." He drew a glass of sherry for each one of us out of a big cask near the foot of the steps. It was a heavy, full-bodied wine, with a rich nutty flavor and an aftermath like leather smells. It had been hung in leather skins over one season, having been the last made and too late for the regular wine harvest, but it was good for all that, and "wery mellowin' to the horgans."

Turning then sharply to the left the vaults spread out before us in vast underground acreage. Lights twinkled here and there, moldy men were engaged in moving the packages at some places, and down the long passage under the Thames the polished steel skids for riding a barrel stretched in narrowing perspective, till they joined apparently in one and flashed on under the line of lights above them.—London letter.

Another Long-Felt Want.

Peddler—One moment, madam. I am introducing one of the most wonderful and most useful inventions of the age; sells like wildfire; everybody buys 'em. It's a new patent peddlers' bell.

Lady—A what?

Peddler—Peddler's bell, madam. It is intended to go on the door or portal along with the visitors' bell, servants' bell, etc.

Lady (impatiently)—You peddlers are a perfect nuisance, and you know it. The servants' bell is good enough for any of you.

Queer Quirks in Quito.

It is customary in the town of Quito when a visitor takes off his hat upon entering a room, to beg him to put it on again, and, in the absence of permission, leave is generally requested. This, it is said, arises from apprehension that cold will be taken by remaining uncovered. The same persons upon going out of doors take off their hats to flashes of lightning, no matter whether rain is falling, and when the streets are busy and lightning is abundant a grotesque effect is produced by these salutations, which seems to be regarded as a duty by well-behaved persons and are performed as punctiliously as the homage which is paid to religious processions when they are in sight.

Worth 2,000 Times Its Weight in Gold.

The Sèvres vase given by Louis XVI. to Tippoo Sahib was sold in London in 1876 for the sum equal to $7,295 in American currency. The vase is very thin, urn-shaped and only eight inches high. The gold exchanged as the purchase price of this relic weighed upwards of 2,000 times as much as the vase itself. Talk about something being "worth its weight in gold!"

THE new Democratic city government of Portland, Maine, made an awkward mistake at the outset. They wanted to elect Marshall H. Rich as assistant assessor, but, not being familiar with his name, they elected Marshall N. Rice, a strong Republican, instead, and he proposes to enjoy the greatness thrust upon him.

"BY JOVE!" exclaimed Jack Hardup, with unwonted enthusiasm. "I see that some fellow is talking about introducing a bill into the House making it a misdemeanor to send annoying letters to any one. Very clever idea that. I'll have my tailor locked up for six months, by Jove!"

THIS is essentially an age of advancement and perhaps in no directions have greater advances been made than in medical science. Diseases that until recently were pronounced by the highest medical authority to be incurable are now found to yield readily to the discoveries of modern medical skill. This statement is amply borne out by the article appearing elsewhere in this issue under the heading of "The Saratoga Miracle," and would seem to indicate that one of the most perfect medical preparations of modern times is embodied in the remedy known as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Making Glad the Waste (Waist) Places.

"That's what I call making glad the waist places," said Smithson, as he put his arm around a lady's waist. But Lilly won't care much for this show of affection if Smithson doesn't get rid of that disagreeable catarrh of his. Won't somebody tell him that Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure him.

By its mild, soothing, antiseptic, cleansing and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of Chronic Catarrh in the Head, as thousands can testify. "Cold in the Head" is cured with a few applications. Catarrhal Headache is relieved and cured as if by magic.

In perfect faith, the makers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., offer to pay $500 to any one suffering from Chronic Catarrh in the Head whom they cannot cure.

Now, if the conditions were reversed—if they asked you to pay $500 for a positive cure you might hesitate. Here are reputable men, with years of honorable dealing; thousands of dollars and a great name back of them.

They believe in themselves. Isn't it worth a trial? Isn't any trial preferable to catarrh?

How wretched is the man who has fallen a victim to Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, or diseased Liver, with all the horrible attendants. Look upon the picture. Poor man, being tired of dragging out a miserable existence, he is the picture of despondency; altogether, he is rather a forlorn specimen. Do we pity him? Of course; but at the same time feel assured that in a measure he is to blame for the bad state into which he has fallen. A sure, safe, speedy and easy cure can be found in Simmons Liver Regulator—Nature's own remedy. No mercury or deleterious drugs, not unpleasant to the taste, and always reliable—just such a remedy as you can pin your faith to without a shadow of disappointment. Read the testimonial, don't take our word for it:

"I have been subject to severe spells of Congestion of the Liver, and have been in the habit of taking from 15 to 20 grains of calomel, which generally laid me up for three or four days. Lately I have been taking Simmons Liver Regulator which gave me relief, without any interruption to business." J. HUGG, Middleport, Ohio.

ELECTION NOTES.

It was a wet day for prohibitionists.

There were many mistakes made in voting, especially by stamping the first name on the ticket under the belief that this would be a straight vote. This put Brandon and Trout several votes ahead, as will be seen by the totals, their total being 27 votes higher than the highest of the others, and 45 votes higher than the lowest. Votes so stamped were not thrown out, but only counted for the one man. Some voted by stamping in the big square about the device, and then stamped some name on some other ticket. This was wrong, and mainly this one, that caused 11 in the north, 9 in the middle and 13 in the south precinct to be thrown out. People should have noticed the plain directions we have given for two or three weeks, in the COURIER that to vote a straight ticket, one may stamp the big square about the device, but for a mixed ticket do not stamp the device, but stamp for each person you wish to vote for. Moral: Read the COURIER, and stamp the rooster.

Why should people complain if the town's interests are not properly cared for by the officers elected? Do they take into consideration a man's fitness when they nominate him, or when they vote for or against him at the election? Sometimes, but not always. What good reason, based on the town's interests, could a democrat give for refusing to support Murphy, and yet voting for Raut. Both are bright young men, but can anyone tell in what respect Raut will serve the town better than Murphy would? In what regard is Lockwood superior to Potter, or Hague to Doc Baird, or Kuhlman to Jones, or in what respect would McDowel be a better marshal than Pfefferl, or save more of the taxpayers', or the town's money. And so on through the list, And yet many democrats split their own tickets to vote for men not a whit better for the place, than the one on their own ticket. It was not a vote for better government. It was too often a matter of spite, of jealousy, or to get even for some real or fancied wrong, or else it was a vote to favor some friend, or to repay a kindness—in fact it was voting with any other thought in mind except the good of the town. Let people stop choosing officers in this unreasoning way, or stop complaining of poor management.

A new element that entered into the political contest Monday, was the new military company. When the republicans found that Charley Weaver did not care to run for treasurer, it occurred to them that "Capt." Kuhlman might get some strength out of his military company, and he was put on to fill the vacant place with this end in view. The plan succeeded as far as it could succeed, for of the 22 voters in the company, all but one, voted for Kuhlman, though 8 are democrats. And it is claimed that this one would have voted with the rest, but that his attention had not been called to the matter. The COURIER has favored the organizing of a military company, under the belief that it would be a military company, and not a political machine. Yet the very first step it takes, is to permit itself to be made a political machine, for the election of a republican officer. If this is to be its mission, we advise young democrats to let it severely alone.

That there was wild voting elsewhere besides in Auburn, a glance at the reports from the other towns will prove. Waterloo elects as many democrats as republicans, and gives them better majorities. Butler makes a clean sweep of the democrats over there. Garrett went democratic, except on marshal and voted against water works though the vote against was less than half the vote cast. Mr. Gengler writes that the election was very quiet.

The Garrett Clipper gang, again tried to run our election but failed. It would pay Garrett to have a newspaper of its own, and have it attend to its own business. While putting in its best licks to defeat the democratic ticket in Auburn, its own ticket was partly defeated. But it has not mentioned its own ticket, nor seemed to know there was to be an election in Garrett. Its editorial windjammer worked hard for an hour to get a voter in the Auburn south precinct, to vote against some of the democratic candidates, and succeeded in getting the man so confused that he marked his ticket wrong, and it was among those thrown out. An editor that don't know enough to vote, should be chained up and kept at home.

Butler reports a quiet election and light vote with but few mistakes made. The report of attorney and A. J. Baxter is cute and to the point. "Republican party vs democratic party—judgment for plaintiffs." The vote is given elsewhere.

Potter had nearly as many kinds of opposition as Murphy. Among them was the very unjust and ungentlemanly attack of the Dispatch and Clipper in regard to the ditch. The animus of this noble pair is very plain. The Dispatch assaulted Potter because he was a democrat, and for nothing else, as it knew he could not be blamed for any thing about the ditch. The Clipper hates Potter because he refused to take their disreputable sheet, and so took up the ditch matter with the Dispatch. The elements favored these two worthies, and the night before election, there was a rain, the like of which was never known here, and the drain could not carry off all the water. Immediately a few republicans up that way took the cue. They probably believed that Potter not only built the ditch, but called up the rainstorm, and so worked all day against him. The ditch soon carried off the water, but they failed to give him credit for that. A contrary view was taken by people at Ft. Wayne. A candidate had worked against a ditch, but the flood came, and the voters went back on him.

Mrs. Cy. Boyer has had a relapse and been very low again. Last week she was considered in a critical condition. They have had sickness in the family for many months. Mr. B. is only convalescing from severe illness of some weeks. They surely have the sympathy of friends in their trials.

Those who attended the Morrill Twins entertainment last week Tuesday evening at the Presbyterian church, were badly sold. Some left before the close, and many have signed their names to letters written to be sent on where the twins propose going, to advertise what swindlers they are. The company left in the night.

Friday night of last week, some person or persons, entered Frank Beidler's store, by putting a ladder up against the back of the building, prying open a window up stairs, prying open a trap door, and so making their way into the store below. They took from the safe quite an amount of money, and carried away a quantity of dry goods, silks, boots and shoes, sachels, etc. They had been to Franks' blacksmith shop, broke into it and carried off brace and bits, chisels and other things. A few nights before some sneak thief broke a pane of glass in one of the front windows of Huber's grocery, stole twenty cocoanuts, some oranges and perhaps other things.

Friday evening of last week a reception was held at the M. E. church for the purpose of introducing the new pastor, Rev. Albertson and wife, not to only the members of that church, but the people of the town generally, and giving all an opportunity to welcome the strangers who have come amongst us. It was intended, that some one to represent each of the different churches, should extend a greeting to the new comers, and also the various orders were expected to take a similar part. The program was very well carried out, some felicious speeches were made, and the evening much enjoyed. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and plants in bloom, and very brilliantly lighted.

Mrs. Baily living on West North street is reported very ill, with but meager hopes for recovery.

David McDanel living two miles east of town is very poorly and doubts are entertained of his recovery.

Elias Strauss is in very poor health, and has been for many months. His family and himself deserve the sympathy of our people.

Mother Lydia Hubbell, wife of Jason Hubbell, one among the earliest residents of Butler, and perhaps as well known as any other woman who has ever lived here, died recently in California.

A new addition is being built to the water work buildings, to accommodate new machinery that is being put in. Our town board have neglected to have the streets lighted for a considerable length of time.

J. A. Campbell reports that his business for April was the largest of any one month in the twenty two years of his agency. The amount insured reaching a much greater amount than that of any preceding month.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1862.

As these fragmentary reminiscences year by year approach the present, they come within the residence period of larger numbers of our citizens just as the record of the married, at first limited to a score or more of pioneers who have aged and mostly departed to the better land, has increased to hundreds, many of whom are living and busily engaged in furthering private interest or are active in public life.

Forgotten happenings again grow familiar and sudden remembrance brings back the absent and the dead to revive the sunlight in the home, fill the vacant chair, restore the old business routine and rehabilitate the past.

The obscure Auburn of 1862, knew a history that will never be written and passed through trials from which she has finally emerged as refined metal from the crucible.

The town presented an appearance so all unlike the Auburn of 1892, that it is a pleasure and a pride to follow the course of events through which changes have come.

Newcomers of to-day enter at once upon enjoyment of actual comforts by habits become necessities, which were unattainable luxuries in former times, and both working and professional men in day's wages, fees and salaries, cannot realize the disproportion between labor and fit compensation which characterised that period.

Compare the recorded salaries of teachers, ministers and officers, together with the embarassments of their evironing with those of 1892, and surprise must be blended with admiration, at their patience and constancy.

We are glad to know that the past cannot return, that the Auburn of 1862, is a memory and that as the COURIER and Press in every regard far excel the New Era and Press of that year, in like proportion do material interests of the town preponderate the past.

Yet the people of Auburn, asked no sympathy, and were not despondent. They made the most of their opportunities and looked hopefully forward.

The New Era voicing public sentiment said of the times: "Business wears a pleasing countenance. Merchants, tradesmen and manufacturers of all branches have promise of brisk and heavy trade. Many of our merchants are already preparing for customary eastern visits and a general feeling of confidence prevails with business men of all classes and heavy investments are before our townspeople. The sound of the mechanic's hammer and the hum of machinery in the manufacturies, greet us again. Store houses and ware rooms are being crowded with goods, wares and customers and prosperity and happiness abound in every home in our village."

Joseph Loveland's optimism was confirmed by the reliable testimony of Mr. Ralston who then said: "Never before in the history of our country has the labor of the husbandman been more bountifully rewarded than in the present. DeKalb county is behind no section in regard to crops and will in time be known as the garden of Indiana."

If those who lived in Auburn three decades ago could write thus hopefully what could truthfully be said of to-day? There are those who decry existing conditions and imagine that life was not drawn on such hard lines, that less was required to live, less demanded, and that society was better and purer. It is a great mistake. Old times were good for those who lived in them; but for us, to-day is better. No matter how beautiful the past was, be very sure that could any one of us be suddenly transformed into the midst of it, unless the experiences that lie betwren the then and now could be blotted out of the memory, we should find our joy-bells ringing very faintly.

There were heroine mothers, sisters, wives and daughters and hero fathers at home as well as heroes and patients in the field. It speaks well for Auburn people, that they could be so hopeful with so little material reason; that they so desired better privileges stands to their credit.

Although proposed improvements were discussed, support was not available; people as in the stage coach, could only go jogging along, ever nearing the stir and action of to-day.

Even a part of the meager manufactures was destroyed. On Feb. 18, cries of "fire! fire!" called out the people equipped in part with pails with which to form lines from a convenient water supply, but their efforts were futile.

A fire supposed to have been started by an incendiary had broken out in Bolinger's fanning mill factory, involving its destruction and causing a loss to the owner of $800, with no insurance. It was said then and truly that no town should be without an organized fire company. There was some talk just after the fire, of forming such a company, but no action was taken and matters progressed as they had done.

Religious interests remained stationary, possibly retrograded to some extent in the churches. Rev. O. W Lynch in the Methodist and Rev. E. Wright in the Presbyterian church, zealously and eloquently championed union and freedom, and the greater portion of church people were in hearty and active sympathy with them. Although the Regular Baptist Society had temporarily suspended, its future re-organization was insured by an occasional called meeting of the faithful few members at the residence of their minister, Rev. S. B. Ward.

Very little interest was taken in municipal election at which but seventy votes were polled. Guy Plumb was elected clerk without competition. James J. Latson was chosen town marshal and the board of trustees was composed of Messrs. Ingram, Griswold, Sprott, Hare and Spangler, of whom but the last named survives. Mr. Spangler moved to his farm at Auburn Junction, erected a fine dwelling, and, enjoying the material comforts resulting from an active and well directed life of effort, quietly passes the years away.

Refreshing Retreats.

Summer days are fast approaching and now is the time that excursionists, pleasure seekers and sportsmen should figure out a route for their summer vacation. In doing so, the delightfully cool summer and fishing resorts located along the Wisconsin Central Lines come vividly to view, among which are Fox Lake, Ill., Lake Villa, Ill., Mukwonago, Waukesha, Cedar Lake, Neenah, Waupaca, Fifield, Butternut and Ashland, Wis. Wisconsin has within the last five years become the center of attraction for more pleasure seekers, hunters and fisherman than in any other state in the union, and each visit increases the desire to again see the charming landscapes, breathe the balsam fragrance that is a part of the invigorating atmosphere, wander through the colonnades of stately pines and hook the speckled beauties with a hand-made fly.

For pamphlet containing valuable information, etc., apply to D. W. Janowitz, T. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind., or Jas. C. Pond, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with neuralgia and rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shephard, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O., had five large fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold by Robbins & McCord 3

The New Great South American Kidney Cure.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. This new remedy has been thoroughly tested by learned physicians and found far superior to any medicine yet discovered for quickly relieving all weaknesses, aches, pains and distresses arising from disease of any part of the urinary passages. It is a great relief for the old, middle aged and children, male or female. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. It may be worth to many a hundred times its cost. This is a remedy of great value to ladies, because they are very liable to weakness and pain peculiar to their sex. Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn, Ind. tf

There's a light in the window for me
To enable my eyes to see
That the other fellow's got there ahead,
And I'd better go home to my folding bed;
For the evening is cold for three.

Now Try This.

It will cost you nothing and will surely do you good, if you have a cough, cold, or any trouble with throat, chest or lungs. Trial bottle free at Robbins & McCord's drug store. Large size 50c and $1.00. 3

The republican editor who attempts to reconcile the platforms of New York and Colorado state republican conventions is either a very courageous man or a candidate for the insane asylum.

Admitted the Facts.

Newspaper editors have to be very careful in opening their columns for statements. But aware that the Dr. Miles Medical Co., are responsible, we make room for the following testimonial from R. McDougall, Auburn, Ind., who for two years noticed a stoppage or skipping of the pulse, his left side got so tender he could not lie on it, his heart fluttered, he was alarmed, went to different doctors, found no relief, but one bottle of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure cured him. The elegant book, "New and Startling Facts," free at F. E. Davenport. It tells all about heart and nervous diseases and many wonderful cures. 3

Again the story is started upon its round that Senator Sherman intends retiring from public life. The Sherman family is not of a retiring disposition, and the Senator will hardly be an exception.

DULLAM'S GREAT GERMAN MEDICINE Co:

My daughter has been afflicted with female trouble for over six years and I have paid out over $750 in vain trying to find relief for her. A lady friend advised her to secure a bottle of Dullam's Great German Female Uterine Tonic and she has been completely cured by it. We gave it a fair trial and the results were wonderful. We cannot recommend it too highly to all ladies who are afflicted.

LIFE'S UPS AND DOWNS.

VISITING THE GOOD PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.

An American Leads Palacio's Troops to Victory—A Wisconsin Coal Mine Horror—The Bankers Win Their Tax Case in Indiana—Mrs. Adelia New Dead.

WHO IS HE?

An American Leads Palacio's Troops to Victory.

A special from Caracas, Venezuela, says advices have been received there that an engagement has been fought a few miles south of Los Teques between 400 Government troops and 350 insurgents. The Government troops were escorting a party of engineers. It was the purpose of the insurgents to drive Palacio's troops back into the Los Teques, but after fighting all day Saturday the latter still held their ground. The insurgents left nearly one-third dead and dying on the field when they finally retreated. The Government troops sustained a loss of only twenty-five killed and thirteen wounded. The Government troops in this fight were under command of an American, who was sent away from West Point before his term of study was completed for acts of insubordination. He afterwards appeared in South America as a civil engineer and accepted a place in the Dictator's army on account of the pay and promises of political advancement at the close of the war.

Pursuing the Pelagic Seal.

St. Johns (N. F.) special: The seal fishery winds up remarkably well. It is believed that this year's catch is better than that of last year. The record of the steamer Esquimaux is remarkable, though several others were not very far behind her. This steamer arrived the other day from her second trip, having on board 12,400 old seals and 3,700 young ones, the total weight being 650 tons. On her first trip she brought in 18,000 seals, or an aggregate of 58,000 seals, weighing 1,050 tons for the season. Allowing an average of $42.50 per seal, the earnings of the Esquimaux were $145,000. This is unprecedented.

Mrs. Adelia New Dead.

Mrs. Adelia New, wife of the late Dr. George New, and one of the trustees of the School for Feeble Minded Youth, located at Fort Wayne, Ind., died at her home in Indianpolis of pneumonia. Mrs. New was only sick a few days and her sudden death has cast a gloom over her host of friends. During the entire war of the rebellion she was a nurse and many a soldier's life was saved by her careful nursing. Her age was about 73 years.

Fifty Miners Killed.

Fifty miners lost their lives by an explosion in the Northern Pacific coal mine at Roslyn, Wash. The number of dead cannot be accurately given, but it is believed that all those in the mine at the time of the explosion were killed. The work of rescue was begun promptly and ten mutilated and blackened bodies have been removed from the mine. The explosion is supposed to have been caused by an accumulation of fire damp.

Against James Gordon Bennett.

At White Plains, N. Y., a Sheriff's jury has rendered a verdict of $25,000 in the libel suit brought by Coroner Edward Mitchell against James Gordon Bennett, proprietor of the New York Herald. The plaintiff sued for $50,000. The defendant put in no defense. The suit grew out of articles published in the Herald at the time of the dynamite explosion at Tarrytown a year ago reflecting on Coroner Mitchell.

Longest Journey on Record.

Two Englishmen, Capt. Bower of the Bengal cavalry, and Dr. Thorold of the India medical staff, have made a journey over the longest route on record through Thibet. Ten months were occupied in crossing from the Casmere frontier to the Chinese province of Schuen. Almost the entire journey lay across table lands which were seldom less than 15,000 feet above the level of the sea.

A Map of the Battle Fields.

Representative Lodge of Massachusetts has presented by request, a bill in the House authorizing the Secretary of War to prepare a series of maps illustrative of the locations of the principal battles by land and sea during the late war. The bill appropriates $15,000 for the purpose, the maps being intended for use in the public schools of the country.

Two Boys Burned to Death.

The residence of Samuel Barrows was burned at Tombstone, Ariz., and Barrows' 3-year-old son and 17-year-old brother-in-law were burned to death.

Fighting in Darkest Africa.

Zanzibar special: It is reported that the British forces, commanded by Capt. Nelson, met and defeated a tribe of natives conveying a slave caravan.

A Practical Joker Killed.

James Gilmartin, a longshoreman, was stabbed and killed by an unknown negro in New York, in retaliation for a practical joke played in a Pell street boarding-house.

No Burial Rituals Can Be Read in Catholic Cemeteries.

Cincinnati special: At a recent burial of a member of the Order of Elks, who was a Catholic, a request was made to Archbishop Elder, of the Roman Catholic Church, to allow the reading of the Elks' ritual at the burial service. The Archbishop being absent, Chancellor Moeller wrote to the Secretary of the Elks' Lodge that the reading could not be allowed. Archbishop Elder has returned, and says the letter of the Chancellor was dictated by himself; that the Roman Catholic Church recognizes no religion or religious service but its own, and, therefore, does not permit in any of its cemeteries the reading of any so-called religious ritual or ceremony. Even the ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic is forbidden. There is no possibility of the order of Chancellor Moeller being countermanded by the Archbishop.

BRITISHERS HOT

Because American Vessels Are to Sail Under the Stars and Stripes.

London special: The granting of American registry to the steamships City of New York and City of Paris has aroused an unexpected storm of opposition here which increases with the arrival of reports from the United States that the Inman line will avail itself of the new right. At first the action of Congress was regarded as voluntary and was discussed as a harmless piece of presumption of the United States. The explanation of the significance of the bill by Mr. Ismay of the White Star line, to Sir Michael Hicks-Beach opened British eyes to the situation. The announcement by cable that the Inman people had requested Congress to grant the right in question, and expected to officer and man the two ships with Americans, elicited strong protests from the London dailies. The White Star Line manager apparently has moderated his opinions since his conference with Sir Michael Hicks-Beach and Lord Derby. He spoke as if the condition as to building ships in American yards would render the bill practically inoperative. He doubts that it will be possible to build ocean steamships of the required tonnage in any United States ship yard. If it should be found possible, he says, the great expenses for materials and labor would be likely to deter companies from making the venture. The wages of American seamen were higher than the wages of British seamen, and so it would cost more to run the ships under the provisions of the bill, as well as to build them.

DYNAMITE SCARE.

The City of Caracas Is Badly Frightened Over the Explosion of a Bomb.

CARACAS (Venezuela) special: This city has had another dynamite scare. As on the first occasion nobody has been killed or hurt, but it has created a panic among the inhabitants, especially those who are upholding Palacio and is likely to result seriously in the case of many. The bomb was deposited in a locality which leaves in doubt the person against whom it was directed. In its near vicinity are houses of two Ministers of the President's Cabinet, Senor Marios of the Treasury and Senor Sarria of War.

The impression prevails that Senor Sarria is the man against whom the dynamitard was working. In the performance of his duties as Minister of War he has doubtless incurred the enmity of the relatives of some man who has either been conscripted into the Government service, has been sent into the interior to fight the rebels, or it may be that he is held responsible for the death of some soldiers who had fallen in battle.

This second explosion makes it apparent that the city is confronted with a new danger, and whole families are being removed to other places.

Herr Hammerstein Choses Death to Dishonor.

Berlin special: A great sensation has been caused by the discovery that Herr Hammerstein, the chief of the well known banking house of Hammerstein & Friendlander, had committed suicide. Herr Hammerstein retired apparently in his usual frame of mind, next morning he was found dead. A pistol with a chamber discharged indicated that he had shot himself. So far as revealed he had left no statement as to the motive for suicide. It is known, however, that for some time past the banking house of Hammerstein & Friendlander had been threatened with disaster. It is also known that some of its transactions with the money of clients would form a basis for an accusation of fraud, should bankruptcy supervene, and that would mean a long term in prison for Herr Hammerstein. The banker evidently chose death in preference.

Horrible Treatment of Chinese.

Shanghai newspapers contain accounts of horrible tortures inflicted upon the Chinese accomplices of Mason in his foolish rebellion against the government. The representatives of all the foreign governments have protested against these atrocities. The victims were only hired by Mason and did not realize their crime or punishment. The legs and arms of three of them were broken with bamboo sticks. Paper was burned in their faces until the skin fell off, to make them confess. They were hung up by the thumbs and whipped and allowed to hang until unconscious. Other cruel punishments were visited on them and death resulted in many cases.

Killed in a Mine.

A frightful accident occurred at the Manverse main colliery in Yorkshire, England. A number of miners were at work loosening coal in a remote section of the pit. Suddenly a quantity of coal, about one hundred tons in weight, fell upon them from the roof of the shaft, crushing the life out of several of them and badly injuring others. Three are known to have been killed, and two more were dragged alive from under the coal. The cause of the accident was a lack of proper precautions in furnishing supports as the work progressed.

The Mississippi Five Miles Wide.

Burlington (Ia.) special: The Mississippi River at this point is practically five miles wide, having completely overflown the low lands between this point and the bluffs on the east side. The intervening space is rich farming lands, which are nearly all in seed, and the loss will be considerable. Trains on the St. Louis, Keokuk and Northwestern railroad are compelled to go via Carthage and Quincy on account of the flood at Alexandria, Mo. The river is still rising and a better condition of things is not expected for several days.

After the Hawaiian Islands.

Dr. Scott Smith, resident minister from the Hawaiian Islands in Washington, was seen recently, in regard to the rumored project on foot to annex these islands to the United States. When asked concerning the statement that Chairman Blount, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, was making a canvass of the members in order to ascertain their sentiment on this subject, he stated that nothing definite had been done as yet. He conveyed the impression, however, that steps would probably be taken in that direction.

Dover Depot Burned.

London special: The railway station at Dover was burned almost to the ground. The fire originated in the lamp room and spread rapidly to the oil tanks. The passengers in the waiting room were hurried out by the police and the trains were drawn away from the building. Firemen could do nothing except try to save the Lord Warden Hotel, but a few steps from the station and pier. The general building of the railroad company and the buffet were also completely wiped out, only the wall being left standing. No life was lost.

Declared Insane After [illegible] prisonment.

Dr. Thomas Gallagh[illegible] Irish agitator, who h[illegible] for the past nine years [illegible]nglish prison for his alleged part in an attempt to blow up the House of Commons, has been declared insane. His friends in this country are making an attempt to bring his case, and that of his fellow prisoners convicted for participating in the same attempt, under the notice of the authorities at Washington, with a view to securing their release.

Eaten Alive.

While the 2-year-old son of John Britsch, near New Ross, Ind., was playing with the family dog, the animal suddenly became vicious, knocked the child down and began eating his flesh. All the flesh on one cheek had been devoured, and the blood-thirsty beast was in the act of taking another bite when the mother appeared, having heard the baby's screams. The cheek bone of the little one was laid bare, and one eye was nearly destroyed. There is little hope of the child's recovery.

Conductors' Robbing Scheme.

Newburg (N. Y.) special: For some years past the West Shore road has been systematically robbed by means of a conspiracy between local ticket scalpers and the conductors. Pinkerton men were set to work, and the other day Thomas Gilooley and Mike Horton, two prominent scalpers were arrested. They had tickets innumerable on their persons. They waived examination and gave bail. The detectives say nearly every conductor on the line has been implicated.

Killed in a Cyclone Cellar.

William Wilkins and wife and children, colored, thinking a storm was brewing, retired into a cyclone cellar at their residence in the south-west part of Anthony, Kan. They went to sleep and the heavy rain so undermined the house that the roof fell on the sleeping people. Wilkins succeeded in getting out, and aroused the neighbors, who assisted him in rescuing the wife alive. The five children, ranging from six months to fourteen years, were taken out dead.

Oil for Fuel.

It is reported that a wealthy syndicate, composed of New York, Chicago and Indianapolis capitalists, will secure oil territory in Jay County, Indiana, and build pipe lines to carry oil to be used by mills in those cities as fuel. The Chicago line will pass through Logansport and supply that city. The project is encouraged by the manufacturers, and the fuel would only cost one-half what coal does.

Praying for Pensions.

At a meeting of Confederate veterans in New Orleans notice was given that they will insist upon the passage by the Legislature of a pension law giving all Confederate veterans incapacitated in supporting themselves a pension of from $6 to $12 a month. The demand if granted, which it probably will be, will cost the State from $50,000 to $100,000 per annum.

Quite a Fire at Indianapolis.

Fire destroyed the Williams & Adams Veneer Works in the Northwestern part of Indianapolis. The fire spread rapidly from house to house till the residences of E. W. Hathaway, William Schaub, Ben McMahon and George Member were destroyed, and a number of smaller structures were wrecked or badly damaged.

The Levee Breaks.

The levee at Cook's Mill, Arkansas, near Greenville, Miss., gave way. The crevasse is 400 feet wide with the water rushing through at a depth of six feet. Thousands of acres of planted land in Arkansas and Louisiana will be destroyed. The loss will be appalling.

Canadian Women Will Vote.

Eighteen thousand women have memorialized the Dominion Parliament to be enabled to vote for members of that body. Prime Minister Abbott has informed Mrs. Mary McDonnell of Toronto, the women's representative, that their request will be granted.

Indiana Republicans.

There was some talk of changing the date of the Indiana Republican State Convention to be held in Fort Wayne, but after careful consideration it has been decided to hold it upon the date first decided upon, June 28.

Destroyed Twenty Buildings.

At Waterloo, Can., a fire, originating from a spark from a locomotive, destroyed twenty buildings in the upper end of town. The loss is estimated at between $30,000 and $40,000.

A Village Utterly Destroyed.

The village of Swlowitz, in Silecia, consisting of some 7,500 houses, has been utterly destroyed by fire and the loss of life and property is very great.

Will Represent France.

Victor Krauth, a prominent member of the Chamber of Deputies, has been appointed Commissioner General for France to the World's Fair.

Leading Citizen Killed.

Preston Miller, a leading citizen of Nashville, Holmes County, Ohio, was struck by an east-bound passenger train, and instantly killed.

His Neck Broken.

Death of a Prominent Minister.

DISASTROUS FLOODS.

MANY ILLINOIS TOWNS IN UTTER DARKNESS.

Vast Damage to Manufacturing and Agricultural Interests—Pitiable Plight of Alexandria, Missouri—It Will be Weeks Before the Damage Can Be Repaired.

A Second Deluge.

Seas of water are over and in the five unfortunate Illinois cities, Ottawa, Marseilles, Peru, La Salle and Utica. The Illinois River rose steadily for twenty-four hours, commencing Friday, and the cities are in total darkness, the result of the flooding of the electric light and gas plants. Boats were used for communication, and their twinkling lights glistening over the unbroken expanse of water add to the appearance of ruin which is all around them.

Despite all efforts, the manufacturing district was totally covered by water. As the waters rose building after building would close down, and the employes leave to await the subsiding of the flood. Ottawa will be helpless for a week at least.

Marseilles, La Salle and Peru are in an even more desperate condition. At Marseilles the river, steadily rising, is more and more dreaded as the levees weaken. There is little hope they will stand much longer and every one in the district threatened has removed all property to high ground. At La Salle the situation is even more desperate, the water having advanced from two to three feet all around the city and the manufactories, the water works, street railway, and electric light plants still being under water. The same condition is present at Peru and in both cities all business is practically suspended. At Utica the waters have encroached still further upon the lower end of the village from the river and the outlets east and west are blocked by water. Ottawa, Marseilles, La Salle, and Peru are without either electric light or gas, and are in total darkness. The waters still cover Ottawa's parks and her street railway is useless.

The thousands of acres of rich tillable lands lying in the bottoms south of Warsaw, Ill., and reclaimed by a system of levees forty miles long are threatened with inundation. The rains have caused a heavy rise in the Mississippi, and the river now stands at eighteen feet and seven-tenths above low water mark, with the tendency upward. A rise of five feet within twenty-four hours was unprecedented.

At Lacon the Illinois River is higher than it has been for a quarter of a century. The long-continued rains have swept out nearly all the small bridges in the country. Travel between Lacon and Sparland is suspended except by small boats, the bridge across the Illinois being covered with water and liable to be carried away. The track of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad is badly damaged between Peoria and Bureau and all trains stopped. The bottom lands are all under water and no corn will be raised on thousands of acres.

The heaviest rains for the same length of time ever known fell at Hennepin. Three and one-half inches of water fell Sunday night, one and three-quarters inches Monday night, two and one-half inches Wednesday night, a total in the three nights of seven and three-quarters inches. The Illinois River is the highest it has been since 1849, rising at the rate of two inches an hour. Bottom lands are all submerged and great damage has been done to bridges and fences. No mail has arrived for two days.

At Rock Island there were no trains from the east on the Rock Island Road for seventy-two hours in consequence of the washouts in the vicinity of Bureau. It is the longest period of suspension of traffic in the history of the road.

Around Bushnell the roads are impassable and streams are away out of their banks. Crooked creek is a mile wide, and Spoon river is higher than it has been for years. Trains on the Toledo, Peoria and Western could not run, as a half-mile of track was washed out. Passengers were transferred each way. The river is rising rapidly and great loses of property are reported up and down it. Business is suffering.

ALEXANDRIA IS INUNDATED.

The Des Moines River Breaks the Levees and Sweeps Through the Town.

Alexandria, Mo., is under water. The levees which protected the town ordinarily from the waters of the Des Moines River succumbed on Thursday night, and as a result the town is a lake, dotted here and there by houses in which the water is standing from two to six feet deep. The disaster was anticipated. All the prior day the Des Moines was booming, the result of heavy rains along its course through Iowa. The advices from above showed that it would reach high-water mark. Those residents who had upper stories to their buildings moved their household goods there, and extended the courtesies of storage to those not similarly favored. When the water broke it found tenantless floors over which to splash.

The town was a Venice. All communication was by boat. The waters of the Des Moines leave that river above town, and, flowing through Alexandria, join the Mississippi below. It will be impossible to transact any business whatever until the floods go down and the levees can be repaired. The tracks of the St. Louis, Keokuk and Northwestern and the Keokuk and Northwestern have been washed out, and traffic is at a standstill.

The Grant Monument.

NOW THAT New York has got a "corner" on the Grant monument, will she please push the enterprise?—St. Paul Globe.

A BEGINNING was made yesterday on the proposed Grant monument in New York. At last! When will it be finished?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE corner-stone of the New York Grant monument will be laid to-day. It is not improbable that some further steps in the enterprise will be taken before the present century ends.—Kansas City Journal.

ANOTHER spasm of Grant monument enthusiasm has attacked New York, the newspapers are printing columns about it and it is confidently expected that no less than $2.83 will be added to the funds already in hand before the attack passes off.—Detroit Tribune.

An Affair of "Honor."

HONOR that is satisfied with a wounded coat-tail might just as well pocket the insult.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A PAINFUL rumor has gone forth that Mr. Fox was not in his coat when it was perforated by Mr. Borrowe's bullet.—Kansas City Star.

BORROWE shot Fox in the coat-tail and honor is satisfied. It does not take much to satisfy the honor of some people.—Pittsburg Times.

IN the Fox-Borrowe duel Fox received a bullet in the coat-tails and "honah" was satisfied. The "code," in its own defense, ought to require that the principals should jump off of a beam with ropes tied to the beam and fastened around their necks, and the fellow whose rope broke should be considered vindicated—the other fellow to hang. The penalty for seconds who provided ropes that broke should be life imprisonment.—Minneapolis Journal.

THE citizens of Rushville met in mass convention to take steps to retain and rebuild the factories of Jones, Pearce & Co., and of Foutz and Moffitt that were destroyed by fire the other night. Melodian Hall was filled until many stood up, and the money and means will forthwith be provided to rebuild the factories named. Plans for the locating of other factories will be matured, and the work of town improvement be begun in earnest.

THOMAS HARNER, a farmer was suddenly killed at Spartanburg, four miles east of Lynn, while on his way home from the G. A. R. meeting. He was in a cart, driving a very gentle farm-horse. At the western suburb he met a gang of wandering Turks leading a bear, at which his steed became frighened. Mr. Harner was thrown from the cart, and the lines being entangled in some way about his limb, he was dragged several rods by the frightened animal.

THE family of Samuel Munsou of Smithland, went to a neighbor's, leaving at home the 3-year-old girl, Etta, a sister of 6, and a little son of Dr. Freese. In some manner the children got hold of an old double-barreled shot-gun which was accidentally discharged, the contents of both barrels lodging in the back of little Etta, killing her and almost tearing her to pieces. How the accident occurred the other children are unable to explain.

ONE month ago David Wright sold his farm in Iowa, and brought his wife to Wingate to visit relatives until he should re-locate. He left, and two weeks ago his wife was taken ill. No person could find the whereabouts of Mr. Wright, as he was constantly moving, and telegrams failed to reach him. His wife died, and the funeral was about to take place. Just before the services commenced he arrived in town, and went up to the house, intending to surprise his wife. He walked in, and in a jolly manner asked where was his wife. When informed of the circumstances he swooned away.

SOME time ago the County Commissioners of Bartholomew County decided to build an orphan's home, and advertised for sealed proposals for land on which to erect the same. Ten or more proposals were received, and the prices asked ranged from $600 to $8,000. When the last one was opened and read, Mr. R. Thomas of the cerealine mills, came forward and made a proposition to donate the required amount of land if he would be permitted to name the home when it was completed. The Commissioners at once accepted the proposition. The site is in a suburb known as East Columbus and cost $2,000. The home will be named for Mrs. Thomas, deceased, whose every act through life was to aid the poor and distressed.

PATROLMAN FOX, Terre Haute, saw a man in a back yard, and, thinking he was a burglar, started to make the arrest. The man was Alsley Bixby and subject to fits. He had one just as the officer grabbed him, and Fox beat the poor fellow over the head with his club. Fox will be released from the force.

THE Indiana Oolitic Limestone Association, composed of a number of companies, have voted to furnish, free of charge, all the rough stone, two finely carved doors, three pairs of steps of blue stone, and a very elaborately carved mantel of buff and blue limestone for the Indiana building at the World's Fair.

THE infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Patterson of Vincennes, born three weeks ago, has five fingers and one thumb on each hand. The extra fingers are outside the little finger. To all appearances the supernumeraries are perfect, but they seem to be connected with the hand by flesh only and do not have any joint.

WILLIE ANDERSON, aged 17, son of the late Rev. J. H. Anderson of Newport, was accidentally shot by Ote Boren, a playmate. The boys were playing with a revolver, and Ote Boren, not knowing it was loaded, picked it up and snapped it. The ball entered Willie Anderson's right breast, penetrating the lung. It is thought he cannot recover.

THE NATIONAL SOLONS.

SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Our National Lawmakers and What They Are Doing for the Good of the Country—Various Measures Proposed, Discussed, and Acted Upon.

Doings of Congress.

In the Senate, the 3d, Mr. Morgan called up the message on the subject of an international conference as to silver coinage. Mr. Kyle then proceeded to address the Senate in favor of the free coinage of silver. At the close of his speech the message was again laid on the table, Mr. Morgan giving notice that he desired to speak upon it. The conference report on the exclusion bill was then laid before the Senate and agreed to. The House bill placing binding twine on the free list was laid before the Senate and referred to the Finance Committee. But little routine business was done in the House in the morning, and shortly after the reading of the journal the House went into committee of the whole, with Mr. Oates, of Alabama, in the chair, on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. Mr. Blount, of Georgia, in charge of the bill, moved to strike out the appropriation of $65,000 to continue the preliminary survey for an intercontinental railway; agreed to. Mr. Hooker, of Mississippi, demanded a separate vote on the amendment striking out the $65,000 appropriation for the Intercontinental Railway Commission. It was agreed to. The bill then passed. The Senate amendments to the army appropriation bill were non-concurred in, and a conference was ordered.

On the 4th, Senate bill to convey to the State of Kansas a portion of the Fort Hayes military reservation (about 8,200 acres) for homes for old soldiers and their families, and to open the rest of the reservation to homestead settlement was amended to make the whole reservation open only to soldiers, and passed. The following bills were passed: Creating two additional land districts in the State of Montana; House bill to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Osage River between Warsaw and the mouth of Turkey Creek, Mo. Senate bill to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Red River of the North at Quincy, N. D. House bill for the disposition and sale of the lands of the Klamath River Indian Reservation, California. The House passed its time considering the Chinese, and river and harbor appropriation bills.

The House spent the 5th discussing the river and harbor appropriation bill. A letter was also received from the Postmaster General, urging the extension of the free delivery experiments to villages and farming districts. It was accompanied by a batch of 472 newspaper opinions, taken from 326 different papers, all in favor of the proposed rural free delivery extension and eight against it, all that could be found. These have been sent in from all the States and Territories except Alaska, Indian Territory, New Mexico, and North Carolina. Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, who has reported from the Senate committee an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill, appropriating $200,000 to continue the Postmaster General's free delivery experiments, said that he had every reason to believe that so far as the Senate was concerned, at least, the amendment would be adopted. The Canadian Pacific Railway has sent an agent here to ascertain whether the administration is in earnest in the matter of retaliation as to the canal tolls.

After disposing of some business of no general interest, the Senate, on the 6th, took up the resolution heretofore offered by Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, for payment to the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations for their interests in the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Reservation (about $3,000,000) as the unfinished business, and Mr. Dawes, Chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, addressed the Senate in advocacy of the resolution, but without finishing his address. Then Mr. Gorman offered resolutions, which were agreed to, expressing regret at the death, in February, 1891, of the late Senator Wilson of Maryland, and suspending the business of the Senate to enable his associates to pay proper tribute of regard to his character and distinguished public services. There was a large attendance of members in the House. The first business in order was the Sibley bill, but the House refused to consider it and went into committee of the whole (Mr. Hatch of Missouri in the chair) on the river and harbor bill.

On the 7th the House, after the transaction of routine business, went into committee of the whole (Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, in the chair) on the river and harbor bill. The appropriation for the improvement of the Missouri River between the foot of the great falls in Montana and Sioux City, Iowa, was increased from $70,000 to $100,000. An amendment was adopted appropriating $10,000 for improving the Colorado River by the construction of a levee on the Gila River near its junction with the Colorado. The committee then rose and reported the bill to the House. Mr. Richardson, of Tennessee, moved to lay the bill on the table. This motion was rejected—the opponents of the bill not being able to muster sufficient force to order the yeas and nays. The amendments were agreed to in gross and the House adjourned.

Cincinnati Girls.

A 19-YEAR-OLD girl of Cincinnati placed a chair over a hole in the sidewalk opposite her father's house, where Western Union workmen were about to put a telegraph pole. She sat on the chair until her father obtained an injunction. This is the first occasion on record when Jay Gould was sat down on by a young lady.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

CINCINNATI young ladies are fast attaining a reputation for steadfastness which will make them envied of their sisters. Miss May Grief balked the purpose of a gang of telegraph-pole raisers, who had dug a hole in front of her father's residence, by placing a chair over it. She occupied the chair while her father hustled around and got out an injunction.—Grand Rapids Herald.

THERE were a good many people smiling at Grief in Cincinnati a few days ago. Miss Mary Grief, a pretty girl of 19, placed a chair over a post-hole made by Western Union workmen opposite her father's home, and deliberately and firmly sat down and held the chair in place while her father obtained an injunction against putting a telegraph pole where he did not want it.—Des Moines News.

CHAPTER XII.

"Mr. Beverly's down stairs, and he wants to see you. Mercy, look what you have done."

"No; your fault, Jeannette. You spoke so suddenly."

"Well, who thought you was going to jump up in that style. You might have killed the kitten, besides putting a grease spot on the carpet, and breaking the saucer."

Yes, I know; but I didn't, you see. Which one is it?"

"It belongs to the best set, and there ain't but four——"

"Oh, I don't mean the saucer. I'm talking about the man. Is it——"

"It's Mr. Beverly. The Mr. Beverly, if that's what you mean. Don't fly up again now, and I hope you'll soon be going down too, or he'll wear out the carpet with his walking. He don't seem able to keep still."

"Angry," thought Mary, dashing some cold water on her cheeks. "I wonder if I had not better change this dress. I have made it so wet."

This change or costume was a longer process than she had bargained for. So many wrong hooks got into so many wrong eyes, that both time and patience were required to set them right, and after the task was finally accomplished her face was so red and so hot as to necessitate another application of cold water.

"I hope he is angry," she said under her breath, as she reached the lower hall and heard the rapid walking that Jeannette had rather deprecated. "If he is angry he may say something which I can answer back, and then I may get rid of this dishrag sort of feeling."

"Good morning," she added aloud, though in a slightly unsteady voice, as she came to a sharp standstill in the doorway. "Have you seen grandpa?"

"Yes. But I did not come to see him. I came to see you. Will you come in, please, and sit down?"

Thus invited, Mary took possession of a chair near the door, and Jack retained his standing position in the center of the room.

"I received your grandfather's letter," he continued after a second, during which her face had turned various colors under his glance, "and your message—acknowledgment, rather. Have you nothing to add to it, Mary?"

The tone, more than the words, gave Mary such a spasm of contrition that she cried quite vehemently.

"I do want you to forgive me, if you only can."

"I believe I can," he returned in a tender voice, "though you have been so cruelly hard upon me. How could you think me such a villain, Mary?"

"Don't look at me in that way!" she exclaimed, trying to cover her face from his sight. "I can never, never be sorry enough. I know I've been hateful, and jealous, and sus——"

"No more adjectives, please. I will simply add, for my own gratification, that you have been a very proud girl, who would not give poor Jack a chance to vindicate himself. That comes with good grace from me, but you must not call yourself names. I cannot allow it. You are too precious to me."

Here Jack found his face so near hers that he thought it expedient to give some extra proof of his assertion.

"If you care to be precious to me," he added, after this slight interruption.

"I think you are a very generous man," was Mary's only answer.

"Am I? I don't know that I deserve very great credit. My generosity is wholly selfish. But, such as it is, I'm waiting for you to reward it. I feel that I have been in the lowest depths for the last two or three days, and am only beginning to enter heaven. Repeat the promise you made before, Mary. Darling, say you will be my wife."

"Oh, Jack," she cried, with considerable protest, "you have such a—way."

"I can't help it," he returned. "I must show you how dearly I love you. You have not answered my question, either. Will you——"

"You know I will," was her highly convincing reply, as her face dropped out of sight on his shoulder.

"It is all I wish," he responded, happily content. "What a happy man you have made me. And yet," he added, with much reproach, "you would have allowed me to mope in misery, rather than say, 'Jack, I want you.' What a proud, cruel girl. I have had to make all the advances."

"And I am very glad you have," replied Mary, frankly. "You could do it, and I couldn't. How did I know you cared any longer? I thought you might not; and suppose I had said, 'Jack, I want you,' and you didn't want me."

Mary sighed over the bare suggestion of this prospect.

"Impossible possibility," rejoined Jack, "if the remark be not paradoxical. I think I must punish you for even entertaining it. Though I don't half believe you did. You really could not in conscience, you know."

"I won't think so any more," she promised by way of reparation. "I intend to improve very much. You don't know how good I am going to be."

"Don't I," he whispered very lovingly. "My own darling, I don't care to know. I am satisfied with you as you are. The thorns only make my rose more sweet."

"May I come in?" asked a quiet voice at the door.

"You don't believe him, do you?" cried Mary, leaving Jack rather precipitately, and placing her hand half shyly in her grandfather's. "You can guess a great many things, can't you? I suppose you knew he was here."

"Yes, my dearest," was the old gentleman's reply, as he placed his arm around her and looked with kindly eyes upon her happy, shining face. "I saw him first. But I will say that he only gave me time to assure him that, though he is not the son of my old friend, he has nevertheless won a place in my heart which no one can take from him."

"A most encouraging assurance," put in Jack. "It leads me to hope that you may the more readily receive me as a grandson. I have decidedly set my heart on that relationship, and Mary can not make up her mind to do without me."

"I always said he had assurance," whispered Mary, rubbing her cheek against her grandfather's sleeve.

The old gentleman smiled upon her with inexpressible affection. Then, giving his hand to Jack, he said very earnestly:

"Mary's face tells its own story. You are a most fortunate young man. She is worth her weight in gold."

"A jewel without price," added Jack, emphatically.

"If you will excuse me, grandpa, I think I had better be going. It is rather embarrassing."

"No, no, Mary. Stay, my dear. We have reached the climax, I am sure. This is the old story repeated. We old men guard and love our children for years, only to have them leave us at last for the first likely young man who comes along."

"Oh, grandpa!" cried Mary, throwing her arms about his neck, "how can you make such a remark? Before him, too! You know there isn't any young man I would leave you for. I hope he understands that."

"He does," assured Jack, with undisturbed gravity, "though he would prefer a more complimentary designation of himself."

CHAPTER XIII.

"I had a letter from my namesake this morning."

"Did you?" asked Mary. "What did he have to say for himself?"

"Oh, ever so much. He is groaning over the prospect of an early return to New York, which reminds me that I must be jogging, too. He also suggests the propriety of a double wedding at an early date, and advises that the two Jacks decide upon some plan of action, to prevent all mistakes on the part of the world in general, or of their respective wives in particular."

"I heartily indorse the proposition and agree with him that in this age of protection there should be protection for Jacks, as well as for other industries, articles, or individuals."

"Didn't you send that man here, Jack?"

"What man?"

"That Mr. Beverly."

"No, ma'am. He came of his own free will."

"But you knew he was coming, and you suspected I had heard something, and you rather hoped his explanation would make things straight."

"To each and every one of those questions I answer yes."

"Well, and what did you expect I would do?"

Jack laughed heartily at the question so earnestly put.

"Really," he responded, stroking his mustache, "I wouldn't risk expecting with such an extraordinary young lady, but I am satisfied with what you did do."

"I did nothing. Please remember that. You did everything."

"All right; I'll bear the responsibility. Now, I want to do something else. I have something I got in New York the other day. I took the chance of its fitting. It will be a tangible proof that I am about to take a life interest in you. Hold out your hand, sweetheart." As he spoke he drew a ring from his pocket and held it between his forefinger and thumb.

"Now, before we put it on," he said, "I wish it to be understood that I am not engaged to any more beautiful or more brilliant young lady, and further——"

"Jack, if you insist upon recalling things I shall grow angry, and then you will not be engaged even to me."

"Even to you! Why make yourself so insignificant. I foresee we must hasten the wedding, or that lamentable prospect may come to pass.

"However, we'll keep to the matter in hand, being this ring, and my little observation made with the sole view of satisfying your very active mind. That point being attained, we'll proceed with the ceremony."

Taking the hand, which she half reluctantly held towards him, he kissed the ring and slipped it upon her finger.

"This for the present, my darling," he added, with tender earnestness. "In a little while I shall place the seal of our union there." Then, folding her in his arms, he continued, very lovingly: "Oh, Mary, can you guess how dear you are to me?"

"I think I can," she answered, resting her face upon his shoulder, "because I know how dear you are to me. Is that a thought I shouldn't express?"

"No, indeed. That is a thought you should express," returned happy Jack, kissing her fondly. "It completes my happiness, for it assures me that nothing stands between us. That you are all mine

"Until the sun grows cold
And the stars are old
And the leaves of the Judgment Book unfold."

[THE END.]

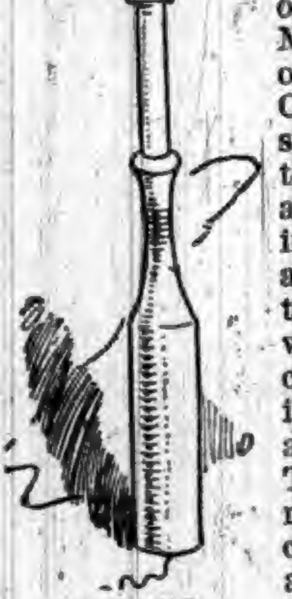
THE case of Dr. Palmer, recently sentenced to the penitentiary from Racine, Wis., for petty burglaries, is a sad one. In the prime of life, of fine family, highly educated, well up in his profession and honored in politics, he blasted his life in a manner that he, of all men, should have avoided. He was an opium fiend, and under the influence of that drug lost all sense of moral responsibility. Inquiry develops the fact that the number of physicians who yield to the seduction of some demoralizing drug is incredibly large. Whether this is the result of familiarity with the pernicious narcotics through dispensing them to patients, or comes from taking them at first on account of overwork and exhaustion, does not affect the fact. Invalids to whom has been administered opium, morphine, cocaine or valerian, as required by their maladies, have some excuse for yielding to undue indulgence, but it does seem that physicians, who know the nature of these drugs, would avoid the terrible consequences of becoming slaves to them. Every little while there appears in the press the story of some brilliant physician who has gone from eminence to the asylum or the gutter because a victim to some enticing drug. What tragedies may have resulted while doctors have been practically under such baneful influence can never be known, for they bury their mistakes. But one who will so far lose his self-control as to break into a corner grocery store to steal a few pennies, for which he had no earthly need, as did Dr. Palmer, is scarcely such a physician as one would want when hovering between life and death. Some conservative practitioners have raised the question as to whether opium, morphine, and the quicker poisons, arsenic and strychnine, are not administered too frequently and without proper regard to possible consequences. Certain it is that the number of those who have an inordinate craving for stimulating or soothing drugs is on the increase, as are those who suffer shattered nerves, unbalanced minds, or death, in consequence.

THE first test of love is its willingness to suffer without complaint.

WHIPPED WITH LIVE WIRES.

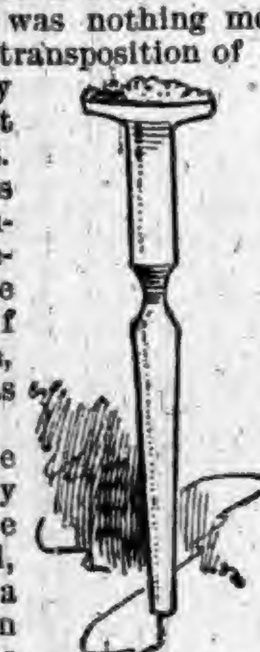
Electricity Employed to Torture Little Children in a New Jersey "Home."

Electricity as a mode of punishing refractory children is the latest method adopted in a New Jersey reform school. The institution is the Mewark City Home, located at the foot of the Orange Mountains in Verona, N. J., and to C. M. Harrison, the superintendent of the home, is due any credit for the invention. There are 300 children in the home, many of whom have been committed to the institution by Newark police justices. They are said to manifest a supreme contempt for bread and water and the rod, and so the superintendent and Dr. Whiteborne, the official physician, presumably with the idea of making the home more pleasant and profitable for its little guests, laid their heads together and the result was something which produced a deep impression not only upon the minds of the children but upon the public as well.



THE CAT.

This invention was nothing more nor less than the transposition of an electric battery into an instrument of punishment. The usual handles used in the instrument have been removed and in the place of one of them a wire brush, two inches long has been placed. The place of the other is taken by an ordinary piece of wood, rounded, about two and a half inches in length. On the end of it is a flat piece of metal covered with a thin sponge.



FOR THE BASE OF THE BRAIN

When one of the children has committed a grievous infraction of the discipline of the school he is quietly taken into a room where there is no one but himself, the superintendent and the doctor. The sponge-covered electrode is immersed in water and applied to the base of the culprit's skull. The other handle or brush is held in close proximity to the child, and when the current is turned on it is applied to his face, neck or arms.

The moment the brush touches the child the electric circuit is closed and a severe shock sustained. Superintendent Harrison says the process works to the entire satisfaction of every one with the possible exception of the child. The case is being investigated.

Possessed the Art of Coddling.

It is not true that women do not realize and appreciate the attractive qualities that other women have for men. Occasionally, however, they do not. There is a woman now of wide reputation before whom men fall in swaths. Her conquests have been signal, conclusive. The secret of this woman's charm other women have in vain tried to discover. A man who has himself been prostrate before this all-conquering lady was asked wherein lay this lady's power. His brief answer was, "Coddling." This he went on to explain. "If a man has a weakness, a secret grievance, her first step is to discover it. He is led to talk about it, and, alas, it is usually a relief to do so. This she humors as a mother does a sick child. It may be a heart affair, a financial matter, dyspepsia, or rheumatism. What it is is immacerial. When you see their two heads bowed together you perhaps think that they are whispering tender nothings. Not at all. He may be only telling her about a last night's toothache, and the tears are standing in her brown eyes as she listens to his tale of woe. No man is able to withstand this all-penetrating sympathy. Of course, in time, he is apt to learn that it is kept on tap for the beguilement of all who come that way."—New York Sun.

Hard at the Bottom.

Mrs. Power O'Donoghue, in her "Ladies on Horseback," quotes a letter which appeared in a certain journal, containing the following remark about her: "There are few men in Ireland—if one—worth being called such who would not willingly lay down their own lives rather than imperil the safety of one so universally beloved." Whatever the men would do, a boy in Ireland imperilled her safety with less hesitation. The hounds ran over a bog, and he called out to her to "go on" as it was "hard at the bottom." She had not gone far when her horse "got stuck." As her "struggling steed was momentarily sinking lower," she shouted to the boy in tones of bitter remonstrance:

"So it is; but you're not half way to the bottom yet," replied the boy.

Outlandish Names.

"It is astonishing," says a Maine man, "how our native-born Americans will inflict upon their helpless infants the burden of carrying through life the most outlandish and sentimental names. The following are a few of those that have appeared in Maine papers the past few months. Among masculine proper names of people whose last names are unmistakably American we have Ithiel, Shadrach, Amarath, Aratur, Arad, Amaziah, Azov, Ishmael, Zeri, Zuinglius, Zephaniah, Zera, Ithma, Shubael, Bliss, Love, Freelove Dallas, Vernum, Nahum and Dummer. Among feminine proper names are; Orilla, Euzilia, Statira, Azuba, Zoa, Manna, Filena and Raspberry. Some American surnames in Maine are peculiar. For instance: Coolbroth, Youngbaby, Lovely, Law, Lock, Sensabough, Comforth, Suckforth, Skeetep, Segar, etc.

How to Tell a Good Horse.

"I never ask about a horse's traits," said a horse buyer, the other day. "All I want is a good square look in the face. Once in a hundred times I may mistake the head, but not oftener than that, I believe."

It doesn't require an expert to read horses' faces, either. A person who has never handled a horse can saunter down Broadway any afternoon and point out the good, docile family carriage horse, the biting horse, the treacherous animal, the one likely to kick or run at any moment, or the proud, high-spirited horse that may be dangerous, and yet not vicious in the least.

The kicking horse can nearly always be singled out by the vicious gleam in his eye, which stamps him a born kicker. Of all horses, though, the miserable-looking horse attracts most attention. This is the horse persecuted by the check-rein. Like men and women who wear shoes too small, he shows the outward evidence of misery. Many good-natured horses, horsemen say, have been made fretful and vicious by being enslaved by the infamous and cruel check-rein. There are horses broken down by long and continuous service for man, which show sad facial expression.

A Plant Growing from a Caterpillar.

The curious fungus which is sometimes taken for an insect is a fungus that roots itself in a caterpillar and grows from it, feeding on the body of the insect. Of course in time the insect dies, and the fungus then perishes as soon as it has exhausted the nutriment in the body of the caterpillar. The plant is of the same nature as a mushroom, and when it matures it produces spores by which new plants are propagated in the same way, attaching themselves to any insect that comes in contact with them in the soil. These curious plants are used as medicine by the natives of some parts of Asia, where they are found quite abundantly. The plant, when dug out of the ground, has the exhausted and dried body of the insect attached to it in the manner of a root, but it is easily distinguished by its shape. The insect is filled with the substance of the fungus and appears as a part of the plant. A variety of beetle that is found in North America is attacked by the same kind of fungus; others are in Central America, and others in New Zealand. In the last-mentioned country the fungus is very large and has all the appearance of a mushroom which is eaten as food by the natives.

Pretty Bugs.

There are many mysterious things about beetles. Those of Brazil are famed for their brilliant metallic hues, yet no one has been able to find out what makes these colors. Some are of gold, others of silver, yet others of blue enamel seemingly, and so on through an endless variety of tints. One variety is called the "diamond beetle" because it is covered with minute points which reflect the light. Their use for jewelry is familiar. They are employed for trimming dresses, and sometimes a paticularly fine one is kept alive and allowed to wander over the corsage of the wearer, attached by a slender chain.

Monkeys Do Talk.

Prof. Garner in the Forum says that his researches leave him no doubt at all that monkeys do really talk. The range of their language, or languages, for each variety speaks a separate tongue, is small, and they have no apparent conception of abstract ideas. But not only do they use many distinct words with definite meanings—some of which he has learned and is able to reproduce—but some of their words, he declares, are evidently not sounds that occur in the human languages. In short he thinks that in their simian tongues he has found the primitive form of the first human speech.

Want to Be Dignified.

The inhabitants of Rat Portage, Ont., are very anxious to have the name of their town changed. Its growing importance, they think, demands for it a more dignified and delicate name, and their pride and cultured ears are hurt by the appellation of Rat-Portagers, by which they are known. Petitions for a change have been sent to the authorities, and the names suggested by the petitioners include Van Horn, Sylvana, Minnesobia and Sultana. The latter is much favored, but the Rat-Portagers evidently do not see the danger of their staid citizens being known as Sultanas.

Australian Shrubbery.

With the exception of a living carpet of delicate maidenhair, which attains a height of from five to six feet, and of ropes of creeper ferns which swing from tree to tree like fairies in the castle of a giant, the forest of Australia is altogether bare of undergrowth. In the woods of recent growth, however, vegetation is more luxuriant. The long tendrils of the clematis and rata connect trunk with trunk in garlands of white and scarlet bloom, and at their base flourishes an infinite variety of ferns, while here and there a graceful tree-fern rears its silvery-lined crown.

How Different Now.

In former time it was esteemed highly improper for single or unmarried persons to wear rings, "unless they were judges, doctors or senators." For all but these dignitaries such an unwarranted ornament was considered an evidence of "vanity, lasciviousness and pride," and was looked upon as a great piece of presumption on the part of the wearer.

The Good Old Times.

From an ancient account book found at Eastport, Me., it appears that in 1797 tobacco was sold by the yard in that settlement. The limited purchasing power of a day's wages at that period is shown by the price of nails—1s 2½d a pound. A day's ordinary wages would pay for about four pounds of nails.

Friction.

A gold coin passes from one to another 2,000,000 times before the stamp or impression upon it becomes obliterated by friction, while a silver coin changes between 3,250,000 times before it becomes entirely effaced.

Deserved to Lose It.

A Camden, N. J., lady deposited her purse containing $257 in a lamppost letter box Wednesday instead of the letter. It was restored to her by Postmaster Browning.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

Railroad Taxes.

Treasurer Sawvel informs us that the Lake Shore road, and the Wabash have paid their first installment of taxes in full, as charged against them on the books under the new tax law. But they pay it under protest. The B. & O. has paid a part of its tax, an amount that it claims would be right, though on what grounds it fixes the amount as it has, does not appear plain. Of course Mr. Sawvel did not give them a receipt in full. The Grand Rapids road has paid in the same amount as it did last year for its first installment, and got a receipt for that much, but not a receipt in full.

BAD reports from wheat in Ohio.

FLOODS delayed trains all over the country, and some roads stopped running for a day.

REPUBLICAN conspiracy to help the corporations beat the state out of taxes, goes right on.

AT THE inter state oratorical contest at Minneapolis last week, the first honors were taken by Miss Nelson of Indiana.

REPUBLICAN state convention is in Ft. Wayne, June 28. County convention is in Auburn, June 18. Their congressional convention is in Ft. Wayne, May 26.

EXPENSES of the national government for the year ending June 30, will be about 24 millions less than last year. A democratic house has partly stopped the leak.

WHEN a lady buys a cheap, flimsy cloak and has to pay $15, she sighs for the days when the tariff is taken off and she can get a garment as good for $8. There are hundreds of articles affected the same way.

INDIANA as shown by government reports, stands higher in education than does Massachusetts. The illiteracy in Indiana is 3.54 per cent. In Massachusetts it is 4.24, in Vermont 3.91 and in Rhode Island, 6.3.

THE democratic house of representatives has passed a bill making binder twine free, and only three republican members voted for it. The rest opposed it. Do the people yet see which party favors their interests?

THE new tax and assessment law has brought out and put onto the tax lists, millions of dollars heretofore concealed, and this will in turn take that much off of the taxes of poorer people. For this, republicans are fighting the tax law. They don't want wealthy people taxed. But poor people have to pay on every dollar.

REPUBLICANS ask people to believe that a high tax makes the goods taxed cheaper, but at the same time gives the laborer who makes these goods, higher wages. As wages must come out of the price of the goods, how can lowering the price, make wages higher? There is a lie at one end of their story or at the other, and no republican paper has dared to explain.

THE democratic majority in congress has been aping the republican style and staying away to such extent that it has once or twice been difficult to do business. Judge McClellan however, has been right at his post, and so have nearly all the Indiana members. If these absentees did not want to help make laws, they should not have run for the office. There are plenty of men just as good, who are willing to work for their money.

REPUBLICAN papers boast of the great great growth and progress of the United States for the past thirty years, and say it is due to the tariff tax. But they forget to tell what their own statistics show, that the national growth was greater before this high tax. And there is a further fact, that it would have been greater now, without the burden of a high tax. The facts are, we have prospered in spite of the tax, but would have prospered more without it.

REPUBLICAN papers are telling people yet how cheap things are on account of a tax put on them. They fail to tell them how much cheaper they would be without being taxed. What the people want is to be able to buy the necessaries of life as cheap as they can be bought in other countries, and also to have trade opened up so we can sell wheat, etc., at the prices we used to get before republican legislation closed the markets of the world against our wheat.

FREE silver is right, but not the kind of free silver asked for in the Bland bill. Bland is simply mistaken. The free coinage we formerly had, and which was a just law, was in force at a time when silver was worth about $1.29 an ounce, and the government would lose nothing in paying that price. Now, silver is very cheap, and if the government pays a dollar for enough silver to make a dollar, it will be paying that dollar for 70 cents worth of silver, and the wealthy few who own mines will sell their silver at 30 per cent more than its market value. Its cost is only about 40 cents, and they are already making big profits. The Bland bill would double their profits. What Bland's bill should have done, in this case, is to have the government pay market price, and then free coinage would be right and just. But to say that government must pay a dollar for 70 cents worth of silver, is not right. It is a law to favor a wealthy class. Now let Mr. Bland get up a proper law, and it can be passed, unless Harrison vetoes it.

The Voyage to Ft. Wayne.

Sunday morning twenty minutes after 5 o'clock George Ralston and Will Schaab launched their boat on the raging waters of Cedar Creek, at a point just east of the woolen mill at the north end of the town and turned her prow down stream, headed for Ft. Wayne. They had lunch and a big chunk of ice in the fish box, sachels to hold any needed change of raiment, two pairs of oars, and everything that they thought would be needed on the voyage. The stream was swift of course, and they did not have to row unless they chose to do so. The first, and only serious obstacle they met, was the Stamet's bridge south of town about a mile, and they came near upsetting in getting by it. When they shot out into the St. Joe river over in Allen county, they had plenty of room and a strong current. They made the 14 miles to the Feeder dam in two hours. Here they got out and made their first "portage," hauling the boat around the "falls," as they also did at the paper mill. From the feeder dam to the city, it is 12 miles and they landed at the Asylum for the Feeble Minded, near the Centlivre brewery, at the north side of Ft. Wayne at precisely 3 p. m., having made the distance, said to be 54 miles by the course of the two streams, in exactly nine hours and forty minutes. This includes a stop of nearly thirty minutes at Amos Fitch's near the Allen county line, so that the actual traveling time was but little more than nine hours. The smaller dams along the trip, they "shot" running the boat over the two or three feet of fall, without accident. The fall of Feeder dam is eighteen feet. Monday, they returned on the noon train, boat was brought up on the freight train next day. As far as we know, this voyage was never made before, from Auburn, though the early settlers along the St. Joe, used to go down that river, and even carry loaded boats to the city. The young men speak in glowing terms of their trip, and say they were surprised at the beautiful scenery along the banks. The following shows the principal points on the line, and the time of reaching them:

Woolen Mills at Auburn	5:20
Hartels Bridge	6:10
Grute's Bridge	6:45

Mr. Gary, the manager of the business for the company owning the townsite of Ashley, has brought his wife here and will make Auburn his home as well as his business headquarters. Our people will extend them a cordial welcome.

We have received the first number of the paper at Hudson, the "Sun." It is a six column quarto, and bids fair, if properly sustained, to be a fair sort of a paper. It starts out with a good advertising patronage. We suppose the publishers is Bro. Downey, of the Butler Review, but with the modesty that characterizes all newspaper men, he omitted to have his name appear anywhere. In any case, however, we hope the Sun may continue to shine.

Marshal Pfenerl has sold his old team to a farmer near Avilla. He got $160 for team and harness, but though quite old, they are still full of life, and if that farmer don't look out, the dinner bell will be taken for a fire bell, by the old team and the sods will fly. The republicans here, who objected to Joe's having two teams will now have to shut up. But the fire boys will miss the team that carried them on the hose cart to fires, and for which Joe got nothing.

The annual convention of the Sunday School and Ministerial Association of the Church of God, in the Indiana Eldership, will be held at Oak Grove, Whitley county, beginning Thursday evening, June 2, and ending June 6. Let all who are who are interested in this meeting arrange to attend.

Mabel Hartman, accompanied by her brother Walter, and Flora Hoffman, went up to Pleasant Lake Tuesday, where Miss Hartman will give elocutionary entertainments. She will also go to Reading and Fremont, in each case giving entertainments under the auspices of some church. Miss Hoffman will be her musical assistant and her brother will assist as manager. Miss Hartman has rare talents for this work, and has added to them, a course of training under able teachers, as well as a good deal of hard work and hard study of her own. She deserves, and we believe will secure abundant success.

We have a letter from Willis B. Powell, now at Lexington, Kentucky, containing highly artistic specimens of the printer's art. It was done by himself as he is now confining himself entirely to high grade work. He always had a taste for fine job work, and has now a chance to gratify it. The specimens he send are mostly in fine colors and bronzes, neat in design and of artistic patterns. It is in every way equal to the fine art printing supposed to be done only in the best establishments in great cities. We look to see Willis climb to the top, in fact he seems to be about there already.

Our attention has been called to a rumor that Geo. Pepple had to pay $100 ditch tax twice. Such is not the case. Mr. Pepple had a certificate that he had done this ditch work, and when he came to pay his taxes, the certificate paid that much of his assessment. So he paid it but once. This seems to be the season for falsehoods.

The Dispatch has an article boasting the superior way the finances of Butler have been managed. He forgets to say that for ten or fifteen years, Butler has made very little improvements, and so had no expenses to meet. The town of Auburn in the meantime has put up two large brick school buildings got an expensive and reliable fire engine—a steamer, with teams and barn, put down about thirty fire cisterns, built a great many cement crossings, got electric lights, and has done many other things the growth of the town demanded. Give Auburn a good word.

Last week, on Tuesday evening, the lightning ran along the wires in front of Willis' bookstore, and east and south into the electric light works. Marion Willis and others saw the flash, plainly. At the works, the loud "fizz" told them what was up, and they shut down. It had burned again the big coiled wire arrangement called the "armature," that had been injured in the same way, a few days before. A new one was sent for and is now in operation, but there were no arc lights for a few nights. The accident will cost the company five or six hundred dollars, possibly more, as the machines are very expensive.

The disruputable Clipper bum seems put out at something we have said, and goes off howling. He carries the idea that the long, warm friendship between us is about to be ruptured, or at least frayed at the edges, or strained. The smile of friendship has faded from under that burning nose, and he announces that as he can't hit us, he'll lick some woman. And to brace up for this valiant deed he goes and gets drunk, as usual. Brave man! No doubt those whose tastes permit them to read the vile sheet, would be pleased to read his latest effusion quite often, though every item of it has been proved false. So we would ask as a favor to these same readers that it be kept standing "at the top of the column next to reading matter" till forbidden.

The Dog Creek dam at Nine-mile lake busted during the rain last week, and now acres of once tillable land are now lying beneath the water. One peculiar feature in connection with this dam is, someone has attempted to break it on several occasions, and the last act of this kind took place the latter part of the past winter when notice was given by the party or parties doing the deed that whoever attempted to repair the dam should beware of consequences. It is not fully known whether this breakage is due to heavy pressure of water or the influence of pick and spade.

Frank Powers, says the band sawmill boys and others down there had a big sight last Thursday. It was a train on the Wabash made up entirely of locomotives, except the caboose. There was a big locomotive to pull them, and hitched to it was the train of twenty-one small locomotives, with the caboose at the rear. All the locomotives were new, and were made at the great Baldwin works at Schenectady, N. Y. The small ones are quite light and are for use on the elevated road in Chicago, known as the "South Side Rapid Transit Co." Probably such a train was never seen here before, possibly no where else, and a crowd of people, attracted by the novel sight, gazed on them till they pulled out. On reaching Chicago we learn by the dailies, that the big engine pushed the little ones up the incline onto the elevated tracks, and Monday, the engines and tracks were tested successfully.

WITH whalebones at $10 a pound the dress-reform movement ought to boom.

THE aggregate mileage of railroads on earth would reach to the moon and half way back. The puzzle is to determine how the rest of that return trip is to be made.

WYOMING, where the "rustlers" and Uncle Sam's bluecoats are shooting at each other, is the only State in which women vote. The moral of this is left for Susan B. Anthony to draw.

OF course Chili can sever all diplomatic relations with this country if it choose to do so, but it can learn more about the business of carrying on a republic by keeping on friendly terms with the United States than by making faces at us.

A MINNEAPOLIS paper charges that many servant girls of the country, and especially of Chicago, are in league with the Anarchists. This would be startling news but for the fact that in most domestic circles the servant girl is much more feared than is the Anarchist.

LAST year the aggregate loss of property from fire was $140,000,000. Smoke and ashes were all that remained. Despite this heavy drain upon the country's wealth the construction of tinder-box buildings in town and country goes right along as though there were no such thing as a fire risk.

CONSTANTINOPLE is infested with Russians whose chief employment is the hatching of conspiracies against Bulgaria. The latter country calls upon the Porte to expel these trouble makers and indicates an intention of doing business by purchasing 6,000,000 cartridges in Vienna. It is even more significant that cash was paid for these war-like supplies.

KING MHBMORA of Butaritari, is a royal visitor in San Francisco, but has none of that pomp and pageantry that cluster about the vague conception of imperial grandeur. He eats peanuts on the curbstone, rides on the street cars, runs to the fires, stares into the store windows, only wears one suspender and persists in retiring with his boots on. Anyone who says that King Mhbmora is stuck up does not know his "royal nibs."

WARD MCALLISTER assures the world that he has made a handsome annual profit off his little farm near Newport for the last ten years. For the benefit of farmers who would like to learn the secret of Ward's success, we will state that he buys everything that the diminutive estate produces, and pays from three to five times what it is worth. Hence his account with the farm makes a fine showing, and the leader of the 400 is proud of it. A man requires a great head to fool himself like that.

THE Christian Endeavor Societies, organized about ten years ago, have had such a phenomenal growth that the Committee of Arrangements for the National Convention, to be held in New York, July 7 to 10, are at a loss how to accomodate all the delegates who propose to attend. In 1882 there were six of these societies in the country, with a membership of 481. Last January there were 18,500 societies and a membership of 1,100,000. More than 13,000 delegates have already notified the New York committee of their intention to attend the convention, and the large Madison Square Garden cannot accommodate them. It will be the largest convention ever held.

SAYS the New Orleans Picayune: "It would appear to be a wise plan for this country to at once take steps to build a lake navy capable of defending the approaches to our great cities and to properly protect our immense commerce on the vast inland seas. As things now are Chicago, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and other cities are entirely defenceless and would be an easy prey to Great Britain in the event of war catching us unprepared. Such a state of things is a disgrace to a great and powerful nation and should not be permitted to continue, particularly as matters are annually shaping themselves so as to make a quarrel with some foreign power, and particularly Great Britain, more than a possibility at any time."

THE Illinois Habituals Criminal act provides that where a person is convicted for the second time of burglary, robbery, horse-stealing, counterfeiting, forgery, or grand larceny, "the punishment shall be imprisonment in the penitentiary for the full term provided by law. A man was tried for burglary in the Cook County Criminal Court. The indictment was drawn under the above law, and the jury found the man guilty as indicted, and yet returned a verdict fixing his penalty as twelve years in the penitentiary, while the law says it shall be twenty and gives no discretion to change it. Another jury was guilty of a similar offense, but got off with a slight rebuke. The Judge told the jurors in this last case that they had violated their oaths, that there was no excuse for their conduct, and that the next batch who behaved thus would get into trouble. The best way to deal with such outbreaks of lawlessness in the jury box is to fine the offenders and send them to jail to meditate over their misconduct. Had this been done in the first instance there would have been no repetition of the offense. If the laws for the punishment of hardened and deliberate criminals are to be nullified by jurors some radical changes will have to be made in the administration of criminal justice. So much power has been taken from judges and given to jurors in this State that the latter seem to consider themselves lords paramount of the criminal Courts.

THE adroit and forceful hand of Lord Salisbury is seen in the quarrel which has just broken out between the Khedive and the Sultan. To the gracious invitation of his sovereign lord the Commander of the Faithful to visit Constantinople, young Abbas rudely replied that this was impossible until Moukhtar Pasha, the Porte's representative at Cairo, was recalled. Moukhtar is a Turkish official who has no idea of quietly submitting to England's virtual annexation of the Egyptian Empire. His interference with the Egyptian Ministry greatly angered the English Minister, Sir Evelyn Baring; and it is evident to every one that the Khedive's demand for Moukhtar's withdrawal is directly inspired from the British Foreign Office. Appearances indicate that some interesting developments may be looked for in Egyptian politics before long.

THE recent advance in the price of coal is referred to by several papers as furnishing a fresh incentive to action on the part of those who have undertaken to test in the courts the validity of the Reading-Laekawanna coal combination. A rise at this date in the year is unprecedented, and certainly finds no justification in the facts of to-day, the winter having been a comparatively mild one, giving a consumption of fuel less than the average per capita of other years. It is referred to as probably an unpleasant foretaste of what consumers may expect when they undertake a few months hence to lay in their supplies for the coming fall and winter. Indeed it is said there is evidence of a deliberate intention on the part of the Reading folks to create a reason for putting up prices by holding back supplies, allowing local dealers to obtain but little coal till late in the summer. The Pennsylvania railroad is being appealed to for aid in breaking the monopoly, and is understood to be working to that end. It has bought the output of the Stout colliery at Milnesville, amounting to about 150,000 tons per year, and this is said to be but the first of a number of purchases to be made as soon as possible. The company has handled little or none of the anthracite coal from the Lehigh Valley since the Reading deal was consummated, all of that tonnage now going over the Reading line. The Reading officials are reported to make light of the efforts of the Pennsylvania people, saying their company controls 75 per cent. of the unmined anthracite, and the remaining 25 per cent. is the most difficult to get at. Under these circumstances the report that the Vanderbilt support is to be accorded to the Reading combination may well cause alarm and stir up the people to demand protection by the strong arm of the law from that gigantic monopoly. It is thought for these reasons the litigation already instituted will be vigorously prosecuted.

When Ladies Pass.

Dr. Wills, an Englishman who lived many years in Persia, says that until lately it was the rule that no male person over 10 years of age should be found on the road over which a royal wife or daughter was to pass. A violation of the rule was punished with death. Even now, he says, Europeans wisely avoid unpleasantness by turning aside when they hear the shouts which indicate the approach of the "palace ladies."

The late American Minister, Mr. Benjamin, made a great mistake on one occasion by neglecting this precaution. With true American simplicity he was accustoned to ride through the streets with only one servant. Meeting the procession one day, he failed to turn out of its path. The result was that his servant was beaten, and he himself was hustled into a by-road. The next day he duly lodged a complaint of this treatment; but he had to put up with the apology that, naturally, "the royal servants would not recognize a 'one-horse minister.'"

An Austrian officer of engineers, many years in the service of the Shah, was wiser in his generation. He met tne late Queen-Mother and the royal ladies when he was on foot, turned his face to the wall like a native, and as each carriage passed, deliberately saluted from the back of his head.

The ladies screamed with laughter and told the Shah; who persuaded him to repeat his novel salute, and then congratulated him on his discretion.

In Prohibition Maine.

Two Lewiston, Me., liquor constables raided a drug store which was provided with a surprising outfit of trap doors, pitfalls, vaults, and strong rooms. By climbing to the top of a partition and dropping twenty-two feet into a cellar-like abyss one of the constables reached a stairway which led to a secret chamber, built of brick and having a brick door framed with iron. A strong room was provided with an oaken door six inches thick. A big haul of liquors was made, and after settling his case the druggist will not only have to get a new stock but also devise new means of secreting his goods.

THE RULING SPIRIT.

MONOPOLISTIC MANUFACTURERS FRAMED THE BILL.

McKinleyism Exposed by Congressman W. L. Wilson of West Virginia—The People Bear the Burden Not Only of Taxation but Tribute.

A Logical Argument.

Judging the tree by its fruits, the solid common sense of the people has condemned the McKinley tariff act, and has distrusted the business principles of its makers. That this distrust is not without foundation is evident after reading the following from the speech of Congressman Wilson, April 7, in the House of Representatives:

"MR. SPEAKER—We have had in this debate a series of extravagant eulogies on the tariff law of 1890. The gentleman from Maine [Mr. Dingley] pronounces it to be 'consistent, comprehensive and complete, with all the different parts properly and justly related.' The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Dalzell] eulogizes it as 'complete, comprehensive and logical.' Other gentlemen have used stronger words of praise.

"Now, sir, I want to call the attention of the House to the manner in which a 'consistent, logical and complete' protective tariff is built up.

"The gentleman from Maine doubtless thinks he is one of the chief architects of the present law. My friend from Michigan [Mr. Burrows] and my friend from New York [Mr. Payne] each for himself indulges the same pleasant illusion. They were all members of the committee which reported the law to this House.

"Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, there is abundant and unimpeachable evidence to destroy all these claims.

"I turn to the very schedule of the law now under consideration and I find that Mr. McKinley, in presenting to this House the conference report, Sept. 27, 1890, said of it: 'This schedule has the hearty approval of the National Wool-Growers' Association, and of the several State associations throughout the country.'

"In the next sentence he says, 'And, Mr. Speaker, that is entirely true also of the tobacco schedule,' although he omits to say who had approved this latter. As to the great and comprehensive metal schedule, constituting so large a part of the tariff and contributing so much of its political and pecuniary strength, I read in the report made by Mr. James M. Swank, Secretary of the American Iron and Steel Association, made to the President of that association, that 'during the long period in which this measure (the McKinley bill) received the consideration of Congress, the views of this association concerning the proper framing of the metal schedule of the new tariff were frequently solicited and were promptly given;' and as he adds that 'the schedule as adopted is the most harmonious and completely protective of all the metal schedules' in our tariff legislation, we are not left in doubt that the views so 'promptly' given were 'promptly' accepted. So much for the origin of three important schedules. Let us pursue this investigation a little further. Turning to page 290 of the hearings before the Committee of Ways and Means of the last Congress, I find that Mr. William Whitman, President of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, said he 'had framed two clauses' prescribing the taxes on women's and children's dress goods, and these clauses turn up as Mr. Whitman framed them as sections 374 and 375 of the McKinley act, with a blank in the provisos filled, doubtless according to the same gentleman's suggestion.

"At page 281 of the hearings, Mr. Isaac N. Heidelberger, in behalf of the Wholesale Clothier Manufacturers, submitted a memorandum of their demands, and that memorandum, so far as it related to woolen clothing, is substantially embodied in paragraph 396 of the act.

"The makers of firearms appeared at page 1255 with the sections they wished 'incorporated and made a part of the tariff schedules of duties,' and those sections appear in their own words as paragraphs 169 and 170 of the act, with a single trifling change.

"Again at page 92 of the hearings, may be found the demands of the tin-plate makers—that were going to be—proffered by the trusted counselor, my friend from Michigan (Mr. Burrows), and although thousands and tens of thousands of consumers and laborers protested against these demands, Mr. Cronemeyer's wishes are exactly embodied in paragraph 143 of the McKinley bill.

"At page 79 of these hearings, Mr. Charles S. Landers, representing the makers of table cutlery, presented the corrections and amendments which they wished to the Senate clause, and at paragraph 167 of the act his memorandum appears in the very words in which he wrote it.

"On page 65 of the hearings, Mr. W. T. Rockwell makes known the demands of the makers of pocket cutlery, and these demands literally reappear in paragraph 165 of the bill. Now, I understand for the first time in my life, how a 'consistent, logical, complete' protective tariff is framed, 'with the different parts properly and justly related.' Our friends upon the other side merely leave the blanks on the committee table and look at the ceiling or stroll around the Capitol while the parties who desire to tax the people come and fill in the blanks according to the suggestions of their own greed or selfishness.

"And that is the method of constructing a 'comprehensive and logical bill.' How much trouble my friend from Indiana (Mr. Holman) could avoid if, instead of toiling over his appropriation bills, he would only put the blanks on his committee table and invite the government officers to come and write in the salaries they desire to receive. Yet it is just as right, just as safe and proper, just as defensible to make up an appropriation bill by allowing parties to write in their own salaries as it is to make up a tariff bill by allowing parties to write in their own bounties."

Theory and Practice of McKinleyism.

The theory upon which the McKinley tariff bill was constructed is that, by shutting out foreign competition, we can increase our home industries, provide more employment for labor, at higher wages, and by increasing the competitors in each industry, reduce prices. Time may prove the correctness of this theory, but up to date the outlook for it is far from encouraging. Trusts having an apparent connection with the tariff, are preventing competition, raising prices, reducing wages, and in other ways showing great disregard for the fundamental theories of the McKinley law which nourishes them. The extremely high duty on window-glass (about 100 per cent) maintained for a quarter of a century, and increased by McKinley, ought by this time to have given us plenty of home-made window-glass, at the lowest possible prices, and to have given constant employment to labor. This would have been little enough to expect from the more than $100,000,000 invested in this experiment by consumers. But instead, the price of glass here is double what it is in Europe; we have to purchase one-third of our supply abroad, and, as is seen in the following quotation from Bradstreet's for April 16, 1892, the window-glass trust, to limit the supply and sustain prices, keeps the few men employed in the industry idle one-third of the year.

"The Eastern window-glass manufacturers, it is reported in a press telegram, indorse the action of the Western Manufacturers' Association, which, in Chicago last week, decided to shut down all factories on May 31, and remain idle until October 15. If the rule to shut down from May 31, to October 15, is enforced it will be the longest window-glass shutdown since the long strike of 1883."

McKinley's Unbalanced Account.

One important object aimed at by the McKinley tariff bill was to make wages higher. To do this it was necessary that it should be the enemy of trusts and combinations, which by shutting up factories to limit production, and by taking advantage of organization, do so much to depress wages and keep men idle. On these two points the bill is perfection, in the eyes of the advocates of protection—the New York Tribune going so far as to say: "Men and brethren, this is a trust-killing tariff." Suppose, in order to see how effective the bill is in this line, we start an account giving it credit for the trusts found dead each week and the reported advances in wages, and debiting it to the wage reductions, lock-outs, strikes, etc., and to the trusts formed under it. The account is a little one-sided this week—there being nothing on the credit side—and we will therefore give space to only a few of the numerous items on the debit side for the week ending April 23, 1892.

April 16—To the report, in the New York Tribune, that the shut down of the big Spreckels refinery in Philadelphia, which occurred as soon as the sugar trust gained control of it last week, and which threw 600 employes out, is likely to last for months, and that, upon the authority of a well-informed dealer, "the shut-down was not caused by over-production. Inquiries at the office will show that they have but one brand on hand. The main object in getting a restriction placed on the production is to keep the prices up to the (tariff) limit. It is also possible that steps will be taken to close down the remaining refineries here."

April 16—To numerous reports showing that the whisky and rubber trusts are in good fighting trim.

April 16—To a long list of strikes in mines and factories, because of new scales of prices for piece work, employment of non-union men, etc.

April 16—To the depressing announcement, in the Tribune, in regard to the iron trade that "thus far the mining interest has had recourse to shut-downs or curtailment of working force, in a few instances, to a reduction of wages. There is every indication that, beginning at the furnace-yard and running back to the mine, there will be a readjustment of the elements of cost. Labor will doubtless bear a considerable share of these curtailments."

April 17—To the announcement that 1,000 men will be laid off by the Phœnix Iron Company, Pennsylvania, on Monday; that the Reading Iron and Coal Company will in a few days make a general reduction in the wages of all employes, ranging from five to ten per cent.

April 17—To the report from Seyfert Station, Pa., that Seyfert & Bros.' rolling mill, employing 250 hands, and Simon Seyfert's mill at Gibraltar, employing 100 men, shut down indefinitely during the past week; that a reduction of 25 cents per ton in the wages of puddlers went into effect at McIlvain & Sons' boiler plate mill on Monday; and that a similar reduction has been made in the wages of puddlers employed by the Brooke Iron Company, at Birdsboro.

April 17—To the report from Lebanon that wages have been reduced at the works of the Pennsylvania Bolt Company and of the West End and Lebanon rolling mills.

April 19—To report from Boston that the Norway Steel and Iron Company, at one time the largest concern of its kind in the country, to-day passed forever out of existence. "Excessive taxation of raw material was what caused the corporation to close its works," said Mr. Albert Gieger, one of the stockholders.

April 19—To report of the State Board of Assessors that over thirty of the 12,377 miscellaneous corporations in New Jersey have a capitalization of more than $30,000,000. The sugar-refining company leads with a capital of $49,125,000. The cotton oil trust has $30,293,000. Many other well-known trusts are among the number.

April 19—To the affidavit, by the President of the National Cordage Company, that the company cleared $1,460,000 in 1891, and paid $1,300,000 in dividends.

April 19—To the report from Butte, Montana, that the upper works of the Anaconda Smelting Company have closed down indefinitely, throwing 500 men out of work at Anaconda and 150 miners at Butte. The objects are supposed to be to reduce wages and to raise the price of copper.

April 23—To a big combination of trunk manufacturers, including fifteen establishments in Western cities. By the new arrangement the territory will be divided, and each manufacturer will have a section exclusively to himself. The company is capitalized at $2,500,000 and has its headquarters at No. 213 Monroe street, Chicago.

April 23—To a strike in the plush factory at Bridgeport, Conn. Superintendent Pierson said in an address to the strikers: "I should think the unmarried portion of the strikers could easily secure board at $2.50 a week. If you curtail expenses in your domestic routine you can easily make a comfortable living at even the reduced scale of wages." The strikers say that the plush company brought them to this country on the assurance that they would receive at least $15 a week. Many are returning to their native country.

Clothing Is Dearer, Say the Tailors.

There seems to be a misunderstanding between the different sections of McKinley supporters. While the political section is telling us that the foreigner pays the tax, and that prices, already low here, were made still lower by the tariff act of 1890, the practical, every-day working section is taking great pains to inform us that quite the reverse is true. The tailors, in petitioning Congress to limit the number of suits of clothes admitted free of duty to two for returning tourists, say:

"Under this ruling it was possible to enter free of duty vast quantities of foreign-made garments which had never been actually in use, and which were so imported solely because there exists a relative difference of at least 50 per cent. in values between the cost of made-up garments in the United States and Europe, which difference has been further enhanced by certain other provisions under the tariff on woolen cloths of the act of Oct. 1, 1890, as aforesaid, thus saving to the purchaser of garments abroad more than one-half of their actual value upon arrival within the United States duty free."

What an awful expense the McKinley bill is to our 65,000,000 people, if, under it, garments cost more than 50 per cent. more than they otherwise would. All the imaginary benefits of the most deluded supporters of McKinleyism will not offset this one item.

THE burglar may be said to be a thrifty man, because he opens the store long before daylight.

WITHOUT A WARNING.

SEVEN PEOPLE KILLED IN A SANTA FE WRECK.

In the Midst of a Howling Storm the Transcontinental Express Plunges Through a Bridge—The Disaster Caused by a Tremendous Rain-Fall.

Down to Death.

Without a word of warning, in the midst of a frightful storm, the east-bound transcontinental express on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, filled with human beings wrapped in slumber, plunged through a trestle weakened by rain to death at about 1:45 Thursday morning, between Revere and Medill in Missouri, about 265 miles from Chicago.

It was a frightful night, the rain fell as it never fell before, and only an occasional flash of lightning could be seen in the gloom. The great express had come through from San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Mexico to Kansas City on time. On arriving at Kansas City at 4:40 Wednesday afternoon orders were received to hold it until 6:40, and run to Chicago on the time of the Denver limited, which was very late. At 6:40 the train, which was composed of a postal car, a baggage car, smoker, chair car, tourist sleeper, and two Pullman coaches, commenced its run to Chicago. All went well until a pile and trestle bridge over the Fox River near Revere was reached. This bridge was about 175 feet long and 30 feet high. Two hours before the transcontinental express struck the bridge a heavy freight train passed over it in safety, but the pouring rain had swollen the raging torrent which rushed beneath the rails to a miniature Niagara, which finally carried the bridge out of line, yet left it standing and, so far as the engineer on the locomotive could see, all right.

With wheels turning slowly for safety's sake, for the storm was terrific, the train crawled slowly on the bridge. The engine crossed in safety. Then the bridge went down. Only the engine and rear sleeper were not precipitated into the swiftly flowing waters which coursed through the ravine below. Five cars, with their load of human freight wearied into deep sleep with a long trip, and the remains of the bridge sank together in one conglomerate mass of crushed timbers, torn and twisted iron work and mangled humanity. Then came a wild cry from the wounded and dying rising above the noise of the storm. Lighted to their work of rescue, the engineer and fireman from one side of the stream and the uninjured occupants of the rear sleeper from the opposite bank hurried to give what aid was possible to those in the ravine. Men sprang from the windows of the wrecked cars, and fighting their way through whirling waters filled with debris reached the banks and fell exhausted. Not less than seven and possibly nine or more sank in the wreck to die. Twenty-five are known to have been injured.

Telegraph wires went down in the storm and only meager information reached Chicago regarding the wreck. Third Vice President J. D. Springer of the Atchison, and W. F. White, the passenger traffic manager, used every effort to obtain full details of the accident, and freely furnished all information in their power to the reporters and anxious relatives of passengers who besieged the Atchison offices demanding information.

It was with great difficulty that messages could be put through, but the Atchison officials received the following list of dead and injured, which was at once made public:

KILLED—William Hynes, Oklahoma City, Ok.; Lou Markel (or Markee) Kansas City, Mo.; Luther Cornelius, Kirkville, Mo.; S. E. Verkler, Westport, Mo.; John C. Grones, Macon, Mo.; lady and child, names unknown.

A press dispatch confirms this list, and adds an unknown child, the engineer, and fireman as killed. This is not confirmed by the Atchison report from the officers on the ground to Vice President Springer, and regarding the engineer and fireman was denied, as the locomotive crossed the bridge in safety.

INJURED.—J. Tucker, conductor, Downers' Grove; Martin Regan, brakeman; W. A. Isham, brakeman, Riverside; Andrew J. Ronan, express messenger; Claud Bell and R. E. Dutcher, postal clerks; Mrs. Jane Hisey, Riverside; J. C. Winslow, H. M. Cutler, H. C. Cowling, and N. Lancaster, Chicago; W. A. Allen and Mrs. E. T. Allen, Athens, Pa.; Robert Schultz, Lexington Junction, Mo.; J. F. Hartgen, Reading, Pa.; William Adams, O. L. Boys, J. Gunther, W. B. Barnes, J. H. Snider, S. H. Laugh, J. Mason, F. Graves, and W. G. Smith.

In addition to this there is an unconfirmed report that an Italian woman and child were injured. The extent of the injuries could not be ascertained. The Atchison was in very bad shape. Superintendent H. C. Ives started for the wreck early, but was confronted with three feet of water on the track at Lockport. The road was also under water east of Fort Madison, between Fort Madison and the wreck, and wires were down in places for many miles in length. The east-bound Denver express, which followed the transcontinental express, attempted to run around the wreck on the Keokuk and Western branch of the Burlington, but was stopped by a landslide a few miles out of Keokuk.

The accident seems to have been one of those unfortunate events that human foresight can not guard against. The bridge was as strong as such a structure could be built, but the heavy rains of the last few weeks, crowned by the awful storm of Wednesday night, so weakened it that it went under. The accident will cost the Atchison over $100,000, and probably $150,000.

O'SULLIVAN PASSES AWAY.

The Iceman Breaths His Last in Joliet Penitentiary.

At the prison in Joliet, Ill., Patrick O'Sullivan, imprisoned for life for complicity in the murder of Dr. Cronin, at Chicago, drew his last breath at 7:40 o'clock Thursday evening. He passed away peacefully, as if falling asleep. No one was with him but a brother from Iowa, his sister, Miss O'Sullivan, and a brother from Wisconsin. He was in a condition of semi-consciousness for the first time in a week, and recognized his sister and Dr. Ferguson, the prison physician, but said nothing. The doctor was not with him when he died. He was conscious just before his death and knew the end was approaching. His last words were: "Tell the world I died proclaiming my innocence to the last."

Bedroom Carpets.

There is an excellent way of laying bedroom carpets, in houses where rugs are not the rule. Fasten small, strong hooks in the baseboard, close to the edge of the carpet sew corresponding rings. Slip the rings over the hooks, and the carpet is securely laid. Of course a few tacks must be put where the carpet crosses a doorway, but these are quickly removed. By this method, which is employed in the sleeping rooms of many hotels, a carpet may frequently be taken up, thoroughly shaken and replaced, without much more labor than would be required to sweep it while on the floor.

Mr. Joseph Hemmerich,

An old soldier, living at No. 629 East 146th Street, New York City, a well-known and thoroughly reliable man, writes us voluntarily an account of his remarkable cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which illustrates the great value of this medicine as a thorough blood purifier and strength giver. In 1862, at the battle of Fair Oaks, he was stricken with typhoid fever, and after a long struggle in hospitals, lasting several years, was discharged as incurable. Doctors said he had consumption, that both lungs were affected, and he could not live long. But a comrade urged him to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before he had finished one bottle his cough began to get loose, the choking sensation left, and night sweats grew less and less. Since taking the fifth bottle he has been in good general health. He takes Hood's Sarsaparilla as a general blood purifier and Spring Medicine, and cordially recommends it, especially to his comrades in the G. A. R., of which he has been a member for twenty years. BESTRIDE THE WHEEL.

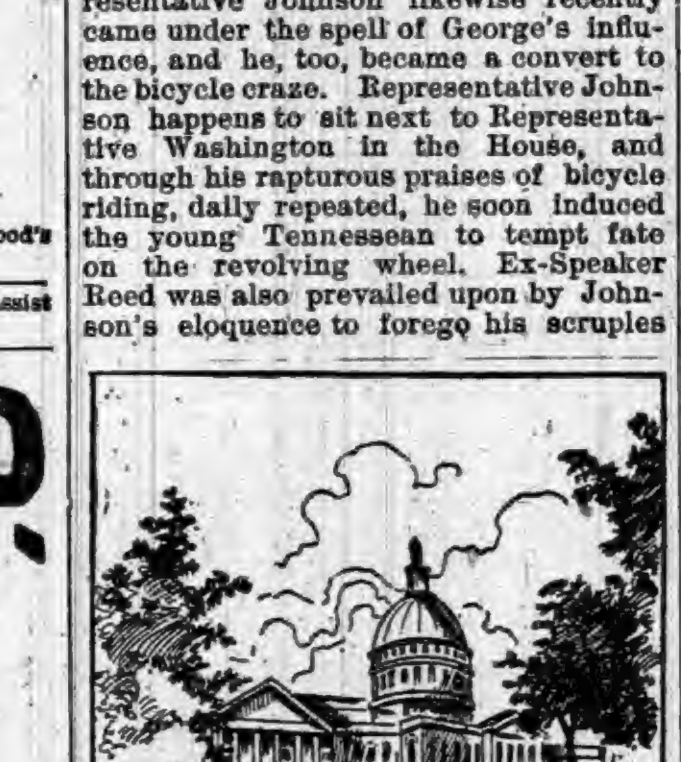
CONGRESSMEN WHO ENJOY BICYCLE RIDING.

Jerry Simpson Has Become an Expert and Airs His Accomplishment Conspicuously—Several Other Statesmen Who Take Exercise in That Way.

Legislators as Cyclers.

THE newest fad among our national statesmen is the Congressmen's Bicycle Club, of which Jerry Simpson is President and Thomas B. Reed its latest nursling, writes a Washington correspondent. Only full-fledged Congressmen are eligible to membership in it. August and reverend Senators and powerful Cabinet officers have no show in it, and were even President Harrison to apply humbly for admission, he would be peremptorily rejected, so exclusive is this unique organization, and so sharply does it draw the line against all but Congressmen. All the members are enthusiastic wheelmen, and several of them are exceedingly skillful riders. Among the most expert, besides Jerry Simpson himself, the head chief, are Congressmen Tom L. Johnson of the Twenty-first Ohio District, Joseph E. Washington of the Sixth Tennessee—a lateral descendent of the immortal George Washington—John A. T. Hull of the Seventh Iowa, Lewis Sperry of the First Connecticut, and William Springer of the Thirteenth and Owen Scott of the Fourteenth Illinois Districts.

The idea of the club originated with a select little coterie of congressmen who sit near each other in the chamber of the House of Representatives. Henry George of New York, though not a congressman, may be held primarily responsible for it. When the genial, sockless "Sage of Medicine Lodge" left Kansas last spring and visited New York he fell in with the single-tax apostle, who in due time made him familiar with the pleasures of the wheel. Representative Johnson likewise recently came under the spell of George's influence, and he, too, became a convert to the bicycle craze. Representative Johnson happens to sit next to Representative Washington in the House, and through his rapturous praises of bicycle riding, daily repeated, he soon induced the young Tennessean to tempt fate on the revolving wheel. Ex-Speaker Reed was also prevailed upon by Johnson's eloquence to forego his scruples and link his fortunes in sport with the budding organization.



WHERE CONGRESSIONAL WHEELMEN MEET.

In this way the charmed circle, first formed but little over a month ago, has been gradually but steadily enlarged, until now it is gaining several new recruits every week, and promises eventually to embrace representatives from nearly every State in the Union. The expansive streets and avenues of Washington, paved with the finest asphalt and the smoothest of concrete blocks, afford ideal facilities for bicycling, and the club avails of these superior conditions to the fullest extent.

More than an ordinary amount of nerve and courage is required of Congressmen from certain parts of the country in contemplating for themselves such a frivolous diversion as bicycling in this capital city of the nation, where the eyes of the entire public, so to speak, are constantly centered upon them. Indeed, such a deep-seated prejudice exists in many communities against bicycling, tennis playing and kindred mild forms of ornamental athletics that the riding Congressmen from those sections deserve to be congratulated on the grit they have displayed in joining the club. The members, while not seeking to conceal their connection with it, have not courted publicity on the subject or sought to be interviewed as to their accomplishments on the wheel. Down in Kentucky a few years ago a certain capitalist from the East, filled with enterprising ideas of progress and invention, undertook to make the race for Congress in one of blue grass districts, using a bicycle of primitive pattern on his stumping tours from place to place. He announced to his prospective constituents that he believed in all sorts of innovations and improvements, and cited bicycles as an illustration, prophesying that they would in a short time largely supersede the use of horses and mules as a mode of locomotion. The voters thereupon, as might be expected, grew frightened at the prospect of losing their livelihood in raising horses and mules and at the polls unanimously snowed him out of sight under an avalanche of adverse votes. Times have changed somewhat since then, but in these unsettled days for statesmen the dear people still insist on knowing both the personal and public careers, and even the sports, of their representatives in Congress.

Congressman Johnson is the most versatile rider in the club, despite the fact that he is handicapped with fully 300 pounds of flesh. He is one of the most jovial men in the present House, with a ruddy, smooth-shaven face, curly black hair and rotund figure. Unlike Henry George, who prefers a light-running English machine, he uses a strong wheel of standard American make, ball bearings and cushion tire. Notwithstanding his ponderous avoirdupois, he has mastered the difficult feat known as "the pedal mount," and in addition is able to execute to perfection some of the most intricate figures in fancy riding. So enthusiastic a friend of bicycling is he that he has taught not only his wife but his three little children to ride, and frequently takes his whole family out for an airing "on the road."

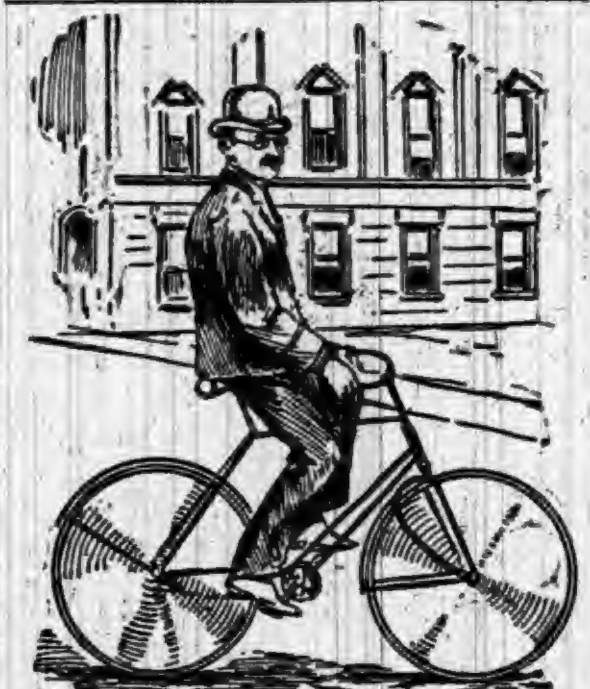
Congressman Jerry Simpson, on the other hand, cares nothing for speed or fancy figures, but finds an infinite amount of delight in cantering straight ahead at a moderate gait. He rides at any hour of the morning, afternoon, or evening, sometimes with his friend Hull of Iowa or Johnson of Ohio, but oftenest alone, "in solitary meditation fancy free." He turns the street corners warily, in the most leisurely manner possible, and in general conducts himself literally like a philosopher on wheels. He lives on "The Hill," near the Capitol, and when the debates in the House happen to grow unbearably dull, as they frequently do, he slips over home, gets out his 'cycle, and takes a quiet little spin by way of mental and physical refreshment.

Occasionally he meets other members of the club by prearrangement on the open plaza at the east front of the capitol, when they all have a happy-go-lucky race over the smooth asphalt. Then, after they have sufficiently enjoyed the keen air whistling about their ears, they return to the House in time to vote, depositing their wheels in convenient nooks and crypts on the basement floor.

Chairman Springer, of Ways and Means, is an old hand at the wheel and is one of the pioneers among Congressmen in the use of the rapid vehicle. He early initiated his youngest son in the mysteries of riding. Unluckily his late illness has prevented him from joining his colleagues in their regular practice, but his heart has been with them all the time, and when he fully recovers his health he will make up for lost time.

Representative Washington from the outset displayed a marked degree of pluck and energy in addressing himself to the difficulties that always beset beginners on the wheel. With the assiduous coaching of his friend Johnson, however, he has become one of the best riders in the club. He uses a very light machine and discards all the unnecessary appliances.

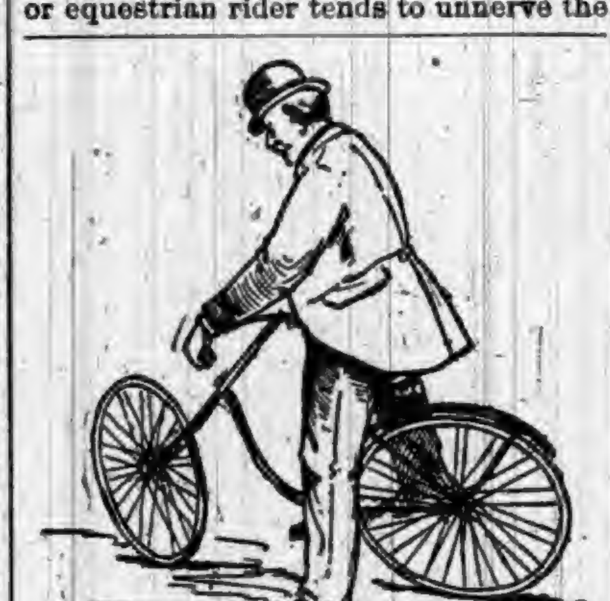
Ex-Speaker Reed, who has the reputation of riding the biggest upright wheel in the State of Maine when at home in Portland, is content here in Washington with a low-seated "safety." It is related authoritatively that when he first learned to ride in Maine he "dished" his wheel twice, and broke the delicate attachments. He still has an aversion to riding in the fierce gaze of publicity which obtains in Washington, but he nevertheless consents to a little run now and then in the less frequented rendezvous of the club.



REPRESENTATIVE SIMPSON ON HIS WHEEL.

Representatives Sperry of Connecticut and Scott of Illinois can be seen on their wheels almost any bright morning now, bowling swiftly over the delightful streets of the fashionable northwest. Mr. Sperry affects a wheel of home manufacture, while Mr. Scott is pleased with an imported one. Several of the "very young" Congressmen from Massachusetts and elsewhere have an equal liking for both uprights and "safeties" and are considered connoisseurs as to the best styles and makes.

While the asphalt streets leave nothing to be desired for ease and comfort in riding, the club's favorite trysting place is the magnificent driveway called the "White lot," inclosing fifty acres of beautiful level park, between the Executive mansion and the Washington monument. Thither the Congressmen repair when the House adjourns at five o'clock in the afternoon, and enjoy themselves immensely, with comparative immunity from observation and interruption. The only drawback there is the fact that the occasional passage of a swell carriage or equestrian rider tends to unnerve the "weaker brethren," often producing an ungraceful fall and tumble.



TRYING A SAFETY.

World's Fair Notes.

JAMAICA has increased its World's Fair appropriation to $25,000.

ONE HUNDRED tons of exhibits for the Exposition have already been collected and are awaiting shipment at Lima and Callao.

AN effort is being made to collect $25,000 with which to build the Exposition a headquarters for the Sunday schools of the United States.

A COMPANY from the National Military Institute of Colombia, South America, wants to attend the Exposition and camp on the World's Fair grounds.

THE lofty stone monolith, which Wisconsin will exhibit at the Fair, will remain at Jackson Park permanently, the park commissioners having given their consent. The monolith is 107 feet high and cut from a solid block of stone.

A CIRCULAR has been issued by the Exposition authorities to all the railway passenger associations of the United States and individual roads, asking that a materially reduced rate be made by the railroads on the occasion of the dedicatory ceremonies next October.

AS AN illustration of the rapidity with which the work of erecting the Exposition buildings is being pushed at Jackson Park, it may be stated that on March 1 sketches were made for a building to serve as permanent accommodations for the Construction Bureau, the Columbian guards, emergency hospital central fire-alarm service, etc. The contract was let on April 2, and on April 30 the building was finished and occupied. The structure measures 200 by 300 feet.

THE scene which the Exposition grounds now afford, with most of the buildings nearing completion and the construction being pushed forward by more than 6,000 workmen, is accounted so interesting and wonderful that from 1,000 to 5,000 visitors a day willingly pay the admission fee of 25 cents to witness it. Before the abolition of the free pass system, the visitors often numbered as high as 15,000 or 20,000. The work of construction was interfered with, so that it was thought best to charge an admission and thus diminish the size of the crowd of sightseers and at the same time add to the financial resources of the Exposition.

"EVERY WORD TRUE!"

SO SAYS THE WRITER OF THAT FAMOUS LETTER.

He Reiterates His Statements, Produces Additional Proof and Clearly Defines His Position.

[New York Sun.]

It would be difficult to measure the interest and comment, not to say excitement, which the published letter of Dr. R. A. Gunn, which appeared in the papers yesterday, has occasioned. The prominence of the Doctor, and the unusual nature of the letter, have both tended to add interest to the subject, and make it really the talk of the town.

I called upon Dr. Gunn at his residence, No. 124 West Forty-seventh street, yesterday afternoon. I found the reception room crowded, and it was only after an hour's waiting that I succeeded in obtaining an interview.

Dr. Gunn is a distinguished-looking man, and impressed me at once by his manly bearing and air of sincerity. I took the seat he courteously offered me, and said:

"Are you aware, Doctor, of the commotion your letter has caused?"

Dr. Gunn smiled and replied: "Things out of the ordinary usually cause comment. It is not a common thing for physicians to indorse and cordially recommend medicines other than those in the Materia Medica. History is full of instances of scientists who have indorsed discoveries they believe to be valuable, and have been denounced for so doing, and yet these same discoveries are blessing the world to-day. I hope I have the manhood and courage to be true to my convictions, and that is why I so openly and unhesitatingly indorse Warner's Safe Cure as being the greatest of modern discoveries for the cure of diseases which have baffled the highest skill of the medical profession."

I was impressed with the earnestness of the Doctor, and saw that he meant every word that he said.

"How long have you known of this remedy, Doctor?" I asked.

"Nearly ten years," he replied. "My attention was originally called to the Safe Cure by a serious case of Bright's disease, which was considered hopeless, and yet, much to my surprise, under its use the patient recovered. I have tried it in other cases since then constantly, and my original faith in its power has been confirmed. I have seen patients recover from inflammation of the bladder, gravel, and Bright's disease when all other treatment had failed, and I have found it especially efficient in all female troubles."

"Can you specify any particular cases, Doctor?" I asked.

"That is a delicate thing to do," the Doctor replied; "but, as I always keep a written record of my cases, I can accommodate you."

Thereupon the Doctor opened his desk and produced his record book. Turning over the leaves he said:

"Here is a case of a gentleman who was a great sufferer from inflammation of the bladder of long standing. He had consulted a number of physicians without benefit. When first consulted I myself tried the usual methods of treatment, but without success, and I finally advised him to try Warner's Safe Cure. He felt better from the start, and in a few weeks was entirely cured."

The Doctor turned a few pages further, and then said:

"Here is another case. It is that of a gentleman who had frequent attacks of renal calculi, which, as you know, is gravel forming in the kidneys. He had never been able to prevent these formations, but after an unusually severe attack I recommended him to try the Safe Cure, which he did, and, although it is three years since he took the remedy, he has never had an attack since."

The Doctor continued to turn the leaves of his book, and suddenly exclaimed:

"Here is a most remarkable case. It is that of a lady who had suffered for some time from Bright's disease. She became enciente, and about the fourth month suddenly became blind, had convulsions, and finally fell into a state of coma, caused by uremic or kidney poison. Several physicians who saw her said she could not live, and in this view I fully concurred. As she could still swallow I said, as a last resort, that they might try Warner's Safe Cure. They did so, and to the surprise of every one she recovered. She has since given birth to a living child, and is perfectly well."

"Those are certainly most wonderful cases, Doctor," I said, "and while I do not for a moment question their authenticity I should consider it a great favor if you would give me their names. I think the importance of the subject would fully justify it."

"In the interest of other sufferers I think you are correct," Dr. Gunn finally observed, after a moment's thought. "Both the lady and her husband are so rejoiced, so grateful over her recovery, that I know she is only too glad to have others hear of it. The lady is Mrs. Eames, wife of the well-known costumer. She was not only restored but is in perfect health to-day."

I thanked the Doctor for his courteous reception, for the valuable information imparted, and I feel assured that his generous and humane nature will prevent him from feeling other than glad at seeing this interview published for the benefit of suffering humanity.

Manure for Gardens.

It is entirely fallacious to suppose, that garden crops, whether flowers, fruit, or vegetables, gain a large amount of nitrogenous plant food from atmospheric sources by means of their extended leaf surface. The quantity of combined nitrogen brought to the soil and growing plants by rain water and the atmosphere is so inconsiderable an amount, when compared with the whole weight required by the crop, that we may fairly say no plants are more dependent on nitrogen in an available condition within the soil than are garden vegetables. No matter how good the normal condition of the soil may be, it will not long produce paying crops of vegetables, or even fruits, without manure. Certain it is that if a garden will not pay with liberal manuring it will not pay without it.

The Sworn Tormentors of the Inquisition.

What cared they for the groans of the victim as he lay stretched upon the rack? Yet people whose hearts are neither as hard as the nether mill stone, nor whose fortitude is excessive, often have no pity on themselves—voluntarily incur life-long torture by neglect. Rheumatism, the most agonizing and obstinate of complaints, is, perhaps, more frequently neglected in its incipiency than any other, the preliminary twinges being set down to the credit of "a cold in the bones" which will pass away of itself. Singular fatuity—fatal delusion! Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a potent safeguard against the terrible inroads of this insidious and dangerous malady—dangerous because of its proneness to attack the heart, the seat of life. Neuralgia is also effectually counteracted and relieved by the Bitters. Malaria, kidney complaints, debility, indigestion, biliousness, la grippe, loss of appetite and the inability to sleep are among the complaints eradicable with this genial corrective.

A Simple Cure for Stoutness.

A French paper has come out lately with a new, strange, and simple cure for stoutness. It is one that will recommend itself to everybody from the absolute ease and safety with which it can be employed. It consists simply in never eating more than one dish at each meal, no matter what that dish is. A person may consume as much as the stomach can bear and satisfy the appetite without the least reserve. Nevertheless, nothing but the one dish should be taken. No condiments, no soups, no supplementary desserts should be allowed. This is said by many to be infallible.

M. L. THOMPSON & CO., Druggists, Coudersport, Pa., say Hall's Catarrh Cure is the best and only sure cure for catarrh they ever sold. Druggists sell it, 75c.

THE HUMAN FAMILY

And Its Greatest Need.

The human race as a whole is in great need of a good blood purifier. There are about 2,400 disorders incident to the human frame, the large majority arising from the impure or poisonous condition of the blood. Scrofula, a disease as old as antiquity, has been inherited by generation after generation, and manifests itself to-day virulent and virtually unchanged from its ancient forms. If we are so fortunate as to escape hereditary impurities in the blood, we may contract disease from the germs in the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink.

In Hood's Sarsaparilla is found the medicine for all blood diseases. Its remarkable cures are its loudest praise. No remedy has ever had so marked success, no medicine was ever accorded so great public patronage. Scrofula in its severest forms has yielded to its potent powers; blood poisoning and salt rheum and many other diseases have been permanently cured by it. It is unquestionably the best Spring Medicine and blood purifier. Be sure to get Hood's.

AT the end of July last there were 63,500 electric lamps—incandescent and arc—in use in Paris. At the end of March, 1891, the number was 105,000, so that in a period of six months the number of lamps in use increased by 41,500.

THE new Bombay water works, which have been in course of construction seven years, cost 15,000,000 rupees (about $5,250,000). The water is drawn from Tansa Lake, an artificial body formed by a dam in the valley, and having a superficial area of eight or nine square miles.

When oxide of iron is placed in contact with timber, excluded from the atmosphere and aided by a slightly increased temperature, the oxide will part with its oxygen and is converted into very finely divided particles of metallic iron, having such an affinity for oxygen that, when afterward exposed to the action of the atmosphere from any cause, oxygen is so rapidly absorbed that these particles become suddenly red hot, and, if in sufficient quantity, will produce a temperature far beyond the ignition point of dry timber.

Success.

The above caption is the figurative, emblematic and significant ensignia that every energetic man or woman insists on having engraved as a flaming indorsement of the ultimatum of his or her tact and skill. Individually, almost every person who has arrived at the age of maturity and realizes the astute competition, which characterizes a career in this great, active business world, desires to have it said of him, that, 'he was a very shrewd and careful calculator and made his efforts win. Men are as rule, are given a commercial standing according to the amount of business done by them, and the prosperous termination of anything attempted, is the shining star that casts its glimmering radiations across the shadowy vale of uncertain prospects, to confirm the fondest and most profound hopes of mankind; thus tempting him by its attractive promises to make great ventures into the rushing whirlpool of enterprise, where profitable returns depend upon success. Long, hours of deep study, careful, earnest and accurate calculation, supported by favorable circumstances and vitalized by a degree of stick-to-it-ive-ness that courts no favor and quails before no competition, is a part of the prerequisites which justify the engravure of this caption high up on the monument of fame, for those who wage a stern war against the obsequies of a business career. Auburn is a fair city, whose catalogue of wealthy, industrious and influential citizens, is replete with sterling characters, whose long struggles with the world have met with a merited reward, and will compare favorably with any other town of its size. Our manufactories are interests of especial pride, and while we give proper credit to all the factories, we would assign the prominence at this time to an infant industry, located in Stametstown, and known as the Auburn Iron Works. This institution is of recent organization but has gained a substantial position in public favor, and the plant is well equipped with machinery for doing a general repair business. The proprietors, Messrs. Guilford Bros. & McCrory, are workmen of fine ability and great mechanical skill, and their standing as industrious gentlemen and enterprising citizens is creditably conservative to the requirements of a rapidly growing patronage, which amply evidences the appreciation in which they are held. To judge from the number of engines and boilers that are being hauled there for repairs, one would very naturally suppose that these three young men are doing a business that would highly compliment many of the larger institutions that work in iron. So far, success has crowned their efforts as a firm, and we hope to see them make the already much needed addition of a foundry and its appendages.

A Strange Settlement in Mammoth Cave.

The main cave doubles sharply on its former trend, at the "Acute Angle," and in this vicinity we find two little huts, rudely built of the cave limestone, which have a melancholy history. The miners who once worked the nitrous earth were known to have grown healthy and robust, and, in 1843, a little company of fifteen persons, in the last stages of consumption, formed a settlement here, in the hope that the favorable conditions of the temperature, dryness, and the oxygenated air, might check the fatal ravages of the disease, and give them one last chance for life. Actually buried alive, this spectral colony lived in their roofless cottages for five months, clinging to their pitiful delusion, and learning nothing from the poor plants which they attempted to grow, but which drooped and died for lack of sunshine,—just as they themselves were fading away. The climax of this strange tragedy came swiftly when one of the number gave up the struggle and died, and with his life the light of their hope went out. Then began a mad rush for the living, beautiful world outside; but Death ran too swift a race, and it is related that three more died before they could reach the entrance, and all the rest succumbed within three days. In a tangled, overgrown patch on a gentle knoll, and underneath stones that are gray, moss covered, and crumbling, some of them lie at rest, with no epitaph to tell of their strange story and their stranger fate.—From "Mammoth Cave by Flash-light," in Demorest's Family Magazine for June.

Prohibition Convention.

The prohibitionist of DeKalb county will meet in nominating convention in Auburn on Saturday May 14, 1892. We hope the enemies of the legalized saloons will respond in such numbers as to make this the largest and best convention we have ever held. President T. C. Reed, of Taylor University, is expected to speak after nominations are made, and we also hope to have the Hoosier Quartet to furnish the music.

DR. J. D. BARR, Gen. Agt. U. C. L. I. Co.

DEAR SIR.—I have this day received of your agent, E. L. Casebeer, of Auburn, Ind, $4000.00 settlement in full for policy No. 49064 issued on the life of my late husband, Samuel M. Knott. It was indeed a very fortunate thing for his family that he made this wise provision as by this method we are prepared to have our home relieved of all incumbrance, I can speak in the highest terms of this company, and cheerfully recommend it to all seeking life insurance.

ROXANA E. KNOTT.

Auburn Swing Washer, is still the favorite. It was introduced into the county fairly last season, and all who tried it are well pleased. Mr. Meese is now beginning the work for the coming summer, and expects to make, and put on the market more machines than last year. It is the coming machine. Wait till you see one and try it. It took first premium at both the Auburn and Waterloo fairs last year.

"The Rocky Mountain Limited" And "The Big 5."

Two Grand Trains Daily Between the World's Fair City and the Foothills.

One Night Out, or One Day Out. Take Your Choice. Business Demands it, and the People Must Have it.

The popularity of "The Great Rock Island Route" as a Colorado line—it having long time since taken first place as the people's favorite between the Lakes and the Mountains—has compelled the management to increase its present splendid service by the addition of a train that is one night on the road from Chicago to Denver, Colorado Springs or Pueblo. This train will be known as the "ROCKY MOUNTAIN LIMITED," and will be put in service May first. Leaves Chicago daily at 10:45 a. m., arriving at above cities in the afternoon of the next day, earlier than any of its competitors. Especial equipment has been built for this train, with the view of making it a limited in every sense of the word, and best of all, there will be no extra charge. The route of this exceedingly fast train is by the Rock Island Short Line, and a few of the large cities through which it passes, are Davenport, DesMoines, Council Bluffs, Omaha, Lincoln, Beatrice, Fairbury, Belleville, Phillipsburg, Smith Center, Colby and Goodland. This makes it a most desirable route, and particularly interesting to the traveler. Another point: The popularity of our dining-car service is still on the increase, and no money spared to make this service what our patrons always say, "the best."

Our "Big 5" will continued as usual, leaving Chicago at 10 p. m. and arriving at Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, the second morning, being but one day out, and this fast and popular train goes through Omaha.

Our No. 11 will leave as heretofore at 6 p. m., arrive at Kansas City at 9:00 a. m., and will reach Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo the second morning.

Our Colorado service is made perfect by this new "Rocky Mountain Limited" and the "Big 5," and gives to the traveling public two flyers daily.

Manitou passengers should consult the map and time tables of our line, to fully appreciate the advantages in time saved by taking this route, when on their summer vacation.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

The financial condition of the town showed no signs of improvement. The aggregate of taxation was light, but the valuation returned by assessor and assessed indicates a real or assessed depreciation of property, real and personal.

The amount of revenue received for municipal purposes was but $216 11, the expenditure was $104.87 and there was a balance of $111 24. The special fund received was $231.23, which had been all paid out and still left an indebtdness of $353 43, and the common school showed but $138.46 received and expended and the revenue from this source, already anticipated was expected to show a balance of $180.46.

There was no sale for real estate at most any price. An advertiser describing lot No. 71, old plat said: "With fine dwelling, fruit trees and shrubbery surrounding, a good store house, a building well calculated for a business house and with the location, the best in the place, a bargain is offered to a purchaser," but it was offered in vain. There were more who wished to sell than to buy. Times have greatly changed since then, when scarcity of buyers has veered around to lack of sellers and the fortunate owner of a Main street lot can dictate his price, and find it taken promptly.

In the day of small things, an appropriation of $50 to repair the fence enclosing the public square and to put an oak railing on the west and north sides of the fence was deemed worthy of public mention. In the same line was the order that a public well be dug, not driven, for it was before the days of the drive well and the subsequent robber royalty, at or near the liberty pole on the public square and the further provision that the well should be furnished with a good pump for the use of the community at large.

The old settlers will remember when hitching posts stood along the line of the present gutter in front of the stores on the west facing the square and the time is quite recent since, despite formidable opposition, posts and pendant chain, wooden fence and plank walk disappeared from the west and north sides of the square to be superseded by broad cement walks and gutters and lawn.

Soon the spirit of the times will make like changes about the east and south sides of our beautiful public ground and ample, cheap and convenient feed yard will accommodate all persons caring to have their horses safe and comfortable during their stay in town.

The weather during the spring of 1862 was variable, alternating between warm and cold spells, bright sunshine and lowering clouds but no visits of much needed rain and during this time there came upon the people, a new and dangerous affection of the throat known then and since as diptheria which baffled the skill of physicians, prevailed to an alarming extent through towns and country and in some cases resulted fatally. The malady termed la grippe beginning with a sore throat akin to diptheria and having origin apparently in abnormally open winters has thrice been to the community a later less dreaded but more general scourge.

Mention has been made of a liberty pole that long stood near the site of the present town pump. The liberty pole originally surmounted with the symbol of liberty, represented the party that in the American Revolution favored independence from England, later, it was the flag staff in town and city from which the stars and stripes floated, but this old institution as incentive to patriotism has had its day. The present generation attach no greater meaning to the raising of a tamarack or hickory pole, than a political preference in a spirited campaign.

Public attention was called to the Auburn brass band which under instruction and lead of Prof. Charles Struby had reached a creditable proficiency and, during the summer, had delighted the townspeople with nocturnal serenades.

Auburn has had a number of fine bands which have each after a time disbanded as members moved elsewhere, and have as often re-organized, but the one formed in 1862, was probably the first in the town. Uniforms, instruments and music with instructions are expensive and the pioneer band aimed to maintain itself by furnishing music for gala days, concerts and public occasions. The leader was in 1865, associated with Spencer Dills as a teacher of music in the Auburn schools and on occasion of an exhibition given at the close of a successful term under management of Mrs. Vesta Swarts, the novelty of a band was enjoyed.

As an attraction long since obsolete, the science of phrenology which purported to reveal character by prominence or depression of the mapped cranial surface, was in 1862, the hobby of a class among whom was a "Prof." Flowers who lectured at Auburn and heightened curiosity by public, free examinations of selected persons from the audience.

Others from time to time years ago, women as well as men, have followed Mr. Flowers and while few believed, many enjoyed inpromptu delineation of assumed strong and weak traits of owners of heads examined.

It was when Engelbert Ashley was engaged in the manufacture of his good, substantial wagons that the well known and capable firm of Canon & Steele had headquarters in the rooms over his shop.

These parties came from Ft. Wayne to Auburn and by faithful attention to business established a fine reputation as painters and paper hangers and caused many a weather-worn building to wear a brighter look.

Mrs. E. E. Bodine engaged in the business of millinery and mantau making at her residence then one door south of the Weaver house and in a small way continued with success till such time as town growth called for a larger establishment when stores like that of Harter & Co., Schaab Bros., Mrs. Jones & Son and that of Cowan Sisters supplied Auburn and the territory surrounding with fine grades of fashionable ladies' goods.

"The Rocky Mountain Limited" And "The Big 5."

One Night Out, or One Day Out. Take Your Choice. Business Demands it, and the People Must Have it.

The popularity of "The Great Rock Island Route" as a Colorado line—it having long time since taken first place as the people's favorite between the Lakes and the Mountains—has compelled the management to increase its present splendid service by the addition of a train that is one night on the road from Chicago to Denver, Colorado Springs or Pueblo. This train will be known as the "ROCKY MOUNTAIN LIMITED," and will be put in service May first. Leaves Chicago daily at 10:45 a. m., arriving at above cities in the afternoon of the next day, earlier than any of its competitors. Especial equipment has been built for this train, with the view of making it a limited in every sense of the word, and best of all, there will be no extra charge. The route of this exceedingly fast train is by the Rock Island Short Line, and a few of the large cities through which it passes, are Davenport, DesMoines, Council Bluffs, Omaha, Lincoln, Beatrice, Fairbury, Belleville, Phillipsburg, Smith Center, Colby and Goodland. This makes it a most desirable route, and particularly interesting to the traveler. Another point: The popularity of our dining-car service is still on the increase, and no money spared to make this service what our patrons always say, "the best."

Our "Big 5" will continued as usual, leaving Chicago at 10 p. m. and arriving at Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, the second morning, being but one day out, and this fast and popular train goes through Omaha.

Our No. 11 will leave as heretofore at 6 p. m., arrive at Kansas City at 9:00 a. m., and will reach Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo the second morning.

Our Colorado service is made perfect by this new "Rocky Mountain Limited" and the "Big 5," and gives to the traveling public two flyers daily.

Manitou passengers should consult the map and time tables of our line, to fully appreciate the advantages in time saved by taking this route, when on their summer vacation.

Refreshing Retreats.

Summer days are fast approaching and now is the time that excursionists, pleasure seekers and sportsmen should figure out a route for their summer vacation. In doing so, the delightfully cool summer and fishing resorts located along the Wisconsin Central Lines come vividly to view, among which are Fox Lake, Ill., Lake Villa, Ill., Mukwonago, Waukesha, Cedar Lake, Neenah, Waupaca, Fifield, Butternut and Ashland, Wis. Wisconsin has within the last five years become the center of attraction for more pleasure seekers, hunters and fisherman than in any other state in the union, and each visit increases the desire to again see the charming landscapes, breathe the balsam fragrance that is a part of the invigorating atmosphere, wander through the colonnades of stately pines and hook the speckled beauties with a hand-made fly.

For pamphlet containing valuable information, etc., apply to D. W. Janowitz, T. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind., or Jas. C. Pond, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look, if your stomach be disordered you have a dyspeptic look and if your kidneys be affected you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alternative and tonic acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, blotches boils and gives a good complexion. Sold at Robbins & McCords drugstore 50c. per bottle. 4

J. C. St. John of Greensburg, has a dog that assumes to be the mother and father of four orphan chicks, which he rushes to protect from cats and small boys many times each day.

Pronounced Hopeless, Yet Saved.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd, of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took in all, eight bottles; it has cured me, and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottle free at Robbins & McCords' drugstore, regular size, 50c. and $1.00. 4

A GOOD CROP OF NEWS

GATHERED FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

Bolivar, Venezuela, Captured by the Revolutionists—Reward for Stage Robbers—Two Men Shot by Union Strikers—Foul Play Suspected—Flight of Jail Birds.

THE REVOLUTIONISTS

Seem to Have Things Their Own Way in Venezuela.

Maracobo (Venezuela) special: Confirmation of the capture of the city of Bolivar by the insurgents, and news of the death of the commander of the Goverment forces has been received here. Besides the killing of Gen. Rodil, Gen. Espinozo was made prisoner at Bolivar. He was in command of the town while Rodil was away. The rebel chieftain, Gonzales Gil, rode into Bolivar at the head of a column of cavalry and after a brief defense Espinozo surrendered. Gil, fearing the return of Rodil with a strong force, retired with a large quantity of captured arms. On the second day after Gils' raid Gen. Rodil re-entered the city with a large force. He was exasperated at the state of things in Bolivar and condemned a half dozen military officers, whom he thought responsible, to death. A few days later his troops revolted, took him prisoner and demanded immediate countermanding of the order to shoot certain of their comrades at sun set. Rodil refused to give the order and was shot. Gil returned and took possession of the town, the revolters joining his forces.

Two Men Shot by Union Strikers.

One hundred and fifty ore trimmers from Escanaba, Mich., went to North Escanaba and attacked the non-union men, who were trimming a vessel at that place, with firearms. A lively skirmish ensued and bullets from both sides flew thick and fast for a few minutes. Clark Williams, a non-unionist, was shot in the leg and back and may die. Charles Hamilton was also hit by a bullet, but the wound will not probably prove fatal. After these men were shot the mob of union men fled.

Foul Play Suspected.

Chicago special: Capt. W. P. Egan, who came here from Cleveland to act as agent of the Vessel Owner's Association in fighting the Seamen's Union, has been missing for six days and his friends have given up all hope of ever seeing him alive. The police have been unable to find any trace of the missing man and believe he has been murdered. He was a man of regular habits and not one who could have been intimidated into deserting his post.

Down Through a Trestle.

The first section of a train on the Missouri Pacific road, carrying part of Ringling Bros.' circus, went through a trestle about midway between Concordia and Ames, Kan. Two of the circus employes, names unknown, were instantly killed. The cars were loaded with horses, many of which were killed. The trestle was recently examined and thought to be all right. It is supposed the recent heavy rains had undermined the foundation.

Flight of Jail Birds.

Four prisoners in the county jail at Crawfordsville, Ind., made their escape by sawing their way out and by the assistance of a confederate outside with a crowbar. They were Thomas Lyons, Lewis Miller and Louis Nash, the latter colored burglars, and a tramp. Lyons' trial was in progress and the jury was out when he escaped. The men are still at large.

Reward for Stage Robbers.

Gov. Markham of California, has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of the man who some days ago fired upon the San Andreas stage, killing a young lady passenger and wounding the driver. The Governor also offered a similar reward for the arrest of the men who robbed the Redding stage and killed Messenger Buck Montgomery.

Will Wave Over Hawaii.

Victoria, (B. C.,) special: P. D. Higgs, editor of the Charlottstown, Prince Edwards Island, Guardian, who has just returned here from Honolulu, expresses the opinion that in less than a year from the present time the stars and stripes will be floating over the Hawaiian kingdom.

Rapist and Victim are Dead.

Maggie Doxey, the 5-year-old white girl who was outraged by the colored man, Henry James, who was hanged by a mob on the corner of Fifth and Main streets, Little Rock, Ark., died from the effects of the injuries received, an hour after the hanging occurred.

Are Willing to Serve.

Justice Harlan and Senator Morgan have formally notified the President of their willingness to serve as arbitrators on behalf of the United States in the Behring Sea matter.

Servia Snubs the British Lion.

Servia has definitely refused to renew the commercial treaty with England.

Has Not Heard of the Rustlers.

In reply to the inquiry whether the Government would prosecute the Montana rustlers who shot George Wellman, a deputy United States Marshal, Attorney General Miller said that he had received no official report of the killing, and therefore could not say what the department of justice woud do in the matter.

A Legal Affair.

[illegible]

Chicago special: "Diamond Ed" Huntley, an alleged professional villifier of the Jews, has been indicted by the Federal Grand Jury for maliciously ridiculing people more worthy than himself. Huntley has a clothing store at 184 Madison street. For some reason he cherishes a spiteful grudge against several respectable Jewish merchants of Chicago, and has busied his brain to invent some means to torment them and hold them up to ridicule. His latest scheme, and the one which has caused his entanglement in the meshes of federal law, is to send a postal card to the victim of his spite through the mails, bearing a ridiculous caricature of the person addressed with an insulting allusion to a personal characteristic or misfortune.

HELD UP.

Daring Highway Robbery of a Paymaster in Central New York.

Syracuse (N. Y.) special: One of the most daring robberies ever committed in Central New York and which bids fair to rival the exploits of Oliver Curtis Perry, occurred near this city. Paymaster Royal E. Fox of the Solvay Process Company, left the office with a week's wages for the men, $2,600. He went in a two-wheeled cart and was accompanied by James Houser as driver. The money was in a small wooden box under the wagon seat. Neither of the men were armed. Fox and Houser had nearly reached the end of the journey to the quarries, where the men were to be paid off and were about to enter a private road made by the company, when two masked men jumped from behind a stone wall. Each of them had in his hands two revolvers which they pointed at the occupants of the cart and ordered them to get out and give up the money. While one of the highwaymen kept the men covered with his revolvers the other tied them hand and foot. The robbers then drove toward the quarry, leaving Fox and Houser behind. They went into the woods near by, taking the box with them.

SAVED BY RAIN.

Horrible Railroad Calamity Prevented by Wet Weather.

Tiffin (O.) special: A desperate attempt was made to wreck the westbound limited passenger train on the Baltimore and Ohio railway near the village of Bloomdalle. Twenty-five ties were piled on the track and were struck by the pilate when the train was making fifty-five miles an hour, but owing to the track and ties being slippery on account of the rain the obstructions did not throw the train from the track, though the pilot was damaged and the passengers shaken up by the shock.

The obstruction was removed and the train proceeded on its way. An hour later another train struck a large pile of ties on the track, but without damage. It is stated that some cattle belonging to a farmer residing in the vicinity were recently killed by the cars and that a satisfactory settlement has not been made with the owner.

It is further said that two sons of the farmer attended a dance near where the obstructions were placed on the track, and that they left the ballroom a short time before the attempt was made to wreck the first train. Arrests will doubtless be made.

HOME FOR UNION PRINTERS.

Dedication Ceremonies at Colorado Springs, Col.

The dedication of the Childs-Drexel Home for Union Printers took place at Colorado Springs, Col. The ceremonies were of a most interesting character and were witnessed by a large concourse of people. Mayor Sprague made an address of welcome to the distinguished visitors, and the programme included speeches by Gov. Routt, Senator J. H. Gallinger of New Hampshire, and Geo. W. Childs.

The event of the day was preceded by a parade in two divisions, which formed on Pike's Peak avenue, with Col. L. C. Dana as chief marshal. In the first division were the typographical unions of Denver, Pueblo, Creede, Leadville, and Colorado Springs, headed by the cowboy band of Pueblo, and the carpenters, stonecutters, plumbers, painters, and other trades unions. In the second division the Chaffee Light Artillery acted as escort to Mr. and Mrs. Childs and party, and the State and county officials, with the visiting members of the National Editorial Association and the women members of the Typograhical Union were also in line.

A Race War.

Norfolk (Va.) special: A conflict between a band of citizens and a mob of colored men ended in the death of two persons, in the wounding of more, and in the possibility of additional bloodshed. The conflict occurred at Simmons Creek coal mines between a white man named Justis and a colored man named Wells, in which Justis struck Wells.

Instantly he was pursued by a black mob. Justis took refuge in a house, but entrance was quickly gained and the mob poured in on the victim and shot his brains out. About fifty armed white men chased the blacks. Catching Wells, with whom Justis had the difficulty, they shot him to pieces and wounded one or two more.

New Mexico's Capitol Destroyed.

Santa Fee (N. M.) special: Smoke was seen issuing from the roof of an attic near the base of the south dome of New Mexico's magnificent capitol building. Citizens at once appeared on the scene, but it was evident that the building was doomed. All hands at once stripped the building of furniture, carpets, law library, and every movable article on the two lower floors. The vaults are uninjured. Owing to a quarrel in the late Legislature, no money was appropriated to pay for insurance, and the policies were all allowed to expire. The building was valued at $250,000 and is a total loss.

A Band of Garza Revolutionists Defeated.

Dr. Plutarrio Orntaz, Mexican Consul in San Antonio, Texas, has received the following telegram from Gen. Lorenzo Gacia, commanding the Mexican troops at Mier, at the State of Tamaulipas: Lieut. Indalcia Sada met and had an engagement with a party of Garza revolutionists at a place called Lameca, in this State. The battle resulted in ten revolutionists being killed, among them being Julian Flores and Ablardo Dominquez, alias "Cuartevon." On the Government side one soldier and three horses were killed. The troops are in close pursuit of the remnants of the band.

Fiery Flames.

Warner's institute, at Broadway and Willoughby avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., was wholly destroyed by fire. The building has been recently fitted up by the Zoellner Manna choir, a German singing society, which own the premises. The loss will reach $150,000. Besides the singing society there were located in the building several stores and a branch of the postoffice. The mail matter was nearly all destroyed. Two young men named Carl Nedszu and John Kutzky, employed in the institute building are missing, and it is believed they were burned to death. The origin of the fire is unknown.

A Cyclone at Circleville.

A cyclone struck Circleville, Ohio, unroofing the American Straw Board Works and Heffner Bros. & Co's meal mill. The south end of the tile works was blown in and a big section of the Scioto Machine Works' roof was torn off and carried across the canal, where it struck a brick smokestack belonging to Weldon & Co.'s elevators, completely demolishing it. Several churches were badly damaged. The electric wires throughout the city were badly damaged and the streets were strewn with scattered and uprooted trees to such an extent as to impede travel.

She Wouldn't Have Him.

Frank Crance, a window dresser in Ormstead and Windthroel's dry goods house, Cincinnati, shot and fatally wounded Miss Hattie Hagedorn, a tellow clerk, then blew out his own brains. He claims in letters left that the girl attempted to black mail him. The girl says he committed the crime because she refused to accept his attentions. The girl cannot possibly recover.

He Found a Bomb.

London special: A loaded bomb shell was discovered near the high gate archway by a policeman. The officer saw a curious colored metal lying on the ground as he was on his beat and stopped to examine it, when he discovered that a fuse was projecting from it. He was much frightened and ran hastily to the upper hallway police office where he got a dozen comrades to return with him. They picked the bomb up and carried it to Scotland yard where it was examined. It was found to be loaded with gun cotton, but there is no evidence that the fuse had been lighted.

A Sudden Call.

At the St. Charles Hotel, St. Joseph, Mo., in room No. 13, W. M. Lemon, proprietor of the Troy, Ohio, nursery, was found sitting at a table, a penholder in his hand and a half-finished letter addressed to his wife before him. The hotel clerk placed his hand on Mr. Lemon's shoulder and gave him a slight shake, whereupon he tumbled to the floor. He had been dead several hours, supposedly from heart disease. He was a thirty-second degree Mason and his body was taken in charge by that order and will be sent to his wife at Troy.

Indians on the Warpath.

Gutherie (O. T.,) special: Gov. Seay has received dispatches from the Cheyenne and Arapahoe reservation stating that about 400 Indians were off their allottments, and had driven a number of people out of county "F." These Indians claim that they never signed the treaty for the sale of their lands, and that the whites must get out of the country inside of ten days or be driven out. A large number of Indians refuse to come to the agency, and unless they are controlled at once serious trouble will surely ensue.

Rivaling King Solomon.

John Anderson, probably the greatest bigamist in the United States, was sentenced at Cleveland to seven years at hard labor in the Penitentiary for grand larceny. The exact number of his wives never will be known. Over 120 women have sent inquiries concerning him, asserting that they had been deserted by a man answering his description. It is believed that he has made a systematic business of marrying women, taking their property and deserting them.

Work There for Anarchists.

A telegram from Lodz, in Russian Poland, states that the authorities there have forbidden the manufacturers of the districts to grant their workmen any increase of wages. A number of the men arrested during the recent riots have been sent to the citadel at Warsaw, and those still continuing on the strike will be dealt with by the authorities without trial.

It Made Him Big Money.

John N. Lock of Richmond, Ind., bought a lot in a Chicago suburb twenty years ago for $50. He neglected to record the deed and afterward lost it. John Richey found and kept the deed, but when he died recently his son discovered and forwarded the paper to Mr. Lock. The latter has since received $30,000 for the lot.

Postmaster Instantly Killed.

While out squirrel hunting Homer Dallas, postmaster at Spearsville, was shot and instantly killed by a son of Dr. Mosier. The shooting was accidental. The entire charge from the shotgun was emptied into Dallas' stomach.

Fatal Fall in a Mine.

At Marshal Basin, Col., Anthony Berry made a misstep and plunged to the bottom of the shaft in the Union mine. He was terribly crushed, having struck on his head, and lived but a short time.

Killed by an Electric Car.

Robert Scutter, only child of C. B. Scutter, of the firm of T. M. Sinclair & Co., pork packers of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, while riding horseback was struck by an electric car and instantly killed.

Met a Horrible Death.

The dwelling house of Walter Fitch was burned down at Shades, Ind., and Mrs. Leah Fitch and Mrs. Knapp, the housekeeper, while trying to save property, were burned to death.

Escaped Electrocution.

Gov. Flower of New York, has commuted to imprisonment for life the sentence of Henry C. Ganning, who was to have been electrocuted at Sing Sing prison during this week.

A Fatal Leap.

John Welch, aged twenty-one years, son of John Welch, of South Niles, Ohio, was fatally injured by jumping from a fast running freight on the P., Y. & A.

Knocked Out in Four Rounds.

The fight before the Coney Island Club, New York, between George Godfrey and Joe Lannon, resulted in a victory for the former in four rounds.

Germany Accepts.

It is stated that Germany has accepted the invitation to the international silver conference.

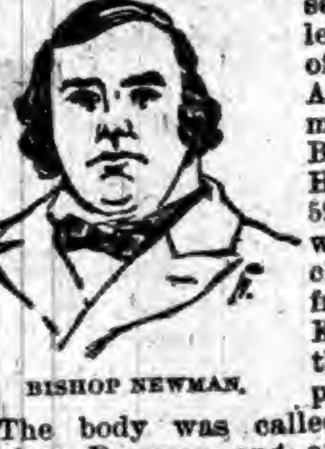
MARCH OF METHODISM.

THEIR TWENTY-FIRST QUADRENNIAL CONFERENCE.

Gathering at Omaha of Some of the Most Eminent Divines of the World—Reports from the Bishops of India and Africa.

An August Body.

Omaha has been the scene of a most interesting conference of Methodist ministers, the twenty-first quadrennial session of the legislative body of that church. At the opening meeting in Boyd's Opera House, 509 of the 522 delegates were present, including many from the United Kingdom. All the bishops were present.



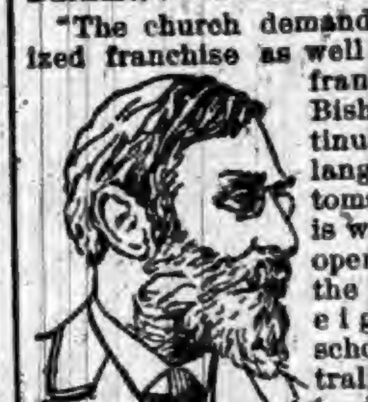
BISHOP NEWMAN.

The body was called to order by Bishop Bowman, and after appropriate ceremonies, Dr. Monroe was chosen Secretary, and the lay delegates, at their own request, were accorded seats apart from the ministers. After the usual scramble for eligible seats, two hours' time was given to the episcopal address, which was delivered by Bishop Foster. The past quadrennial, the report stated, had been a prosperous one for the church. Work in the foreign field had been given special care, and numerous visits by the bishop to foreign lands had been made with beneficial results. The book concerns of the church are the largest in the world. There have been no dissensions in the church and there is more intelligence and less bigotry in the pulpit.

The membership during the past four years has grown rapidly, and now numbers 2,293,614 communicants; 442,000 souls have been added to the church during the four years by confession of faith; churches have increased 264, with an increased valuation of $18,321,321; contributions to all societies have increased $334,135. The Epworth League received great praise as a mediator between the Sunday school and the church. It has in three years sprung up from naught to 8,000 chapters with 500,000 members. The National University at Washington is announced as a certainty and liberal endowments asked for, as millions will be necessary for its equipment. The woman's college in Baltimore was also commended.

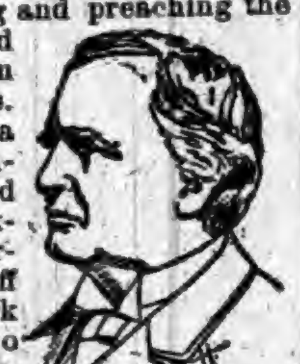
JOHN WESLEY.

"The church demands an Americanized franchise as well as a naturalized franchise," said the Bishop. "The continuation of foreign languages and customs in this country is wrong, and we are openly opposed to the teaching of foreign languages in schools. The centralization of wealth is denounced, and if not arrested there will be danger to the social and state functions. The church must act. It cannot side with wealth; it must go with the toiling mass. Total abstinence is imperative, and complete prohibition is urgent."



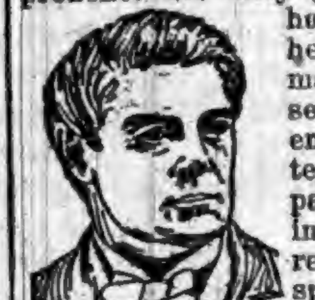
BISHOP FITZGERALD.

Bishop Thoburn, of India and Mayalasia, in his report, said the Methodist Church was teaching and preaching the gospel in India and Mayalasia in thirteen different languages. The work in India was in excellent condition, but the need was great. The working force from America had fallen off some, but the work had continued to grow. The membership had increased nearly 30,000 during the quadrennial. The Methodist Sunday schools in India now have a membership of over 55,000, an increase of 15,000 during the four years past. In the day schools the church had 29,000 native pupils of India. The report warmly commended the work of women in the missions of India. The church has established three publishing houses, and is sending out pamphlets and periodicals in nine different languages from its own presses. "The day of small things is past," said the Bishop. "We must take up the work before us and carry practically the responsibilities laid upon us. We do not know what may happen to-morrow, but we do know that the sun never sets in the morning. It is just morning in India. Let us up and be doing while the daylight lasts."



BISHOP GOODSELL.

Bishop Taylor, of Africa, undertook to read his report, but having been a preacher for fifty years without ever having read a sermon, he broke down on his manuscript. By consent of the conference he was permitted to lay aisde his paper and talk. Being one of the most ready and powerful speakers in the Methodist Church, he had fair sailing, and soon had everything his own way. Although about 80 years of age, he does more work than almost any other preacher in the convention, and is held in the highest regard by the clergy and the laity. He is one of the marked characters among the bishops, though age is telling on him. At the close of the bishop's address he presented to the conference a native African girl about 4 years old, and only nine months out of heathen Africa. The little girl was placed upon the speakers' table amid great cheering. When Bishop Taylor said that the child had been out of heathendom only nine months, Bishop Fowler added: "And is now in the general conference." This sally brought down the house. Bishop Bowman stepped to the table and took the child by the hand, at which a colored delegate shouted that now prophecy is fulfilled in that "Ethiopia has stretched forth its hands unto God." The blushes of Bishop Bowman, as he was the one that took the outstretched hand, created a storm of applause. This was one of the most pleasant incidents of the conference so far.



BISHOP WALDEN.

In the discussion of the American university and Christian education, all the addresses were with reference to the proposed great university at Washington, which will be open only to college graduates and the doors of which are not to be thrown open until an endowment fund of $5,000,000 has been secured. The nature of the scheme was set forth by Bishop Hurst while presiding. Rev. Dr. Moulton, the English delegate, was called for by the audience, and responded briefly, expressing his approval of the magnificent scheme and faith in its consummation. It was announced that several subscriptions had already been promised, Mrs. McCabe taking the first share of $1,000. Another sum across the water is only waiting for some one to go after it. A resolution was adopted asking the bishops to designate Oct. 16 as Columbian day, when subscriptions will be taken for the American university.

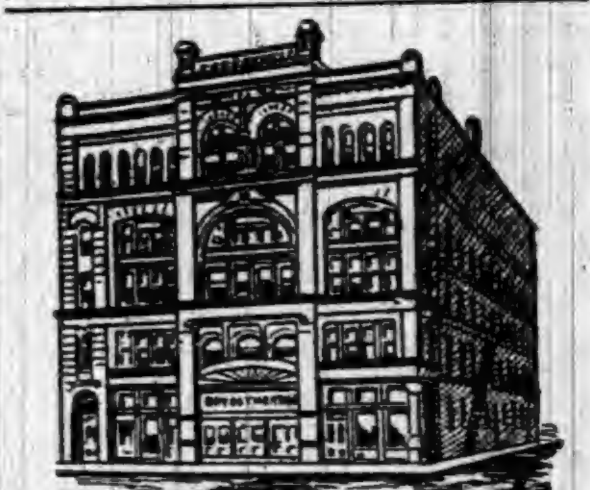
A resolution unanimously passed asking all the societies of the Methodist Church to decline to ask for or receive any financial aid from the United States Government for any educational or religious work—whether among the Indians or others. It was stated that the Methodist Church, as a church, had never asked for or received any such aid, though some quasi-Methodist organization had received a few thousand dollars. The Methodist Church goes on record as being utterly opposed to the government assisting any religious body in a financial way. If any denomination cannot live without government aid, the feeling was that it would be better for it to make an assignment and go out of business. A complete separation of church and state is an absolute necessity, and by this action of the General Conference the Methodist Church has joined hands with the great Baptist Church, which, so it is claimed, has never received any government aid for denominational purposes.

The farewell remarks of Dr. Moulton, the Wesleyan delegate, were in good taste, and were heartily applauded. Bishop Vincent's response in behalf of the conference was eloquent and comprehensive. The conference joined in singing two verses of the hymn beginning "Blest be the tie that binds," and Dr. Moulton left for his home in London.

Most disorderly scenes were the rule during the discussion of the rules of order, for the laymen are jealous of their rights, and the clerical brethren are equally desirous not to lose any of their prerogatives. So much time has been wasted that it would seem it would be well to adopt a set of rules that will not have to be tinkered with every quadrennium. There are too many parliamentary martinets who can tell the difference betwixt the north and northwest side of a hair. Those who are sticklers for the niceties of parliamentary law obstruct legislation, though they exhibit their skill in debate.

The laymen were anxious to have a rule passed that would give them the advantage in putting the clerical delegates on record, but by a separate vote of orders they failed. The lay vote for this change of rule was 113 and clerical 48; total 161. But 216 clerical delegates and 37 lay voted against, and the motion was lost, and the clerics scored a big point.

Among the pleasant incidents of the session was the marriage of the oldest delegate, Dr. John L. Smith of Valparaiso, Ind., who has passed his eightieth mile-stone, but who is as vigorous as most men of 60. The bride is probably 50 years of age and is sprightly and handsome, and no one wonders why the veteran minister has chosen such a companion for the closing years of a busy and successful life. The venerable groom is as gallant and as happy as if only coming out of this teens.



BOYD'S OPERA HOUSE.

The committee on the World's Columbian Exposition reported, and the report was adopted. It sets forth the Christian character of the discoverers of America and of the founders of this Republic. It recounts the expressed opinions of the fathers of the nation, and of Abraham Lincoln, and other such men. The following resolutions in substance were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That to open the gates of the exposition on the Sabbath would be to afflict 2,500,000 Methodists and 10,000,000 adherents, and would shock the moral sentiments of all civilized nations and violate the law of God.

Resolved, That Congress should condition all appropriations upon the written agreement that the gates shall be closed on the Sabbath.

The action of the general conference has been telegraphed to both houses of Congress and to the President and to the officers of the World's Columbian Exposition. While the conference is heartily in favor of the exposition it is heartily opposed to its opening on the Lord's day, and the utterance of the highest and most influential body in the Methodist Church will powerfully affect the entire denomination, and will have much to do with the exhibits and the attendance upon the exposition.

The great debate of the conference upon changing the constitution of the church was carried on at almost interminable length, extending over several days, but always with lively interest. The main question was the right of representation of laymen. The final action was regarded as a victory for those who held that the plan of lay representation is not a part of the constitution, but it was not satisfactory to the committee, because there were many other things in the report that they wished to have discussed.

Dr. J. M. King, of New York, a leading candidate for the episcopacy, offered a resolution for a proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States. It relates to the protection of the public schools in the United States against religious encroachments and to define the attitude of the churches with relation to the schools. Dr. King spoke earnestly in behalf of the resolution. He wanted the conference to indorse the bill which has been prepared upon the subject of the complete divorcement of church and state. The passage of this bill would save the public schools from sectarian influence, he said, and would remove a great deal of politics from the churches. The resolution was adopted.

One of the colored delegates offered a resolution pledging the colored Methodists to loyalty to the church, and one of the most interesting debates of the session took place, being conducted entirely by colored delegates. Four speeches were made and the speakers compared well with any of the white brethren. One of the speakers said that the complaint named by Dr. Buckley as bishop-phobia had attacked the colored preachers as well as the white, but as the colored preachers were the pupils of the white it would be natural for the pupils to follow the example and teachings of their intructors. It was decided that there was no necessity for any utterance concerning the loyalty of the colored people, as for twenty-five years they have been faithful and true to all the interests of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Nearly all the evangelical churches in Omaha, led by their pastors, showed marked attention to the general conference, opening their pulpits on the Sabbath and their church edifices during the week for committee purposes. In return for this courtesy the conference voted to place chairs on the platform with the bishops for the use of the pastors of Omaha.

THEY SPED TO DEATH.

FRIGHTFUL WRECK IN OHIO ON THE BIG FOUR.

In a Driving Storm Two Trains Crash Together—A Change in the Schedule Not Heeded—Eight Lives Pay the Penalty.

A Tale of Horror.

In the midst of a terrific storm of wind and rain two Big Four trains crashed into each other at Cleves, Ohio, Sunday morning, with awful effect. Not a person on either train escaped injury. Many of the wounded have been removed, and their number is not definitely known. As far as learned the dead are: Engineer Wm. Higgs of Indianapolis, Fireman Hiram Bruce of Indianapolis, Philip Gibbon, David Harwood, Engineer Berry Edwards. Those removed from the wreck and found to be fatally injured are: Fireman Holton Tyrrell, Conductor John Schroeder, George W. Hudler.

Five to eight passengers are said to be missing, who are supposed to be in the smoker, which is buried in the wreck. Nothing is known as to who they are. No one is able to conceive how any of them could have escaped death under that mass of wreckage.

The summer schedule went into effect Sunday morning, and orders had been issued accordingly. Freight No. 43, a through train north-bound, had orders to stop at North Bend to allow express No. 80, a cannon-ball special, to pass. Under the old schedule the trains passed at another point some miles further on. Instead of stopping the freight engineer, Higgs, pulled ahead and approached Cleves running at the rate of twenty miles an hour. Why he did not stop at North Bend will never be known, as he is dead, but it is thought that in his anxiety over this storm, which might have washed out bridges, he forgot the new schedule and hurried on.

As the train approached Cleves Chas. Smith, the telegraph operator, was astounded, for he knew that it should have side-tracked at North Bend, and that the express, a few minutes overdue then, was but a short distance away, running forty-five miles an hour to make up lost time. Smith rushed to the signal wires and dashed off the danger signal. Either it was not seen in the blinding rain or the engineer could not control his engine, for it sped on by without lessening speed.

At that very moment the express came into sight with the speed of the wind. If any effort was made on either engine to slacken speed it was not appreciable, and the iron monsters sprang at and crashed into each other with a roar that rolled above the storm like a clap of thunder. Both engines were battered into shapeless masses and rolled off the track.

The cars behind were mashed into kindling and the track for 100 feet was torn up. Telegraph poles were thrown down, and it was two or three hours after the wreck before word reached Cleves, and a special train was sent to the scene from Cincinnati. Long before, however, the people from the little village and from the surrounding country had gathered, and in the frightful storm were doing all they could for the victims.

With the arrival of the special train the work of getting out the dead began. Of the five bodies recovered four were shockingly mangled and mashed out of all human shape. Under the freight engine, broken, crushed and scalded, were found Engineer William Higgs and his fireman, Hiram Bruce, both of Indianapolis. Under a mashed freight car farther back Philip Gibbon and David Harwood were found. Nearly every bone in their bodies was broken and their faces were horribly disfigured.

The fifth body taken out was that of Barry Edwards, engineer of the passenger train. His fireman, Holton Tyrrell, had jumped before the crash, but had been caught under a mass of wreckage. His chest was crushed in and his head cut. He was taken to Lawrenceburg, but cannot survive. John Schroeder, conductor of the passenger train, was injured in almost the same manner, and can live but a few hours at the most. George W. Hudler, a commercial traveler from Miamisburg, was crushed between two seats, being bent almost double. He was taken to the Cincinnati hospital and cannot survive.

Conductor Schroeder was only able to speak once after being extricated. Then it was that he gave the information that when the train left Valley Junction there were from five to eight men in the smoker. Valley Junction is less than two miles from the scene of the wreck. This is the basis for the fear that these people are buried in death under the wreck.

"Honey" Keefe, a freight brakeman, had just reached the top of a car when the collision occurred. The crash was so terrible that he was thrown over a telegraph wire forty feet into a stream of water, which saved his life. He tinhks at least three tramps met death under the wreck of the freight train.

The property loss will be $100,000. Both engines are complete wrecks, and the coaches of the express train are ruined. It is said much valuable mail and express matter is lost. A dozen freight cars loaded with costly goods are a total loss.

A train on the Norfolk & Western road was wrecked eleven miles from Hagerstown, Md., at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. It was in charge of Conductor William Hays, and was made up of a sleeper, two coaches, a smoker, and a baggage car. Just as the engine reached the switch it jumped the track and dashed into freight cars on a siding. Conductor Hays was on the platform of a car and was hurled headlong thirty feet against the rocks and instantly killed. John Hauke, a passenger hailing from Lewiston, Pa., was dug out of the wreck with a broken leg and suffering internal injuries. He will die. His father was also badly hurt. Another passenger, supposed to be a drummer, was taken out in a dying condition. A card found in his pocket bore the name John Boyle, Brooklyn, N. Y. C. N. Wenner, traveling passenger agent, and William Elslinger of West Fairview, Penn., were also severely hurt.

Estimating Horse Power.

The horse-power unit was established by James Watt about a century ago, and the figures were settled in a curious way. Watt, in his usual careful manner, proceeded to find out the average work which the horses of his district could perform, and he found that the raising of 22,000 pounds one foot per minute was about an actual horse-power. As a method of encouraging business, Watt offered to sell engines reckoning 33,000 foot pounds to a horse-power, or one-third more than the actual.

HEARTS OF GOLD

—OR—

THE HEIRESS OF MAPLE LEAF FARM

BY GENEVIEVE ULMER.

CHAPTER I.

WHITE VIOLETS.

Maple Leaf Farm lay bathed in the golden sunlight of a rare autumnal day.

They had named the place well those sturdy old Forsythes who, for three generations, had drawn from its soil the rich fruits of an inexhaustible fertility, redeeming the broad acres from the wilderness, and building and improving until the square mile of field, timber and brookside resembled some notable English grange.

Where the many gabled house stood, the thrifty maples shut it in to a nest floored with golden-hued fallen leaves, and fanned by crimson beauties still pendent to the mother stem, flaunting their gay tintings like vari-colored banners.

It was now, when the glories of the harvest still lingered, when each field looked like some swept lawn, and the barn groaned with golden store, and nature, man and beast seemed resting for a later battle with winter and storm, that Maple Leaf Farm looked its best, and it was now that stalwart, iron-knit John Elliott, gazing across the fenced-in paradise of his hopes and ambitions, thrilled proudly.

Ten years agone he had brought his motherless child, Ruth, to the farm, to be welcomed by old Geoffrey Forsythe, his dead wife's bachelor brother.

"I wrote for you," the sad-faced recluse had said, "because the farm was going to ruin, and you have the vigor and the ambition to redeem it. I am failing daily. I give you the use of the place as virtual owner while you live. After that"—and he gazed affectionately at golden-haired little Ruth—"she shall be my heiress, and her husband shall carry on the work you begin."

And then Geoffrey Forsythe had kissed the wonder-eyed child who so resembled his dead sister, had retired to the gloomy stone residence he owned in the village of Ridgeton, a mile distant, and dropped out of their lives as fully as though he had gone to foreign parts.

A recluse, an invalid, once a year he came to the farm, once a month Ruth visited him in the hermitage, where he seemed to dwell only to brood over a broken past.

They told of a love episode in his career that had left him in its wake only heart-wreck and sorrow. She had jilted him, but he could not recognize the coquette in the fair being who seemed an angel to his blinded, longing gaze.

She had wedded another. They had both died, leaving a son, Ralph, and when John Elliott came to the farm old Geoffrey had said to him:

"I make but one restriction to your exclusive control of everything. A sense of duty impels me to keep her boy out of the poorhouse. You are to take Ralph, make a man of him, and some day, may be, he and Ruth——"

Grim John Elliott understood, and Ralph had become a member of his family, to all eyes, except the blind ones of Geoffrey Forsythe and John Elliott, developing traits of secrecy, cunning and rudeness that carried out the defective training of a deceitful mother and a reckless, unprincipled sire.

Since then the years had gone on, each one adding to the beauty and value of Maple Leaf Farm, and John Elliott might well experience a flush of joy as he surveyed his goodly heritage that bright, glowing afternoon.

"It took time to get the hang of things," he murmured, with self-gratulation, "but I managed it. There isn't a farm in a day's journey that equals this. The last year has mended every broken fence, propped up every crooked barn, and the profits—I shall be rich before I die, very rich!"

Farmer John spoke truly. The last year had been a golden one indeed. In his stubborn pride he took all the credit for it, but his was not the hand that had wrought the change.

He half guessed it, as a tall, manly fellow of about twenty-five came from one of the granaries.

"Mr. Elliott, the wagons will be here for the wheat to-morrow," he remarked.

"Very well, you can attend to it. And, say, Dalton, we had better cast up accounts to-night."

The young man bowed with a dignity that told of a past career considerably above the level of farm culture. Farmer John turned and watched him with a calculating eye as he strolled toward the road.

"I can't make him out," he muttered. "I never could. I never will. He came here, quiet and gentlemanly, a year ago, and asked for work—no friends, no references. He thrashed like a bound hand, but I'll wager he never saw a flail before. Then I put him in charge of the men. Then he began to help me out with my accounts, and he's been a jewel, earning double his wages, saving me four times as much, and always the quiet, gentlemanly, unassuming fellow—Great Goshen! it never struck me before. But suppose it is him him that's at the bottom of the new mischief I've scented!"

Farmer John brought his sinewy fist down on the fence till it quivered, under the force of a new and overwhelming idea.

Black as a thundercloud grew his broad, bronzed face, so lately wreathed with smiles of satisfaction.

"Some one is at the bottom of it. Some one's robbing me systematically. It can't be him, but—who knows? He's a stranger; he knows where the keys are, and—I'll watch!"

The sun had gone under a hazy cloud, the first forerunner of damp weather. Nature was in sympathy with the dark shadows that the impression of a wilful suspicion was about to cast about the peaceful home.

Paul Dalton, the young superintendent, all unconscious of the web with iron warp and woof of steel that fate had just begun to weave for him, walked on till he reached the grove of maples lining the road.

One glance at his expressive face, intelligent eyes, expansive brow, daintily shaped hands, told that he had not always been a tiller of the soil.

Something in the half-veiled eyes spoke of a hidden past, of ambition thwarted, of a soul bound to iron-like, uncompromising duty for the sake of others.

Something, too, just then awoke the sentimental in the heart of the inexplicable mystery of Maple Leaf Farm that would have made hard, practical Farmer John stare in wonder, had he been there.

Whistling softly to himself, Paul Dalton, glancing down, saw some tiny flowers growing at his feet.

He leaned over and picked two of them. They were violets, late stayers, sheltered by the protecting hedge and nourished by the rich damp soil around them.

"White violets," he murmured with a bright smile, "the first I have ever seen, though, from the dairymaids' talk, they are common enough to the faithful lover. Little of that for me," he sighed grimly, "but what superstition shall I fit to them.

"Cross the stile with violets white,
Your love shall pass that way ere night.

He smiled dreamily, the poet's reverie in his fine eyes, as he bound the two pretty flowers with a thread of grass and caught the brittle stems against a splinter in the slanting rail. Then, more serious, as some duty of labor was suggested to his mind by observing the workmen idling about a hay-mow, he crossed the field.

A faint glow came into his cheeks. Perhaps he thought of the violets, and the superstition his ready mind had associated with them. At all events, he thought of the pretty, wild-rose face, and the trim, dainty form, for his eyes grew somber, and he directed the men at their work in a preoccupied, mechanical way.

Some fascination of destiny came into his cheerless life as, at liberty again, he wended his way toward the grove where Ruth had disappeared.

Then a frown darkened his brow, bitter and distrustful, as he observed that she had a companion.

"That idler, Ralph Prescott!" he murmured. "What does Mr. Elliott keep that man about here for?"

An unwelcome companion was the favorite of old Geoffrey Forsythe just then to the dainty Ruth, however. Paul Dalton knew that a moment later.

For, as he was about to retrace his steps, a fluttering, indignant outcry reached his ears.

"How dare you, sir!"

Ruth's mellow tones, robbed of their usual gentleness, spoke. The reply grated harshly.

"Dare? That's good, Ruth! Give me the books, I say! I saw; I was watching. You've got them between the leave. You won't take a keepsake from me. I ain't handsome enough for that, but some other fellow—I will have them!"

"You cowardly spy!" gasped pretty Ruth. "Oh, I hate you! I hate you! Help! You shall not have the book!"

"I will!"

In half a dozen sturdy strides, Paul Dalton reached the spot where the altercation was going on.

An exciting scene greeted his vision.

The great rough Ralph had just torn a book from Ruth's hands and she was striving to recover it.

"Give it to me!" she cried, her eyes flashing, her face aflame. "Oh, if I were only a man!"

"Miss Ruth, here is your book."

Quick as a flash, Paul Dalton had acted. How it was ever done the confused Ruth could not tell, but the next moment his athletic form had sprung through the shrubbery, the book was snatched from the astounded Ralph Prescott's hands, was tendered to its owner, and Ralph himself lay prostrate, ten feet away, seeing stars.

With a growl of rage and muttered threats he limped out of reach of his indignant adversary a moment later.

"What was it?" querried Paul, solicitously; "you will pardon me, but that great rough fellow——"

Trembling all over Ruth Elliott confusedly turned over the leaves of the book.

"I—I had something; it is lost," and then she burst into inexplicable womanly tears.

"Was it something of value?" asked Paul, gently. "Perhaps I can help you find it."

"No, I have found it."

Paul Dalton started as from a shock. A tell-tale blush on her face, hastily, guiltily, pretty Ruth Elliott had picked up at her feet the object missing from her book, the cause of all the exciting episode of the moment.

Two white violets bound with a thread of grass.

Comprehendingly, quivering with nameless emotion, Paul Dalton recognized them, and as she, shame-faced, fluttering, dropped the flowers again, he regained them and tendered them to her with earnest, searching, hopeful glance.

Their hands touched as she took them—and she trembled!

Their eyes met as he realized that they were precious to her—and he thrilled!

CHAPTER II.

PLOTTING.

Ill-favored, sullen-hearted Ralph Prescott nursed his swollen cheek and his impotent rage in silence and solitude the remainder of that eventful day.

He did not appear at supper time, and the ensuing day he mounted a horse early and gave Maple Leaf farm a wide berth until after dark.

Farmer John met him the next forenoon, and asked him what was up, but he evaded a direct reply.

Pretty Ruth only laughed slyly when interrogated. He was too happy; she saw too much of brave, earnest Paul Walton those days to get even the officious Ralph into trouble by betraying his rudeness.

Once only she met the surly Ralph face to face.

"I'm watching and I'm thinking," he told her in tragic accents of mysterious import. "You won't keep up your flirtation very long."

"Poor Ralph!" she replied banteringly. "Don't think! The effort might bring on brain fever!"

"Don't fret!" flashed out Ralph fiercely. "You'll see what kind of a man this new lover of yours is soon. You're mine, by rights; it was always so understood, and—I'll have revenge."

Happy Ruth laughed at the dark threats and blushed at the idea of a lover.

Ralph evaded Paul Dalton, anathematised him at a distance, refused to break bread at the same table with him, and the third night after the altercation stole cautiously into the house at dusk, stole guiltily out again, and made for the distant village much with the excitement and haste of a midnight assassin.

"I've done it," he chuckled, gleefully. "Old Elliott has been suspicious for a week. He'll miss it, sure, and the way I've fixed it——"

Crafty Ralph seemed to feel very sanguine and very joyful over some plot that bid fair to materialize ere the evening had passed away.

He reached the village and proceeded straight to its tavern.

Arrived, it seemed necessary for him to prop up his courage, for he drained several glasses at the bar, and then, retiring to an inner room, sat at a table lost in reflection.

"I'll give it time to come to a focus," he soliloquized. "In about an hour I'll go home and witness the explosion. Paul Walton, you crossed a bad man's track when you crossed mine!"

More meditation, the crafty face expressing varied and fleeting emotions, and then Ralph drew two photographs from his pocket.

At one he gazed fondly; it was that of Ruth.

At the other he glared venomously—hatred and jealousy held in thrall in one concentrated look.

"I stole it from her room. He gave it to her," hissed the self-confessed thief. "How I hate him!"

Paul Walton's placid eyes gazed up from the picture. Their earnest glance maddened his infuriated rival.

He spread it out upon the table; he struck it; he spat upon it.

Then, taking out his pocket-knife, he began to jab at it.

"How I hate him!" He burrowed out one eye. "I wish it was his real throat." And the envenomed plotter described a skillful swoop across the cardboard. "There's his miserable heart!" Jab, jab, jab!—the blade quivered in the innocent picture, until it was perforated like a bullet-riddled battle flag.

"Hello! Queer amusement, I says."

"Who are you?" he demanded, angrily; what business——"

"Queer amusement, I says," he repeated, insolently.

"Is it any of your business?" demanded Ralph, hotly, securing and hiding the photograph.

"Oh, no," retorted the other, coolly; "only I can guess the truth—you hate that man."

Ralph gritted his teeth vengefully.

"And you haven't got pluck enough to deal with the real fellow as you do with his picture."

"See here——" began Ralph, furiously.

"No, you see here. I'm a keen one, I am. Mebbe I can help you. That man is a rival, eh?"

"Suppose he is?"

"And you want to get even with him?"

"What if I do?"

"Well, I know something. It's curious how I know it, but I happen to, all the same. You want revenge. Tell me your story, all about that man, and I'll tell you something in return that will make your eyes snap. I'll show you a way of revenge that will make you just get up and howl with delight."

"Do you mean it?" muttered Ralph, dubiously.

"Treat me right, promise me enough to pay a night's lodging and keep, and see if I'm boasting."

"Now, then?" he cried expectantly, glaring in eagerness at his companion.

"Now then it is. When I saw that picture I was sort of startled."

"Why?"

"I know that man."

"You know him?"

"Yes."

"What of it?"

"His name begins with a W, first name P—Paul. Is that a clever guess? and how's Dalton for the rest of it?"

"I don't see anything wonderful in that. Everybody about here knows that."

"Yes, but I don't live about here. Never was here before, and didn't know that Paul Dalton was within a thousand miles of here."

"Well, knowing now that he is, what of it?"

"What of it!" repeated the other excitedly. "This of it. If I can tell you something about that man that will sweep him from your path like a hurricane, if I can prove certain facts that once known will drive him from Maple Leaf Farm like a flash, what then?"

"Can you do it?" he panted.

"I can. Is it $50 if I do?"

"Yes, a hundred. Out with it. What do you know of this man, Paul Dalton?"

The tramp leaned over. His blowsy lips touched the ear of the eager Ralph.

He whispered seven words—words freighted with an intelligence that meant ruin and disaster to the innocent Paul Dalton—heart-break and misery for the girl with the trusting heart and the wild-rose face.

"Prove that!" he gasped, hoarsely. "Prove it, and I'll give you, not fifty, not a hundred, but five hundred dollars. Oh, the luck of it! Oh, the joy of it. Paul Dalton, I have you in my power at last!"

The Match.

Seven cities contended to be the birthplace of Homer, and about as many nations claim the inventor of the match as their son. As a matter of fact, the inventor of this indispensable and highly important industrial article is a Hungarian chemist who is still living, and who himself tells us: "One day during the year 1836, while I was studying at the University of Vienna, I heard a lecture on peroxide of lead, and the lecturer rubbed the brown powder in a mortar with sulphur, which should have caused the sulphur to catch fire. However, he did not succeed in this, and it occurred to me that phosphorus instead of sulphur would ignite much quicker. This was the origin of the invention."

Tricking the Dogs.

When compelled to travel all night, the Siberian natives always make a practice of stopping just before sunrise and allowing their dogs to go to sleep. They argue that if the dog goes to sleep while it is yet dark and wakes up in an hour and finds the sun shining, he will suppose that he has had a full night's rest and will travel all day without thinking of being tired. One or even two hours' stop at any other time is perfectly useless, as the dogs will be uncontrollable from that time forward until they are permitted to take what they think a full allowance of sleep.

Surprised.

Among the many stories that Palgrave Simpson told me, says a writer, was one about his first start as a dramatist. He used to live in Brompton after his return from Paris, where he had been a pupil of the great Scribe. He was of striking appearance, with long black hair and a mustache, and used to wear a cloak. During his walks abroad he came across a lady who seemed to shrink from him as if she feared him. One day he was passing by Thurloe square, and gave a penny to a crossing sweeper, and hearing a cry of astonishment turned sharply around. The exclamation came from the opposite side of the road. It emanated from the lady who had so frequently exhibited signs of apprehension at his approach, and who now seemed astounded at his little act of philanthropy. Soon after this meeting, armed with a letter of introduction, he took a piece to a theater in the Strand to read to one of the management. The author did his best, and the reading went off well. At the conclusion the manager said:

"And now, Mr. Simpson, you must allow me to introduce you to my mother."

"I shall be delighted," said Palgrave.

At this moment a lady entered the room, in whom my friend recognized the stranger he had seen in Thurloe Square.

"This is Mr. Palgrave Simpson, who has been reading me a most amusing farce," said the manager.

The lady appeared to be in the last stage of astonishment.

"Good gracious!" she exclaimed; "why, it is the benevolent brigand!"

The Idol of Inishkea, Ireland.

It is not so many years since the priests succeeded in crushing a superstition which almost amounted to a kind of idolatry. A stone image, or storm god, rudely carved into a human shape, was set up on the south island, but was afterward for years on the north island, where it was kept in a kind of temple erected for it, the remains of which are still standing, and from this it would be taken out and set facing the quarter from which the natives desired that a storm should come. It was subsequently brought back to the south island, where it was broken up by a priest some fifteen or twenty years ago. The islanders put the pieces together again and kept them in position by a kind of garment fastened round them, but the priest returned, carried the fragments out to sea and threw them overboard.

In a district where wood is so scarce the value of a wreck on the coast is enormous, and wrecking used to be practiced whenever possible, with the usual barbarous accompaniments, but no instance of it has been known since 1848. Wreckage is as much valued as ever, and the people on the coast bemoan the use of iron ships and the increase in the number of lighthouses.

Other superstitions still prevail, such as its being unlucky to bury a drowned man; that the souls of drowned persons go into seals; and the existence of fairies. It is said that there are five seals in Broadhaven Bay well known to be much more wary and cunning than any others, and these have "the fairies" in them instead of human souls; at least so goes the tale.

Ladies Like the Wheel.

The other day, writes a correspondent of the Bicycling News, passing through Birmingham, I was greatly interested in seeing a well-known lady doctor going her rounds on her tricycle. She was neatly dressed in a dark striped woolen costume and a small dark hat and fur boa—a style of dress in which she was equally ready to appear in a sick room or to mount into the saddle.

Pat.

It is related that at the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Soule, of Freeport, Me., recently, the minister in the course of a long prayer said: "Oh, Lord, give grace to some soul to-day." As the groom was known familiarly as "Sum" Soule, and as his bride's name was Grace, the prayer was answered satisfactorily, although the clergyman was unconscious of having said anything so well fitting the occasion.

"There Was a Man in Our Town."

The modern counterpart of the man who recovered his lost eyes by a second jump into a bramble bush is found in the person of A. A. Hubbard, of Stetson, Me. The other day Hubbard dislocated his shoulder by falling from an ox cart, and while on the way to a neighboring lawyer's his horse twitched the sleigh in some way so that the shoulder was forced back into its original position.

Can't See a Joke.

Gertrude Souine, a pretty girl of 18 years, who lives in a town in Aroostook County, Maine, has never been known to laugh or even to smile. While intelligent in other matters, she apparently can not understand a joke and is unmoved by the keenest witticisms.

A Grand Plan.

"How do you make your paper go, anyhow? I never see it anywhere."

"We print pictures of prominent men and they buy it."

"Oh, no; to destroy."—Puck.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

It Might Have Been Worse.

In the springtime, when the natural elements change from the lifelessness of icy winter to the genial and life-like loveliness of a more tropical season. It is then that gentle rains and warm sunshine cheer the heart and develop the vegetation and flowers in the beauty and usefulness of sublimity and graneur. So sing the poets, but this spring seems to be an exception to the general rule. The rain fell, floods came and wash-outs, broken dams and watery desolation, stand as the strongest evidences of the mysterious power of the elements. The work of the tillers of the soil has been delayed, and crops that should have been put in the ground long ago and ready for cultivation now, are not yet in the ground. Farmers take but very little time to sport or rest. Upon their success depends the bread and butter of a great many people. But why speak so discouragingly of the unavoidable situation in which we are placed? It might have been worse, and will bear a comparison to what can be said of A. Lewis, in regard to the business he did last week, regardless of wind, rain or mud. His receipts for the week were $1,166, which shows very plainly that he is selling lumber in quantities that pay. Those who need building materials have learned to know that A. Lewis & Co.'s, is the place to deal, and though $1,166 is not a large amount of money, it might have been worse.

We Challenge

Any man, woman or child who is affected with constipation, dyspepsia, headache, or torpid liver to prove that a few doses of Simmons Liver Regulator will not relieve them. It never fails, and is so pure, so sure, so harmless that an infant can take it and never have a second spell of colic. A adult can take it, keep the bowels regular and secure health.

THERE is some dispute as to the number of electors for president. If based on the number of representatives and senators elected this fall, it will be 444; but if based on the number now in office it will be 420. But it is likely to be 444, as it was done that way in 1872.

JUDGE CHAPIN at Ft. Wayne last week had medicine in two bottles, one for external and one for internal use. By mistake he took a dose of the "outside" kind, and was deadly sick for a time. This is the first instance we ever knew of a republican politician making a mistake as to the proper bottle.

BILL passed the House permitting ships not built altogether in United States, to take out American registry and carry the American flag. Democratic House did this. Republicans have for thirty years prevented it. We may yet see our flag floating at sea as it used to do under democratic administrations.

The Democratic Convention.

One week from Saturday, May 28, the delegates to the democratic county convention will meet in Butler to select the democratic candidates to be voted for at the coming election. And if the democrats are to be successful, as we believe they will be the candidates selected will be our next county officers, and have charge of the county's finances and all her business. Do the delegates to these conventions stop to realize the importance of the duty before them and that to a certain extent, the welfare of the county is temporarily in the hands? We hope they do. If they do, then they need make no mistakes. There are plenty of good men to choose from, and if among these they are not suited, there are hundreds of good men all over the county, and outside of the already known list from which suitable officers may be selected Let the delegates not forget, that for many years there have been charges of mismanagement in our offices, and whether these charges are true or false, it should be a warning to delegates, that there need be no further mistakes. For if mistakes have been made, if improper men have been selected at conventions and have thus got into office, the delegates have been alone to blame for it. If any county trust has been neglected or abused, the trouble can be traced directly to the convention where the delegates had before them a list containing good men, and they failed to choose the right ones. We go further, and insist that of the men now going about and talking of mismanagement in county offices, more than half of them, have themselves been delegates, and as such, helped to select the very men of whom they have since complained. And they did it with their eyes open. We are not saying that offices have been mismanaged, but we are alluding to what others have said. And whether there is any truth in these complaints or not, it should be a warning to be heeded. Nearly every name in the list of delegates, is the name of a man who reads the COURIER, and while we do not presume to advise them in this important duty, we cannot think our own duty fully done, unless we have a full and frank talk with them—such a talk as will call their attention to the importance of the work before them, and the necessity of studying the matter over before the day comes. We have an abiding faith in the intelligence and honesty of the democrats of DeKalb county, and we ask them in a spirit of friendly earnestness, to look the field over, and give us such a ticket as we may be proud to support, and that we can elect with an increased majority. Will you do this?

W. C. T. U. School of Methods.

A W. C. T. U. convention and school of methods for Steuben, Lagrange, Noble, DeKalb and Whitley counties well be held at Angola June 2 and 3, 1892, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. June 2. The morning and afternoon meetings will be devoted to a study of methods of W. C. T. U. work. Mrs. Nichols, state president, will lecture. Let all W. C. T. U. societies send members, for a profitable session is promised.

A True People's Party.

Some weeks ago, we remarked in the COURIER, that we saw no reason why a democrat should go into the new party, or words to that effect. We have been taken to task for this. The reasons we then gave, still hold good and have not been denied. We had no desire to start a discussion on the subject, but we had been several times told that the reason both democrats and republicans were joining the new party, was that "the old parties had not done anything for them." It was in reply to strictures of that kind that we made the remarks we did. And the more we study it over, and the more our critics call our attention to it, the more we are sure our remarks were right. Republicans have done little or nothing for the common people, but have bitterly opposed nearly every law attempted to be enacted, both in the national congress and in the state legislature, that was intended to protect the poor man, or to secure him in rights equal to those of the more fortunate classes. This every well-informed person knows. The democracy on the other hand are the party of the people, the party nearest to the people in all their impulses and interests, and have always been. Let us consider a few only of the many laws made or attempted to be made, at Washington and at Indianapolis. For thirty-one years there has not been a day, when the democrats had control of all branches of the government at Washington, and unless they control all, they could pass no laws, except such mild or weak ones, as the republicans were willing to see go through. Even during Cleveland's administration, when we had the House of representatives and president, the senate was republican, and blocked nearly every measure intended to relieve the common people. And at no other time in the years named, have we been nearer in power than this. But in these years, the democratic members have fought in season and out, for those measures of justice which the common people asked, and republican members as steadily fought against them. Among the things we have fought for was the greenback as paper money; the reduction of all needless tariff tax, especially those which would fall heaviest on the common people; we fought, and are still fighting, to restore the income tax, by which the wealthy may be made to bear a share of the burdens proportioned to the share borne by the common people. A notable case in point, is Judge McClellan's continued efforts for an income tax. Then, too, the democrats, at least except a few in the east favor free silver.

And so we might go indefinitely. In our state legislature, we have been in power fully, for a part of the time. And when we were, more laws were passed for the benefit of the common people, than had been enacted since the new constitution in 1850. Let us enumerate a few of these, the work of the last two legislatures, both democratic in both branches, though they had the opposition of a republican governor and some of the bills had to be passed over his veto. The legislature of '89, the one before the last, passed:

An act to repair and maintain levies to protect farm lands along the Ohio and other rivers.

An act legalizing the state Board of Agriculture in the interest of the agricultural portion of our people, and giving them powers not heretofore granted and making appropriations for same.

An act providing for the relief of courts making a set of commissioners so that the people could have the suits they appeal, tried within their lifetime at least. This was vetoed by the governor, passed over his veto, but afterwards killed by a republican supreme bench.

An act reorganizing the Department of Geology, and making more thorough provisions for the inspection of mines and safety of the men working in them; vetoed by the republican governor and passed over his veto.

An act prohibiting the obstruction of ditches and for keeping them in repair.

An act providing for uniform text books in schools, and so arranged that the common people got better school books, at a little over one-half the cost of the ones used before, thus saving the people millions of dollars. This school book law was bitterly opposed by republican members and state officers, for the reason that the old monopoly campanies had been a power in republican state politics. The governor did not have the courage to veto the bill, but refused to sign it, and it became a law without.

An act reducing the rate of interest on money borrowed of the school fund, from 8 to 6 per cent., in the interest of common people, as no one else borrows from this fund.

An act limiting the profits of the reporter of the supreme court so the state should have at least a part of the $30,000 to $40,000 he usually made out of the sale of the supreme court reports at a high price. This reasonable bill, the governor vetoed, for it took away the big salary of a republican officer. It was passed over the veto.

An act to prevent the sale or manufacture of adulterated or other impure vinegar. It must be made of apples, grapes, or other fruits.

An act authorizing county commissioners to pay the expenses of burying a worthy soldier who had not means for a proper burial.

An act to regulate the working of laboring men who are employed by the state. This is the eight hour law, for which workingmen over the state petitioned.

(To be continued next week.)

Court.

The Judge reached here at 10 a. m. Monday, and at once called the boys to order. Uncle Jerry Plum, who was 80 the day before, took charge of the grand jury, and Jimmy Latson, of the court room. Two grand jurors, R. M. Lockhart and M. F. Long, were excused, and their places filled by R. S. S. Reed and George Porter. M. F. Long's excuse was that he is already on the U. S. grand jury at Indianapolis. The other four, A. P. Benjamin, Franklin Stoops, Samuel Depew and Amos Rinehart, were ready for business. As soon as they had organized by electing R. S. S. Reed to be foreman, and Samuel Depew secretary, work began. John Haines, a tramp, who says he lives in Baltimore, Md., and was on his way back from Missouri, sent them word that he was ready to plead guilty to the charge of stealing an overcoat from G. H. Oberholtzer, at the Junction. In twenty minutes from the time they organized, they brought in an indictment. Haines was at once brought before the court, plead guilty, and was severely lectured by the judge. In the afternoon he was sentenced to thirty days in jail and $1 fine. Leo A. Caro, now a resident of Waterloo, was admitted to the bar as an attorney. The trial of Wm. H. Nevins for murder of the negro at Butler was set for June 13, at which date it will begin. A good deal of work in estates, etc., has been done or started, and other business got under way. The grand jury will probably finish today. No court next week till May 31.

County Candidates.

As the convention approaches, the names and characters of the county candidates should be carefully studied over, and over. We believe we have given at one time or another the names of all to whom our attention has been called. Mr. Sawvel, will of course be the candidate for treasurer, as it is the custom to give a man the second term without opposition, and he has made a most excellent officer. The two commissioners, Mr. Hoffelder and Mr. Henderson, have been careful and efficient men, and should they ask a re-nomination, it will probably be given them. The same may be said of Mr. Miser. The office of surveyor stands as before with Mr. VanAuken, Mr. Scholes and Mr. Oberlin as candidates Mr. Franks, we are told, has withdrawn his name for sheriff, leaving now, Mr. Bleeks, Mr. Ralston, Mr. Kelley Mr. J. J. Baxter, Mr. Rowley, Mr. Koons and Mr. Bundy. We have heard no name for assessor, but presume Mr. Kutzner will be continued, as he is an excellent man for the place. We have so far no name for representative. If we have overlooked any names we can mention them next week if attention is called to it.

County S S. Convention.

The 27th annual S. S. convention of DeKalb county, will be held at Corunna in the Christian church, June 7 and 8. An excellent program is arranged, and there will be excellent speakers from all over the county. We have not room for full list of work, but all who attend will be more than pleased, and greatly benefited. All come.

The commissioners were out in the country last Friday, looking at the numerous washouts. Several embankments or bridge grades had been swept away. The Brotherhood of Railroad Trackmen, is the name of a new fraternal and benevolent organization which lately sprang up in the interest of that class of railroad employes known as trackmen. The order is composed of local lodges and a grand lodge. The constitution provides that when a brother becomes disabled so he cannot perform the duties of a trackman by the loss of a foot, hand or eyes, he receives $400. The organization of a local lodge was considered at some length Saturday evening, at the Junction school house. Whether this order will gain a place among the obligated fraternities here is not as yet an unquestioned fact.

The "Three I" road we once thought of getting here is now making an effort to reach South Bend, with a fair prospect of success. We recently met Col. Injurious reports are being circulated at Waterloo and in that part of the county in regard to a couple of women now at the poor farm, each of whom has recently added one to the population of the Home. And malicious persons have coupled with the misfortunes of these women the name of superintendent C. P. Glazier, though they have been there but about two months, one being from Wilmington township and the other from Grant. It is needless to say that anyone who knows the parties or the circumstances, or is at all acquainted with Mr. Glazier, will not believe a word of these slanders on him. The story he says came directly from editor Davison at Waterloo, and was told to Mr. Glazier by responsible parties there, who gave Davison as their authority. As to who was Davison's informant, we do not know. Mr. Glazier will probably give him an opportunity to explain. Mr. Glazier is very properly indignant and says that a reformer should begin at home, especially one whose own reputation does not stand higher than the Eiffel Tower.

Gas Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the stock subscribers of the new gas well organization and all friends of the enterprise at the Gandy Hall in Auburn on Friday day evening of this week, to take further steps looking to the putting down of more gas wells. Let every friend of the plan, whether a subscriber or not, come out and help to forward the good cause. Nothing will do Auburn and vicinity as much good, as a few more wells.

BY ORDER OF COMMITTEE.

Fourth of July.

There will be a meeting of citizens at Ensley's Hall this Thursday evening at 8 o'clock to decide about having a celebration the Fourth. All who desire to see a big celebration are earnestly invited to come out.

More Gas Wells.

Read our notice for another gas well meeting. We wish to add that Mr. Fethers, the Bryan man who has subscribed $500 toward the enterprise, is an experienced gas well borer, and is responsible financially. He has lately bought the Bryan Gas wells and cleaned them out, and they furnished an increased flow of gas. He says he feels certain that Auburn has an abundance, that can be had for the digging. In order to present the matter more fully, we copy the following from the Bryan Press of May 12:

"It will be remembered that The Press made the prediction at the time Alex Fether secured control of our gas plant, that he would eventually develope a paying field. It has taken many weeks of persistent labor to clean out the wells and get them in shape, but on Monday No. 3 was turned into the line, and consumers find that they have plenty for all uses, including the boilers that are connected.

When No. 5 is put in shape we can then begin to feel that we are actually in the gas belt, and realize that not all the money was wasted in prospecting for gas and oil.

The result of Mr. Fether's efforts is very gratifying so far to the citizens of Bryan, as well as to himself, and it now looks as though we were almost certain to secure a sufficient quantity of gas to place us on equal footing with other points in the matter of free gas to manufacturing industries. No 3 alone will unquestionably supply all demands in our present pipe line."

Auditor Wiley of Albion was here Tuesday, helping the masons at their big meeting. There were many of the fraternity here, and much work done. The supper Monday evening was at Salyer's and the banquet Tuesday evening at Hollister's. The brethren speak highly of their treatment here.

THE total foreign commerce of the United States for the twelve months ending March 31 last amounted in value to nearly $2,000,000,000. Yet Congress hesitates about appropriating $5,000,000 to the World's Fair, which will do more to promote foreign trade than ten years of legislation.

THERE are supposed to be 20,000,000 people in the United States, at the lowest calculation, who drink. Suppose each one of these 20,000,000 drinkers should contribute the cost of one drink a week, that is, drink one drink a week less, and let the amount be converted into a road fund. The regular price is 15 cents for a drink. This would foot up $7.80 in fifty-two weeks for each drinker. Multiply this by 20,000,000 and we have $156,000,000, which would build 31,200 miles of macadamized road.

HOW FAR a lie will travel before overtaken by the truth is shown in the constant repetition of the silly story that the Rev. Lyman Abbot and his wife of Brooklyn have joined the Salvation army. The eloquent successor of Henry Ward Beecher and able editor of the Christian Union pleasantly explained that the story grew out of the fact that he and his wife had made to some members of the army a donation of $5, and that he had no thought of further alliance with Booth's cohorts. It is time to bury this story.

ONE of the plagues resulting from the business college, which in many respects is most useful in communities, is the ignorant and unscrupulous stenographer. This class of mechanics has become a plague. Any girl or boy paying the required fee is turned loose in a few months as a competent shorthand-writer and operator on the hand type machine. No qualifications are demanded as preliminary to beginning stenography, none have been acquired in a large proportion of cases when the pretender is turned out an "expert." So long as the primary and grammar grades of the common schools are diverted from their true object the business school will be a necessity. But that business school that will give its certificate only to intelligent and honest stenographers, men and women who can in truth take down and will in fact write out dictation instead of cheating employers and writing out ill-spelled inventions or distortions of what was dictated, will speedily acquire a reputation that will make its fortune.

A STYLE of theatrical criticism rather too arbitrary to be eminently satisfactory, but which is certainly determinate in its character, was applied to a terpsichorean performer in Springfield, Ohio. A young gentleman with an arachnological sobriquet was jigging for the entertainment of a motley group that included a critical personage fortified with corn-juice and armed with a revolver. The degree of celerity with which the dancer alternated his feet to the spirited beat of the music was not at all to the satisfaction of the self-constituted Rhadamanthus, and after several times expostulating and urging an increased liveliness of pace, the annoyed gentleman out with his revolver and forwarded a leaden protest to shatter one of the dancer's knees. The result of this emphatic expression of opinion will be the permanent retirement from the stage of the offending jig dancer. A few years ago in Chicago a critic who argued with a revolver undertook to persuade Mr. Edwin Booth that his interpretation of Richard II. was incurably defective. Though the young man's bullets happily flew wide of the mark, Mr. Booth was sufficiently impressed with the logic of the argument to give over attempts to act Richard II., a character he never assumed. Though this style of criticism is more effective and less debatable—though in some instances not more destructive—than that which consist of throwing burning type at the self-esteem of imperfect actors, we doubt if it is likely to become popular. It has its drawbacks, especially the one that inaccuracies of aim might do injustice to some fairly meritorious person in the company, an injustice that could not be repaired easily. Criticism of any kind is objectionable to the one criticised, it may be admitted, but as between being punctured with a bullet and being belabored by a well-galled paragraph, we think there is reasonable margin for preference.

TEN lives lost; a hundred persons injured, some for life; a thousand or more temporarily thrown out of employment; a million in property, some of it invaluable and irreplaceable, and the convenience of tens of thousands hindered by suspension of surface transportation in the city of Philadelphia, is a large price to pay for the folly of uncovered lights in a theater "fly." The wonder is not that theaters occasionally burn down, but that fires do not occur in them oftener. In no other class of buildings is so little common sense shown in protecting life or material against fire. In no other kind of business involving corresponding risk is there so much inflammable material. In no other are there so many chances of combustion, for in no other is fire so necessary in so many ways, nor in any other are the expedients of a business equally inflammable. In modern theater construction, like that of the Auditorium and the amusement houses built in European cities within twenty-five years, science and art have combined to provide stages representing the highest achievement in both. So far as is within ascertained possibility everything in and about the stage is metallic or of burned earth capable of stopping flame if it should make slight progress. But in the common mediocre theater there is little or no precaution against fire. Gas jets without shields are placed promiscuously among properties nearly always of easily consumable texture, while the sweep of draughts between "flies" and from lofts and dressing-rooms insures at all times means of spreading flame with a speed defiant of barrier or of check by chemical or mechanical means. No policing, no hanging about of manual fire machines, is protection for life or property under such conditions. That the Philadelphia fire did not cost hundreds of lives instead of ten, so far as known, is not due to forethought on the part of the direction of the house or conservative vigilance by the city fire inspectors. An examination of lights, "flies" and properties in almost any city would undoubtedly afford opportunity for improvements that managers should make without compulsion but which the fire department should require to be made.

Vagaries of Fame.

Sitting up late to-night, "while rocking winds were piping loud," I took down an old anthology and turned over its leaves with a wonder often felt before at the number of men who survive in it by virtue of doing small things well, says a writer in Scribner's. Sometimes, in fact, one thing has been enough to give a man his world-wide fame and send him down to posterity hand in hand with the greatest. At the names of Carew and Col. Lovelace, Sir Henry Wotton and Sir John Suckling we stop to read once more their thrice familiar lines; but, too often, the sad word "Unknown" makes the tribute thus paid an indirect one. What would not one give to know who wrote "The Two Corbies," for instance? or that song of which "Love will find out the way" is the burden? Things go much by names nowadays, and good anonymous poets of our own time are few and far between. But fame laughs at titles, and, choosing leaves that fall neglected, binds them into her immortal garland whether their rightful owner will or no.

BRAZIL IS BENEFITED,

BUT THE AMERICAN FARMER IS NOT.

The New York Tribune Forgets Its Own Country While Lauding the Reciprocity Bunco Game—Four Years of Education—Continuation of McKinley's Account.

Brazil and Reciprocity.

The New York Tribune of April 28 says: "That Brazil has no reason to complain of the operation of the reciprocity treaty is shown by the official statistics of its trade with the United States. The convention went into effect on April 1, 1891. During the five months ending Sept. 1, 1891, the exports from Brazil to the United States amounted to $39,703,752. This was a gain of $14,861,315 over the exports for the corresponding period of the previous year. In view of this enormous increase in the importation of coffee, sugar, hides and other Brazilian products, the advantages derived from the reciprocity convention are incontestable. When disgruntled politicians in Rio de Janeiro and Blaine-hating journalists in the United States assert that Brazil was cheated in that treaty they do not venture to face the statistics of international trade under reciprocity conditions.

"This is not all. Brazil in negotiating the reciprocity treaty secured a free market for three of its staple products. A year after the convention went into effect, duties were reimposed upon the coffee, sugar and hides of Venezuela, Colombia and Hayti. This involves a discrimination of enormous value in favor of Brazil. In 1890 the importation of coffee from the three countries into the United States amounted to 70,096,700 pounds, or about 15 per cent. of the supply. With a duty of 3 cents this involves a discrimination of $2,282,901 against those countries on coffee alone. Brazil is profiting so heavily from the reciprocity policy that no sane statesman in that country will seriously propose the abrogation of the treaty."

This is unusually good logic to be found in this paper, but it brings up the question as to whether the Tribune belongs to North or South America. The two parties to the reciprocity treaty of April 1, 1891, were Brazil and the United States. Brazil has undoubtedly the bulge on Venezuela, Colombia and Hayti and is to be congratulated on having thus obtained a free market for its coffee and hides, while its South American competitors, because it does not suit their convenience to bow to reciprocity, are deprived of such a market. But why should the Tribune extend congratulation? Is it controlled by some Cobden Club in Brazil? What about the other party to that treaty? The idea has been promulgated in the United States, where the present reciprocity boom originated, that reciprocity was not so much to benefit Brazil or some other foreign country as to provide good markets for our products—especially for farm products. Is it doing this?

Senator Vest, in his speech of Feb. 25, 1892, shows that of the $1,169,592 increase, from April 1 to Sept. 1, 1891, in our exports to Brazil, $800,148 came from steam engines, machinery, etc., which are admitted free of duty into Brazil, not only from the United States but from any part of the world. The total increase is, however, only normal for the last two or three years, and, as it is made up mainly of articles already on the free list, is in no way due to reciprocity. As to farm products, Senator Vest shows that there has been a falling off during this period in our exports of flour, bacon, lard, and naval stores to Brazil. The total decrease in our exports of farm products for the first nine months of this treaty was $525,455, according to Congressman Herbert. This same authority finds that the increase of the exports of other products, as compared with agricultural products to reciprocating countries, is over 5 to 1 against the farmer.

This is what might have been expected. It was a "wild goose chase" to go hunting for markets for farmers in these highly agricultural countries, whose markets for agricultural products have always been comparatively insignificant. Our total exports of foreign products to South America in 1891 amounted to $12,085,598; to the West Indies, $16,966,856; to Central America, $6,450,775; to Mexico, $4,085,819; to British Honduras, $240,817. Total to countries south of us, $35,506,226. Our exports of agricultural products to Great Britain in 1891 were $375,629,926; and to all of Europe, $580,154,914. It is overcrowded, manufacturing Western Europe that wants our farm products and not the backwoods, half-civilized, South American countries. It is strange that this fact did not occur to the early advocates of reciprocity, so that we would not now be wasting our time trying to play reciprocity with the wrong countries.

Another important fact is often lost sight of, namely, that the only effect upon the farmer of this jug-handled reciprocity is to increase his already unjustly heavy tax burden, by placing a duty of 1⅛ cents on sugar, 3 cents on coffee, 10 cents on tea, and 1½ cents per pound on hides. The total of all these duties, if enforced, would amount to about $10,000,000. The Tribune finds that the duty of 3 cents on coffee would discriminate against Venezuela, Colombia and Hayti to the extent of $2,282,901. This means that so far as these countries are concerned, Brazil would have a monopoly of our coffee market and that her coffee growers could, as they undoubtedly would, charge the American consumer about 5 cents more for coffee.

Reciprocity is only a bunco game that is being worked on the American farmer since the old one of "protection" has begun to lose its attractiveness. What next will the manufacturers try to hold their monopoly of our markets, when the farmer gets his eyes open to the real meaning of reciprocity?

Four Years of Education.

Four years ago, when President Cleveland sent his message to Congress recommending a reduction of duties to a strict tariff for revenue basis as the best means of checking the then large and constantly growing surplus, and of relieving the burdensome taxes on the farmer and laborer, only the most vague ideas prevailed among the masses of the people in regard to the tariff. Not one voter in ten knew how the General Government got its revenues, and not one in fifty could distinguish between a "revenue" and a "protective" tariff. The ordinary newspaper printed but little on the subject of taxation, because most readers were unwilling to pay for such "dry" matter. The books on this subject were mainly by professors, who were largely theoretical and philosophical, and were read by but few except economic students.

The discussions, begun in 1888, started thought on economic questions among thinking people. Discussions extended into all the large papers, to the lodge, to the school-house, and even to the church and home; the demand for economic literature grew; the people wanted to read and hear both sides; protectionists and tariff reformers were called upon to give facts; press bureaus were established to supply tariff matter weekly to country papers in all parts of the United States; speakers were sent out by both parties, not merely during campaigns to assist the fire works and brass bands in entertaining the voters, but during the whole year at school-houses, town halls and county fairs.

What a wonderful change was wrought! Most intelligent men now know that our government is supported mainly by duties on imports; they have gotten many ideas and have collected a few hard facts; nearly every farmers' and every laborers' organization contains men able and ready to debate the tariff question; and politicians have had to post themselves or make room for those who have studied the needs of the people in this direction. It is safe to say that the tariff discussion could not now be stopped by any political trick or turned aside by any other issue. It has come to stay. The people demand a settlement, and one that shall be final, on this most vital of questions.

The Cordage Trust Again.

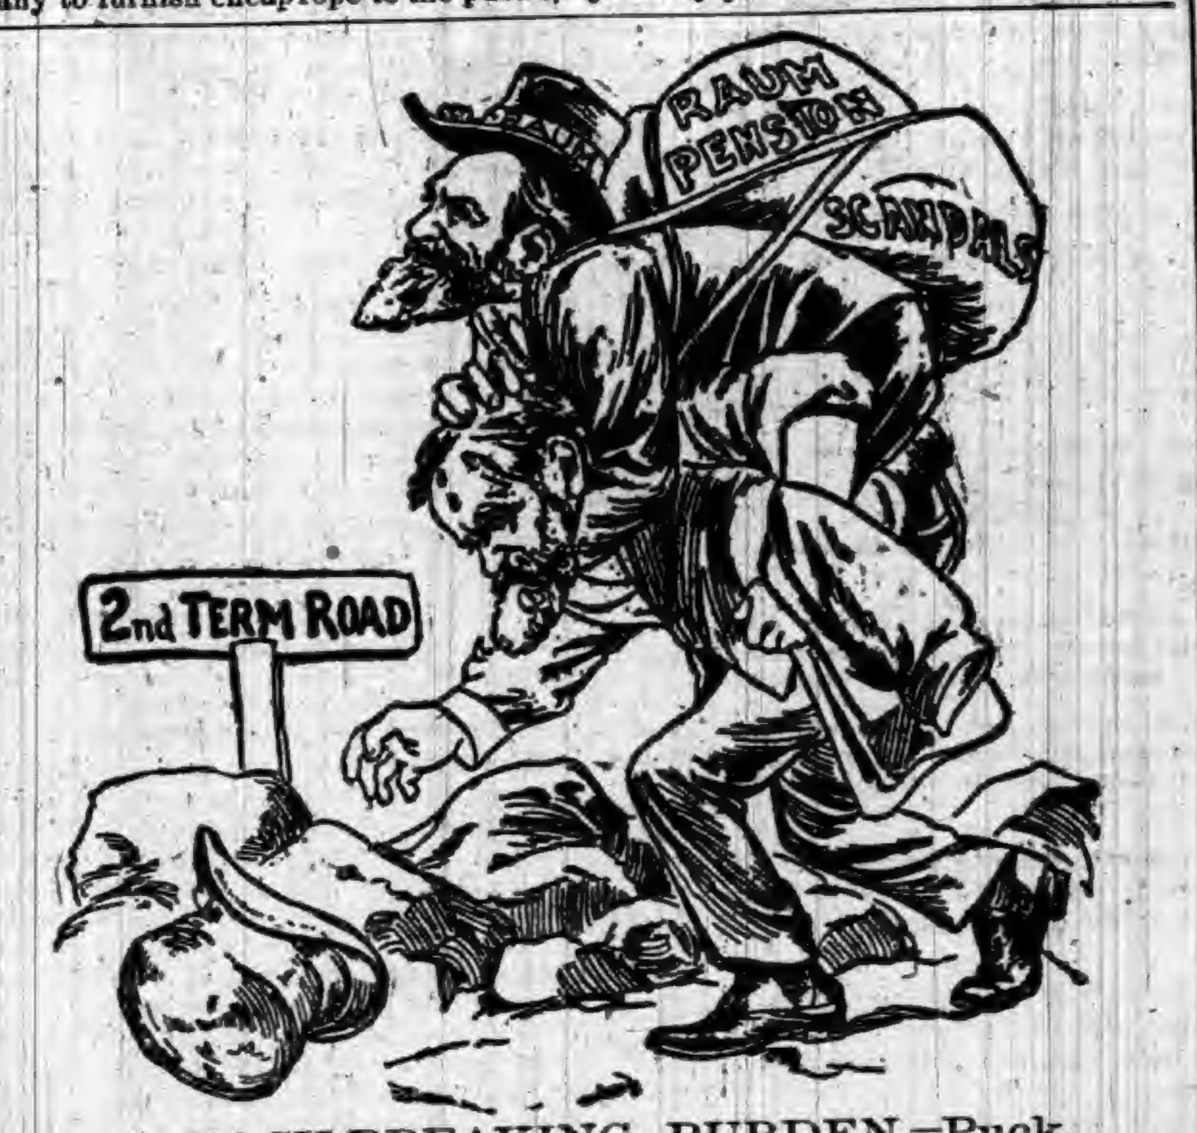
Since Nov. 2, 1891, the National Cordage Company, otherwise known as the Cordage Trust, has been paying John Good, the millionaire twine manufacturer, at the rate of $200,000 a year to keep his mills closed down. Previous to that he had received $150,000 to keep his cordage mills idle. In connection with the contract to shut down his mills the trust had an option for a purchase. Mr. Good, on the fourth day of April, returned the trust's check, with the notice that if the trust did not avail itself of the option to purchase before April 26 he would resume business.

The National Cordage Company was organized under the laws of New Jersey in 1887. Its capital is $15,000,000. It contains a majority of the large cordage companies of the United States and nearly every one in Canada. Notwithstanding the express desire of the company to furnish cheap rope to the public, the price of that article has advanced from five and a quarter cents to nine cents per pound since an agreement was reached with John Good. Mr. Good says:

"My chief reason for terminating the contract is that I find a very large number of customers are anxious for me to resume operations on my own account, and as I am in a position to make a profit at prices which would not pay the cost of production to the National Cordage Company. I can make as much money as they were paying me, if not more."

The works of John Good embrace the big plant at Ravenswood, Long Island, where the rope output amounts to 10,000 pounds daily, and the works in Brooklyn, where Mr. Good manufactures all kinds of machinery for making rope and twine. He employs 300 men.

As left by the McKinley bill, the duties on cordage and twine are from 6 to 35 per cent. With Good's patent machinery for twisting rope and twine, cordage is made more cheaply in the United States than anywhere else. In fact we exported over $1,000,000 worth of cordage last year to almost every country and island on the globe. The cordage trust is an old offender, and its depredations were well known to the makers of the McKinley bill, and yet these duties were left on cordage that this trust might raise prices until it could afford to pay one manufacturer $200,000 a year to remain idle. Of course the cost of keeping Good's and other mills idle has come out of the pockets of consumers.



A BACK-BREAKING BURDEN.—Puck.

Our expert accountant, who is charged with crediting the McKinley bill with all of the wage increases and defunct trusts reported each week, and of debiting it with all of the wage reductions and new trusts reported, as usual has great trouble this week in balancing his accounts. This "trust-killing," wage-advancing tariff may be getting in its work straight enough, but for some reason—perhaps the modesty of the Republican press—the credit side of the account is not much mentioned, except in a theoretical and general way. From the long list of the debit side we extract the following:

April 24—To the report that nearly all of the big iron companies in the South are forming a combination with a capital of about $50,000,000 and that the companies that are not joining the combine will be tributary to it and sell their products through the new organization.

April 25—To a locomotive tire trust formed by the five manufacturers in this country—the Nashua Iron Company; the Standard and Steel Company of Lewiston, Pennsylvania; the Latrobe Steel Company of Latrobe, Pennsylvania; the Midvale Steel Company of Philadelphia; and the Chicago Tire and Steel Spring Works of Chicago. Prices have been advanced and stockholders are jubilant over the prospects.

April 25—To the report that 600 men have been thrown out of work in the Lehigh Valley coal region by the combine of the Reading with several other railroads. The price of coal to western consumers has been advanced, and the production of coal has been diminished so that the colliers are working only half time, and the miners for half-pay. Wages in railroad shops, and of train men have also been reduced.

April 26—To report that the Sligo Rolling-Mills of Pittsburg is closed down and 300 men are thrown out of work.

April 27—To the report in a journal of the Knights of Labor that the rubber industry is to be cornered. A company with a capital of $50,000,000 has been chartered in New Jersey, which is really a combine of all the existing concerns. They propose to manufacture, not only rubber goods, but litharge, whiting, buckles, and everything used in the manufacture of rubber goods.

April 27—To the report that the officers of the Reading Railroad propose to establish a uniform rate of wages of the three railroads now in this combine. The men understand what such a "readjustment" means, and are preparing for a strike.

April 30—To a report that the manufacturers of gas fixtures have formed a trust. While this is denied by some of those said to be in it, yet it is certain that prices of gas fixtures have been materially advanced of late.

April 30—To report that the great safe manufacturing houses of Herring, Hall and Marvin have formed a trust, with a capital of $3,000,000, and that the combined earnings of the three in 1891 were $316,790.

A BURDEN of annual taxation of $460,000,000 on a population of 65,000,000 is a little over $7 per capita, or $35.37 on every family; but the ultimate burden of a system of indirect taxation on imported commodities on the final consumer of such commodities is certainly considerably greater. Recent investigations in this matter, instituted in the English colony of New Zealand, where the revenue of the state, received mainly from customs taxes on imports collected from a sparse population, afford unusual facilities for investigation, indicate that the burden of such taxation is increased to the final consumers of the taxed article to the extent of at least 33 per cent. In the United States the increment is probably much greater. The average burden of Federal taxation for the next fiscal year will, therefore, certainly be at least $40 on every family, and promises in the immediate future to be greater rather than less. To the man with an income of $20 per day, or $6,000 per annum, this is not much, but the farmer who is raising and selling corn for 15 cents a bushel, and to the operatives in the great leading mechanical industries of the country, whose annual incomes average less than $400, it means privation.—From David A. Wells' "Taxes Are Extra Days' Work."

I WANT to say to you that every time you take protection off from any favored industry you place the man interested in that industry in the ranks of those who are fighting against protection. I want to say to you that this is the way protection was built up. As one man got protection on his article, the man that had to consume his article saw that the only way to balance himself and to even himself up with the other fellow was to have protection put on the product of his labor; and thus we went to logrolling, and put a tariff on different things, until we got them all into the ring.—Jerry Simpson.

A Smoker's Delight.

N. C. Barney, a retired New York banker, has an intereting collection of pipes. One of them represents the trunk of an old tree, around which are grouped a party of sporting gentlemen with their guns and dogs, enjoying a hunter's meal. One of the members of the party is cleverly shown to be cutting with his jackknife the name N. C. Barney on the trunk of the tree—to commemorate, no doubt, the occasion. Each figure is a correct likeness of an individual member of the party. The owner's name is also carved on each of the game-bags, and the delicate network around the game-bags is true to nature. In this collection are also a few pipes that came from Alaska. They were made of walrus tusks by the Esquimaux. Another remarkable piece is a cigarholder on which is carved a Gordon setter, a favorite dog belonging to the owner. It is a perfect image of the dog, and from smoking the meershaum has acquired a brownish-red color, which is exactly the color of the dog.

Telephone on the Battle Field.

Particulars of the behavior of the field telephone system in the French autumn manuevers have now been published. Magneto telephones were used, as no delicate microphone or battery is required with them. The transmitter was held in the hand and the receiver was affixed to the "kepi." Combined receivers and transmitters were also employed. A bare bimetallic wire 0.6 millimeters in diameter was unrolled from a drum and laid out of harm's way on hedges, branches, walls, and in trenches. A line twenty-three kilometers long was thus laid, with the addition of ten posts, in five hours; speech was good, and the whole was taken up again in an hour. During a sham fight a cavalry division passed over a long line without interrupting the communication. A bayonet stuck in the ground made a good earth; so did the body of a cavalry horse if the wire was attached to the bridle.

THE census returns just published show that in 1889, with the exception of the 7,000 fishing craft, the business men of the country owned 25,540 steamers, sailing vessels and unrigged craft, whose gross tonnage was 7,633,676 and whose estimated commercial value was $215,000,000. During the year these vessels carried 172,110,423 tons of freight of all kinds. The total amount paid in wages on these vessels was $37,000,000. Steam vessels are rapidly displacing sailing craft; 6,067 of all these vessels are run by steam, and their value is three-fourths of the value of all the craft enumerated.

THE theosophists, who know no more about the matter than the dreamers who have fixed three or four dates for the end of the world during the next ten years, tell us that "the present age," whatever that may be, will continue 427,000 years.

A CHILDLESS HOME.

Smith and his wife have every luxury that money can buy, but there is one thing lacking to their happiness. Both are fond of children, but no little voices prattle, no little feet patter in their beautiful home. "I would give ten years of my life if I could have one healthy, living, child of my own," Smith often says to himself. No woman can be the mother of healthy offspring unless she herself is in good health. If she suffers from female weakness, general debility, bearing-down pains and functional derangements, her physical condition is such that she cannot hope to have healthy children. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a soverign and guaranteed remedy for all these ailments.

THE late frosts seem to have done the fruit in the southern part of the State good instead of damage, and saved the growers a good deal of labor by thinning out the crop. Last year fruit was not as good as it might have been, owing to the immense quantity. This year it is believed by the present indications, that peaches, apples, pears, etc., will be larger and of much finer quality, and that there will not be much less fruit, because, as the trees are not heavily loaded the fruit will be much larger than the crowded state of trees would permit last year. The fruit-growers are very well pleased with the outlook and believe that there will be as much money in their crops this year as last, if not more.

THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

WORK OF OUR NATIONAL LAWMAKERS.

Proceedings of the Senate and House of Representatives—Important Measures Discussed and Acted Upon—Gist of the Business.

The National Solons.

On the 10th, after passing several resolutions for printing various government reports, including the thirteenth annual report of the geological survey, the last reports of the fish commission and of the bureau of animal industry, the House proceeded with the sundry civil appropriation, Mr. Cogswell, of Massachusetts, opposing the policy of the committee in neglecting to make proper provision for certain public works, notably public buildings and lighthouses, while Mr. Wilson of Washington, Mr. Sweet of Idaho, Mr. Clark of Wyoming, and Mr. Hermann of Oregon all spoke in favor of larger appropriations for surveying the public lands. Mr. Enloe, Tennessee, criticised the coast and geodetic survey, and Mr. Dingley, of Maine, closed the debate in a general criticism of the Committee on Appropriations for the duplicity displayed in the pending bill. The House then adjourned. In the Senate, a bill was passed changing the boundaries of the Yellowstone National Park. Four bills for this purpose have been pending in the Senate, and the measure passed is a sort of compromise.

In the House, the 11th, the appropriation of $620,000 for the purchase of a site and commencement of a new building for a new mint at Philadelphia was struck from the sundry civil bill. This was done upon motion of Mr. Holman. The Vice President, having gone to New York to act as pallbearer at the funeral of the late Mr. Astor, his chair was occupied by Mr. Manderson, President pro tem., who laid before the Senate the resolution of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church assembled at Omaha, Neb. (representing 2,500,000 members and 10,000,000 adherents), heartily approving the World's Fair appropriation bill, "providing expressly that it be conditioned on closing the Exposition on Sunday." The following bills were passed: House bill to provide for a term of the United States Circuit and District Court at Evanston, Mo. House bill authorizing the construction of a wagon and motor bridge over the Missouri River at St. Charles, Mo. Appropriating $100,000 for a public building at Pierre, S. D. The presiding officer laid before the Senate a message from the President of the United States transmitting the seventh annual report of the Commissioner of Labor. After an executive session the Senate adjourned.

In the House, the 12th, a resolution for the investigation of the Pinkerton agency was adopted after a sharp debate, the conference report on the bill for the sale of the Klamath River Indian Reservation was also adopted. The House then went into committee of the whole (Mr. Lester of Georgia in the chair) on the sundry civil appropriation bill. Among the bills introduced in the Senate and referred were the following: Authorizing the President to proclaim a general holiday, commemorating the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America, Oct. 12, 1892; to encourage American shipbuilding, extending to the steamship China the same privileges as have been extended to the City of Paris and City of New York. The China is a steamship of 5,000 tons, built in Glasgow in 1889. She plies between San Francisco and China, on the Pacific Mail line, but flies the British flag. The message of the President on the subject of an international conference on bimetalism and the naval appropriation bill consumed the rest of the time.

In the Senate, the 13th, the river and harbor bill was reported back from the Committee on Commerce with amendments. The consideration of the naval bill was resumed. Mr. McPherson offered an amendment appropriating $250,000 toward the construction of a dry dock at Algiers, Louisiana. It was rejected. Mr. McPherson, from the Naval Committee, offered an amendment to the Senate amendment providing for three harbor defense double turret ships of the monitor type—instead of one ship. Mr. Gorman spoke at length on lines of economy, but not against enlarging the navy. After further debate and without action on Mr. McPherson's amendment the Senate adjourned. In the House, the Sibley tent claim bill again came to the fore on a report from the committee of the whole referring the claim to the Court of Claims for final adjudication. To this substitute there was pending an amendment providing that the reference should be merely for inquiry, and report to Congress. The amendment was lost.

Bacteria.

Bacteria have their name from their rod-like shape. They are vegetation so minute as to be visible only by the aid of powerful microscopes. They multiply by division, each rod separating into two parts. Then each part speedily becomes a complete whole, but soon divides into two parts.

It will be seen what countless numbers must result. The view has been extensively adopted that these microscopic vegetations are the actual poison that produces most infectious diseases. Prof. Lionel Beale, F. R. S., knighted for his attainments in microscopy and medicine, is not prepared to accept this. We present a condensed statement of his views.

The tongue is constantly covered by whole forests of bacteria. Millions pass into the stomach whenever we swallow. It is the same with all animals. Every vegetable and fruit and leaf also contains countless numbers. So does the air we breathe and the water we drink. All disintegration and decay facilitates the growth of this minute vegetation.

It is certain now, that bacteria in large quantities are constantly passing into the alimentary canal of men and animals without doing harm. There is probably not a part of the body of any one of us, one-quarter of an inch in diameter, where their germs are not present. So small are they that they pass freely into the substance of every organ. They exist within us, even in the blood, without disturbing us in any way.

In disease their numbers are vastly increased. "I have seen every part of the stomach, the small and large intestines, filled with curdled milk which, when placed under the microscope, seemed to be almost composed of bacteria. But this probably did not originate the disorder, but resulted from the prior diseased state of the secretions. It is still an open question whether infectious diseases originate from some special kind of death-carrying bacteria; or from practices wholly independent of all such organisms. Though some evidence has been adduced in favor of the first hypothesis, many new facts must be discovered before the problem is solved."

The Secret of True Recreation.

Minds, like other measures of capacity, when they are full cannot be any fuller of that which they are full of. One more drop of water will cause the brimful glass to overflow. But that same brimful glass may have packed into it more than its bulk of loose raw cotton without spilling the water. Similarly, one may have his mind so full of one flow of thought, or care, that one drop more would be disastrous; but a wholly different kind of thought can, like the raw cotton, be packed into it without seemingly making it any fuller. This is one of the secrets of accomplishment. It includes the secret of true recreation.

Kept Up to this Day.

Many years ago a Spanish galleon, caught in a sudden storm at nightfall, was sunk off the coast of Portugal because every rope that was handled in the effort to shorten sail refused to run through its block. "The devil is in those sheaves," cried the captain as the ship went down. In consequence of that calamity the Admiral issued an order that every day, at sunset, the men should be sent aloft "to chase the devil out of the sheaves." It is said that the order is still religiously obeyed in the Spanish navy.

MRS. LEROY G. COVILLE.

A Lady Writes a Letter for Publication, Believing It Will Interest Many Suffering from Rheumatism.

[From the Chenango Union, Norwich, N. Y.]

MCDONOUGH, CHENANGO CO., N. Y.
April 5, 1892.

Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.:

KIND SIRS—I had been troubled for years with that terrible disease rheumatism, and last spring a year ago I was confined to my bed and could scarcely move or stir. Could not bear to have any one walk across the room or make any noise of any kind. Was also troubled with female weakness and was completely used up. I had doctored with the best physicians I could get, but grew worse all the time. Having read of your remedies I at last made up my mind to try them. I had very little faith, for I thought, perhaps, they were no better than lots of others that I had used before without any benefit. But thanks be to God and also to you, I tried them and found it to my benefit. I only took two bottles of your Swamp-Root and one of Female Remedy and used one bottle of your U. & O. Anointment, and was completely cured.

It is now over one year since I was troubled and yet I have not felt a single touch or return of the old complaints. I think I was better before I had taken one-half of the first bottle. I now believe and have more faith in you than any other doctor on earth.

If this will be of any benefit to you or others, you can publish it and if need be I can prove it by more than twenty good and reliable people in this vicinity.

God bless you and yours, and with great respect,

MRS. LEROY G. COVILLE.

[The preceding testimonial was set up in this office from the orignal letter written by Mrs. Coville.—EDITORS OF UNION.]

Five thousand dollars is offered to any one who will prove any portion of this testimony untrue. Hundreds of similar letters are received daily by the proprietors of Swamp-Root.

Had Been Observant.

A pretty fan was presented to a little girl 4 years of age, and she, wishing to show her new treasure, hung it on her finger and held it out at arm's length.

A lady on entering the parlor was attracted by the peculiar attitude of the little girl, and finally said to her:

"Isn't it very fatiguing to hold out your arm in that way so long?"

Said little Elsie in return, with a deep sigh:

"Isn't it always fatiguing to be elegant?"

A PROFITABLE TALK.

OUR SPECIAL REPORTER SECURES THE FACTS.

He Determined to Thoroughly Investigate a Subject That Is Causing Much Comment, and He Has Succeeded.

[New York Sun.]

Two days ago one of the most prominent professional men in New York published a letter so outspoken, so unusual as to cause extensive talk and awaken much comment. Yesterday I interviewed the gentleman as to the contents of the letter, and he fully confirmed it in every respect. He not only did this, but he also mentioned a number of unusual cases which had come under his observation, in which little less than a miracle had been performed.

So important has the entire subject become that I determined to investigate it to the bottom, and, accordingly, called upon Mr. Albert G. Eaves, the prominent costumer, at No. 63 East Twelfth street, the gentleman mentioned in my interview with the doctor yesterday. Mr. Eaves has made quite a name. A complete knowledge of history, an appreciation of art and reliability are essential in his profession.

"Mr. Eaves," I said, "I learn that your wife has had a most unusual experience; are you willing to describe it?"

The gentleman thought a moment, and an expression of pleasure passed over his face. "When I think," he said, "of what my wife once passed through, and the condition she is in to-day, I cannot but feel gratitude. Nearly three years ago she was at the point of death. You can understand how sick she was when I say she was totally blind and lay in a state of unconsciousness. Three doctors attended her, and all agreed that her death was only a question of hours, perhaps minutes."

"May I ask what the doctors called her trouble?"

"Uræmia and puerperal convulsions, so you can imagine how badly she must have been. At last one doctor (it was Dr. R. A. Gunn) said that as she was still able to swallow one more attempt might be made, and a medicine was accordingly given her. She seemed to improve at once; in a few days her sight was restored. 'I have had a long, long sleep,' she said, upon recovering consciousness, and I am rejoiced to say that she was restored to perfect health wholly through the use of Warner's Safe Cure, which was the remedy we administered when she was past all consciousness."

I looked at Mr. Eaves as he said this. His face was beaming with satisfaction. He continued:

"The physicians told us, after my wife's recovery, that she never could endure childbirth, and yet we have a fine boy nearly a year old, and he do not know what sickness is. I attribute it all to the wonderful power of Warner's Safe Cure. Why, my sister, who resides in Virginia, was, a while ago, afflicted precisely as my wife had been. I at once advised her to use this same great remedy; it cured her promptly."

"You find that it is specially adapted for women, do you?" I inquired.

"By no means. I have known it to be wonderful in its power in the case of gentlemen to whom I have recommended it. I speak from my experience entirely, and you should not be surprised that I am so firm a believer in this discovery, which has done so much for me."

I was not suprised. I saw by every word, by every look, that Mr. Eaves meant all he said. I had ample confirmation of Dr. Gunn's letter and interview, and I do not wonder that people who have seen such things, who have watched their dearest friends go down into the dark valley and be brought back into the light, should be both enthusiastic and grateful. I myself caught the spirit, and I shall be glad if the investigations I have made prove of profit to those who may read them.

From Small Beginnings.

A gentleman once tried the experiment of raising a harvest from a single seed. He put a pickle of wheat into the ground; it sprang up and yielded two full ears. The next year he planted the corn of these two ears, and had, as the result, nearly a bushel of shelled corn. This he planted again, and broad acres of large yellow ears at length rewarded his patient toil. One of the commonest kinds of wheat now is what is called "mummy-wheat." It all sprang from a few grains of wheat that were found in the hand of an Egyptian mummy. The reproductive power of sin is not less than this. One lie or act of deceit produces fifty or 100. You sow an evil deed, and it is almost impossible to calculate the amount of wickedness and misery that will grow out of it.

To Slay or to Be Slain. Which?

To attack the dragon of disease and annihilate him before his deadly talons grow, or to allow him to attain dangerous maturity and destroy us—that is the question of paramount importance to all afflicted with organic ailments. Among these, disorders of the kidneys and bladder are of the fatal order if unrestrained at the outset. Their growth is rapid, their culmination death. Bright's disease, ordinary nephritis, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, gravel, suppression of the secretion, cannot be tampered with or disregarded safely. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a superb depurative tonic, giving the due impulse, without excitation, to the renal organs, besides strengthening and regulating them in common with the rest of the system. It infuses, too, vigor and regularity into the stomach, bowels and liver, successfully counteracts malaria and rheumatism, and is a pre-eminently fine tonic for the aged, the enfeebled and the convalescent.

What Are Sun Dogs?

The term is applied to that variety of halo in which there is a luminous spot, or the image of the sun, beside it. Generally there are two, three, or four of these seen at once. They are sometimes called parhelia, or mock-suns. They are only seen when the sky is covered with those highest thread-like forms of clouds known as cirrus or cirro-stratus. These clouds are composed of fine particles of ice, and the phenomena of sun-dogs is due to the refraction of the sunlight passing through the clouds.

Why He Left.

Questions of political economy will stray into the most serious moments of young life.

"Don't you think, Evilina, dear, that you—er—need a little protection?"

"Possibly, George. But I don't know as I am in favor of quite so much raw material."

And then he picked up his hat and went out into the damp fog of a relentless world.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

Children's day will be observed by nearly all the churches. Preparations are under way for an entertaining program.

The continuous rain for the last eight days, and many days before, has brought all farming to a standstill. Nearly all the oats fields are spotted, and some of them are nearly all spots and no oats. The wheat fields are injured in places also.

Thomas Carr and wife who were summoned here on account of the sad death of their son-in-law, Adam Prosser, have been called as suddenly, back to their Missouri home on account of the dying condition of their son Carmie's wife, whose maiden name was Annie Imhoff, daughter of Elizabeth Imhoff living two miles east of town.

Obituary.

The subject of this notice, the infant son of Wm. and Lou's Harris, was born March 4, and died May 15, 1892, aged 2 mos. and 11 days. The remains were taken to Pleasant Lake cemetery, Tuesday, for interment.

From adverse blasts and lowering storm,
His favored soul he bore,
And with yon bright angelic throng,
He lives to die no more.
Why should I vex my heart, or fast,
No more he'll visit me
But I shall go to him at last,
And there my darling see.

Card of Thanks.

We extend our heartfelt thanks to the neighbors who so kindly rendered assistance and sympathy through the sickness and death of our little babe.

MR. and MRS. WM. HARRIS.

He Has Won a Reputation.

Beethoven, Mozart, John Bull and many other great musical geniuses, have been written about by journalists and historians for hundreds of years. They have by their skill and power held vast multitudes spell-bound, while sweetly enchanting melodies would rise and fall like infinite and sublime inspiration upon the music-loving throngs. Nations adore these great artists who so fluently interpreted seraphic melody and the pages of history bear a sacredly cherished memory of them. The subject of this article, Mr. J. I. Chaney, will not begin to compare with the superior talent and skill of the ancient masters of the heaven-born art, nor does he lay any claim to public adoration or a special place on the glowing pages of history; but the people of DeKalb county, and particularly the many readers of the COURIER, are hereby directed to the fact that he is the principal music dealer in Auburn. We spoke of this gentleman in a general way, a short time since, which struck a tender chord of interest in the hearts of many who appreciate the merits and advantages of a good musical education, and the patronage which followed has been both profitable and aggressive. Many young ladies and gentlemen, who are seeking especial distinction as proficients in the art, have learned to know that it is not necessary for them to leave their pleasant homes, friends and positions, to attend the conservatories of music in the city, in order that they may get competent instruction. Proficiency comes only from tireless and unceasing practice, combined with proper instructions. The able teacher at home is just as good as the able teacher abroad, and just as worthy of personal consideration. Like the man who searched the world for a four-leafed clover, and found it at last in his own door yard, many young people think they can learn nothing noble, great and unless they go far away to some noted person, whose influence in some instances has more to do with his or her reputation, than actual ability. Such a course is not always the safest, and at least, has a mortifying tendency toward the elimination of the theory, "Give home talent a chance." Mr. Chaney is an earnest, energetic and enterprising business man, as well as a worthy citizen, who has made the profession of music the study of many years, and the success with which he has met, amply proves his individual right to the place he now occupies among the large corps of accomplished music teachers with which this county is blessed. He now conducts a large class in singing at Sedan, where he taught last year. The pupils are progressing very rapidly under the careful direction they are receiving.

A Plain Falsehood.

The Dispatch last week, quoted from the Indianapolis Journal, as it usually does all its opinions. The article abounded in misstatements, but there is one that even the Dispatch's dense ignorance should have discovered and avoided. In speaking of the tax law, it very properly spoke of the state debt, and added that the state debt had increased from $4,167,507 in 1880, to 8,540,615 in 1890, remarking "every dollar of this increase was made by the democratic party." We repeat, the Dispatch was ignorant if it believed this. If it did not believe, why did it publish a known falsehood? Believing the Dispatch ignorant rather than to accuse it of dishonesty, we will state that from 1880 to 1884, Indiana had a republican governor and most of the state officers. In the winter of 1881, the legislature was republican for it sent Ben Harrison to the U. S. senate. In 1882 the democrats carried the state and legislature. In 1884 they did the same. In 1886 the republicans carried the state, getting state officers, and making the legislature practically a tie. In 1888 the republicans carried the state, getting once more all the state officers but not a majority of the legislature. So it will be seen that in the ten years named, republicans had the governor six years, and the democrats but four. The republicans had the other state offices six years and the democrats four. The republicans had the legislature two years, the democrats, six, and two years it was a tie. So it will be seen, that of the total machinery of the state government, the republicans had the most, and if the debt increased they should be held so far responsible. And if the democrats had the legislature more years, it should be remembered, that when the expensive asylums were provided for, the democratic legislature fixed the total cost at $600,000, and Porter, the republican governor and the board which he appointed and of which he was the head, swelled the expense up to $1,400,000 or more than double the amount the democratic legislature had fixed, And in any case, when appropriations had to be considered democrats and republicans alike voted for them, and both are responsible. That the most of these expenses were necessary, should relieve either party of blame, and if any were not necessary, then both are alike to blame. We do not however, suppose the Dispatch or any of its party papers will have the manliness to say so.

Report of the Auditing Committee of the Board of Trustees of the Town of Auburn.

We, the undersigned, a committee appointed by you to audit the records and accounts of the Treasurer, Clerk and Marshal of the said town of Auburn, from the 12th of May, 1890 to the 12th of May, 1892, do make the following report of our examination of the books, records, papers, and vouchers appertaining to the official services of said town officers, as follows:

We find the accounts of Charles H. G. Jones, town Treasurer, in excellent condition, and his business methods have essentially assisted our investigation of his books.

During the two years ending May 12, 1892, Mr. Jones has received and disbursed on account of the several funds, as follows:

Fund.	Received.	Expended.	On hand
Municipal	$6,925.82	$6,501.52	$425.30
Road	2,194.70	2,174.86	19.84
Add'l Spec.	3,860.49	3,582.25	278.24
Totals	$12,982.01	$12,258.63	$723.38

We have examined and compared all allowances ordered by the town Board as they appear on record made by the Clerk of the town of Auburn, and find that, no discrepancy exists between such allowances and the orders issued for payment. The Clerk has not received any money from any source, and no charges are debited to his account. By authority of the town Board, the Clerk has placed sidewalk claims aggregating $150.84 in the hands of E. D. Hartman, town attorney, for collection.

Clinton Headley, town Marshal from May 1890 until November of the same year received:

For licenses issued sund. persons	$81.00
" team hire and sand	2.35
" lumber sold	2.35
Total, and all paid over to Treas.	$85.70

Joseph Pfeiferl, town Marshal from Nov. 1890 to May 12, 1892, Dr.

To licenses issued to sund. persons,	$84
By same paid over to Treasurer,	84

On the book of town Treasurer we find him charged with $101.20 on account of tile paid for by Newton Gilbert, but can find no authority for his purchase of any tile, in the record of the proceedings of the town Board. We recommend that the matter be looked up with a view to proper record, and that hereafter, all disposal of town property be made only on order of said Board.

Attempted Train Robbery.

The Taylor, Texas Review of May 6, tells of an exciting episode on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road, in which engineer John Pepple, son of Uncle John Pepple of this place, was a prominent actor. We give the item in full as John's Auburn friends will be interested:

"Yesterday morning M. K. & T., passenger train No. 1 came into Troy, the first station north of Temple, on time, and on account of No. 2 being late was delayed there about 15 minutes. After No. 2 passed engineer John Pepple pulled out, but had hardly got started when the porter, Lee Caldwell, pulled the bell cord and attempted to put off two men supposed to be tramps. The colored porter at last forced the men to get off of the "blind baggage" by pushing them, and was fired upon twice by them, but the train pulling out left the tramps at Troy. The porter came over the tank to the engine and reported the matter to engineer Pepple and fireman John Jones, and said that he thought the men were masked.

After the train had passed the stock pens 2½ miles north of Temple some one began flagging the train about ½ mile ahead. Engineer Pepple's suspicions were aroused by the awkward manner in which the stop signal was given, and also from the fact that after he had answered the signal the man with the lamp continued to give stop signals. He also knew it could not be a trainman as he had met the north bound passenger at Troy, and no other train could be on that piece of track. He slowed up his train to about four miles an hour as he approached the lamp, and when within a short distance it was suddenly extinguished. By this time the head light shone upon two men who were running toward the engine, both of whom had guns which bore the appearance of Winchesters. The men were masked, one wearing a brown suit of clothes and a wide brimmed hat. As the engine rolled by the man with a white hat, engineer Pepple asked "what do you want?" The reply was "stop!" By this time the baggage car was even with the men, and as the train did not stop they opened a fusilade of shots at the engine. Engineer Pepple, who had in the meantime opened his sand valves, dropped his reverse lever in the corner, pulled the throttle open and fell off of his seat box on the deck; fireman Jones and porter Caldwell flew for the pit of the tank. Pepple got his head high enough to watch out for obstructions on the track and in this manner they made a fly run for Temple. John Pepple says that Jones and Caldwell crawled under the coal when the shooting commenced and staid there until he whistled for Temple, and they say that John tried to crawl under his patent seat box. Any way, when the train stopped at Temple the 53 was still in the corner and all the fire gone out through the stack.

The back end of the 53's tank shows the effect of two shots. No doubt the porter prevented a train robbery by putting the two men off at Troy. The plans were, probably, for the two men on the blind baggage to come over the tank as soon as the train left Troy and compel the engineer to stop when the train was flagged and then the four men would rob the mail and express car, if not the entire train.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

John Butt, late in December, had sold the DeKalb saloon to Eldridge and now in 1862, as host of the Weaver House ran a hack to and from Ft. Wayne at a fare of $1.00 a trip, alternating every other day with a similar conveyance owned by S. D. Long of the Auburn House.

In the absence of bank facilities at Auburn, the former attended to express and banking business which was conducted with offices and bank at Fort Wayne and the latter, on contract carried the mail over the same route.

In March, Mr. Dickinson retired from the conduct of the Waterloo Press and was succeeded by J. F. Radcliffe, formerly a foreman in the office and the sheet was small in size and limited in home news, while editing and publishing a paper in Auburn seemed to be done on hard lines of existence, since the New Era, small as it had been, was reduced to a half sheet and occasionally missed an issue altogether.

It was stated in a copy of the Press in 1862, that Wm. R. McAnally living one and a half miles east of Waterloo had built a cooper shop and resumed work at his trade. He claimed to have built the first cooper shop in DeKalb county "down in old Butler township near Judge Work's, in 1840 and many old settlers, customers, had barrels yet in use which he had made for them twenty years ago." It is possible that even at this date, a barrel or two might be found in the cellar of some old settler, of McAnally's make, lasting like the good deacon's wonderful one-hoss shay.

Charles Klotz, once a prosperous and popular tailor in Auburn, years ago removed and scarcely remembered, came in 1862 from Philadelphia to this town and was for a time in the employ of Messrs. Stiefel & Wolf. He later went into business on his own account, and did well until seeking to enlarge his trade, he moved away his old frame building to the south end, and built a brick store which long bore his name in gilt and served as a reminder.

Henry Wolf and Robert B. Showers were also new residents. Wolf was a member of Co. A., 100th Ind., and had a trying experience in Andersonville prison. He is best known as a leader in martial music, and his drum corps was a feature of soldiers' gatherings and political campaigns.

Mr. Showers, an old settler in the county, having located at Auburn, in 1862, has continually resided in his home on South Cedar street till the present. In all these years he has been a manufacturer of brooms of excellent quality, which find ready sale at home. It is a familiar sight to observe him with a dozen brooms fresh from the shop, borne on his shoulder, on his way up town to market them. He has seen broom factories start, flourish and go into bankruptcy while quietly continuing his hand work. He is one of the few who mind their own business, and, save when a public sale requires his services as auctioneer, his garden in summer and his shop in winter occupy his time.

Thirty years ago, the holding of court at the county seat differed greatly from the present, and there is still little in common. Then the old settlers looked forward to the term as a time when they could meet perhaps as grand and petit jurors, and talk over the doings of an olden time, and as spectators or interested parties, listen to the proceedings and enjoy arguments of counsel. But the pioneers who yet remain, incapacitated for travel by age and infirmity, come no more to the court house, and sessions of court, frequent, irregular and protracted, are troubled by few visitors, and jurors are drawn from the ranks of a younger class of men.

It was still before the present court house had been contemplated, and a dingy building with its old style Corinthian pillars yet served as an arena for legal controversaries while its scant dimensions were supplemented by outlying offices on the public square, and the shabby old jail was a fit consort to the ancient temple of justice.

Two courts were held, the one known as circuit, because as now, the judge held court in regular sequence in the counties composing the circuit, and the other was the court of common pleas.

Judge E. R. Wilson presided over the former and Judge Wm. M. Clapp over the latter, while J. W Cummings, the prosecuting attorney has left an honorable record as having conducted that ill-requited office with ability and energy. The docket of the January term was unusually heavy and much business was transacted.

John Ralston was clerk, and with him James B. Morrison had his office to mutual advantage, the one furnishing quarters, the other convenient to those in quest of legal assistance.

In the office with George Barney, the county treasurer, was James Brinkerhoff claim agent, and W. H. Dills was copartner with John Morris, the one residing at Auburn, the other as now living at Fort Wayne.

Judge Mott, had taken his son Sheridan E. Mott into partnership under the firm name of E. B. & S. E. Mott, to practice law. Abner F. Pinchin, one of the oldest resident practitioners in the county, and for many years a citizen of our sister town of Butler, was located at Hamilton, Steuben county.

Albert J. Hunt was Auditor while his energetic young predecessor, Mr. Pierce, was testing the financial possibilities of a country town's drug store, undismayed by previous failures. Mr. Hunt died in the fall and at a special term of the county commissioners, held on Sept. 26, Joel E. Hendricks comes once more into public view as appointee to the office for the brief period before the election and qualifying of George Kuhlman.

Obituary.

Died May 13, 1892, Henry Saylor, aged 71 years, 7 months and 3 days. The subject of this sketch was born in Preble county, Ohio, October 10th, 1820. In his 13th year, 1833, with his parents emigrated to Allen county, Indiana, and settled at point on the state line, called at that time New Harrison, about four miles west of Antwerp, Ohio. He continued to remain in that locality until 1842, when he came to Concord township, this county, working for a few years for Cornelius Woodcox, a brother-in-law. In the year 1845, he was married to Elizabeth Willburn, and commenced housekeeping on the farm on which he died. He was the father of three children, one son and two daughters; one of the daughters preceded him to the spirit land in 1852. The son, L. S. Saylor and daughter, wife of Ex-Trustee J. E. Dermott, and the widow, now in her 68th year, together with numerous relatives, here and elsewhere are left to mourn his loss. Through a long and continued sickness, he was very patient, was resigned and willing to die, if it was to be. His remains were interred in the beautiful Evergreen cemetery near the village of Newville. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Lower, of Hicksville, Ohio. The family have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood in this their sad bereavement.

At last, we have the faint hope of enjoying a season of refreshing pleasure when we see the developing influence of spring shed abroad in our land. Cold rains and chilling winds have given place to balmy and sunny skies. Sweetest flowers fill woodland and meadow with beauty and fragrance so delightful that the human mind and heart cannot be insensible to the soothing influence and inspiring loveliness of natural simplicity. The great flower garden of the universe is filled with the rare specimens of beauty and elegance so bounteously given for the comfort and healing of mankind, and they bring to our vision the scene of many happy changes which time has wrought. It is at this time of year that poor, weak and diseased humanity realizes the need of something to revive and sustain a healthy tone to the system. Each invalid as he moves languidly on his bed of affliction and the sad reflections of his helpless condition come mingled with the sweet memories of youthful vigor and strength, as he gazes listlessly about the narrow room and longs for the joyful time when good health will once more clothe his countenance with its rudy glow. But the last faint ray of hope that glimmers on his pallid cheek dies away in the regrets of an almost forgotten past, when the trusted physician announces the awful truth that recovery is impossible and death inevitable. Nature is one of the most potent and effective agents through which lost health is regained, when made use of by practitioners who understand it. A few days ago, the itinerant strolled 'round the Junction's thoroughfare and while thus preambulating, happened to drop into the drug house of Dr. M. Greenewald. This enterprise is of recent establishment, and a good stock of that quality of goods from which medicines are compounded, is always kept on hand. It is a representation in a small degree of what is required to overcome that grim monster disease. The Doctor is a graduate of the Allopathic School of Medicine at Munich, Bavaria. He gave seven years' close application to the study of man, his diseases and their cure. For eighteen months he served as a member of the Board of Health in Hamburg, Prussia. He then went to South America, where he practiced for three years. He then came to North America, and for eighteen years has been practicing in DeKalb county, where he has been known as an able and conscientious physician among the best of American practitioners. Twenty-three years hard study, observation and practical experience, enables him to make a specialty in the treatment of difficult and obscure diseases, and many are they who hail the Doctor with delight, when they remember that it was he, who snatched them, as it were, from the very jaws of death. Experience, capable judgment and a sympathy for suffering humanity, have amply fitted him for the noble work of healing his fellow creatures, among whom he enjoys an enviable reputation. The drug store serves a good purpose for the Junction people, and speaks in glowing terms of the enterprise of a worthy citizen.

"The Rocky Mountain Limited" And "The Big 5."

One Night Out, or One Day Out. Take Your Choice. Business Demands it, and the People Must Have it.

The popularity of "The Great Rock Island Route" as a Colorado line—it having long time since taken first place as the people's favorite between the Lakes and the Mountains—has compelled the management to increase its present splendid service by the addition of a train that is one night on the road from Chicago to Denver, Colorado Springs or Pueblo. This train will be known as the "ROCKY MOUNTAIN LIMITED," and will be put in service May first. Leaves Chicago daily at 10:45 a. m., arriving at above cities in the afternoon of the next day, earlier than any of its competitors Especial equipment has been built for this train, with the view of making it a limited in every sense of the word, and best of all, there will be no extra charge. The route of this exceedingly fast train is by the Rock Island Short Line, and a few of the large cities through which it passes, are Davenport, DesMoines, Council Bluffs, Omaha, Lincoln, Beatrice, Fairbury, Belleville, Phillipsburg, Smith Center, Colby and Goodland. This makes it a most desirable route, and particularly interesting to the traveler. Another point: The popularity of our dining-car service is still on the increase, and no money spared to make this service what our patrons always say, "the best."

Our "Big 5" will continued as usual, leaving Chicago at 10 p. m. and arriving at Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, the second morning, being but one day out, and this fast and popular train goes through Omaha.

Our No. 11 will leave as heretofore at 6 p. m., arrive at Kansas City at 9:00 a. m., and will reach Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo the second morning.

Our Colorado service is made perfect by this new "Rocky Mountain Limited" and the "Big 5," and gives to the traveling public two flyers daily.

Manitou passengers should consult the map and time tables of our line, to fully appreciate the advantages in time saved by taking this route, when on their summer vacation.

Three Men Murdered in One Evening in a Southern Town—Wholesale Cattle Stealing—An Immense Tank of Oil Explodes—Found Murdered After One Month.

THREE MEN SLAIN.

Murders Committed in One Evening in an Atlanta Suburb.

Atlanta (Ga.) special: The waterworks here was the scene the other night of three tragedies, two of which have resulted fatally and the victim of the third will die. Owing to the stringent liquor laws the people around the waterworks lay in supplies by the quantity. A large number of men got up an impromptu dance on the hill near by. They were half drunk and hilarious. Kid Sandford stepped upon the toes of Mack Matthews. The latter drew his revolver and shot Sandford dead. This scattered the dancers, angering them at the same time. In one of the groups which was discussing the tragedy later Bob Taylor and John Johnson disagreed. They fired simultaneously. One ball went through Taylor's breast, leaving no hope of life. Within the next half hour John Kennedy and "Kicking" Bill Taylor came together. Taylor was shot in the abdomen and died from its effects. None of the guilty men have been caught.

Sensation on the Western Border.

Guthrie (Okla.) special: Mrs. A. S. Blackburn of Norman, has just been remarried to J. B. Jackson of Leavenworth, Kan., from whom she was divorced twelve years ago last December. Jackson was sentenced at Greenwood County, Kan., for manslaughter, and his wife obtained a divorce. She then married Blackburn, and her life with him was apparently happy till within a few months. Sometime ago Blackburn, who is a steady but poor man, went to the opening of the Cheyenne and Arapahoe country. Mrs. Blackburn forthwith sued for a divorce on the grounds of abandonment and nonsupport. The decree was granted the day before Jackson, whom she had notified, put in an appearance. Mrs. Blackburn then married Jackson. Blackburn made the best of things, and has discovered that he is Jackson's long-lost brother. Long ago he left his home in Columbia City, Ind., on account of a scrape, and changed his name. He is now living pleasantly under the same roof with his brother and former wife.

Wholesale Cattle Stealing.

Douglas (Wyo.) special: It is reported that the small stockmen of Johnson County are shooting down cows with calves following them and branding the calves, and that wholesale stealing of cattle is of daily occurrence. Following this comes the announcement that the United States officers en route to Fort McKinney had been held up and treated in a shameful manner. United States deputy marshals are serving injunctions against the small stockman of Crazy Woman, who have almost completed their roundup. The county is still patrolled by armed men, and at present it would be impossible for an invading force to surprise the stockmen.

Surprised the Family.

A sensation was created at Boston, recently, by the appearance of Robert Barton, who disappeared ten years ago. Barton was recently left $5,000 from the estate of Mrs. Clara Barton. Administrator John M. Clark, of the estate, had gathered all of the heirs of Mr. Barton in his office for the distributing of Barton's share among them, when suddenly Barton walked in, creating consternation. Several women present fainted. It was only accidentally that Barton heard of his good fortune.

Into the Canal.

John Brocke, William Mahoney, and David Maloney were driving from Manlius to Syracuse, N. Y. Discovering that they were on the wrong road they attempted to turn around and the horse backed into the canal. Brocke and Mahoney escaped with a wetting, but no trace of Maloney could be found save his hat which was found about four feet from where the buggy went into the canal.

Found Murdered After One Month.

The decomposed body of Frank Orr, the hardware dealer of Zanesville, Ohio, who disappeared one month ago, was found in the Muskingum River. The face had been crushed in and there was a bullet hole in the forehead, showing death by foul play. When Orr was seen last he was about to depart for Boston. There is no clew to the murderer.

Blaine and McKinley.

Governor McKinley's closest newspaper organ, the Cleveland Leader, in a leading editorial article pronounces for Blaine and McKinley as "the strongest ticket that could be made," and says that "next to President Harrison, the only man seriously thought of for the presidency is Mr. Blaine."

An Immense Tank Explodes.

A 12,000-barrel reservoir of oil, owned by the Standard Oil Company, exploded at Whiting, in Lake County, Indiana. The shock was felt for thirty miles. No cause is known. The loss will be over $20,000. A number of workmen were injured.

A Mother's Awful Crime.

At Woodstock, N. H., Mrs. Ralph Noyes administered a fatal dose of aconite to her two children, and then attempted to cut their throats with a razor. She then killed herself by the same method. The children cannot recover.

Destitution Among Flood Sufferers.

Jackson (Miss.) special: Gov. Stone is daily receiving numerous letters from Issaquena, Sharkey, Adams, and other counties on the Mississippi River calling for assistance. The people, judging from the appeals, are very destitute. While there have been no breaks on this side, large portions of land have been overflowed from back and seepage water. The Governor is powerless to render assistance as there are no funds available for such purposes.

A Roof Falls In.

The roof of the First Methodist Protestant Church of Pittsburgh, fell in, injuring seven men, two fatally. The building was being demolished, and three of the workmen were engaged in sawing in half one of the great beams which supported the roof. These beams extended upward at an angle meeting in the apex. The workmen began on a beam in the center. When it was three-quarters sawed through there was a crackling sound of severing timber, then a crash and without a moment's warning all the heavy timbers or rafters broke at once and fell in a mass to the floor carrying with them the gallery upon which the three men were working and burying them under the heavy rafters. Two were pinioned to the floor and instantly deprived of consciousness. The third escaped with only painful bruises. There were two carpenters on the ground floor at the time and they were struck by falling rafters before they could flee.

OH! HORRORS!

Nine Hundred People are Killed and Seven Thousand Injured by a Cyclone.

London special: Advices received here from Mauritius states that a hurricane unprecedented in its violence passed over that island on April 29, causing enormous damage to shipping. Nine hundred persons are reported killed, 7,000 injured, and half the crops destroyed by the cyclone.

A majority of the vessels at the island were blown ashore. The western half of Port Louis, the capital, was devastated. Houses were blown down, gigantic trees were uprooted, and that part of the town was about wiped out of existence.

The loss of life was appalling. A large number of persons were caught in the falling houses and crushed to death, while others lost their lives by being struck by flying debris while they were attempting to seek places of safety. The roar of the gale was deafening and people rushed to and fro in aimless confusion, with no idea of what they were doing. Rain fell in torrents. The thunder crashed with awe-inspiring volleys, while the flashes of lightning were blinding.

Indiana Gas Men Against the Chicago Pipe Line.

Representatives of the different natural gas companies of Indiana met at Peru, and discussed the probable intentions of the Chicago gas syndicate which has been trying for years to get gas from the Indiana fields to Chicago. Among those present were: John P. Frenzel, Indianapolis; Judge Calvin Cowgill, Wabash; James Murdock, Lafayette; Henry C. Paul, Fort Wayne; Hugh Daugherty, Bluffton, and George Landen, Kokomo. Within the last few weeks the Chicago company has been piping to Kokomo and preparing to offer great opposition to the company operating there, in the way of prices. The situation was thoroughly discussed and resolutions were adopted to come to the assistance of the present Kokomo company and make good any losses resulting from the presence of the Chicago people. It is understood that Peru and several other cities will also be piped by the Chicago company in the future, and the same protection is assured to companies in these places. The capital represented at the meeting is about $7,000,000.

Cut the Dyke.

Ottumwa (Iowa) special: Fifty armed citizens cut the levee at this point to save their property from the destruction which they judged would otherwise follow from the continually increasing flood. As the cutting was calculated to injure the property of the Water Company it was necessary to carry out the work at the point of the pistol. The Water Company's Superintendent endeavored to check the men in their intent, but withdrew when a revolver was leveled at his head. The dyke was cut in three places, allowing the water to escape. At Eddysville, fifty families have been driven from their homes and the entire town is in imminent danger. Danger faces the people from the fact that the Mississippi is rapidly backing up into the Des Moines and no amount of fall above can help Ottumwa until the waters in the Mississippi recede.

The Blaine Boom.

A close friend and admirer of President Harrison, speaking of the efforts being made by the antagonists of the President to defeat his renomination by the use of the name of Secretary Blaine, says: "The movement has nothing honest nor sincere in it. This is apparent even to a casual observer when it is considered that none of the friends of Mr. Blaine are engaged in it. None of the gentlemen whose names are prominently connected with the movement were recognized as particular friends of the Secretary when he was a candidate for the presidency and it is only a scheme to nominate Alger. When Blaine is nominated and declines, it is hoped the nomination will go to Alger."

Both Engines Blew Up.

A work train on the C. M. & St. P. was standing on the switch at Preston, Iowa, when a west bound merchandise freight dashed into it at the rate of forty miles an hour. The engineer, Lon Owens of the work train, was probably fatally injured. The engines came together with terrific force and both exploded, fragments being thrown several hundred feet. Owens was thrown over 100 feet. Fifteen cars were demolished, one corner of the depot was torn off, and the entire building shoved six inches to one side. The total damage was over $10,000.

Big Crevasse Near New Orleans.

New Orleans special: Information has reached here that a crevasse has occurred at the Hester plantation, a few miles above the great Nita crevasse of 1890. It is now forty feet wide and is increasing rapidly. The information received is meager, but it is almost impossible to close a crevasse at that point, and it is certain that the Illinois Central railroad will go under water. The loss will probably exceed $1,000,000. A number of valuable sugar plantations and perique tobacco farms will be overflowed for three months.

Killed His Jailer and Was Lynched.

Morrillton (Ark.) special: A horrible murder was committed in the jail of Perry County, twelve miles south of this place, and the murderer was lynched. Charles Stewart, in custody for attempted rape, dashed out the brains of Tom Holmes, Deputy Sheriff, who was guarding the jail, using a piece of scantling as a weapon. The citizens, discovering the horrible deed, forcibly broke open the jail, and, securing Stewart, took him out and hanged him to the nearest tree.

Relay Riders Reach New York.

The last relay bicyclists, carrying the message of Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commander of the department of the Missouri, to Gen. O. O. Howard, commander of the Division of the Atlantic, wheeled in front of headquarters, New York, at 1:05 Sunday morning. This message had been carried from Chicago to New York by a 975-mile route in four days, thirteen hours and five minutes. This was just thirteen hours and fifty minutes more than schedule time.

Shipwrecked Sailors Stranded.

Waquina (Or.) special: Three boats containing eighteen men belonging to the ship St. Charles, stranded at Cape Foul Weather Light House. The captain, second mate and two men were badly injured. The captain was in a critical condition. The ship St. Charles was en route from Nanaimo to San Francisco with a cargo of coal, and on May 17 an explosion occurred, causing the crew to abandon the ship, which was sinking.

A Sea Serpent Turns Up in Ohio.

The fishermen near Oak Harbor, Ohio, declare they saw a veritable sea serpent in Lake Erie recently. It was seen at two different times and is described as about twenty-five feet long and a foot and half in diameter in the thickest part of the body. Its head was large and flat and there appeared to be several large fins or flippers about five feet from the head. It was black in color, mottled with brown spots.

Why Mr. Beale Came Home.

Washington special: Mr. Beale, United States Minister to Persia, is in the city on a leave of absence. It is said that his presence here at this time is for the purpose of marrying Miss Hattie Blaine, the youngest daughter of Secretary Blaine. His engagement to Miss Blaine has been standing for over a year. It is said that the wedding may take place before the departure of the Secretary for the seashore and mountains.

He Deserves It, Truly.

At the request of Senator Turpie the Senate has passed a bill granting a pension of $20 a month to George W. Jones, 88 years of age, now a resident of Dubuque, Iowa, and formerly a Senator of the United States, in consideration of services rendered by him as drummer boy in the war of 1812-14 and as aid-de-camp to General Dodge in the Black Hawk war of 1832.

Bloodshed in Prospect.

Oakland (Cal.) special: The dispute between the railroad people and private property holders as to the title in water front property, bids safe to result in bloodshed. Both interests have armed men guarding the property, and the excitement is running so high a large force of police and deputy constables have been sent to the scene to prevent the threatened outbreak if possible.

In Ignorance of His Fall.

Richard M. Gray, alias R. J. Simpson, leaves the Michigan Penitentiary this week and returns to his home. He is the son of a prominent clergyman of New Haven, Conn., and has been mourned for dead for over a year. His family has lived in ignorance of his disgrace. He was sentenced to the pen in June, 1891, for two years.

Quietly Hanged.

Seaborn Smith, was quietly hanged at Covington, Ga., in the jail yard. The town was full of people, but only a few were admitted to the scene of the hanging. No disturbances occurred. Smith's neck was broken and he died in a few moments. Smith's crime was the criminally assaulting of a 12-year-old girl.

Will Not Be Changed.

The World's Fair Committee on Ceremonies has decided that it would not be advisable to ask Congress to change the date for the dedication ceremonies of the Columbian exposition from October 12 to October 21, as it would cause too much confusion in the arrangements already perfected.

Rebels Sink a War Ship.

Rio Janeiro special: The ironclad Solimos, one of the six war ships sent against the rebels at Matto Groso was sunk in the harbor of Montevideo and 105 of her crew drowned. Only five on the vessel escaped. Great consternation is felt here. No further details are obtainable yet.

A Double Drowning.

At Sonora, Texas, a waterspout struck north of the town and rushing down a creek, giving it a five-foot rise, drowned Willie, the 6-year-old son of J. M. Price. George Dalton, in an effort to rescue the little fellow, was also carried down the stream and drowned. The bodies were recovered.

Over Four Hundred Killed.

Dispatches from Lagos announce that the British have defeated the Jebus near Magbone. Twenty chieftains and 400 Jebu soldiers were killed. Capt. Owen, Capt. Harding, Lieut. Lowrie and thirty men of the British troops were wounded. The British have occupied Jaboude.

At an Hour's Notice.

Col. Blunt, commanding the Sixteenth Infantry at Fort Douglas, near Salt Lake City, has been notified by the War Department to hold his command ready to march at an hour's notice to the scene of the strike among the miners at Coeur d' Alene, Idaho.

Sixty-Two Buildings Burned.

Portland (Ore.) special: News has reached this city of the almost total destruction by fire of the town of Chehalis, Wash. Much of the most valuable property in the town was burned, sixty-two buildings being destroyed.

It is practically settled that Comptroller Lacy will become president of the Banker's National Bank of Chicago, an institution with $1,000,000 capital, which will open for business July 1.

Death of William H. Vanderbilt.

William H. Vanderbilt, eldest son of Cornelius Vanderbilt, who has been suffering for some time past of typhoid fever, died at his father's residence, New York.

All Were Burned.

Two children were playing in a barn at Guttenburg, Ia., when it caught fire. Their mother tried to save them, and all perished.

An Old War Mayor Dead.

VICTIMS OF THE TARIFF

MEN WHO DO NOT ENJOY THE TIN-PLATE FARCE.

Owners of Factories Whose Business Is Curtailed—Labor Cost in Europe and the United States—Continuation of McKinley's Account.

The Tariff Robbery.

The New York Tribune and other high-tax papers are going into ecstasies over the report of Ira Ayer, Special Agent of the Treasury Department, on the tin plate industry. The report shows that during the quarter ending March 31, 1892, nineteen manufacturers produced about 3,000,000 pounds of tin and terne plates, about two-thirds of which were terne plates; and that the production for the past fiscal year has been 4,527,230 pounds, of which 1,335,058 pounds were tin plate. As our annual consumption of tin plate is about 400,000,000 pounds, our last year's product would supply us for about three days, and is equal to about one per cent. of our total needs. To attain this magnificent standing among the tin plate manufacturing nations of the earth, we are now taxing ourselves at the rate of ten or twelve million dollars per annum, and have expended, during the last fifty years, perhaps one hundred and fifty million dollars for the same purpose. This expense, however, as great as it is, does not begin to equal the indirect cost to us, due to the injury done to other industries by high-priced tin plate. An idea of this indirect expense and injury can be gained by reports from various large consumers of tin plate made in the National Provisioner of April 30, 1892. The National Provisioner is the "organ of the provision and meat industries of the United States." It advocates the interests of its subscribers, and is not biased in favor of any theory. The following extracts are from this number of the National Provisioner:

"In view of the fact that the bill of the Hon. T. L. Bunting providing for the reduction of the duties on tin and terne plates, a copy of which was published in a recent number of this journal, has been introduced in Congress and will come up for discussion in a week or two, the directors of the Tin-Plate Consumers' Association have endeavored to ascertain what the effect of the increased duty has been upon the business of the consumers of tin plate throughout the country. They have, therefore, sent out a circular asking consumers of tin plates what the effect of the tariff has been on their business, and in response have received answers from most of the large consumers.

"For want of space not all of these answers can be published, but a selection is made which constitutes a fair average of their general tone, which shows pretty plainly what the effect of the increased tariff has been upon the people who cut up in their business four-fifths of the entire quantity of tin plate used in the United States."

Fairport, N. Y.:

"We used 4,800 boxes last year. Payment of McKinley duty required additional capital. In some branches increased cost of our goods compelled us to cut down wages of laborers to meet popular prices. In making baking powder cans increased cost of article and unwillingness on the part of our customers to pay increased price caused us to lose the business of some of the best of our customers. After two or three months of experimenting with others they returned to us, having learned that we were not trying to rob them, but were, like others, only asking a fair price on the basis of the government making us pay heavier taxes for the privilege of doing business. We have been heavy exporters of canned goods, but we fear that we will have to give up or greatly reduce our export trade. In the English and Scotch markets especially, Canada is selling at less than goods cost us. Canada pays no duty. Rebate does not place us on an equality. On fifty cases of pears rebate would not pay expenses of obtaining it. We pay duty on a full sheet of tin. The rebate does not cover waste in cutting round blanks."

Salem, Ohio:

"We have substituted galvanized iron for tin in consequence of the increased cost of the latter."

Adrian, Mich.:

"To increase the cost of No. 3 cans, the size most used by us, an average of 60 cents per hundred, and other sizes in proportion. We are not extensive packers, but the cans used by us last season cost over $4,000 more than the same quantity would have cost in 1889. This loss must be borne by us or by the producers of fruits and vegetables, or both. The canning industries have been greatly crippled by the increase of duty on tin plate. We have used the same help as before, but paid less wages per day."

Indianapolis, Ind.:

"To reduce our profits to such a narrow margin as to cause the desire to have our capital invested in some other enterprise, or abandon our present business altogether."

From a Boston packing house:

"Packed in our East Boston factory in 1890, 56,000 cases; in 1891, 35,345. Falling off, 20,655; decrease of help, twenty-five weekly hands. Gutter pipe, etc."

Cambridgeport, Mass.:

"To increase the cost a dollar a box instead of a natural decrease of some 30 cents a box. Not nearly so much business in our line is done as there should be. Results: Fewer hands employed, consumers paying more than they ought, manufacturers not making fair profits. Decrease of help, seven hands."

From Buffalo:

"Increased cost of tin plates, diminished profits, the substitution of other materials for tin plates, a good deal of misrepresentation and demoralization."

From a Boston can factory:

"That business has decreased some on account of the higher prices of goods."

Baltimore:

"To add the duty to the cost of the goods, and necessarily we have sold at a higher price than if there had been no increase."

Philadelphia:

"Unfavorable, increased cost of material; and not being able to advance prices, we are out the difference. The tendency is also to use inferior materials and decrease wages, and in various ways to make up."

Philadelphia:

"To advance the price of tin about one dollar per box, with the same cost of packing, and goods selling at same price as before the increase of duty."

Worcester, Mass.:

"That we are doing less business. Decrease of help, three hands."

Syracuse, N. Y.:

"To add the cost of the tin to the cost of the lanterns."

Syracuse, N. Y.:

"To cut down my trade in roofing tin more than one-half, making a considerable loss to my income, and, more than this, has forced a number of my smaller customers to retire from the business and to seek other occupations. I am not able to purchase roofing tin of American manufacture at marketable prices, only high-priced goods being offered—too high for the average consumer."

Baltimore:

"To increase the cost of production."

Buffalo, N. Y.:

"Decreasing consumption; economic labor; smaller margins."

New York City:

"Compelled us to raise our prices."

Baltimore:

"Quite a falling off in the demand for cans, owing to the increased duties, which have advanced the cost of tin plates about $1.30 per box. We have had to decrease our help about one-fifth."

Greenwich, N. Y.:

"Very much against us. We are running a smaller force, and will have to put up less goods than formerly. Decrease of help, three hands."

Northville, Mich.:

"To reduce our profits. We cannot charge any more for our condensed milk than we did before. We are taxed to help others establish the manufacture of tin plate in the United States. Our output is small yet. We are paying $1,000 a year to help others. The decline in sugar has helped us about $1,000 a year, so between the two it is a stand-off."

Cleveland, Ohio:

"To increase the cost of our goods by the extra duty."

Detroit, Mich.:

"In previous years our business has increased about 50 per cent. each year, and last year only about 15 per cent., entirely owing to the increase of prices made necessary by the duties."

Philadelphia:

"To lessen profits by increase of cost in materials. We have had to decrease our help irregularly."

Louisville, Ky.:

"Decrease in the sales on terne plates. Many persons refusing to pay the advanced prices due to the tariff. Decrease of help, five per cent."

Subletts, Va.:

"To make us pay $230 more for 215 boxes of tin."

Wages and Labor Cost.

It was Henry Clay who clearly pointed out the fact, which modern protectionists seem to have lost sight of, that low wages did not mean low cost of production. As an instance of this fact he cited the case of Asia and Europe. Wages in Europe, he said, were many times higher than wages in Asia, but, because of the great use of machinery in Europe and of the greater intelligence and skill of the workmen, particularly in Great Britain, manufactured articles, which require any considerable amount of labor, are manufactured "infinitely cheaper than they can be manufactured by the natural exertions" of the countless millions of unskilled, poorly paid and poorly fed laborers of Asia.

The rapidly increasing use of machinery since Clay's time has made this fact even more manifest now than it was then. It is the low-wage countries of the globe that supply the agricultural products and the raw materials of manufacture to the high-wage countries, and it is the high-wage countries that manufacture these raw materials into all kinds of articles—machinery, clothing, ships, furniture, farm and household implements—with which to supply themselves and to sell back to these high-wage countries. Hence, it would seem that if the tariff on manufactured articles is needed to protect labor, the countries most in need of such a tariff are the low-wage countries. This, in fact, is the rule. Italy, Russia, Spain, and the other low-wage countries of Europe are heavily protected against Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, and the other comparatively high-wage countries of Europe. Great Britain, the United States, France, Germany, and Belgium, the high-wage countries of the earth, are the greatest exporters of manufactured articles. There is but one explanation—it is cheaper to make costly articles where wages are high than where they are low. This has been demonstrated in detail by many statistical experts. Edward Atkinson has recently given us a long list of articles for which the labor cost to manufacture is less in the United States than in any country of Europe, e. g., a pair of shoes which it costs 58 cents to make in Massachusetts costs from 60 to 75 cents to make in foreign countries of Europe. He expresses the opinion that the labor cost in nine-tenths of the manufactured articles is less in the United States than in Europe. To the question that may be asked here by protectionists, "Why, then, do we not supply more of the manufactured articles of the world than Great Britain?" it may be replied our failure to do so is not because of the difference in labor cost of the product, but because of the excessive taxes levied by the United States upon the raw materials and the machinery of production. Remove this tax and the restrictions upon our shipping, and we will soon be exporting more manufactured articles than Great Britain.

In view of these facts let us notice the woolen industry in this country. During the last thirty years we have had a duty on woolen goods that has averaged nearly 90 per cent. The ostensible purpose of about half of this duty has been compensatory—that is, to reward the manufacturers for that part of the cost of raw wools, which is due to the duty on wool—and of the other half to make good the difference in labor cost between this country and Great Britain.

One of the first effects of this heavy "protection" which we will observe is the decline in the number of woolen mills in the United States from 2,391 in 1870, to 1,190 in 1880, and to 1,312 in 1890. The value of the goods manufactured increased from $267,252,913 in 1880 to $338,231,109 in 1890. It is apparent then that the exorbitant duty on raw materials tends to drive out small capitalists and to leave the business in the hands of monopolists. The next effect has been to make the price of woolen goods in the United States nearly double what they would have been without such protection. This additional cost to the 65,000,000 of people in the United States is not now less than $100,000,000 per year. But even with these high prices the woolen industry cannot be said to be in a flourishing condition—the increased value of the product being only about equal to the increase in population since 1880. The weight of taxation upon the raw materials is sufficient to prevent the growth of the industry even with these exceptionally high prices.

Another curious effect is that, while the duties have increased the price of raw material for manufacture, it has not apparently increased the price of domestic wools. As pointed out by John Sherman in 1883, the price of domestic wools declined from 51 cents in 1867 to 46 cents in 1870; 43 cents in 1876 to 36 cents to 40 cents in 1883.

But that part of the tariff to which we here wish especially to call attention is the part levied for the benefit of labor. Under the McKinley bill this part varies from 30 to 50 per cent., and will average about 45 per cent. As this duty is levied to cover the difference of labor cost in this and other countries, it may be well to inquire what this difference actually is.

The Hon. Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of Labor, has for some time been making special investigations into the cost of textiles in Europe and America. Advance sheets, showing this cost, were prepared for and used by the Hon. A. B. Montgomery in his speech in the House March 11, 1892. As explained by Commissioner Wright, the labor cost in this country includes all the processes of manufacture from the raw wool, while in Great Britain and on the continent of Europe it often does not include all of these processes—the cost of spinning the yarn and dyeing and finishing the cloth often being done in separate factories. Yet, notwithstanding this fact, an inspection of the labor cost of making the 217 samples—152 from our own and 65 from foreign factories—makes it evident that this difference is very slight. For example, the labor cost in fourteen samples of cashmere on the continent of Europe ranges from 15.20 per cent. to 22.08 per cent., the average being about 19 per cent.; of forty-six samples from the United States from 17.36 per cent. to 31.20 per cent., the average being 24 per cent. The labor cost for six samples of worsted goods made in Europe varies from 12.92 per cent. to 43.11 per cent., the average being about 22 per cent.; of thirty-six samples from the United States from 13.49 per cent. to 37.57 per cent., the average being about 21 per cent.; the labor cost in seven samples of ladies' dress goods from the United States varies from 15.41 per cent. to 23.54 per cent., the average being 20 per cent.; of five samples from Europe from 13.02 per cent. to 29.31 per cent., the average being 23 per cent.

As, however, no two samples from this and from any foreign country are exactly alike, it is impossible to rely strictly upon these comparisons. It is, however, safe to assert that the difference, if any exists, in the labor cost of textiles in this and in foreign countries does not exceed 6 or 8 per cent. There is, then, no just basis for a protection of more than 10 per cent. to cover this difference, and the 45 per cent. granted by McKinley for this purpose is an outrage upon the American people. In the Springer free wool bill an ad valorem duty of from 25 to 35 per cent. is left on manufactured woolens. This, as Congressman Montgomery shows, gives an average of 12 per cent. more protection than the entire labor cost in the production of 165 home-manufactured articles covered by Wright's table. This would then, except for the tariff tax on machinery, put our woolen manufacturers on an equal footing with those of Europe and leave them a margin of about 25 per cent. for profits. The claim by thoughtless protectionists that this 35 per cent. tariff would leave our woolen manufacturers unprotected and drive half of them out of the country is utterly without foundation.

The first week in May was a busy one for our accountant who has charge of the work of registering strikes, wage reductions, trusts, etc., that occurred during the week, and of crediting the McKinley bill with the wage advances made and the trusts killed, and of debiting it with the wage reductions, lockouts and trusts formed. On May Day the workingmen all over the country attempted to recover the reductions that naturally occur during the year in wages, and, if possible, to gain a little. Hundreds of strikes for this purpose occurred this year, but these are not taken into account. Even without these, the account on the debit side is so long that it will have to be abbreviated for publication. Strange to say, there is again little or nothing upon the credit side of the bill. The few slight reductions in hours or advances in wages gained by the May-day strikes have all occurred in the non-protected industries — carpentry, stone-cutting, plumbing, etc.

April 30. To a trust composed of gas fixtures. Some of the manufacturers alleged to belong to it deny that such a trust has been formed, but admit that prices have been raised. They say that the increased cost of material and higher duties compelled them to advance prices.

May 1. To a report that the great safe manufacturing houses of Herring, Hall and Martin have formed a trust with a capital of $3,300,000. The combined earnings of the three companies in 1891 was $316,790.

May 4. To a reduction in wages in the woolen mills of Jas. G. Knowles & Co., of Wilmington, Delaware. The wages of the weavers were reduced from 75 to 70 cents per cut. As this was the second reduction since February, when the price was 80 cents per cut, about twenty of the one hundred employes struck, and the mills have shut down. The wages of the men have averaged about $35 per month.

May 5. Prominent leather-tanning firms in and around New York City have called a meeting to consider a proposition not to wet any hides for a period of three months. If the market has not broadened by that time the tanners will continue to curtail the output until it does and prices can be raised.

May 5. To an increase from ¼ to 1½ cents per pound in the price of sisal twine made by the cordage trust. The dealers who are compelled to buy sisal twine must sell at not less than 12 cents per pound. Those who were fortunate enough to place their contracts before the National Cordage Company gained complete control can make a lower price. Only about one-fiftieth of what will be needed is now in the hands of dealers. Jobbers are completely out, and will be compelled to pay cordage prices. This means an extra expenditure of thousands of dollars to the farmers of the country.

May 6. To an advance of fifty cents in the price of anthracite coal, made by the great coal trust, composed of the railroads who now control 75 per cent. of all the anthracite coal lands in Pennsylvania. This means a direct annual tax of $20,000,000 per year on the American people. While there is no tariff on anthracite coal, yet the tariff on bituminous coal, which competes with anthracite, is indirectly a benefit to this trust. If New England could get her supply of bituminous coal from Nova Scotia, and save about $1 a ton, the price of bituminous coal, at least along the Atlantic coast, would have to decline, and the price of anthracite would decline with it.

May 6. To a reduction of 20 per cent. in the wages of the spidermakers at the Thompson-Houston Electric Company's factories in Lynn, Mass. The men suffered a 20 per cent. reduction two weeks ago, and have struck to resist the present reduction.

May 6. To a report that an English syndicate has obtained options on about twenty of Kentucky's largest bourbon whisky distilleries, that manufacture about 22,000,000 gallons a year—two-thirds of Kentucky's product. The syndicate expects to limit production and to raise prices. Mr. Nathan Hoffheimer, a well-known New York speculator, who has just made $300,000 out of the Reading deal, has secured the options and negotiated the deal. He will be a large stockholder in this new trust. The "old brand" men, who have a market for all they can make, are the only ones who refuse to enter the trust and sign a contract to curtail production more than 50 per cent.

The Wool Tax.

In an editorial article in the St. Louis Republic Congressman Wilson of West Virginia says:

"The revenue from duties on wool and on woolen goods during the last fiscal year was over $40,000,000, which was more than one-fifth part of our entire customs revenue, and more than one-ninth part of our entire revenue from taxation. There is only one subject of taxation that is more fruitful, and that is spirituous liquors."

Such taxation is the grossest possible violation of sound principles. It is a most onerous tax on one of the prime necessities of life, a tax which bears most heavily on the poor, and from which no man, woman or child can escape. By the manner of its imposition it compels the people to pay not only the $40,000,000 which goes to the Government, but a much greater sum which goes to the domestic producers of woolen goods who are "protected" in advancing prices by the heavy taxes of the McKinley law.—Pittsburg Post.

CHAPTER III.

A STARTLING ACCUSATION.

"Something's wrong!"

Paul Dalton uttered the words more than once upon the day that preceded the meeting of two precious rogues at the Ridgeton tavern.

The field hands repeated them as they cast askance glances at their master.

All that day he barely spoke to Ruth: he treated Dalton with gruff incivility; and woe betide the laborer whom he caught shirking his duty.

"Wheat's gone down."

"No; he's been caught on a bad horse-trade."

"Mebbe it's Dalton. He's getting rather spoony on the girl, and you know Farmer John has set his heart on a match with Ralph Prescott."

These and like gossipy explanations floated on the air—all very far from the true solution to the mystery of Farmer John's bad temper, however.

Meantime, with Ralph Prescott nursing and developing his spite, and Farmer John storing up wrath for a near explosion, there were two happy, unconscious souls that saw only gold in the dazzling sunshine, and fancied the songs of the birds the sweetest music, in harmony with hearts vibrating to new and delightful emotions.

They loved, these two, Ruth and Paul; they had loved long and purely, but in unexpressed fervor. Now, with the revelation of the white violets, their eyes spoke; a tell-tale flush, an ardent glance, a murmured term of endearment brought them to the threshold of life's sweetest, holiest experience.

If a memory of a false position and a mysterious past shadowed the lover's heart momentarily he drove it away.

If a thought of the stern will of the erratic grandsire, of her stubborn father, with eyes blinded to the deficiencies of Ralph Prescott, came to Ruth's mind she blotted it out with a realization of the great bliss that had come into her life to overshadow it all.

So these two golden hearts, with unseen barriers already placed between them, glided on to the bitter fate that man's subtlety and the workings of a stern, merciless destiny were weaving for them.

"I'll not speak," muttered Farmer John as he entered the house for supper, "I'll not make a mistake and accuse an innocent man. I'll wait once more. I should miss a penny the way I have fixed things, and I'll watch again. The next thief who visits my room gets caught."

He was silent and unsocial all the evening meal. Had he been less absorbed in his grim suspicious thoughts of those present, however, he would have noted the lurking figure of Ralph Prescott as he stole into the house and then stole out of it again.

The farmer supposed he had gone to his own apartment and sat down to read the weekly newspaper.

At his task—for it was such that evening, with his mind torn with conflicting doubts—Farmer John moved restlessly, lay down the paper, took it up again, pondered, dozed and finally fell into a nap.

He was aroused about nine o'clock by the entrance of Paul Dalton, apparently from up stairs.

A minute later Ruth appeared, her cheeks flushed, her eyes vaguely questioning the keen glance her father fastened upon her.

About to ask her if she had been to visit a girl friend on the next farm, John Elliott was interrupted by the entrance of two farm hands.

They had decided to leave his employ with the morning, and, according to agreement had come for their pay.

"Better stay in a comfortable home for the winter, boys," spoke Elliott, always considerate to his help.

No, the men were obdurate. They had quite a little store of savings, and their ambition was to try the attractions in the way of money-making of the great, magnetic city.

"All right. What do I owe you?" queried the farmer.

"He'll tell, he's got it all down in black and white," returned one of the men, with a nod to Paul, whose figures never made a mistake in their admiring conviction.

Paul got down the books and stated the amount. Farmer John took out his keys, and, lamp in hand, proceeded to his room up-stairs.

Those below heard a startled cry a minute later. Then the angry tramp of a hurried man's feet, and John Elliott re-entered the room.

His face was white with passion, his eyes were terrible. Absorbed with some overwhelming emotion, he seemed on the verge of choking.

In one hand, he bore the lamp, in the other, a roll of bank-notes. Placing the lamp on the table, trembling like a leaf, a pent-up volcano of rage, he counted out several of the bills, and extended them to the wondering Paul Dalton.

"There's your month's pay," he said, in a tone that grated on Ruth's alarmed ears until she shuddered. "Take it, pack your traps and go!"

"Mr. Elliott!" cried Dalton, in dumfounded bewilderment, "what does this mean?"

"Go!" snapped the farmer, savagely. "Be wise, young man, don't tempt me to speak! You know why. I've found you out. Go, while you may, before I forget that you were once honest, once a help to me. Go!"

"Father, are you mad?" cried Ruth, advancing to Elliott's side.

"This ain't your place to speak," interrupted the farmer sternly, putting her away with his hand. "Paul Walton, I have no time to waste on you. You've heard me—go!"

"Not until I know what this extraordinary accusation means," responded Walton firmly, and flushing with indignation.

"What does it mean!" fairly roared Elliott, losing all control of himself. "You will have the truth, will you? You won't leave matters as they are? What does it mean? Dare you ask me, ingrate, hypocrite?"

Ruth Elliott turned frightfully pale, but an indignant flush appeared on either cheek.

"Father!" she cried reproachfully. "Do not forget that Mr. Walton is a gentleman."

"A gentleman!" blazed out Farmer Elliott. "No, I call him —a thief!"

CHAPTER IV.

DENOUNCED.

The scene that ensued to the wild declaration of Farmer John was a startling tableau.

Somewhere back in Paul Walton's life there had been a time when that proud spirit of his would have sprang to arms in a flash, at the touch of the goad of injustice.

His flashing eyes, his quickening breath showed it now, as with clenched hands he strode forward, as if to lay the author of the daring accusation at his feet.

Then, with superb control, and remembering that his accuser was the father of the woman he loved, the young man folded his arms calmly and said, in clear, steady tones:

"Mr. Elliott, you will regret those unjust words. You are laboring under some honest mistake. I am no thief."

John Elliott tried to crush the speaker with a single look of utter incredulity and contempt.

Then, firm in the conviction that audacious hypocrisy deserved its fate, with merciless roughness he told his story.

He had missed various sums of money for a month past, first a trifle, then quite a large amount.

Some one was in the habit of feloniously entering his room and rifling the cabinet in which he kept his money.

At six o'clock that evening he had visited his room, assured himself of the exact contents of the cabinet, and had locked it securely.

Since then, no one had gone into the upper portion of the house except the accused.

At this statement, Dalton's lips moved as if to speak. Then with a start and a glance at Ruth, he allowed it to go uncontradicted.

When he went up stairs to obtain the money for the men, Farmer John perceived to his amazement, as he opened the cabinet, that two packages of bank-notes, representing nearly four hundred dollars, were missing.

He had entertained grave suspicions of his superintendent before. Impulse drove him to enter his room. A disarranged pillow on the bed directed a search. Beneath it he had found—one of the packages, the one now in his hand.

More than that, on the floor of the room he had picked up a key. It fitted to the cabinet. Paul Dalton was an accomplished thief.

"You entered my room to-night," was the unwavering accusation; "you stole the money."

"He is innocent!"

A wild, convincing cry, expanding with the certainty of proof, sentient with the trustfulness of a loving woman's heart, the words rang forth from Ruth Elliott's lips.

She knew! Oh! with happy, fervent delight she realized the frail rock of certainty upon which her prejudiced father had erected a stupendous fabric of suspicion.

"Girl!" scowled Elliott angrily, "I told you once that this is no concern of yours."

"No, it is mine alone," interrupted Walton quickly. "Ruth," he whispered tumultuously, "silence! To reveal the truth, in his present mood, would invoke his deepest anger."

Paul Walton had spoken truly. He was innocent; she knew it. He had not been near his room that evening. A loving tryst at the moonlit glade had filled in those two precious hours, and her lips were sealed, because he had bade her be silent.

But he was innocent. Oh, the joy of it! Standing there, accused, mute for her sake, her heart went out to him in strengthened love.

"You can give up the other package of money or not, as you choose," spoke Farmer John. "I shall not have you arrested on account of your past services, but you must leave this house to-night; you must go at once."

"Innocent or guilty?" murmured Walton.

"Innocent? Does the key show it? Does hidden plunder show it?"

"I never saw key or money before. Some one placed them in my room, some enemy——"

"Bah!" scornfully interrupted Elliott, "you have heard my decision—go!"

"He shall not go."

Trembling all over, yet with resolute face, Ruth stole to the side of her accused lover.

She caught his hand in her own. Love, unmistakable, unhidden from all the world, spoke in her words, manner, and attitude.

"Are you crazy?" exclaimed her father, staring vaguely at her glowing face. "Girl!" in a terrible tone of suspicion, "what does this mean?"

"It means that I know him to be innocent—that, in one word, I can prove it. He did not steal your money because he was not in the house to-night—he was was not in the house to-night——"

"Ruth—Ruth, silence! Do you not see that this will anger him——"

"I will speak! He was not in the house, because he met me at the stile. He met me there because our troth is plighted, and I love him against all the world, against all your cruel unjust accusations."

She flung herself into his arms as she spoke, and then, woman-like, her strength, resolution, and defiance vanished, and she burst into tears.

Into the amazed face of John Elliott blazed a furious rage.

With a cry more like a roar than anything else, he tore Ruth from the clasp of her lover.

Roaring like a madman, he confronted Paul Dalton, menacing him, anathematizing him, ready to crush him with uplifted hands.

"Thief! Miscreant! Hypocrite!" he fairly choked out. "Oh! I could forgive a thief of money, but this—you serpent, with your smooth, wily ways, to steal my girl's heart—go, I warn you, or I will do you harm!"

The two astounded laborers, well knowing Farmer John's ungovernable temper, pressed Dalton toward the door.

"John Elliott," he spoke firmly, almost sadly, "some day you will regret your unjust accusation—the truth concerning that will come to light soon. As to Ruth, a heart of stone could not help loving her. You drive me from your door, ruined in reputation and happiness. I will never darken its threshold again until I can stand before all men, by your own words proven innocent of the hideous charge you bring against me."

"That will never be. Don't be in a hurry, Mr. Paul Dalton. I have something to say to you."

The impressive tableau was rudely disturbed by the jeering, bantering words.

The door had opened, and, his face flushed with drink and excitement, his malevolent eyes glowing with the certainty of a mean and crushing revenge, Ralph Prescott entered the room.

"What's this?" thundered Farmer John, his brows knit frowningly.

"I've heard your talk from the outside," explained Prescott, glibly. "I've heard this highly indignant gentleman's high-flown talk, too. He's innocent, is he? Then he's changed from what he once was. Time to find him out, Mr. Elliott—time to get him out of the house where he's lurked, a hypocrite, a serpent, so long."

"What do you mean?" demanded Farmer John, dubiously.

"I mean," replied Prescott, his face aflame with concentrated delight and malignity, "that Paul Dalton is worse than a thief!"

"Worse than a thief!" repeated Elliott, excitedly.

"Yes, I charge him—and I dare him to deny it—with being an ex-convict!"

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Lafayette's Home.

The Chateau de Chavaniac is on a high hill, and in the misty background are the slopes of Mounts Dome, Laguet and Cantal. A lovely wide avenue at least a mile long leads to it from Paulhaguet. The avenue is bordered by poplars, ash and elm trees, all of which were planted by the General. The chateau itself is a rather new building, for it stands on the place of one that was burned in the eighteenth century.

It forms a parallelogram, each side of which is seventy-five feet long and with a height of about forty. The principal front faces the north, but on each side several doors offer easy exits. The construction lacks elegance, and if it were not for its fine situation, the lovely site on which it stands and the ancient trees that form a splendid framework. it would present a rather heavy physiognomy. The ground floor is only occupied by kitchens, pantries and wine cellars; the first story is divided into several fine rooms, and on the upper floor are the bedchambers, most of which have, however, remained unoccupied since 1829, when Lafayette made his last visit to his native place.

The most important room on the first floor is about forty-two feet long, and has served in turn for dining hall and ball-room. In it are the family portraits, most of them modern, and several busts, among which are those of Washington, Franklin, Jean Jacques Rousseau, Montesquieu, Voltaire, Cæsar, Brutus, Cicero and Socrates. The library has perhaps a thousand volumes, and the books still bear the "ex libris" of the General's arms, and "Cui non?" his proud device.

When He Came Home.

"Why, Jeremiah Brown!" exclaimed Mrs. Brown, as her husband returned from a short railway journey, "is this you alive and in the flesh?"

"Why, in-course it's me," replied Mr. Brown, testily; "ain't this the time when I said I'd be back?"

"And you ain't been in no accident and got killed?"

"Do I look as if I had?"

"And you ain't lost both legs and both arms?"

"No, I ain't."

"Not even one leg or one arm, or an eye?"

"No."

"And you didn't so much as get hurt enough so as you can sit in the house and not work for a month or so?"

"How many times have I got to tell you there ain't nothin' happened?"

"Well, you do beat all! There you went and paid money for an accident insurance ticket just before you left and you haven't done anything to get money out of it. The money just wasted for nothing! And you might just as well have made $1,000 if you'd only got killed. Nice manager you are!"

The Indian.

The popular idea of the Indian roaming over the prairies, living on the fruits of the chase and just what he can gather, does not properly characterize all of the tribes. Some of the Indians of the South and Southwest were excellent agriculturists. In Georgia and Alabama, when the white man first went among the Natchez Indians, they found them all cultivating maize, beans, sunflowers, sweet potatoes, melons, pumpkins, and a large number of the native fruits growing in orchards — persimmons, honey-locusts, mulberry, black walnuts and shell barks of the best kind were sorted and planted by them. Many of the New Mexican and Arizona Indians were also far advanced in the agricultural art.

The Daisy.

In Scotland the daisy was, and in some parts still is, regarded as a healing plant; and if the sick man can only put his foot on a fully expanded daisy, he has hopes of recovery, just as in some other parts some mountain stream or quiet spring is supposed to possess magical powers. Faith, no doubt, has a good deal to do with the cure, and the thought that touching any given object would effect a cure would do much to accomplish the same. It is further believed that if the farmer kneels down and bites off the first daisy of spring a plentiful crop will be the reward.

THE more we reflect upon the unspeakable meanness of the man who stole a fine overcoat belonging to a distinguished New York clergyman while he was preaching to a Chicago congregation the more firmly do we become convinced that the thief was some bitter and unforgiving St. Louisian who committed the act in order to bring reproach upon Chicago.

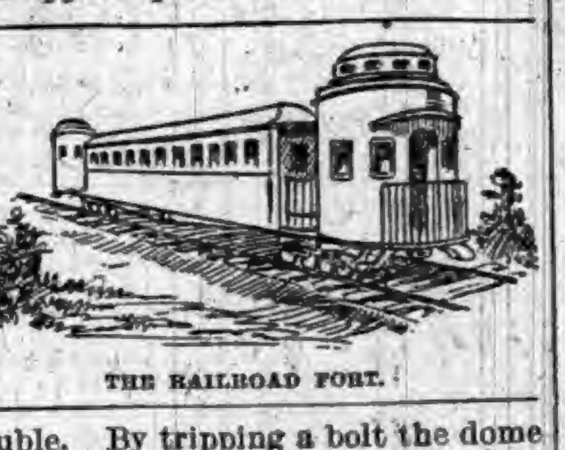
THE low volcanic island which rose so suddenly out of the sea near Palermo, Italy, and from which fire was emitted, has entirely disappeared, even the water that covers it having ceased to boil.

A RAILROAD FORT.

Plan for the Protection of Passengers and Express Matter.

A boat-builder of Oakland, Cal., B. F. Williams, has invented a device of a fortified doubled-turreted monitor to protect express matter or passengers while traveling through the "bad lands" of the railroad routes.

The plan requires the shell of the entire car to be constructed of steel. At each end is a circular tower, and these towers are the characteristic features of Mr. Williams' invention. The uppear parts of the towers are double. By tripping a bolt the dome drops by gravity a distance of two feet, the steel walls covering the windows as the upper section falls. But the dome does not drop directly. By an ogee it is rotated two feet as it drops. This rotation draws a steel plate across the doorway and also hangs opposite the window openings, small port-holes through which the armed guards in the turret may fire their weapons. As the tower is circular and port-holes are in the front part guns may be fired straight ahead, and if the car is next the engine the engineer and the fireman may be protected from the turret. The sides and the interior of the car itself can also be covered from the ports.



THE RAILROAD FORT.

The movable roof section may be lifted by the same power that controls the air brakes. The movement of the turrets may be directed entirely from the engine if desired, or dropped from the interior of the tower.

Between the turrets and the central part of the car are the washroom and other conveniences, and also little inclosed platforms intended for observation.

Touch and Go.

"After the exhibition was over," he says, "I passed into the menagerie to talk to the watchman. From some cause he was absent from his post, and I walked across the amphitheater toward my old friend, the elephant, to give him an apple, for we were the best of friends. He was one of the largest elephants I ever saw, and was as good-natured as he was large. I was about half-way across the ring when I heard a growl, and, looking round, I saw to my horror one of the lions out of his cage and approaching me in a crouching manner ready for a spring. I had sufficient presence of mind to realize my dangerous situation, and to know that it required the utmost caution to extricate myself from it. One hasty motion on my part, and I would be in the jaws of the monster.

"I felt that my only hope was the elephant, if I could reach him, but he was chained by the foot and could not reach me. Nearer and nearer came the lion, waving his tail in a manner that meant business. If I turned my back he would spring, if I took my eyes from him I was lost.

"It was a terrible moment. I glided backward as swiftly as I dared; I had another fear: I feared stumbling backward, and knew if I did fall I would never rise, but that where I fell I would make a meal for that lion.

"As I neared the elephant I saw that the lion understood my movements, and, fearing that he would be balked of his prey, he prepared to bring the matter to a crisis. I then saw that I had but one hope—to rush with all my speed to the elephant. I think I must have jumped twenty feet when I turned, and I know the lion jumped thirty, but he just missed me. How I completed the race I do not know. I only know that the elephant's trunk was round my waist, and he was lifting me up on his head. I was saved!"

Light as a Measurer.

The accuracy of modern scientific processes is indicated by the proposal to employ the wave length of light as a standard of length. Already light furnishes a standard of measurement in astronomy, a "light year," that is, the distance a ray of light will travel in the space of one year, being the unit employed in reckoning the distance of stars. But the proposed standard based upon the length of the waves of light involves an almost infinitely more delicate estimation.

We may take one fifty-thousandth of an inch as an average estimate for the length of a wave of light, but that would be true for only a particular quality of light. The color roughly indicates the wave light. The red waves are the longest, the violet waves the shortest, and when a standard of measurement is chosen in the way suggested the length of the wave belonging to a particular kind of light, or a particular part of the spectrum, will be selected.

In a lecture nine years ago Prof. G. G. Stokes said: "The French refer their metre to the dimensions of the earth. The English refer their yard to the length of the seconds pendulum.

"But supposing the earth to be slowly contracting by cooling, both these natural standards would be liable to be affected in the course of ages; and if such a catastrophe were to occur as the impact on the earth of some great globe visiting our solar system, the dimensions of the earth and the value of gravity, and accordingly the length of the seconds pendulum, would at once be affected to an unknown degree.

"But the wave length of light of a given kind would remain unchanged, and the survivors of such a catastrophe might have recourse to it to recover the ancient standard of length."

Great Inducement.

An Austrian provincial paper lately contained the following advertisement: "A widow, who still possesses the entire wardrobe of her deceased husband, is disposed to enter into correspondence with a suitable gentleman, if such can be found, with a view to matrimony."

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN

NERVINE TONIC

—AND—

Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon: if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

THE Chicago Daily news, has been for years running a morning and an evening edition, each independent from the other. This similarity of name, "Morning News" and "Evening News" caused some confusion, and they have changed the morning edition to "Morning News Record." This edition is greatly enlarged, but still sells for a penny, as before. The News is an excellent paper.

THE HOOSIER TIDINGS has a powerful letter written by Ex-Governor James E. Campbell, of Ohio, on the political situation. It abounds in living truths about the McKinley topnotch tariff bill, that makes war taxes four times as high as they were during the war, though the war closed nearly a generation ago. The Tidings generally has some good things to say.

We Celebrate.

Auburn will celebrate the glorious Fourth. That much is certain. At a meeting in Ensley's Hall Monday evening, it was found that nearly $300 had been raised, and that the full amount was sure to be had. There will be an effort made to have the military display we spoke of last week, a battalion encampment of three days, the last being on the Fourth. This display with the others we usually have will fill the day. In the evening there will be double the amount of fireworks we have ever had before, making the grandest display ever seen in the county.

Card of Thanks.

We desire through the columns of this paper to thank the friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during the sickness and death of our dear wife and mother, and assure them that their kindness shall never be forgotten.

Of Interest to Our Convention.

Though late in the season, Frank Scholes is announced for surveyor, We believe we have mentioned his name, but not given him a full notice. He is a gentleman every way capable, an experienced engineer, and a worthy man.

J. W. Wagner, the leading merchant of Garrett, proprietor of the large retail store, the "Fair," will probably be made permanent chairman of the convention. It will be a good choice. He is a lifelong democrat of the most intelligent pattern, and has never asked or held a position of any kind. We have heard no other name, and we hope he will be chosen.

To The Candidates.

Last week we gave a friendly word to the delegates to the county convention. It might now be in order to say a word or two to the candidates. It is "within the memory of the oldest inhabitant," that we have had democratic county conventions in which were a large number of candidates for the same office. Only one of the number could be nomidated, and unfortunately one or two of those who got left, went out of the convention in a huff, and later, assisted by friends helped to defeat the successful man at the polls. Let us hope no such work will occur this year. We do not believe it will for there is but little strife over any office, except sheriff, and in that race, we believe the men who are aspirants are two honorable to take such a course. And we believe they are too good democrats to assist in an injury to their party. The campaign, as they have carried it on so far, has been most fair and honorable, and we cannot see what anyone of them would have to complain of, except the fact that he did not get votes enough. We like to see such man make a desperate, honorable struggle for the place, and then if he fails turn in and do all he can for the ticket, just the same. A man who under such circumstances turns his influence over to the republicans or to a third party, is just such a man as the democracy may feel glad they did not nominate. Had such a man got the nomination and been elected, he would have been of little service to the party, for it is plain that he would have cared only for himself. As we said, we don't believe there will be any kicker this year, but that everything will pass off satisfactorily to all.

THE sea-serpent season is on us in full force. Cleveland, Ohio, people claim they saw one in the lake there, last week.

MUNCIE, this state, indulged in the luxury of a real snow storm last Friday. Though not a hard storm, it was pretty good for May 20.

IT IS tiresome reading what the papers say about Harrison. Blaine, Cleveland, Hill, etc. Why not keep cool till the the conventions meet. They will settle it.

DEMOCRATS should preserve the articles now running in the COURIER on the subject of the "True People's Party." It will prove valuable as an article of reference.

THE Dispatch says "the democratic majority in the House has not dared to disturb a single line of the McKinley bill." Don't the Dispatch read the daily papers? It would appear not, or it would know that half a dozen "lines" of the McKinley bill have been "disturbed."

ABOUT thirty lives were lost in the flood at Sioux City, Iowa last week. A small stream running through the city was suddenly raised by a cloud burst a few miles above, and the waters swept over that part of the town built on low land.

THOSE who have watched the opinions of democratic delegates to the national convention figure out so far 243 for Cleveland, and 207 against him. Of course no one knows exactly how these men will vote. Illinois with 48 votes is not included, as she may have a candidate of her own, Senator Palmer. If Palmer is not a candidate, the chances are the state will support Cleveland.

THE experiment of carrying military messages a long distance by bicycle riders was tried last week for the first time. Last Wednesday at exactly noon, Gen. Miles at Chicago, gave a written message to the first pair of riders, and they started at once. The letter was for Gen. O. O. Howard, at New York. Each pair of men would ride to a point 8 to 16 miles away, and there would be waiting another pair. The weather was rainy, the nights dark and the roads very bad, but they got to Goshen only twenty minutes behind the estimated time. But after this they lost, going through Waterloo, Bryan, etc., later and later, though they may make up this in going across the state of New York, where the roads are better. Since writing the above, the race has been finished. Hard storms, bad roads and several accidents made their trip through the state of New York, very hard, though some of the lost time was made up. On Sunday night they were wheeling down the Hudson, on the track of the N. Y. Central, reaching town soon after midnight, and giving the dispatch to an aid to Gen. Howard at 1:06 a. m. on Monday. The aid took a tug waiting at the dock, and the letter was soon in Gen. Howard's hands at Governor's Island. The race will probably be tried over in the fall with better roads. This message had been carried from Chicago to New York by a 975 mile route in four days, thirteen hours and five minutes. This was just thirteen hours and fifty minutes more than schedule time.

A True People's Party.

We continue the notes in regard to laws in the interest of the common people, made and passed, by the democratic legislature of 1889. We began last week and expect to give in brief, also, the laws passed by the legislature of 1891, either this week or next.

An act compelling railroads and other corporations to destroy Canada thistles and other noxious weeds on their grounds.

An act to prevent the sale of diseased cattle and meat. This was to prevent parties outside the state from shipping in inferior meats to undersell our citizens.

An act empowering county commissioners to secure free bridges so that people coming to town to trade need not pay toll to a wealthy corporation.

An act to secure honest elections. This is the new election law, and is probably the best form of the Australian law, ever devised. It has been adopted by many states, but as Indiana had it first, and in an improved form, this act alone, stamped the legislature of 1889, as one of thr very ablest and most intelligent and progressive, the world has ever seen. This law, besides its many provisions to secure purity in politics, makes special provisions to secure workingmen in their suffrage rights, entirely independent of their employers, for the law insures them perfect secrecy and punishes an employer who tries to interfere, or to hinder them. Workmen are made sure of a chance to vote, for their employers are obliged to give them four hours at least to go the polls and back. This act met with the bitter and unceasing opposition of republican members, of the state officers, and their papers and politicians generally. But the democratic members stood firm for a reform so greatly needed in Indiana, where blocks-of-five methods had become common, and held out. We carried our point and now all parties are lavish in their praise of the new law.

An act reducing the pay of the county commissioners and township trustees. If this reduction was right, we cannot say, but to those who had asked it, it should be satisfactory.

An act to maintain night schools for benefit of the children who are employed in the day time, in cities, so they can get their share of benefit from the public money. (The editor of this paper was present, when this was debated in the state senate, and can testify personally, that republicans opposed it, and democrats fought for it. The grand champion of the measure, was that able young democrat, Senator J. M. Barrett of Ft. Wayne, and pitted against him especially, was a very able young republican from Richmond, Senator J. U. Johnson, now a number of congress.)

An act to prevent corporations from making contracts with their laborers by which the latter were to trade only at the company's stores. This practice of making employes trade only with the mine or mill owners had become little less than robbery, and this law relieved the workmen.

An act permitting the officers in charge of Homes for Orphans, etc., to find suitable homes for the poor children under their charge.

An act to protect owners of imported horses, etc., from loss by the failure of irresponsible persons, to make the payments they have contracted for.

An act compelling railroads to post up notices at their stations to show whether trains are on time.

An act to secure an assessment of steamboats, and other water craft, that had been trying to get out of their just share of taxes.

An act to drain the vast Kankakee marshes, reclaiming thousands of acres of land. This may or not have been a wise law. Our DeKalb member, Mr. Kelley says it was not. But the people in that section asked for it.

An act for the protection of discharged employes, and to prevent employers from black listing such men, so they cannot get employment elsewhere.

An act to provide for a state bureau of geology and statistics to secure a more complete statistics on labor, commerce, manufactures, education, etc.

An act to prevent bribery and similar offenses at elections, and providing for the punishment of offenders.

An act providing for the care of helpless and poor children and to secure them good homes, and punish those who ill treat or neglect them.

An act provide for a live stock sanitary commission and state veterinarian to prevent the spread of dangerous diseases among live stock.

An act making it unlawful to with hold, mutilate or destroy discharge papers of soldiers and sailors.

(To be continued next week.)

PALACE LIVERY BARN.

It is with a feeling of genuine business pride that we call our readers' attention to the fact that this very popular livery barn has changed to new and worthy hands. The old proprietors, Messrs. Swineford & Carter, having retired from the business, their successors, Messrs. Hetzler & Watson, have assumed full control of the institution. It will be remembered that Mr. Watson conducted a livery in connection with the South Side Hotel, for several years, but lately discontinued business there and purchased Mr. Swineford's interest in the Palace. Mr. Hetzler is from Wabash, and takes the place of Mr. Carter. These young gentlemen seemingly are enterprising hustlers and mean business from the very start. They have nice, new carriages and good horses, that can travel;—their facilities for turning out a first-class rig in the latest style at prices to suit the times. Remember the place on West Ninth street, where the accommodations are agreeable night and day.

Bair reports from Ashley, that though no houses are yet put up, the lot on which the newspaper is to be published has been selected and a building will be put up at once, so that the first issue will be out in two or three weeks. All this seems like the way they do things in the new sections of the west.

VERY MUCH SURPRISED: I have been afflicted with neuralgia for nearly two years, have tried physicians and all known remedies, but found no permanent relief until I tried a bottle of Dullman's Great German Liniment and it gave me instant and permanent relief. 25 cents per bottle. Now the ringle, jingle, jingle
Of the brooklet in the dingle
With the grieflet
Of the leaflet
On the treetop seems to mingle.
Now the bough is gayly bobbing,
Blossom laden, in the hush
Of the twilight, and the throbbing
Of the carpet, and the blush
Of the beater, fill the air
With a beauty rich and rare,
While we hear the doleful sobbing
Of
the white
brush!

G. W. Downs' old friends will be glad to hear a word from him. Last week, he wrote from Clay Center, Kansas, his present home, and after notifying us of his usual cash item for which he has thanks, he added: "We are having a very wet spring which is making farm work backward. There is quite an amount of corn to plant yet. There has been but little planted in the last 12 days. Wheat and oats are looking fine but little corn up yet. The Republican river is high and out of its banks in places. It has been cool most all spring, but very little frost."

We see by the South Bend papers, that at the last meeting there last week, of the Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan medical association, Dr. Buchtel of Auburn was elected vice-president of the society. For a young doctor this is quite an honor for of course so large a society includes many physicians of prominence. We are pleased to hear that he is appreciated.

Memorial services at the M. E. church were well attended Sunday. The church was profusely decorated throughout, and the sermon by Mr. Wooton was highly complimented by all present. The G. A. Next Monday, the 30th, will be decoration day, when the graves in the cemetery will be decorated, and the usual services had.

Tuesday May 24; was celebrated all over Canada, that being the Queen's birthday. As with us on the 4th of July, there were races, and other amusements, half fare on railroads, towns decorated with flags and banners, streets cleaned up to the holiday point, and everything in the way of external arrangements, reminds one of our great holiday. The greatest difference an American would notice would be the character of the flags and the words of the cheering.

Thomas Hallam went down to St. Joe Friday to attend the funeral of Mrs. A. W. Hall of that place, who had died Tuesday. She had suffered greatly and on Monday, the pain seemed to have deprived her of reason, so that she made an attempt to commit suicide by taking poison, and by cutting her throat. The attendants interfered before she could accomplish it, however, and later, her reason seemed to return, and she died Tuesday, apparently without a struggle. Mr. Cavins will likely move to this place and locate in business, possibly putting in a double store there, or else a hotel. The Auburn Iron Works is progressing admirably with the times. At this time of year wood is not easy to get, and as it is very necessary for them to have fuel all the time, they put in a crude oil burner this week. This saves a good deal of extra work, and costs no more than a common wood fire and is more reliable. Several of Auburn's factories are using this kind of fuel with good success and satisfaction.

There was a brilliant little card party at Dr. Buchtel's Tuesday evening. The Doctor and his wife are splendid entertainers, and the guests passed a pleasant evening. A nice lunch was served showing the excellent taste and skill of Mrs. Buchtel, and the evening closed with piano and violin music by Mrs. Garwood and Doctor Buchtel. And anyone who can't enjoy their music has a large, savage and uncultivated ear.

Farmers began to plow again Saturday in the more favored localities, and on Monday many more started their plows. But the wet cold weather has already done much damage. Many wheat fields had spots drowned out, and fields of newly sown oats were greatly hurt, some ruined. Potatoes planted on some fields, are coming up, but on some they never will. Wheat that is not injured, is unusually nice, and has a very heavy growth.

Editor Campbell got a joke on himself when he borrowed an opera glass, the other night to view that "bright, and particular star." It did'nt work equal to the big telescope at the Lick Observatory, but we are told it brought the heavenly visitor so near to him as to appear like a second cousin.

Commissioner James Henderson has moved back onto his farm in Jackson township. Town life, with little or nothing to do, did not suit him after so many years of active life. We hope he will find the old home as pleasant as ever, for DeKalb county has few better people than Mr. and Mrs. Henderson.

There has been a bright, large star in the northwest, for several nights, that has attracted a great deal of attention, and no one seems able to identify it. Same have claimed it is an electric light sent up in a balloon at Chicago. But of course this could not be. Some believed it to be a "temporary star" others a "variable star," a comet and so on. And then, all gave it up.

Barry Pain, the latest lion in the literary circles of London, is a native of Cambridge, England, and is now twenty-eight years old. It was in his contributions to Punch last year, and in his first volume of sketches, published in August, 1891, that the peculiarly original quality of his humor first attracted the attention of the public and gave rise to much discussion and difference of opinion among the critics. American readers will soon have the opportunity of enjoying some of his strangely fascinating productions in a volume of Stories and Interludes from his pen, which Harper & Brothers have now nearly ready for publication.

WILLIAM ASTOR is dead. The vacancy thus created in McAllister's sect 150 ought to be tendered to Hallett Alsop Borrowe, Esq.

A COPY of Poe's "Tamerlane" was sold in New York for $1,850, or about 1,000 times as much as the poet received for it. This is what is called writing for posterity.

THE front door to Mr. Vanderbilt's new house will cost $50,000. It will be properly ponderous in order to keep out that public which Mr. Vanderbilt consigned to perdition.

THERE is something very rotten in Russia when she talks of war, despite the fact that America is helping to feed the Russians at home and receiving thousands of them in poverty within her own borders.

THE goose that laid the golden egg was killed long ago, but a Montana man who refused to be governed by the old fable has secured $387 worth of gold nuggets from the gizzards of thirty-one chickens which scratched in a gravel bank.

PERTISTENT irritability of mind and ill-humor should be taken in hand surely and swiftly, as should any physical disease, and the cause be ascertained and the cure be applied. The best cure will doubtless be found in changing the currents of thought.

THE genius that commands the highest respect just now is of the kind that can make three home runs in succession, pick out the winner in the great spring races, or convince a close-fisted husband that $30 is a very, very low figure for an Easter bonnet.

IF there be a jewelry house in the world that can stand the luxury of a defaulting employe, one would think the Tiffanys, of New York, had such a house. But now they are hard after the man who was trusted and raked down about $50,000. These "trusties" on both sides of the water are turning out some very untrustworthy samples.

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE is to be our next Minister to France: What can a man with a lob-sided name like that do for the American hog, we would like to know? If Mr. T. J. Coolidge wants to carry the hope and trust of this people with him across the waters he will tuck all of that second name of his but the initial into his trousers before he sets sail.

THE names of the subscribers to the New York Grant monument fund are to be carefully engrossed and filed in the archives of the New York Historical Society. This will not necessitate any enlargement of the archives, neither will the engrosser be compelled to work overtime. A good engrosser could do all the work before breakfast one of these bright spring mornings.

CINCINNATI girls are doing themselves proud this year. One of them has refused to marry a count; and another, by sitting in a chair over a hole in her father's sidewalk, has prevented the planting of a hideous pole for electric wires in front of her home. Gov. McKinley in his next message should make especial mention of these young ladies and congratulate the State of Ohio on its good fortune in having such daughters.

IT is an extremely mild way the New York Tribune has of putting things when it says of the Grant monument that "it cannot be denied that this honorable undertaking has hitherto brought little credit to New York." We should think not. It has brought no credit to New York, but an infinite amount of discredit; and if the hero whose memory has been so trifled with could return to the scenes of his earthly career he would never willingly depart without some assurance that his ashes would be laid elsewhere than in New York.

THE assurance which was given that the Pennsylvania coal combination would be a great public benefit, in putting the whole matter in the hands of a single philanthropic body able to protect the interests of the people, seems to have been without adequate foundation. The combine undoubtedly has all the ability necessary to protect the people, but it lacks the will and prices go up accordingly. It is fortunate for the poor that the low price held through the coldest weather. They will have time to get accustomed to the raise before another winter sets in.

HERE they come. We refer to the descendants of Columbus, who have heretofore kept modestly in the background, as if waiting patiently for the colored nurses, who remembered Washington, and the wooden-legged soldiers who had fought and bled under the orders of the Father of His Country, to die off. The moment has arrived when a descent from Columbus will be distinctly profitable, and Chicago takes the lead in producing the first claimant, as befits the city of the Columbian World's Fair. No self-respecting city will be without one of these descendants for the present.

FROM the New England standpoint the Canadian annexation matter is settling itself in a practical fashion without much aid from the politicians or diplomats. According to the Boston Globe a million and a half of Canadians have already come over the border to compete with the American farmer in summer and with the American factory operative in winter; and the estimate is that 100,000 more will come during the current year to follow in the footsteps of their predecessors. At this rate it will not be very long before annexation will be an accomplished fact without the striking of a blow; for if the bone and sinew of the land leave it the "blood" and brains will compelled to follow. It will be absorption rather than annexation; but the effect will be substantially the same.

IT is stated by the Berlin correspondent of the London Times that Austria will join Italy in a request for a simultaneous reduction in the war forces of the Triple Alliance. It is devoutly to be hoped this end will be attained. During recent years the military spirit has held sway. Constant increase in armies and navies has been made by all the powers of Europe. When France has built one ironclad, King Humbert has at once felt that Italy must build two. No wonder that Italians emigrate to the Argentine Confederation, gloomy as the prospects of that country have recently appeared. The general disarmament of continental nations is a blessing too great to be hoped for. As long as a false spirit of patriotism exists, so long will rulers and Governments take advantage of the people to further their private aims.

MANY failures in life are best illustrated by futile attempts to thread a needle. It seems easy enough, but unless one's eyesight is extra sharp a fine film of thread will extend beyond its visible point, and as this goes one side or the other of the eye the thread is turned away. It is only by forgetting what at first glance seems to be the end of the thread, and looking at the fine point in advance, that it can be put through. Just so it is in life. Trifling mistakes made early give a bent away from the true course that it is hard to overcome, and impossible except by beginning anew. On the other hand, if at the first due care is taken to watch the end of the filament it becomes much easier to follow it with the thread through the eye. In life this means that attending to the small trifles that form character in youth is the best preparation for success in later years.

THESE are the hours when tepid showers descend on hill and valley; about this time erotic rhyme gets in its liveliest rally. The bulbous root begins to shoot; so does the sportsman dapper; the auctioneer resumes his sphere and lubricates his clapper. Across the sea the wealthy flee; the tramp forsakes the city and lopes away to sleep on hay and sigh for rum and pity. The April breeze, through budding trees, but likewise through the gutter, impartial tears and what it bears is quite too utterly utter. The shad is here with all his gear of bones complete and fearful, but, spite of jokes, the man who chokes dies justified and cheerful. On every block appears a flock of Easter Dolly Vardens; the Teutons bland, with pipe in hand, set out their summer gardens. Begins once more the baseball score of triumphs and disgraces and everywhere we breathe an air surcharged with bats and bases. "Oh, happy time! Oh, blessed clime! Oh, race of men supernal!" the poet sings, for all these things are gratis and diurnal.

THE Johnstown flood separated many families that were not united for many days, and there may still be former residents of that little city who are mourning the loss of friends who may be living. A reunion after long separation has recently taken place. James Agnew and his family had their home washed away by the flood. The mother and children were rescued and cared for by the Relief Committee, and then sent to friends in Tennessee. They never heard from the father of the little family, and he was given up for lost, as among those who were in nameless graves. But Mr. Agnew all this time has been searching for his lost family. He was swept down by the rushing torrent, and amid the wreckage was bruised and injured so that he became unconscious. He was cared for in the Red Cross Hospital, and lay there unknown, shattered in mind and body. When he recovered so as to be able to identify himself his family had been sent away, and the confusion of the records placed them also among the lost. But diligent search has, after three years' separation, reunited the family.

The Succulent Lobster.

A Maine lobster dealer has orders from one New York firm for 150 barrels of lobsters a week, and he says that it is the great appetite of the Gothamites for these shell fish which makes the price so high. New-Yorkers will have lobsters, no matter what the price may be, and they are now paying 15 cents a pound at wholesale. Fifteen cents a pound for lobster means about 40 cents a pound for lobster meat. The traffic between Maine and New York has reached such proportions that a Friendship man has constructed a new and improved method of transportation—a car which preserves each lobster fresh and firm, and in which they can be kept for a long time or transported a long distance in the very best of condition, alive and kicking.

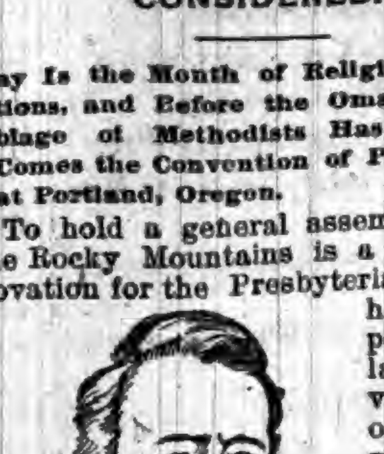
Primitive.

Dr. Herzog recently discovered in a library at Aarau, Switzerland, a copy of the first edition of Holbein's "Dance of Death." The same volume includes forty-six woodcuts of the same artist, illustrating scenes from the Bible.

PRESBYTERIANS MEET.

IMPORTANT SUBJECTS TO BE CONSIDERED.

May Is the Month of Religious Conventions, and Before the Omaha Assemblage of Methodists Has Adjourned Comes the Convention of Presbyterians at Portland, Oregon.

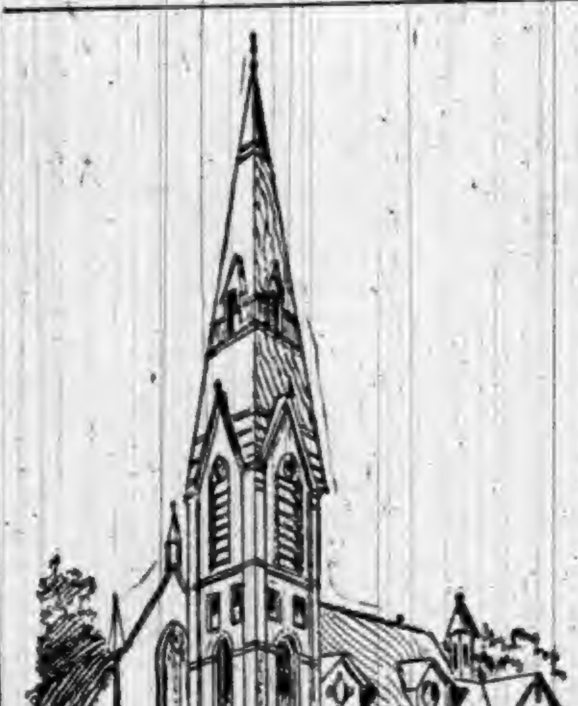


DR. C. A. BRIGGS.

To hold a general assembly west of the Rocky Mountains is a decided innovation for the Presbyterians. But it has a purpose. Portland is in the very center of the home missionary field, says a dispatch from that city. The Pacific Slope has for years enlisted missionary effort, but the population has far outgrown the capacity of the churches to supply pastors and places of worship. It is expected that the holding of a general assembly at Portland will stimulate greater interest in the home-mission field.

Every great religious convention has some specially burning topics to discuss. This year's general assembly is no exception to the rule, although it is confidently expected that harmony will prevail in the end. The Briggs case comes up again and upon it hinges a question of great interest to the church—the status of the Union Theological Seminary. Since the last general assembly Dr. Briggs and the New York Presbytery declared a truce, but it has turned out to be temporary. The delegation from New York to the assembly is what is known as "anti-Briggs" in sentiment. There have been threats that the Union Theological Seminary would promptly withdraw from the Presbyterian fold if Dr. Briggs is to be harassed by heretical charges. The common belief seems to be that the General Assembly will refer the whole controversy back to the New York Presbytery for final settlement. In this event a very important educational institution may be preserved to the church, as it is thought doubtful whether the case will be again reopened on the question of Dr. Briggs' orthodoxy by the local body.

Then there is a question of the revision of the confession of faith. To most Presbyterians this will appear the most vital issue with which the fathers of the church have ever had to deal. The conservative traditions of the church have for many years prevented any change in the Westminster confession. If the American church adopts a revised confession it will be the first of the world's Presbyterian bodies to declare that the letter of a creed must give way before its spirit, and that modern thought makes a revision of church standards necessary. The Committee on Revision has completed its labors, and all the presbyteries have declared for or against the changes proposed. The question now comes before the supreme council of church leaders, and its decision will be awaited with great interest.



FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, PORTLAND.

Besides these special topics there is a multitudinous variety of subjects with which the General Assembly must deal. The union of evangelical bodies is one of these. Church unity is more than a theory in all the leading evangelical bodies, and it may be a question of only a few years when certain lines will disappear in a common effort for the cause of religion. Like the Methodists also, the Presbyterians have pronounced views on practical questions of the day. The General Assembly is certain to make a report on the need of Sabbath observance, and will doubtless make a special report on the World's Columbian Exposition.

HILL TO WITHDRAW.

The Senator Now Said to Be Preparing a Letter of Declination.

According to a New York dispatch, Senator Hill is writing a letter of withdrawal, and that the letter will be placed before the public very soon. It is stated that the Senator has had this matter under consideration for the last month, and after considerable deliberation he has decided to withdraw from the race at last. To get at the nature of the letter, or even surmise its contents, is a hard matter, but it is believed that the tenor of the missive will be in the direction of promoting harmony in the ranks of the party in New York, so as to unite the Democracy of that State on one candidate. Who that candidate will be it is hard to tell. Some are of the opinion that Hill will throw his weight and strength to Cleveland, and will assist in making his nomination unanimous, while others think that Cleveland would be the last man to whom he would throw his influence, and that his strength will go to some Western candidate—ex-Gov. Gray of Indiana or Senator Palmer of Illinois.

The Presidential Term of Office.

The Committee on Civil Service has reported to the Senate with a favorable recommendation a joint resolution proposing so to amend the Constitution as to make the term of office of the President and Vice President six years instead of four, the former to be ineligible for immediate re-election. The change is to take effect March 4, 1897, which will be the commencement of the term of the President who will be chosen four years from next fall. It is not stated in the dispatches whether a Vice President who succeeds to the Presidency by the death of the incumbent of the office is covered by the provision regarding ineligibility. The amendment would lose some of its efficacy if it permitted a Vice President who had filled the office of President for four or five years to be elected President for the six years following. It is stated that this proposed amendment will have many strong friends in both Houses. It is desirable that it should be submitted to the States so that they may express themselves on the subject.

To do this it was necessary to attach a horse to the rope the same as in unloading a load of hay. The horse became frightened at the cow and ran away. SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Our National Lawmakers and What They Are Doing for the Good of the Country—Various Measures Proposed, Discussed, and Acted Upon.

Doings of Congress.

On the 17th the Senate authorized the Washington Schuetzenverein to erect at its own expense a colossal bust of Baron von Steuben, a general of the revolutionary army, in one of the public parks or reservations of Washington city. Mr. Chandler introduced a bill to authorize the registration of certain steamships as vessels of the United States, and it was referred to the Committee on Commerce. Senator Stanford, from the Public Buildings Committee, reported a bill appropriating $75,000 for the erection of a public building at Battle Creek, Mich. He also reported a bill increasing to $125,000 the limit of cost for the public building at Lansing, Mich., and appropriating $25,000. The naval appropriation bill occupied the balance of the time. The House devoted the entire session to the discussion of depredations on public timber.

In the House, the 18th, the silver question was the feature of interest. The Speaker sustained the point of order raised against Mr. Bartine's free-coinage amendment to the sundry civil bill, and the House clinched the matter by upholding Mr. Crisp's decision. After the transaction of routine business the House then went into committee of the whole (Mr. Lester, of Georgia, in the chair) on the sundry civil bill. Mr. Smith, of Arizona, moved to increase from $100,000 to $400,000 the appropriation for surveying the public lands. After some debate a compromise was arrived at and the appropriation fixed at $200,000. The Senate resumed consideration of the vessel appropriation bill. Several amendments were agreed; the bill was passed without a division and the Senate adjourned.

In the House, on the 19th, the Chairman of the committee of the whole sustained the point of order against Mr. Bland's amendment. Mr. Watson of Georgia sent up to the clerk's desk and had read the terse resolution "that the Committee on Ways and Means be requested to report the subtreasury bill." He asked unanimous consent for its consideration, but Mr. Beltzhoover's demand for the "regular order" operated as an objection. After a fruitless call of committees the House went into committee of the whole—Mr. Lester, of Georgia, in the chair—on the sundry civil bill. Mr. Bland then reoffered his amendment with the proviso attached to it, "that the cost of this coinage shall not exceed $95,000, $5,000 of which shall be for the coinage of subsidiary silver and $90,000 for standard silver dollars. Rejected, and the House adjourned. The Senate spent much of its time in discussing the river and harbor bill. The bill authorizing the Secretary of War to detail for special duty in connection with the World's Columbian Exposition such army officers as may be required was passed. The bill exempting American coastwise vessels piloted by their licensed masters or by a United States pilot from the obligation to pay State pilots for services not rendered was passed without a division. The conference report on the bill to provide for the disposal and sale of the Klamath River Indian reservation was presented and agreed to. Mr. Aldrich offered a resolution (which was agreed to) abolishing the office of principal executive clerk of the Senate, and placing the entire clerical force of the Senate in the Secretary's office.

In the House, the 19th, in debating the sundry civil bill, Mr. Dickerson's motion to strike out "the appropriation of $150,000 to enable the Secretary of War to complete the establishment of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Park was lost. Mr. Kilgore, of Texas, while paying tribute to the courage, ability, and patriotism of General Sherman, raised a point of order against the clause in the bill appropriating $50,000 for the preparation of a site and the erection of a pedestal for a statue of Sherman in the city of Washington. Henderson of Iowa and Breckinridge of Kentucky appealed to him to withdraw his point, but he declined. He said: "The rules of the House should be enforced. If the statue should be erected it should be provided for in an orderly manner." In the Senate, after a long political discussion, the river and harbor bill was reported back to the House. All the amendments agreed to in committee were concurred in in gross, and the bill was passed without a division. The following bills were passed: Appropriating $100,000 for a public building in Joliet, Ill.; to increase to $125,000 the appropriation for the public building at Lansing, Mich.; to authorize the Illinois and Iowa Railway and Terminal Company to build a bridge across the Mississippi River at Moline, Ill.; to authorize the construction of a railroad bridge across the Columbia River in the State of Washington.

Country Roads.

THE Police Jury of St. Mary parish has made a new departure by contracting with Jules Merquet to keep the public roads of that parish in order for three years for a specific sum. The result of this experiment will be watched with some interest.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE road question is one of such importance that the State itself should take up the matter. All classes of people are affected and interested. The work of improvement will be vast, too large to be left to counties or townships. It must be made a State policy.—Keokuk Constitution-Democrat.

ON the other hand, when road-building is under State supervision, and when the State bears a portion of the expense, it will be undertaken seasonably, will be done in the summer time, and the roadbed will have come into condition to resist the action of the elements before the autumn rains begin to pour.—Baltimore Herald.

ADVOCATES of better public highways should lose no time in having photographs of the thoroughfares taken in their present condition for use in their speeches and newspaper articles. There is no public improvement of so much importance to all classes, and yet it has been treated with characteristic unconcern by the masses.—Cedar Rapids Gazette.

THE Northern States have only to look across the border into Canada to see, in a much more sparsely settled country than this, highways that are vastly better than ours, and, as for the mountain roads, we might go back five centuries and take lessons from Montezuma and the Incas, whose half-civilized subjects constructed better passages over the Cordilleras and the Andes than we ever made over the Alleghanies or the Rocky mountains.—Detroit News.

IT is true that the convicts of the State of Iowa could accomplish but a small part of the work of improvement needed if they were to devote themselves solely and exclusively to the work of highway improvement and repair, but they could do something in that direction, and, as the farmers of Missouri claim, they would then be out of competition with the labor of honest men who are offering their labor in the open market in exchange for a living.—Davenport Democrat.

Old Put's Plow.

The most valuable and unique historical relic in Connecticut, perhaps, is Gen. Israel Putnam's old plow, which a hardware dealer uses for a sign in front of his place of business in the village of Danielsonville, Windham County. It is the identical plow, the merchant says, that "Old Put" left in the furrow when the news reached him that the British had attacked the Americans at Lexington. Putnam unhitched his horses and drove them to his barn, unharnessed one, mounted its back, and rode away to Boston. He got there in time to lead the continentals when the British stormed Bunker Hill. The plow is a clumsy old implement. Its frame and mold board are of wood, it is plated with scraps of iron, and it has a joint and cutter of forged iron.

"TAPS"

Love good night, must thou go, when the day and the night need thee so? All is well. Speed-eth all to their rest

SANG our bugles sweet and shrill;
Lights went out and all was still.
Soldiers slumbered on the field,
The white-winged tents their only shield;
Careless though to-morrow's fight
Should close for them in deeper night;
Careless though that far sweet strain
For them should never sound again.

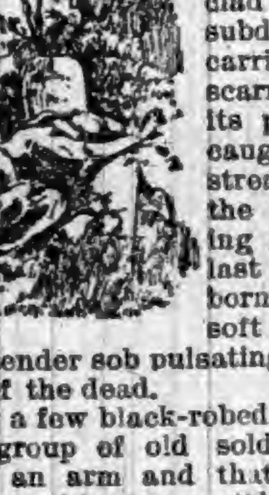
"Ah love, good night," the bugles rang,
And hushed the song the soldiers sang.
Too soon shall reveille awake
And shot and shell your dreaming break;
Till cannon thunders usher day,
Slumber softly while you may.
Wrapped in your faded coat of blue,
For day shall need you, soldier true.

"Ad, love, dear love, good night, good night;"
For you we battle and the right.
"All, all is well," the bugles sing.
But, ah! what fate shall morning bring?
Hail of iron and leaden rain,
Prayer and parting, sigh and pain;
Who shall victors' garlands win?
Who with the dead be gathered in?

As fades the light from white-winged tent;
As snap the heart strings bullet rent;
As clouds that never come again,
So passeth life and all its pain.
Day needed thee, but day no more
Shall break for thee on sea or shore.
Thee never now a bugle strain
Shall summon to the fray again.

Beyond the din of battle field
Where foemen fight and foemen yield,
The angels whisper "all is well,"
No bugle notes our realms shall swell.
Yours was the highest boon—to die,
To keep the old flag in the sky.
Yours now the sweetest boon—to rest.
He knoweth best, He knoweth best.

AT A SOLDIER'S GRAVE.



THE ranks of white-robed school children had wound away down the path to the sleepy street; the blue-clad veterans, with subdued pride, had carried off the scarred old flag, its precious folds caught in the long streamers of crape; the slowly receding strains of the last dirge were borne back on the soft evening air like a tender sob pulsating gently to the place of the dead.

Only a few black-robed women and a little group of old soldiers—this one minus an arm and that one leaning heavily on his worn crutch—remained in the little graveyard, and soon they, too, departed, leaving only two persons—a bent old mother in a distant corner, and a tall, stately woman, standing, as if waiting, in the deep shade of a gloomy pine.

It was the most peaceful, the most neglected, the most lovely spot on earth. Nearly every stone had a flag or a sword cut in its face, and each name bore after it the Twelfth —— Volunteers.

At first the most solicitous care had kept the mounds smooth and the paths open, but time had gone by and now each grave had sunk to a hollow trench, down whose sloping sides the long grass trailed and across which the stained marble slaps had long ago broken; the vines, once planted by tender hands, had reached caressingly out and bound all in impartial embrace; flowers forgot where they had stood originally, and tall trees looked out upon the once young shrubs now bidding fair to rival the old ones.

This evening each narrow grave bore a tiny flag and its load of sweet blossoms; men, long since forgotten at all other times, were hunted out and honored on this one day of the year by offerings from the hearts and the hands of their old comrades; a sweet odor of fading flowers filled the warm air, and a soft golden afterglow tinged the tips of the pines and a gentle breeze waved the little flags standing loyal and true even in their humble places.

When all had left excepting the sobbing mother in the farthest corner, the tall woman stepped out and quickly picked her way over the thick-leaved plants and tangled vines to a long grave at the foot of the hill. Here, also, was an air of the absence of human care, and yet it seemed happier and truer in its transition back to nature. It was only a part of the harmony of the place for its stone to be lost under a large, wayward rose-bush; a closely cut sward would have been a cruel discord.

The woman slowly knelt, laid aside the little black bonnet as if to let the slowly stirring air cool her hot forehead, and reverently bent her lips to the grass above the head. The last rays of the sun stole softly up and fell tenderly on her face and lighted it, showing eyes beautifully sad and patient, a mouth wonderfully sweet, and a low, fair forehead, from which were brushed back wave upon wave of soft snowy hair. White hair will soften and hallow any face, but here it seemed a crown, a halo for one as pure and lovely as a saint. But even its silver did not deceive one; there was a certain youth, in spite of the look of suffering, that kept one from judging her as old—a youth, borrowed, perhaps, from the past in which she always lived, if one might guess by the pleading, dreaming eyes.

From the country, stretching away behind her, came the far-off lowing of cattle and from the town the strains of that same dirge, faint but yet filled with a sense of awful pain. She put her hands over her ears and still knelt, while her face grew paler, and the shadows of the pines near by cast their black cloaks about her; the silence, the loneliness, the sentiment of the place, overpowered her and she started to her feet. But, recovering again, she took from a basket great, loose, creamy roses and heaped them about the tiny cotton flag and seemed to ponder till a big tear slowly rolled down each cheek and a sob convulsed her shapely shoulders. She threw herself on her knees again, with her face in her hands, while the sun sunk and the solemn, almost weird, music throbbed softly but clearly about her.

Hers was not an unusual romance of that time; she had merely loved and her love had not returned to her at the final mustering-out. The grave by which she now stood, however, was not that of the lover, for she did not even know that he was dead. All that she did know was that the two brothers, Charles and Herbert Milford, had marched away side by side; she had loved Herbert, but they had never spoken of it, and so he left; Charles came back to die, and she was now at his grave; but she never knew where Herbert was, and—and she could never forget him. Thus the grave of the brother had become to her a place of all purity—a communion with the dear, dead past—and where she went to kneel at the shrine of her old love.

Twenty-five years had gone by and her heart had not changed; so, as she sobbed there in her holy of holies, she did not note how even the faithful mother had gone, and how the calm, white moon had slowly climbed up and was pouring its gracious benediction over each little flag-marked bed, seeming to say:

"Sleep on, oh, weary soul! Thy summons has not yet come."

A man came slowly up to the open gate of the graveyard—a man of probably 50, yet his face was older than his walk would lead one to expect. His head had fallen on his breast and he walked slowly, as if in a reverie. It seemed so good to get back again to the home which he had last seen through a mist of tears as he had waved his cap and pointed proudly to the gay, new flag twenty-five years before.

His had been a busy life since and he smiled a little once, saying to himself that he was growing sentimental when he, the president of a mammoth manufactory in the East, had stopped off at this little Western town just because the sight of it as he was passing through had brought up his boyhood and memories of a dark-eyed girl who had, after all, loved his brother, as some one wrote him when Charles had died. No, he didn't care now whom she loved. Only —then, he had hoped she loved him a little then. But now—now; why, he hadn't any heart now. "It's all turned into stocks and gold," he laughed a little to himself as he patted his broad chest. However, the laugh was not a very hearty or satisfied one after all.

Thus he argued to himself as he went on, following the directions given him by a boy in the town, and stepped cautiously about to the place at the foot of the hill. The old scorn had died out and the world was forgotten; he lived again the days of his youth and loved his brother and drew his life from the eyes of one young girl.

So he continued until at his feet he saw a figure lying with the arms thrown out over the pale roses, and with the calm face turned full to the moonlight. He noiselessly stepped nearer and bent above her. Her low, regular breathing showed that she was sleeping, and a teardrop gleamed like a diamond on each dark lash. He knelt and brushed the grass from the face of the stone, and read:

"CHARLES MILFORD."

"It is she," he murmured. "She did love him and thus she comes to him."

Long and earnestly he looked at her quiet face, like an angel's in the white moonlight; then, gently, noiselessly, he bent and pressed his lips to her snowy hair. Just for a moment, when he sprung up and hastened away as if guilty of some crime, laughing nervously through his white lips, as he whispered:

"She is his wife and has no thought of me. I shall go back to the world, for even the world is never so false as a woman."

While she, a little later, awoke with a cry at finding herself alone so late in this beautiful, awful waste and ran wildly out to the street, her white hands pressed to her throbbing temples, while her cold lips quivered and a cry, like the cry of a wounded bird, rose to them:

"I slept and dreamed that Herbert came to me and kissed me. Oh! why was it all a dream?"

Angels of mercy are always hovering over us, but sometimes they only flutter near to us, instead of covering us safely in the loving protection of their wings.

Tell the Truth.

In answer to the accusation that girls of the period tax too heavily the purses of their escorts to ball or theater, a defender of her order suggests that young men should not keep the state of their finances such a profound secret. She says: There isn't one girl in fifty, I'll warrant, who would order an expensive meal, or enjoy it when ordered, if she thought that its cost was a serious item to her escort. The average young man hasn't too much money, but is filled with a fierce desire to see that his fair one has the best and most of everything. It is an American fashion, and a very noble and gallant one, but it can be overdone. I don't mean that the young man should "plead poverty," but neither need he assume that indifference to expense that a millionare is supposed to show—and seldom does! A tactful girl can steer between these two extremes neatly and without offending. After all, poverty is no crime. If it was the prisons would be pretty populous.

A Gigantic Temple.

In Seringham, India, is the largest heathen temple in the world. It is a square, each side being a mile in length, so that it is four miles round. The walls are twenty-five feet high, and for or five feet thick, and in the center of each wall rises a lofty tower. Entering the first square you come to another, with a wall as high and four more towers. Within that square there is another, and within that again another—and you will find seven squares, one within another, crowded by thousands of Brahmins. The great hall for pilgrims is supported by 1,000 pillars, each cut out a single block of stone.

GEN. GALLIFET is the most popular military personage in France. He commanded a battalion of the Versailles army during the Commune, and it is said to be owing to his energy that the insurrection was put down.

A Picture-Factory.

There is a place down near Chatham Square where oil paintings are turned out pretty rapidly. And the oddest thing about it is that the proprietor is not at all embarrassed when a visitor drops in, but effusively welcomes him and shows up the lightning process. A large loft is devoted to it, only diminished by two little rooms cut off the front for offices. Along each side of a large room runs a continuous easel, forty feet long, I should say, and on this is stretched cheap white cotton, half-width. Along the middle of the room, running the whole length between the easels, paints of all sorts are arranged on a convenient bench. There are six or eight "artists" usually engaged at once on this canvas. One does the ground-work with a brush somewhat like a whitewash-brush, which he plies with both hands. With one splash in the brown he walks quickly along and lays on five or six yards of the foreground and middle-distance; with a splash of blue and yellow he sets five or six yards of vague sky above it, and makes a sweep with another brush along the horizon the blue and brown are required to blend. Then he marks the long canvas off into suitable lengths for pictures; and retires to another stretch of virgin white awaiting him across the room. Then the rest of the painters rush upon him, flourish their brushes and fall to filling in the beauties of landscape. A blotch of red for a cloud, a blotch of dead brown for a tree, and a smaller blotch of the same kind for a man, dots of white for sheep, and there you have it! There are no patterns and it is to be said for those works of art that no two are alike. About twenty an hour are turned out. Then they are cut up, framed and put on the market in the hands of itinerant dealers. If they can't get $5 for one they will take 50 cents. The manufacture of them is a curious sight.—New York Letter.

Odd Names of Streets.

To reach Boa Vista Palace take a carriage at your hotel door and drive down the Rue Cattete, skirt the bay along the Praya da Gloria, rattle through the Rua das Manguerras (street of leather pipes,) dash under the aqueduct arches of Mate-Cavallos (horse-killing avenue); turn into the Rue das Invalidas (street of sick people,) and then follow the Mata-Porcas (pig-killing street), until at last you come to the direct road that leads out to Sao Christavao. The well-paved avenue has lamp posts set on either side and is lined with handsome suburban homes set in gardens of perpetual bloom, shaded by feathery palm trees.—Rio Janeiro Letter to Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Rosin the Bow Nowhere.

When it gets down to a question of what's what, this man Remenyi can outfiddle any party in Adam's County, barring no man, black or white. He was at the Opera House last night, and if he wasn't old Rosin the Bow for about an hour, old Rosin the Bow never lived. He fiddled up one side and down the other. Hippity-hop-skip and a jump. You never heard such music in your life. He can take a violin and hold it as the hired man would a catfish and he can make it sound like the Celestial Choir singing as if their little hearts would bust. Maestro Remenyi trains at 180 pounds and his head is as bald as an onion and as yellow as ginger.

National Colors.

The colors of Great Britain are red and blue; of the United States, stars on the blue with white and red stripes. The Austrian colors are red, white, and blue; the Bavarian, red; those of Denmark, red with a white cross; those of France, blue, white, and red; of the Netherlands, red, white, and blue; of Portugal, blue and white; of Prussia, white; of Russia, white, with a blue cross; of Spain, black, yellow, and red; of Switzerland, red, with a white cross; of China, yellow; of Mexico, green, white, and red.

Waves Mountain High—

Or somewhat less—threaten, during a storm, to engulf the venturous voyager on the tempestuous Atlantic. Sometimes he is torn with deep despair at such a juncture, sometimes he is rather glad of it. The latter condition of mind obtains when he is sea sick. The diabolical qualms which he has undergone, and which are now aggravated ten fold by the pitching of the ship, render him in a measure indifferent to his fate. This picture is scarcely exaggerated, as people who have been violently sea sick will assure you. Travelers and tourists by sea and land should always be provided with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a means of counteracting sea sickness and the nervous disturbance or stomachic trouble begotten of uncomfortable transit by land or water, or unwholesome food hastily swallowed at railway stations. Emigrants should supply themselves with Hostetters Stomach Bitters as a family safeguard against malaria, stomach, liver and bowel complaints, kidney trouble and rheumatism.

Seize Each Golden Moment.

Let us arrest the days for their dues to us, and seize the angel's blessings from every one. We are on the sea of life which they make; let us not suffer them to slip as waves under the boat which they ought to bear on, nor, gliding and treacherous, to drift upon the rocks. Let us trim our sail to calm and storm, and be ready for the gale while in halcyon weather we court and catch the breeze.

Woven Books.

A curious book, in which the text is neither written nor printed, but woven, has lately been published at Lyons. It was made of silk, and was published in twenty-five parts. Each part consists of two leaves, so that the entire volume only contains fifty leaves, inscribed with the service of the mass and several prayers. Both the letters and the border are in black silk on a white background.

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action, but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

100 PER CENT. BETTER.

Editor Rowell Talks Common Sense—People Need Good Medicine—Hood's Sarsaparilla Supplies the Demand.

"There is to me no cause for doubt that every one living in our variable climate, particularly as we Americans live during the winter, eating meat, especially fat meat, needs something to cleanse the system and free a clogged liver in the spring. The question then resolves itself into decision as to what's the best thing to take. For one, I have solved the question to my own satisfaction that Hood's Sarsaparilla completely fills the bill. After taking two or three bottles I always feel a hundred per cent. better, and might say without exaggeration five hundred per cent. better. The brain is clearer, the body in better condition for work, sleep is sweeter, and the little troubles of life pass by untouched. I can heartily and honestly recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to any one." A. S. ROWELL, Editor Lancaster Gazette, Lancaster, N. H.

Don't be a spider and crawl in these days! Why not keep up with the nineteenth century? You would not buy a steam engine made like those of a century ago. Then why should you buy the old-fashioned, big, drastic pills that gripe and debilitate your system?

As great improvements have been made in pills as in steam engines. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are tiny, sugar-coated granules, or pills, are easiest to take, and never gripe or shock the system.

They are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless.

One little Pellet's a laxative, three to four are cathartic. They regulate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels — quickly, but thoroughly. They're the cheapest pill, sold by druggists, because you only pay for the good you get. They're guaranteed to give satisfaction, every time, or your money is returned. That's the peculiar plan all Dr. Pierce's medicines are sold on.

The New Great South American Kidney Cure.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. This new remedy has been thoroughly tested by learned physicians and found far superior to any medicine yet discovered for quickly relieving all weaknesses, aches, pains and distresses arising from disease of any part of the urinary passages. It is a great relief for the old, middle aged and children, male or female. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. It may be worth to many a hundred times its cost. This is a remedy of great value to ladies, because they are very liable to weakness and pain peculiar to their sex. May 24th, and many persons have not yet made garden, since the long continued rains have not permitted the ground to dry sufficiently to be in condition to work.

Mrs. Darby does not recover as rapidly as her friends could wish. Last week she had a sinking spell, and is in so nervous a state that it is not considered desirable for her to have visitors.

Miss Alleman reigned her position as assistant principal in the Waterloo schools and accepted a position as principal at Celina, Ohio, at $70 per month. Miss Powers of Angola takes her place here.

S. W. Dickinson has removed from Quincy, Mich., to this place. He occupies the property of Rev. Klotz, south of his residence. He is a brother of Simon Dickinson of this place and was a resident of the town some years ago.

Sunday afternoon Dr. and Mrs. Chamberlain were walking near the passenger house in the west end of town, when the Doctor had one of his sudden attacks of illness. Help was soon at hand, when his son was sent for, and he was taken home. He has probably recovered since we have heard nothing further.

Mrs. Carpenter returned home Monday from Lester, Mich., to which place she was called last week on account of the death of her sister, Mrs. Sarah Southworth, who has been sick with consumption, for a long time. Mrs. S died Thursday morning, and the funeral services and burial took place Saturday.

A curious freak of nature was observed by the writer a few days ago. Last fall the fruit trees on the grounds were trimmed, and some of the long straight branches suitable for poling beans, were set up in a corner between the barn and the fence, the cut end resting on the ground. All but one at this time look perfectly dead, but the exception, a branch from a cherry tree has partially leaved out, and has put out a few blossoms.

William H. Bard is dangerously ill from rheumatic fever and grave fears are felt for his recovery. The Odd Fellows are caring for him.

Dr. Shumaker, who recently came from Metz, to build up a practice here, seems to be gaining ground by careful attention to business. We wish him all the success his merit deserves.

Quite a number of our citizens assembled at the depot Thursday morning to see Gen. Miles' bicyle dispatch bearers pass. The ceremonies were brief indeed, the delay being only a slacking of speed to exchange the dispatch pouch.

Stiefel & Chambers are about to shake the dust of the saloon corner from their feet, and take up new quarters in the Haverstock building near Inman corner. Their growing trade demanded better surroundings if not better quarters.

Eliss Stranes seems to be losing ground and serious fears are felt by his friends, for his recovery. His illness results from an abscess in his face, which continues to sap his vitality. The Odd Fellows are giving him careful attention.

They Brought It Back.

Last February there was a note in the COURIER stating that a basket containing a silk dress and some other articles had been lost or stolen and offering a suitable reward for their return. This was the property of Mr. Wilcox, who reside in the north part of town, and nothing has been heard of it till Sunday morning. On Saturday night Mr. Wilcox and his family had been hearing strange noises about the house, and once Mr. Wilcox's son got up to see what was the matter, but could see nothing wrong. Next morning, however, a bundle neatly tied up was found by the door, and on being taken into the house and opened, there was the silk dress safe and sound. And now Mr. Wilcox is ready to pay the reward if any one calls for it. This incident reminds us of the experience T. S. Murray, of Spencerville, had a few years ago. Someone had stolen his coat, and in speaking of it in the presence of others, he had said the thief would be welcome to keep the coat if he would return a pocket book it contained, and in which were valuable papers. Not long after, Mr. Murray happened to cast his eyes under the door step and there lay the pocket book with the papers all right. But the coat never came back.

County S. S. Convention.

The 27th annual S. S. convention of DeKalb county, will be held at Corunna in the Christian church, June 7 and 8. An excellent program is arranged, and there will be excellent speakers from all over the county. We have not room for full list of work, but all who attend will be more than pleased, and greatly benefited. All come. The program has been prepared for sun time; each speaker will be confined strictly to the subject under discussion: all Sunday school workers are not only invited, but are expected to be present and take part in the work of the convention. Bring your Gospel Hymns Combined, and assist in singing, which will occur as often as deemed expedient in the work of the program. Each school in the county, should, on the last Sabbath in May, appoint one delegate who will attend, for each twenty-five members, to represent them in the convention. Also take up a collection to assist in defraying the expenses of the County Sunday School Association.

A Surprise.

Saturday evening May 14, a surprise party was given in honor of Geo. E. Cox, by the scholars of his room in the Garrett school. A very pleasant evening was passed and a great number of handsome presents received which showed that the scholars appreciated the work done by their teacher during the past school year.

We are glad to note this evidence of Mr. Cox's popularity at Garrett where his school work now is. It is another instance of good work bearing good fruit.

Demorest for June.

The most interesting number that Demorest ever issued is the current number of that most excellent magazine. It has a most intensely interesting article on the great Mammoth Cave of Kentucky, giving information never in print before and illustrated by photographic views taken by flash light, in the interior of the cave. In this way, the reader sees these wonders, almost as they are seen by the visitor. It is a wonderful description of a wonderful place. Then there several other articles as good, especially the laughable illustrated article about the experience of the amateur photographer, showing the pictures he took before he had learned the work. All in all, as we said above, it is a most excellent number.

REPORT OF DELEGATES.

To the Biennial Meeting of the Confederation of Woman's Clubs at Chicago, May 11 to 13.

MRS. PRESIDENT AND LADIES: The first Biennial Meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs convened in Chicago May 11, 1892, and continued to May 13, the Woman's Club of Chicago, doing the honors of hostess in the most royal manner. Your delegates were promptly on hand on the morning of the 11th, with hundreds of others all intent on presenting credentials, and paying the dues of their respective clubs. This was finally accomplished and the blue ribbon badge of the federation pinned upon the breast of each delegate as she emerged from the crowd which surrounded the credential table.

This badge did wonders in various ways, exciting both attention and curiosity. The visiting delegates were also requested to wear their club color, with their state and club name printed upon it. The Ladies' Literary club of Auburn, having no club color, did not do so. Many ladies wore three or four colors, according to the number of clubs to which they belonged. The convention sessions were held in the Central Music Hall, a very beautiful building, and used as we were told for only such entertainments as required no stage proper.

The delegates were seated in the body of the house, divided by white ribbons from the visiting members of clubs and the Woman's Club of Chicago, the members of which wore as a temporary badge a knot of purple ribbon. The call to order was by Mrs Charlotte Emerson Brown, of New Jersey, the then and now, president of the federation.

Mrs. Brown is a tall, stately woman, deliberate, almost hesitating in her manner, with a most pleasing expression, very gracious and having most excellent taste in dress. I mention this last item because of the general lack of taste in the majority of the officers of the federation. Mrs. May Wright Sewell of our own state, sat beside the president. She is a woman who immediately impresses one as amply able to take care of herself. Wide awake and thoroughly informed upon every question which was discussed; ambitious for herself, well dressed, the Indiana people were proud of her. Mrs. Croly (Jennie June) was a disappointment evidently to every one both in appearance and manner. You all remember that she is editress of the Home Magazine, and recording secretary of the federation. I shall not have time to describe each one of the notables. You probably read better descriptions of them in the papers than I could possibly give you. Permit me to say however, that the pictures, were in almost every case, libels on the originals.

The address of welcome by Dr. Sarah Hackett Stephenson made every one welcome and was responded to by Mrs. Brown. The regular business followed and the day was ended with a reception to delegates and club members given by the Woman's club of Chicago, at the Art Institute building. Your delegates were particularly fortunate in their escorts, and met all the notables, Susan B. Anthony, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. Kate Tannatt Woods, Dr. Lozier and many others.

Thursday morning found us again in Central Music hall, Club Intercourse and fellowship being the topic of disscusion. Also, the report on club method. Imagine the surprise of some of your delegates when one of her own ideas, that of neighborhood club conventions, was given as one of the very best methods of advancing club fellowship. Club correspondence, the exchange of programs, etc., was also discussed, and a letter from the president of the Sorosis club of Ceylon was read asking that a program be sent to her from every club in the federation. The afternoon was devoted to a paper on parlimentry law by Mrs. Shattuck of Massachusetts, and action on constitutional amendments. Mrs. Henrotin also read a paper on the Columbian Exposition. Mrs. Henrotin is vice-president of the board of lady managers of the World's Columbian Exposition.

On Thursday the convention received many favors from the city, invitations to theaters, minstrel shows, an invitation to visit Jackson Park in a body, and many beautiful flowers. Your delegates deemed it advisable to accept a private invitation to visit the World's fair grounds, and drove there Friday morning, through a heavy rain. "No admission" greeted us on all sides, but on sending our cards and badges to the secretary, he very kindly made us an exception and we drove about the grounds as long as we chose to. Returning we were at Central Music Hall at half past two, ready for the election of officers. The nominating committee having put in nomination the officers for the next two years, the farce of balloting for them proceeded, the result being the election of the officers, this committee had named, there being but one candidate for each office and the delegates having no choice in the election. Miscellaneous business followed and the day closed with a Symposium on Educational Problems. Papers were read by Mrs. Dr. DeLozier, president of the Sorosis, of New York, and by Mrs. Ella F. Young, who is a member of the Woman's Club of Chicago, and assistant principal in the Chicago Public schools. Mrs. Sewall of Indiana made the closing address, and as she spoke words of thanks to every one who had contributed toward the pleasure and success of this first biennial convention. I feel sure that if her inmost thoughts could have been read, they were thoughts of disappointed ambition. I cannot close this report without speaking of the lovely woman who entertained your delegates, Mrs. Bush E. Hoppin, a member of the Woman's club and one ably fitted to further club fellowship, in the truest sense of the term. Much of the pleasure of the convention, to your delegates, is due to her untiring kindness and thoughtfulness, during our entire stay in her beautiful home. When making making our adieus to her, she said to me, "Though I shall probably never meet your club, remember me to them each and all and say to them, my heart and my hands are in touch with them through the federation." I should like to speak of each one of the clubs whose delegates we met and of whose work we heard but time will not permit, but with due modesty and ample apologies to other clubs throughout this glorious country; I will say this much for ourselves, the Ladies Literary Club of Auburn, is among the first in everything. And our members, our work and our methods will compare very favorably with the very largest clubs in the land.

Your delegates were proud to represent you, and came back to the club, filled with love and enthusiasm for their own. Respectfully submitted, May 21, 1892.

MRS. GEO. SCHAAB,
MRS. IDA V. EMANUEL.

MESSRS. DULLAM BROS.—Gentlemen: For over 4 years I have been afflicted with an eruption of the skin, which became very troublesome and I could get no relief. I was also troubled very badly with constipation, which nothing I tried gave any permanent relief until I took Dullam's Great German blood, liver, stomach and kidney remedy and since taking I have been entirely cured. For a tonic, blood purifier and general health restorer I can heartily recommend it. $1 a bottle.

Refreshing Retreats.

Summer days are fast approaching and now is the time that excursionists, pleasure seekers and sportsmen should figure out a route for their summer vacation. In doing so, the delightfully cool summer and fishing resorts located along the Wisconsin Central Lines come vividly to view, among which are Fox Lake, Ill., Lake Villa, Ill., Mukwonago, Waukesha, Cedar Lake, Neenah, Waupaca, Fifield, Butternut and Ashland, Wis. Wisconsin has within the last five years become the center of attraction for more pleasure seekers, hunters and fishermen than in any other state in the union, and each visit increases the desire to again see the charming landscapes, breathe the balsam fragrance that is a part of the invigorating atmosphere, wander through the colonnades of stately pines and hook the speckled beauties with a hand-made fly.

For pamphlet containing valuable information, etc., apply to D. W. Janowitz, T. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind., or Jas. C. Pond, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

Samuel W. Widney was recorder, Henry Willis as coroner was in the line of promotion for sheriff, which office he later filled; and Manius Buchanan held the position of surveyor, an office then as unremunerative as now unpopular. Mr. Buchanan served as an officer in a company later raised in the county and on his discharge went to the far west and took up a home in the forests of Oregon, where he still lives. About two years ago, he revisited DeKalb county, renewed acquaintance with many former friends in Auburn, and at St. Joe met in pleasant reunion, former comrades.

The county commissioners in March 1862, were David Buchanan, Henry Fusselman and John Brandon, whose time was partially occupied with matters growing out of the existing war.

The finances were in good condition, since the June report gave collections for county revenue as $28,425,61, expenditures, $24,311.48, leaving a balance of $4,114.13. The county levy was placed at 40 cents on each $100 valuation, the same as for the year of 1891, but increased values insures a large sum counteracting early and late growing expenditure.

Examiner Wright continued good work in the line of his bi-fold duties. He gave his Sabbath to his ministerial calling and week days to the schools, visiting them, holding institutes, examining teachers and creating an interest in education that continued and augmented in later years.

He supplemented his tireless efforts by issuing a printed circular in which he stated that: "The state of public education in DeKalb county is still too low. Both people and teachers need to form a more exalted estimate of the importance of public instruction."

He recommended that "the sacred Scriptures be daily read in our public schools as a help to moral instruction, since if in prisons, camps and on ships, chaplains were desirable, so much more appropriate was such recognition of a Supreme Being in schools."

He suggested attendance at normal schools and urged the taking of standard educational publications by teachers. His suggestions were measurably seconded and the Indiana School Journal long thereafter enjoyed an extensive circulation in consequence.

It is safe to affirm that no successor, however energetic has done more work with less compensation than did examiner Wright. At the close of his first year he presented his statement of service to the county commissioners at regular session. The report was accepted and it was ordered that he be paid for such services as county examiner, the sum of $100 out of the special fund of the various townships and towns.

Auburn's apportionment in this connection amounted to $3.26, not enough to pay for a single day's salary of the county superintendent as now fixed by statute.

Thankful for any aid however slight, Rev. Wright received from the county an appropriation of $20 to apply upon payment of lecturers hired for the teachers' annual institute, which in 1862, was held during the first week in December in the Newville academy.

The Auburn Union school at this time was attended by many who have reflected credit upon their county and who are now active in business here and elsewhere.

S. W. Sprott was the director and is said to have been very attentive and efficient in looking after the interests of the school.

The school trustees employed James E. Rose, of Stafford township, as superintendent and he was assisted by Hadessa J. George, now Mrs. A. J Ralston, teacher of the grammar department, Henry C. Coats, teacher of penmanship, Mrs. Emma Ewan, now Mrs. Phil Plum, teacher of the intermediate and Mrs. Helen Alling of the primary department.

The attendance was about three hundred in all grades. Every township in the county except Fairfield, was represented by one or more students for the High school course.

Among these were Albert Robbins and Mrs. Anna Robbins, now deceased, M. F. Long of Butler, Mrs. Mary Ehlers, Henry Mader, Mrs. Rachel Henderson of Spencerville, Mrs. Jennie Crooks nee Emerson, of Kansas, Rev. Harvey Widney, who was drowned in Lake Minnetonka, Minn., and Isaac M. Thomas of Jackson township.

Mr. Rose now a prominent attorney at the county seat, then the superintendent of the school, was a pioneer teacher in DeKalb county.

He came to this county with his father's family in October, 1836, being about four years of age and attended the first school taught in the county. The teacher was Miss Emily Handy who is now the wife of Isaac Eakright, living in Northern Michigan.

Mr. Rose commenced teaching in the common schools of the county in 1850 and subsequently taught in Ohio and in Michigan. Later, he attended the Michigan Wesleyan University at Leoni as a preparatory student, entered college and on completing the junior year returned home where he farmed summers and taught winters until October, 1862 when he removed to Auburn and took charge of the schools as stated.

The teachers are said to have been zealous and untiring in their efforts to advance the school and cheering progress was made by students. Regular attendance was good and a vacant seat in the school room was exceptional.

Meanwhile the tremendous proportions of the war for the Union began to be fully realized. The deadly character of the struggle with all its suffering and loss of life and health came home to the hearts of the people as the months of anxious suspense crept by.

The volunteers from Auburn and from DeKalb county had been subjected to trying exposure of severe winter weather and to the stern ordeal of battle and they came through with honor. Letters from soldiers in the camps, portrayed the field of Donelson. They spoke of the clamor and excitement of the fight, the honors of the battle ground and of the memorable bivouac of the thousands who sank to rest to be blanketed by the gentle falling snow.

They told of the supreme joy in victory followed by terrible sufferings of jaded sick men crowded for days on filthy transports with mules and masses of baggage and no surgeon to minister to their great need.

Found Dead.

John Springer, a well-known farmer living a few miles east of here, left home last Tuesday, under strange circumstances. He had appeared somewhat gloomy, probably owing to the bad weather that was preventing the putting out of crops, and had remarked that it was no use to work, as nothing would come of it. He quit work on Tuesday and went to the house and told his family he was going away. He came to Auburn and purchased a box of rough on rats and got some morphine powders, to make him sleep, so it is said. This is the last seen of him alive. Wednesday, as he was still absent, the family and neighbors began to search. A. B. Walsworth came to town, and inquired quietly if he had been seen, for it was still hoped he was here, and they did not care to make it a too public matter. The hunt was kept up all next day. The first clue was from D. T. Smith, who had met Mr. Springer, Tuesday, as the latter was walking on the road towards home, and it was also learned the track men on the railroad had seen a man turn off into Jake Somers' woods on his north eighty acres. Thursday morning, Samuel Miller, a neighbor of Springer, hearing of the matter and having learned these pointers, got two men, Malone and Hutton, to go with him, they went up the track to look, went into the woods and through it, but saw nothing. Then they turned back and going through the woods again, found him lying on his back, dead, at the foot of a large red oak tree. He and Hutton staid by the body, while Malone went and told Springer's family. His hat was beside him, and the box of rough on rats, showed some had been taken. The bottle labeled, morphine, was nearly empty. His pocket knife showed he had taken powders with it. In his pocket book was $59.20. He did not appear to have struggled any. Mr. Springer was in good circumstances, but a tendency to insanity seems to have been inherited, as it is claimed his father and an uncle both committed suicide while temporarily insane. Coroner Miser held an inquest the same afternoon, at which Miller and others testified. His family say that when he left, he said he was going to see a brother in Missouri, and that was the reason they had not expected to find him on the road home. They say he has been somewhat insane for two years. The Coroner's verdict will probably be, "poisoning while in a fit of insanity.

The Art of Finding Fault.

Three times out of four fault-finding is merely an expression of impatience, writes Lilian Freeman Clarke in the June Ladies' Home Journal, and the only good it does is to relieve the irritable feeling caused by the carelessness, stupidity or other defects of those with whom we have daily intercourse. To begin with, on every occasion where there is no reasonable hope of doing good by fault-finding, seal your lips as with a bar of iron.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

A large variety of topics are interestingly treated, both descriptively and pictorially, in the June number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly. "St. Louis, the Carnival City of America," is the leading paper and gives a bright presentation of the external splendor as well as the commercial resources and progressive spirit of the southwestern metropolis. In an article entitled "Barriers against Invisible Foes," Frank Linstow White gives a graphic description of the Quarantine Station of the New York Harbor, and the vigilant measures in operation there to ward off contagion and epidemic. "Peasant Life in the Romagna" is in the happiest style, and is accompanied by some of the most charming sketches, of its lamented artist author Herbert Iferson. Wilf. P. Pond writes of "The Divine Weed"—tobacco. The "Old Cumberland Ford" region, in Eastern Kentucky, is described by S. I. Logan, and "Glimpses of Guiana," are furnished by two recent travelers. The genesis and creation of the late Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass" is given in the words of the "Good Gray Poet" himself. Probably the most vivid idea of an earthquake ever given in the compass of a magazine article is that presented by the account of "Earthquake Photographs in Japan," written and photographically illustrated by Professor W. K. Burton, head of the Seismographical Labratory of the Imperial University at Tokio. There are a number of good short stories and poems.

Lippincott's Magazine.

A happy thought, that, to print a whole story in each number of a magazine; not a short story, either, but a full-fledged novel, such as magazines used to take a year to complete. Only a wide-awake magazine would have thought of it. It was a wide-awake ones,—LIPPINCOTT'S. And such stories! The new idea came in with a whoop with a story of Habberton, entitled "Bruceton's Bayou," 'Twas setting a high mark for whoever followed. There was no question about the Bayou, but what of what was to come? Well, they've been coming once a month ever since for sixty months. Up to the mark! Plump! Crowd the mark, if anything. And there are many more to follow. It is not only the novel you get, but a good magazine, besides. Chock full of bright articles on popular subjects, poems, sketches, short stories, and lots of other things. Is it a wonder the circulation jumps? It pays to be wide-awake. Single numbers, 25 cents. $3.000 per year. Address

LIFE'S UPS AND DOWNS

VISITING THE GOOD PEOPLE OF THE WORLD.

The Corn Corner at Chicago Busts—A Kentucky Lynching—Dashed to Pieces on the Rocks—A Petrified Woman—A Sleeping Baby in the Ruins—Anti-Hill Democrats.

FOR HIGH TREASON.

Citizens of the Sandwich Islands Arrested For High Treason.

Advices from Honolulu state that the Government of Hawaii, which has long been worried by the tactics of former revolutionists, Ashford and Wilcox and their friends, has brought matters to a crisis by causing the arrest for high treason of nineteen of the most prominent Liberals.

They were taken to jail on May 11 and will be tried for their lives by Judge Doe of the Supreme Court, some time in July. The natives are already in a fever of excitement and it is feared that large numbers of them will resent what they term high-handed outrage, perpetrated by the Government. Many good judges of Hawaiian affairs are of the opinion that rebellion is not only possible, but probable.

A Sleeping Baby in the Ruins.

The two story stone house of James Sullivan, four miles east of Independence, Kan., was destroyed by a cyclone. There was eight persons in the house at the time. Mrs. Lucy M. Lucies and a four-year-old child were taken from the ruins having been crushed to death. All would have lost their lives but for the timely aid of John Anderson, who lives just across the road. Mrs. Sullivan was taken from the ruins unconscious and on recovery crawled back and brought out her baby, which was found sleeping and unhurt. The twister seemed to have spent its entire fury at this point as all other damage was nominal.

New York Democrats.

The Cleveland wing of the Democratic party of New York held their convention at Saratoga, and selected delegates and alternates to the National convention. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the convention approve, endorse and point with pride to the administration of Grover Cleveland, and recommend him to the Chicago Convention and to the Democratic party and the patriotic people again for election to the Presidency.

Dashed to Pieces on the Rocks.

Deadwood (S. D.) special: A disastrous wreck occurred on the Deadwood Central Railroad. It resulted in the killing of James Scott and the fatal injuring of W. M. Thomas. The passenger train was on the grade and the brakes refused to work. The train slid down the grade seventy-five miles an hour. At a reverse curve the train ran off and was dashed to pieces on the rocks. Strange to say, the coach full of people escaped comparatively unhurt, only receiving minor bruises.

The Corn Corner Busts.

A special from Chicago, dated June 1, says: The May corn corner collapsed today and resulted disastrously to the manipulators, Coster & Martin, who have been taking all the cash corn put upon the market for several weeks, and at the same time squeezing the shorts in May. They failed, and the price of May, which had been put up as high as $1 during the morning, dropped rapidly until it reached 50 cents. The assets and liabilites of the firm are not known.

The Hero of the Alamo.

The Crockett clan, descendants of the immortal Davy, will celebrate the 106th anniversary of that deceased hero and statesman at Rutherford, Tenn., on Aug. 17. The old log hut and homestead of Col. Crockett, when he represented West Tennessee in the United States Congress and when he left his family on his fatal mission to Texas, is still in good repair and will be an interesting curiosity to the surviving relatives.

A Petrified Woman.

When Mr. Charles Block opened the grave of his wife in Hazelwood cemetery, near Montezuma, Iowa, he found the coffin full of water and his wife's remains petrified to solid stone, and it took five men to lift the coffin out of the grave. The woman's flesh was fair and her hair black and glossy as in life. A bunch of roses in her hand had become solid stone. The body had been buried eight years.

Prohibitionists Convention.

The Wisconsin Prohibition State Convention met at Madison. The feature of the address of Samuel D. Hastings, chairman of the State Committee, was the earnest advocacy of the prohibition law in place of the moral suasion plan, which the third party has so long advocated in that State.

Breaks All Previous Records.

The new steamer Columbia, of the Pacific Mail Steamship Line has arrived at New York from Colon on her maiden voyage, after a passage of five days and twenty-three hours, running at three-quarters speed, making the fastest passage on record from Colon to New York.

Enforcing the Contract Labor Law.

Four Austrian miners who arrived at New York on the steamer La Champaigne, bound for the silver mines in Colorado, were debarred from landing, under the contract labor law.

They Happen in France.

A passenger train collided at Lyons, France, with an engine, and thirteen passengers were injured, some dangerously, while several carriages were smashed.

THE JACKSON-SLAVIN FIGHT.

The Colored Man Lays Out the Bloomin' Britisher.

London special: The famous battle between Slavin and Jackson has been lost and won. The National Sporting Club was crowded to excess and every inch of the available seating capacity of the big theater was utilized to meet the demands that were made for places to witness the great mill and this in spite of the high price that had been fixed for the seats.

Ever since the National Sporting Club arranged the meeting between Slavin and Jackson the battle has been looked forward to with immense interest, and the applications for admission to the famous sporting club came at a wholesale rate from an early date.

Jackson trained for the event at Brighton under the guidance of Jem Young, and came up to the mark in the very pink of condition, turning the scales at 196 pounds.

Slavin prepared himself and was assisted by his brother and the Australian Tom Burrows at Dovercourt. He weighed in at eleven pounds less than Jackson, turning the scale at 185 pounds. Jackson was seconded by Parson Davies, Joe Choynski and Jem Young, while Slavin was looked after by his brother Jack, Tom Williams and Tom Burrows. There was a tremendous round of applause as each man entered the ring, and this was redoubled when they met in the center to shake hands. The fight lasted ten hotly contested rounds amid the intensest kind of excitement among the spectators when Jackson delivered the final blow and knocked Slavin out amid the wildest kind of enthusiasm, which was redoubled when he was proclaimed the victor.

A WATER SPOUT

Bursts Over an Ohio Town, Doing Much Damage.

A water spout burst over Kinsman, a small village twelve miles northeast of Niles, Ohio, on the Pyamatuning River, drowning six persons and destroying buildings, stock, and crops. The water fell in torrents and the small river overflowed its banks. The farmers did not flee, thinking there was no danger, and all would have been safe had not a dam about two miles above the village broken without warning. J. B. Robins' house was on the brink of the river. He and his wife and two children were eating breakfast when the flood came. It is presumed they started to flee but too late. K. Stewart and son were in their barn, which was carried away. Their house withstood the torrent and Mrs. Stewart witnessed the drowning of her husband and son. J. C. Campbell and wife were carried down stream and lodged on an abutment of a bridge and were rescued. The bodies of the six drowned were found in a large pile of driftwood which reached nearly across the river. Searching parties are overhauling the driftwood, believing that more bodies will be found. Many horses and cattle were swept away and the loss is estimated at $20,000.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY

Of Indiana, Puts a Ticket in the Field.

For Supreme Judges—Second District, Adam Stockinger, Ripley county; Third District, Silas M. Shepherd, Indianapolis; Fifth District, N. J. Bozart, Porter county.

For Appellate Judges—First district, I. N. Pierce, Vigo county; Second District, Joseph Daily, Washington county; Third District, H. C. Barnet, Johnson county; Fourth District, David W. Chambers, Henry county; Fifth District, John S. Bender, Marshall county.

For Governor, Leroy Templeton of Benton County; Lieutenant Governor, Dr. J. A. Houser of Indianapolis; Secretary of State, Jesse L. Hobson; Treasurer, Townsend Cope of Jennings County; Auditor, Lewis Kasten of Fort Wayne; Attorney General, D. H. Fernades of Madison County; State Statistician, C. H. Bliss of Howard County; Superintendent of Public Instruction, J. H. Allen of Vigo County.

DIE, YOU VILLAIN!

Shot to Death at the Breakfast Table.

The guests at the breakfast table in the Lincoln Hotel, Lincoln, Neb., were startled by the report of a pistol shot in the dining-room, and the exclamation, "die, you villian," uttered in a shrill and passionate voice. A guest at one of the tables was seen to sway backward and forward in his chair and finally fall to the floor before assistance could reach him. His assailant hurriedly left the room but was arrested in the hotel office and held for the police authorities.

The wounded man was found to be sinking rapidly and a physician was summoned, but before he arrived the man was dead. His name is Charles M. Montgomery and he was President of the German National Bank. His assailant was Wm. H. Irwin, a prominent business man. After being turned over to the officers Irwin made a statement, in which he charged Montgomery with betraying Mrs. Irwin and her daughter. All the parties are prominently connected and the tragic affair created the most intense excitement.

WELLINGTON, KANSAS, IN RUINS.

Fifty Dead and Over a Hundred Injured by a Cyclone.

Wellington, Kansas, was struck by a terrible cyclone, and the entire northern portion of the city was destroyed. About fifty people were killed and 125 injured, but the confusion is so great that the exact loss of life cannot be stated definitely at this time. Among the dead are Mrs. William Sashen, Kittie Strahn, Sila Walter, Ida Forsyth and Ida Jones. The Wellington Hotel and the Phillips House, the two largest hotels in the city, were completely wrecked, and the ruins of the Phillips took fire. Many of the guests were burned to death.

A heavy storm of rain and wind preceded the cyclone half an hour, which struck the city, coming from the Southwest. There were no premonitory signs. Everybody was indoors and the cloud passed with its destructive rush and awful roar unseen. Washington avenue, the principal business street, is lined on both sides for blocks with ruins.

Michigan Central Fighting Jackson.

Jackson (Mich.) special: A war is on here between the city of Jackson and the Michigan Central Railroad Company over a strip of land near the Central Depot. Both parties have claimed it for years. The railroad company is trying to put in a spur on the land in dispute and thus gain possession. Two car loads of workmen from Detroit, sent to put down the track, did so despite the police. The Fire Department was called out, the hose turned on the workmen, and the city's horses pulled up the tracks. It is said that another attempt will be made to lay the tracks. Great excitement prevails.

A Desperate Counterfeiter.

James Walker, who has been in the Noblesville jail for some weeks on a charge of counterfeiting, attempted to escape while being taken to Indianapolis for trial. He slipped his handcuffs and jumped from the train as it was going forty miles an hour. He fell on his face and was badly injured. The Sheriff had another prisoner, George Slaughter, in custody on the same charge, and when he stopped the train Slaughter joined in the pursuit and capture of the other prisoner. Walker is about thirty years old and is regarded as desperate.

Will Represent the United States.

Although a date for the proposed international monetary conference has not been fixed it is believed that the place of conference will be Berlin. It is also understood that the delegates to represent the United States will be H. W. Cannon, President of the Chase National Bank of New York; Judge Lambert Tree of Chicago, and Senator Jones of Nevada. Mr. Cannon, of course, represents the gold interests; Mr. Jones is a radical silver man, and Judge Tree is conservative on the financial question.

The Celebrated Preacher Wife Murderer Dying in Prison.

Valparaiso (Ind.) special: Rev. W. F. Pettit, the Shawnee Mound preacher and wife murderer, is reported in a dying condition in the Michigan City prison. Pettit poisoned his wife and his trial, which lasted eight weeks, attracted widespread attention throughout the country. He was formerly prelate of the Masonic fraternity in this State but was deposed after his arrest.

Railway Accident in Michigan.

One end of a long timber on Conductor Millington's log train broke loose and fell to the ground while the train was running between Roscommon and Cheney, Mich. The immense stick was driven through the way car to the roof, completely wrecking it. William Fowles a brakeman of West Bay City, was struck and instantly killed. The conductor and four others in the car escaped injuries.

In the Death Grip of Machinery.

Mr. James Jameson, who was employed at the Montgomery Mill, at Aurora, Ill., met a most horrible death. END OF THE SESSION.

OMAHA METHODISTS HAVE ADJOURNED.

The Conference Considers the Woman Question—To Be Settled Eight Years Hence—Polygamy Condemned—Attitude of the Church on Temperance.

Have Finished Their Work.

The overshadowing fight of the last day of the Omaha conference was the woman question. Rev. Dr. Buckley's speech was unique. He crowded into five minutes more than another man could into fifteen minutes. When he finished he was roundly applauded by all. John Field, of Philadelphia, made a telling speech. He said that if the women came into the conference and thereby crowded out the men, to them would be due the results. Men did not, as a rule, care to meddle in the church business, and the best thing to force them out was for the women to take hold of the government. This would leave nothing for the men to do, and the women and preachers could run the church to suit themselves.

The other acts of note during the day were as follows: The conference adopted a report condemning polygamy in any nation, and demanding that no one, be he in India, China or Africa, who practices polygamy be allowed to partake of communion.

Endowment to colleges of post-graduate work was asked by the educational committee, and the conference joined in it by adopting the report.

It was decided to appoint a committee to organize an insurance company, somewhat on the plan of the British Wesleyan, and report to the next general conference.

A resolution was heartily adopted congratulating the House of Representatives on its recommendation to aid the World's Fair on condition of excluding intoxicating liquors. At 2:20 in the afternoon the conference adjourned sine die.

Work of the Conference.

The work of the conference has been productive of much good, says an Omaha dispatch. The most important questions considered during this session were, the report of the Constitutional Committee on the revision of the constitution and discipline. After four days this important matter was indefinitely postponed, and as no commission or committee was appointed before adjournment, nothing will be done toward revising the laws of the church before the next general conference in 1896. The next important question, which, by the way was settled, as far as the general conference is concerned, was equal representation of lay and ministerial delegates. It now requires a two-thirds vote of the annual conferences to carry into effect the action of this body. While the final action is far off many warm friends of the laymen predict that two-thirds of the annual conferences will not indorse the plan. It is said that the German and African conferences will be against it, together with the weaker conferences, which, being now equally represented, would not be benefited by it.

Victory for the Women.

The next important step was the woman question, which, after a hard fight, resulted in a slight victory for the ladies. Dr. Hamilton is the Moses who led the women out of the wilderness of obscurity. His resolution requires that in order to constitutionally settle the matter a proposition be referred to the annual conferences whereby the words "who shall be men only" shall follow the words "lay delegates." In order to interpret the words in that manner three-fourths of the annual conferences must so vote, then two-thirds of the next general conference must concur in that interpretation. It will thus be seen that the women, who control a majority of the conferences, will win the day in the next general conference, although they will not be able to be seated until eight years hence.

Another important piece of legislation was the refusal to remove the time limit on the location of preachers. The provisions remain as they were enacted at the last general conference, five years the maximum location. The refusal to increase the number of bishops or to locate a residence in Europe and Japan were other features of importance.

The powers of the bishops were curtailed in two instances. The conference is given the power of rejecting the appointment of a judiciary committee which passes on appeals, and the bishops were denied the right to appear before the book committee to argue in favor or against an appointment to fill a vacancy. The proposed change in the discipline relating to amusements died, failing to be brought before the conference, as also did the resolution of Dr. Hanlon asking the church to put itself on record in reference to its position on the controversy between capital and labor.

Despite the assertion of the bishops that the church has no place in politics the conference adopted the report of the Committee on Intemperance, which pledged support to all organizations banded together to suppress the liquor traffic. Later on a resolution declaring that the conference did not construe its adoption of the report to bind it to any political party passed without dissent. The practice of polygamy was denounced in unmistable language, and the Federal Government asked to increase the duty on opium to such an extent as to prohibit traffic in it.

The church put itself on record as favoring the World's Fair and favoring appropriations only on condition that the gates should be closed on Sunday and that no intoxicating liquors should be sold on the grounds. It further appointed a commission to determine the advisability of participating in a general religious exhibit and to engage in one if found practicable.

Union of Methodists North and South.

A commission to meet the Methodist Episcopal Church South to negotiate an organic union of the two was appointed. The bishops were given authority to appoint ministers to the pulpits of churches, whose doctrines and laws are the same as the Methodist Episcopal Church. Two Secretaries instead of one of the Church Extension Society and Freedmen's Aid and Educational Society were elected. The Epworth League was made a constitutional part of the church, and is now the only recognized society of young people in the church. Its headquarters will be in Chicago, where the official organ, the Epworth Herald, will be published. The Rocky Mountain and Nebraska Advocates were authorized to become official papers of their patronizing conferences. A message was sent to the President demanding that he refuse to sign the Chinese exclusion act. The message was too late, so the conference passed a series of resolutions denouncing the law and calling upon Congress to amend it by striking out the addition to the laws of 1882.

FREE SILVER MEN IN SESSION.

Organization Effected at Washington—Senator Stewart Makes an Address.

In response to a call issued April 23, 1892, by the National Silver Committee for a national convention "of all who earnestly favor the immediate restoration of free bimetallic coinage in the United States," about 200 delegates assembled in Concordia Hall, Washington, D. C., and were called to order by Gen. A. J. Warner, Chairman of the National Committee. M. M. Parker, President of the Washington Board of Trade, delivered an address of welcome.

Judge Isaac B. Morris of Indiana was elected temporary chairman of the convention; Lee Crandall of Washington, Henry Jones of Georgia, and E. P. Stark of Ohio were elected Secretaries. Judge Morris spoke at some length upon the general subject of silver. The only proper question for the United States to agree to consider in an international monetary conference, the speaker thought, was the question of a world's legal ratio.

Addresses were made by ex-Representative Maginnis of Montana, Representatives Bryan of Nebraska and Bartine of Nevada, and Senator Stewart. The latter began by saying that about two hours before the Senate by a majority of eight had agreed to take up and discuss a plain, simple bill, providing for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. He was cheered, and continued:

> And we will press it to a vote. In the fight to-day we lost some of our soldiers, some of them deserted, but we will see who are our friends and who are our enemies, and if we can we will send it to the President, and will compel him to signify to the people of this country whether he is in sympathy with the gold trust or whether he is willing to sign a bill for the emancipation of the whole American people.

The Senator opposed the proposed international monetary conference.

Among those present at the evening session were Senator Colquitt and Representatives Bartine, Pierce, Livingstone, and Simpson. Edward S. Brown of Colorado said that the antagonism of the administration to silver had brought on a crisis in the affairs of Colorado. Senator Colquitt was in hearty accord with every effort for the remonetization of silver. He thought there was a ray of hope in the action of the Senate in taking up the free-coinage bill. Representative Pierce thought the free-coinage bill would pass the Senate. If it came to the House from the Senate, and the former body refused to pass it, there would be administered to the members in November a severe rebuke. Among the members of the Committee on Organization of a Bimetallic League are Senator Sanders, Montana; Representative Sweet, Idaho; Representative Tillman, South Carolina; and F. G. Newlands, Nevada.

BLAINE NOT IN IT.

This Is the Opinion of the Secretary's Nearest Friends.

Washington telegram: There are three views of the attitude taken by Mr. Blaine with regard to the use of his name as a candidate against President Harrison.

One view is that the present agitation is entirely without the approval of the Secretary of Stata, and that he will cause this to be understood in a way which cannot be mistaken before the convention shall assemble.

The second opinion is that Mr. Blaine does not expect to be nominated, and is not willing to accept the nomination, but that he is anxious to prevent the renomination of the President, and for that reason permit his name to be used, in the hope that the result will be the disorganization of the Harrison forces, as a consequence of which it will be easier for the opponents of the President to unite upon a third man.

The third view is that Mr. Blaine is willing to become a candidate, to accept the nomination, and to make the canvass.

Each of these views has its believers. In the absence of some definite statement from Mr. Blaine the public will be compelled to select for itself which one of these views it will accept. There are circumstances which tend to give color to each one of these theories.

The fact that the nearest friends of the Secretary of State insist that he stands by his letter of February is a matter of importance in the opinion of those who insist that Mr. Blaine is not a party to the present agitation and that it does not have his sanction, although he does not consider it necessary now to state that he was telling the truth in his letter of February. It has not been the habit of Mr. Blaine, his friends say, to come to the rescue of his own veracity. The chief friends of the Secretary of State, among whom are Senator Hale and Representative Dingley of his own State, declare that the reports that Mr. Blaine consents to the use of his name are without foundation. Mr. Blaine's associates in the Cabinet declare also that he is not a candidate.

OPPOSE SUNDAY OPENING.

United Presbyterians Want the Fair Closed the First Day of the Week.

The first regular business session of the United Presbyterian General Assembly was called to order in the Second United Presbyterian Church, Allegheny, Pa., by Professor W. White, of Xenia, Ohio, Theological Seminary. Nominations for moderator were called for. The names of Dr. David McDill, of Xenia, Ohio; Dr. J. T. McClure, of Wheeling, W. Va.; and Dr. Robert Stewart, a missionary, were placed in nomination. One hundred and twenty-six ballots were cast. A second vote was necessary for a choice, resulting in the election of Rev. Dr. David McDill. After a brief address the moderator announced that the assembly was ready for business.

> To William A Stone, Washington, D. C.:
>
> The general assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of North America, now in session at Allegheny, have heard with pleasure the noble position taken by many of our representatives in the National Congress in opposition to the opening of the gates of the Columbian Exposition on the Lord's day and also in opposition to the sale of intoxicating liquors on the grounds. We express the hope that no appropriation be made for the Fair except on condition that the gates be kept closed on the Sabbath and the sale of intoxicating liquors be prohibited.

The resolution was adopted, and it was decided to send the resolution by telegraph to Colonel Stone.

The clerk then gave the general statistics of the church as follows: There are 10 synods and 80 presbyteries, a total of 799 ministers, 920 congregations, and 169 mission stations. Twenty churches were erected during the year at a cost of $105,500. In membership there were 10,297 removals (1,618 by death), for various causes. The total membership is 107,018. The contributions for the year for general purposes were $1,286,288, an average of 13.38 per member. Several appeals and memorials were presented, after which the standing committees were announced.

THE opal was once looked upon as a thunder stone, and although many women now appear to have strong superstitious prejudice against wearing one, it was in bygone days held in the highest estimation, for it was supposed to combine the virtues of several other gems.

THE police of Evansville are now at work endeavoring to unravel a case of wholesale murder. Unknown enemies maliciously poisoned the water in a well on James Caraway's farm, eight miles east of that city, and Caraway, together with his wife and three children, drank freely. All became deathly sick, and but for the prompt arrival of a physician, all would have died. As it is some of the family may not recover. For some time past unknown vandals have been committing outrages on Caraway's farm. They dug down and destroyed roots of all the trees in his orchard, causing them to wither and die. Caraway is unable to give any cause for the treatment.

CHAPTER V.
DRIVEN FROM EDEN.

An ex-convict!

As if he had been dealt a sudden and terrible blow, as the vindictive Ralph Prescott spoke those words, Paul Dalton staggered under a fearful shock.

His face became the color of ashes, his eyes expressed the wretchedness and despair of a man lost utterly, and, clutching at a chair for support, he gasped, in a quivering, agonized tone:

"It has come at last. The blow has fallen!"

Farmer John stared at him with wondering, half-believing face. Ruth, with a little cry of terror, more at his bearing than at the accusation, seemed unable to rally from the shock it gave her.

Only the revengeful, excited Prescott was alive to the real issue of the moment.

"Do you see?" he cried in jeering, exultant tones. "He dares not deny it. Let him dare say it ain't true! I'll prove what I say—I'll prove it now and here."

"I neither affirm nor deny it. Let me pass."

The words were a sob. With dazed eyes, his face a void of misery, Paul Dalton groped blindly for the door.

Through it he passed. Upon him it closed. The crafty Prescott himself was amazed. He had counted on triumph, but the victory had come too easy to him. The victim had submitted without a struggle. He had not even afforded him an opportunity to gloat over his downfall.

Farmer John had sunk to a chair, fairly overcome. He had housed not only a thief, a trifler with the affections of his only child, but a man reeking with the prison-rot—branded as a wretch, with his hand against every man, and every man's hand against his own!

Choking down her dread, her uncertainty, her anguish, Ruth managed to totter to her feet.

"Father," she wailed, "I love him."

An awful frown darkened the brow of John Elliott.

"Silence!" he ordered sternly. "Speak that man's name in my presence again and I disown you. Meet him, even address a single word to him, and I curse you. And I trusted him—a thief, a convict."

"It is false. Father! father!" cried Ruth, "can you think it true when you remember his goodness? His face is not the face of a criminal, and his words to me—oh! my heart is breaking, breaking."

"Why, he did not even deny it," muttered Elliott.

"He dared not," burst out Prescott. "Let him try it. I have a man at the village who knows him—was in the same cell with him. He was caged for forgery, and pleaded guilty to get a light sentence. Well rid of him, Mr. Elliott. Lucky to get him away without your throat cut or your house burned over your head."

Ruth was sobbing piteously. A realization that her tears were shed for the man he so hated nettled the spiteful Prescott like an ox-goad.

"And worse than all, he tried to steal her away from me. He——"

"Enough of this, ordered Farmer John, sternly. "It's an experience I shall profit by. I've heard of such villains—robbing their benefactors, deluding silly girls. He's not the man to leave us in peace, even after all the trouble he has made. He'll hang around and try to meet Ruth again, and work on her sympathies, but there shall be no such risk. Ruth, you know my iron will. There will be no further delay. Ralph, your marrying her was settled long ago."

"Father——"

"Silence! My blessing or my curse—a convict or an honest man—take your choice. You marry Ralph Prescott within a week, or you leave my roof forever."

He lifted the crushed girl to her feet, and led her from the room as he spoke.

Her sobs died away in the distance. Grim-faced, the Roman father in mien and heart, he stood looking from the uncurtained window.

The crafty Ralph, gloating with triumph, approached him, but he waved him gloomily aside.

His head was bowed, his face colorless.

Never a word did he speak, never a backward glance did he take, until he had reached the stile.

His face was one great void of despair as he halted, and, turning slowly, looked across the fair field and the bright haven that was home to him no more.

"It has come," he murmured, brokenly. "I might have known it. What right had I to love, what right to drag an innocent life to shame and sorrow? And I dared not deny—I dared not speak my promise, my oath! Well, it is only one more fetter to the heavy chain; but she—it was no crime to love her—but heaven forgive me for the grief I have brought to the woman whose love was the one bright star of a cheerless existence."

He turned to take the highway that bounded the Eden of his dreams, but paused suddenly.

From the hedge a woman's form had fluttered.

"Ruth!"

She swayed where she stood, her eyes burning up into his own.

"One word before you go," she wailed, piteously. "Innocent or guilty—tell me quick, tell me truthfully, or my heart will break!"

CHAPTER VI.
DISOWNED.

"I cannot, I dare not tell you!"

The words seemed to sound doom, disaster to all Ruth Elliott's hopes—the despairing misery in Paul Dalton's eyes crushed her.

She had pleaded for an answer to that wild appeal, to know if he was innocent or guilty, for the sake of the love that was breaking her poor, anxious heart, and he had replied to her thus!

The clinging hands relaxed with a shudder. Terror in her eyes, she surveyed him in dubious dread.

"Oh, my love," she wailed brokenly, "you cannot mean that the cruel words Ralph Prescott spoke are true!" He said you were——"

"An ex-convict!" cried Paul, the jarring dissonance of tortured accents in his tones. "Did he not also say that he could prove it, and I"—he laughed harshly, bitterly—"I am powerless to refute him."

Ruth's eyes distended with shivering anxiety.

"Then it is true?" she gasped.

He grasped her hands suddenly. He looked down into her shrinking eyes with that earnest impressiveness that told that falsehood could never actuate it.

"They said I was a thief," he began.

"Oh, that I know is false!"

"They make another charge, Ruth. What I have feared has come. Better for your sake, better for the sake of those you love, better for myself, that we part here and now. Let the past engulf all this mystery, a mystery I dare not explain. Forget me, forget it all. Good-by."

"You are innocent. Oh! I see it in your face. I read it in your patient, suffering eyes. Leave you—forget you? Do you value a true woman's love so lightly as that? Speak, Paul! I conjure you. Give me the one assurance my torn heart craves. Only say that you are innocent, and though they pile proof mountain-high, I will see your brave face shining, serene, defiant, above it all."

Paul Dalton's pale, undecided features showed that he was suffering intensely.

"Ruth," he said calmly, at last, "suppose this man Prescott, who hates me so, should prove that one Paul Dalton was imprisoned for forgery, filled a hideous convict's cell; suppose the records evidence it, the testimony of others apparently verifies it, and I, unable to disprove it, unwilling to lift the veil of a mystery that would wreck lives I hold precious, should deny it, simply deny it, and say to you, face to face, heart to heart, 'it is a cruel lie,' what would you say?"

"Only say that," she breathed fervently, "only tell me that you are innocent!"

"It is true—but there all explanation must cease. Even to you, the woman I love, I dare not explain a mystery that links my life to gloom and doubt. My lips are sealed!"

"But, surely——"

"The veil will lift?—yes," spoke Paul, bitterly. "When a heart of iron wills it—when he—no, I have said too much. To the censor of my fate, to the keeper of my destiny, I will make a last appeal for justice. If I fail—good-by! In a month I will return, if the galling chains can be unlinked."

"A month!" cried Ruth, shudderingly. "Do you know what that will mean—do you realize that my father, iron-willed, resolute, will by that time make me the the wife of the man whom you and I know to have caused all this trouble?"

"He would not press the sacrifice—oh, surely, never!" panted Dalton, his eyes flashing indignantly. "He would not doom you, his darling child, to a loveless existence. It shall not be—I cannot lose you—I will not see you bound to wretchedness unutterable. Ruth, I will clear up this mystery—I will stand innocent before the world; but if I lose you——"

There was the interruption of passing pedestrians, and they crossed the grove. Toward the distant town their feet strayed, he talking earnestly, she clinging to his words and suggestions, trembling, fearful, as she realized that, once parted, once her father's resolute will was carried out, their future happiness was doomed.

She sped home an hour later, a frightened, anxious look in her young face. She gained the house unobserved.

"For his sake!" she murmured. "He is innocent; he loves me. He has gone to clear his name—to remove the stain of shame and mystery. When they know, I must endure the blow. It was right—it was the only way; and I love him so—I love him so!"

Affairs seemed to come back to their usual routine within the course of the next few days.

There was a settled cloud on Farmer John's brow, but it was one of suspicion and watchfulness alone, and it became less dense as he seemed to be convinced at last that Paul Dalton had left the vicinity for good, and that Ruth was getting over her foolish fancy for him.

There was a new light in the girl's eyes that he did not like—a definite consciousness of security, a mute defiance that made him restless.

He was content to await the developments of the case, and they came quickly.

Farmer John was obdurate, once an idea got into his stubborn head.

He made a long call on Geoffrey Forsythe; he was thoughtful, preoccupied all one day. At eventide, as Ruth Prescott and himself were seated in the cozy dining-room, he said, abruptly:

"Ruth, come here."

She had been watching the first feathery snow flakes of the year, she had been thinking of him! Guiltily, tremblingly, she walked to her father's side.

"You have always been a good girl," said Elliott, with a rude attempt at affection. "I am getting old—circumstances have hurried matters. I want to have things settled. I had a talk with your grandfather to-day. It is his wish, as well as mine, that we see you comfortably settled in life."

Ruth turned white about the lips, but was silent.

"You know how we have planned and talked about it," pursued Elliott gently. "Ralph needs a wife to make him realize the responsibilities of life. We have arranged for a quiet wedding—why, girl, don't stand as if I was pronouncing sentence on you. Speak, can't you!" cried Elliott, angry at the right of the pale face and downcast eyelids.

Ruth rallied with an effort.

"You wish me to speak, father," she said, in a strangely constrained voice, that somehow chilled the eager Prescott.

"I want to see some return of affection and obedience for all my years of care and kindness," replied her father in a nettled tone. "Not many girls can get a husband that pleases all hands around, and jump into a fortune from a fond, indulgent grandfather."

"I have always obeyed you, father," replied Ruth, "but in this—it can never be."

"How's that?"

Farmer John's brow grew heavy and dark.

"It can never be."

"You won't marry Ralph?"

"I cannot."

"Cannot? Will not, you mean. See here, girl! If you have any lurking thought that I will ever consider that hypocrite jail-bird, Paul Dalton——"

"Stop!"

Incisive as a clarion note the word sounded forth.

"Stop!" repeated Ruth, drawing herself erect like some affronted queen, "he is no thief, no convict, and he is—my husband!"

It was out at last! Ralph Prescott sank back crushed. Farmer John stared at the girl as if he adjudged her suddenly bereft of her senses.

"Your husband!" he gasped, incredulously.

"Yes, you drove him away—you and that wretch yonder. He told me it was all false, and I believed him. He has gone to seek the proofs of his innocence. The night he left I met him. We were hurriedly married at the next town. I knew that this would come. Not he, but I, placed this barrier against your cruel will, that would otherwise have made of marriage a mockery, a crime, in linking my life to that of a man I loathe and despise!"

She had never believed herself possessed of the courage to tell it all; but, lo! the truth had been revealed dauntlessly.

Farmer John regarded her in silence for a moment; then, a guttural, choking cry in his throat, he flashed out:

"And this is true?"

"Yes; I am his wife."

The burly form trembled, the great knotted hands went up in the air in furious gesture, the lurid eyes glowed with the pent-up rage of an unmastered spirit.

"Then go!" he almost yelled. "Go!" and he flung open the door with a crash. "You are no child of mine; you have chosen the jail-bird, the scoundrel; go find him. I pray heaven that my eyes shall never again rest on the child who has defied my authority, wrecked my life, and broken my heart. Girl, I curse you, I disown you out of my heart and out of my home. Go! You are no child of mine!"

An Unpopular Trip.

Col. McCrory was once traveling on a railroad train as a plutocratic occupant of a Pullman. In this car were two people with whom he was acquainted. One was Miss Rachel Sherman, daughter of "Tecumseh," and the other Gen. M. C. Butler, now Senator from South Carolina. The Colonel, naturally, with his well-known gallantry, did all in his power to relieve the tedium of the young lady's journey, until certain acute cravings drove him to the smoking-room, where he found his old friend, Senator Butler, too willing to join him with a cigar. During their conversation the Senator asked:

"Colonel, who is that nice-appearing girl with whom you were talking when I first saw you?"

"Why, that young lady," said the Colonel, "is Miss Rachel Sherman."

"Any relation to the Senator?" asked Butler.

"No; daughter of Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman," answered McCrory.

"Well, I'll be dinged," said Butler, who had known of Sherman during the war in a way that was not always agreeable to him, "I'd like to meet her. Will you kindly introduce me?"

"Certainly, with pleasure," answered the Colonel, and he threw away his cigar and took the Senator into the car and introduced him to the young lady. They began to chat on different subjects and were very much interested in each other's observations. Finally Miss Sherman said:

"Senator, I am much interested in the South and want to know more about it than I do. What is the general condition of affairs now and how are things getting along?"

"Well," said the Senator, with a comical side glance at McCrory, "we are doing very well now (with an accent on the 'now'), but some years ago, when your father went through the country, he created a good deal of dissatisfaction."—Minneapolis Journal.

Pathetic Farewell.

Jacques Jasmin, a barber and poet of France, began life in extreme poverty. That the pathetic events of such a childhood must have sunk into his soul may be guessed from one incident which, in after years, he set down in his "Recollections." His grandfather, when too old and infirm to solicit alms, quietly made arrangements to be carried to an almshouse in order that he might no longer burden the family. Jasmin says:

I was then ten years old. I was playing in the square with my companions, girded with a wooden sword, and I was king; but suddenly a dreadful spectacle disturbed my royalty. I saw an old man in an arm-chair borne along by several persons. The bearers approached, and I recognized my own grandfather. In my grief I saw only him.

I ran up to him in tears, threw myself on his neck, and kissed him. He returned my embrace and wept.

"O grandfather," said I, "where are you going? Why are you leaving our home?"

"My child," said he, "I am going to the almshouse, where all the Jasmins die."

He again embraced me, closed his eyes, and was carried away. We followed him for some time under the trees, and then I abandoned my play and returned home, full of sorrow.

In five days the dear old man quietly breathed his last. His wallet was hung up on its usual nail in the home, but it was never used again. One of the bread-winners had departed, and the family was poorer than ever. On that Monday I knew and felt for the first time that we were very poor. Fortune came to me years after, but for some of those I loved she came too late.

Poisoned by Thimbles.

Says a teacher of a sewing school: "Girls who sew for a living often suffer soreness in what is sometimes called the thimble finger, and serious inflammation and swelling is often the result. No sewing girl or woman should let herself be tempted by the low price of thimbles which are composed of lead or something equally injurious. Silver or plated thimbles are very much the best and safest, and when these are too expensive a good substitute can be found in a highly burnished steel thimble. For practical every-day use this latter kind is the most convenient, but pewter or lead should never be used, especially by people whose flesh is slow to heal after a scratch or cut."

Clams with Typhoid Fever.

A New Haven young lady is dying of typhoid fever, which her physician attributes to the eating of raw clams, infected, as he believes, with germs of the malady.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

Boy Drowned.

A sad accident occurred northeast of here Tuesday, p. m., the accidental drowning of Claudius Dilgard, son of Jonas E. Dilgard, who resides half way up the road to Waterloo. Claudius who is about 13 years old, and two younger brothers had gone to the creek near the old Blodgett Mill, beyond J. C. St. Clair's, and had gone into the creek to swim. The stream was high, the banks brim full, and the boy not a good swimmer. The smaller lads, saw Claudius suddenly get beyond his depth, and sink. He rose again, calling to them for help, but they could not reach him, though they tried with rails, etc., to get something to him, that he could grasp. Finally after going under several times, he was seen to rise and float away out of any possible chance for help. The two lads, thoroughly frightened then started on a run for home, about a mile and a xuarter away. They found their father, with his team hitched up, and he took off a harness, mounted the horse and rode east. He met Wesley Fulton coming to Auburn, and he turned and went with him. Help was called and soon 25 men were present, with a boat. On reaching the water, however nothing could be seen, and the eldest of the two lads who had been with him, now came back, and showed where he had gone down at first. Everyone searched eagerly. Some plunged into the stream, waded, swam and dived, but with no success. Mr. Fulton and others were in the boat, when in a short time Charlie Frick, who had a hook, caught hold of the body and he and Mr. Fulton raised it into the boat. Of course by this time life was extinct. The water where he was found was about four feet deep. The body was taken home, and the terrible stroke nearly made the bereaved mother crazy with grief. It was a sad blow for he was a boy of unusual promise. The funeral was yesterday afternoon, the burial being at Waterloo. The above statement if reliable being given by the kindness of Mr. Fulton who was present and knew every detail of the sad occurrence. It was learned after the alarm was out, that Wm. Dunn, Mr. Fulton's stepson, was hunting near by at the time, and saw the boys running home, but thought nothing of it. Had they seen him, to give the alarm, it is barely possible he may have saved the the boy.

Decoration Day.

Monday gave us fine weather till afternoon, when it began to show signs of rain, giving at last hard showers at nightfall. The ceremonies at the Opera House were largely attended, and more than an equal number filled the public square and the street. It was the largest attendance we have had, and the program was fully carried out as given in last week's COURIER. Mr. Hartman's oration was an able one and well received, and Ollie Elson, acquitted herself well. The procession was a large one, and the new rifle company added not a little to its effect. At the cemetery the flags, wreaths and baskets of flowers were placed, and the Rifles fired a salute over the mound to the unknown dead. Then followed the march to the school house, and the presentation of the flags by the W. R. C. Mr. Boland and Mr. Baxter of the Board, were present, as well as Mr. Harrison and Mr. Coe. Mrs. Gordon made the speech, she being president of the W. R. C., in the following well chosen words:

"In behalf of the members of DeLong Women's Relief Corps No. 2 of Auburn, permit me to present for erection upon the public school buildings of our town these beautiful flags, the emblem of our nation, the flag of peace. May these colors wave from the top of every school house in our land, that our children and children's children may thereby be taught lessons of loyalty to the government, excelled by no nation upon the globe. No patriotic American citizen ever tires of beholding the stars and stripes, and no people have more reason to be proud of their banners than ourselves. And when these flags are worn and torn by wind and storm may we be ready and willing to erect others even more beautiful than these."

Mr. Boland on behalf of the board, received the flags and made the following response:

Mrs. Gordon, and ladies of the Relief Corps: I thank you for these beautiful flags, and on behalf of the school board, the teachers and scholars, I most heartily thank you for this most generous gift. We have had erected for their reception a flagstaff on both of our public school buildings, and hereafter you will see floating over our schools the stars and stripes, showing to the stranger that we are a patriotic people, and that our teachers are instilling into the minds of our children that patriotic spirit with which all true American citizens should be imbued. Again I thank you, and would now request that the commander of the grand army post appointing two ex soldiers to hoist the large flag on this building and two to hoist the small flag on the ward school building.

This was done, and when the flag floated out on the breeze the Rifles fired a volley by way of salute, the crowd cheered and this pleasant cermony was over. The flag for the ward school was put up soon after, and when all had returned to the Opera House, the ceremonies were over. It was one of the best we have ever had.

To Improve Cedar Creek.

There is quite an interest now manifested in the proposal to improve Cedar Creek, and in that way put a stop to the destructive floods, that every year or two cause so much trouble and expense. The intention is to make this improvement extend from Cedar Lake across the county to the backwater at Stoner's mill, which would be to the covered bridge west of Harrison Cornell's. By straightening and deepening the channel, a great deal of land would be reclaimed, freshets would be under better control and the county would save large sums annually, by preventing the usual destruction of bridges. We believe the county has paid money enough in twenty years, for washouts of bridges and embankments, and other destruction, to almost pay the entire cost of this improvement. Commissioner Lockwood, and others are taking an interest in this matter, and petitions are being circulated among the people. It should be thoroughly discussed.

THE AUBURN COURIER
OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.
JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.
Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.
THURSDAY............JUNE 2, 1892.

WE publish in full the resolutions adopted by the third party last Thursday. Some of these are good and some are bad. We shall comment on them as we have time and space.

CONGRESS would do well to cut down the appropriations for rivers and harbors, and for the navy, about one half. For public buildings, the amounts expended, are also too high. The people want economy.

REPUBLICANS in congress lately asked that all tariff dues be taken off of articles to be used at lighthouses. Now if the foreigner pays the tariff, will some republican explain why the duty should be taken off of these lighthouse goods?

WHEN the republicans had every branch of the government, two years ago, they asked three Ohio wool growers, Delano, Lawrence and Harpster, what tariff protection they wanted on wool. These then made out a list, and it was adopted, thus giving to three men, the power to tax the whole people. But even the high tax they demanded and got, did not keep up prices, for wool has gone lower ever since.

REPUBLICAN congressional convention at Ft. Wayne last Thursday resulted in a row. Two chairman claimed to be elected and fought and tore around for the place, and a regular quarrel was on. Finally they adjourned to meet at 3 o'clock, when only Allen county appeared, and they then elected R. T. McDonald as delegate to Minneapolis, ignoring Mr. Penfield. The Blaine crowd captured everything or thought they did. Lagrange had no delegate there and DeKalb but two.

WE notice that so far no republican paper has discovered that four of the democratic candidates for state offices were in the army. They are: W. R. Myers, candidate for secretary of state; W. A. Peele, for the bureau of statistics; T. E. Howard, for supreme judge, fifth district; Geo. L. Reinhart, for apellate judge, first district. Besides, Hon. Frank Gavin, our candidate for appellate judge in the second district is a son of Col. James Gavin, who led the old Seventh regiment, the second one raised in the state at the beginning of the rebellion.

AN ARTICLE is going the rounds of the republican papers asserting that the new tax law "does not touch the wealthy man." What nonsense! The poor man was always taxed close up to the value of all he had, while the rich man would be taxed on but a part. The new law makes the rich man pay on all he has, as nearly as does the poor man, and it is right here where the increase of taxes will be found, except in rare cases. Now and then a poor man gets a little more to pay, but not often; and the wealthy ones and the corporations are the ones who get the rise. And they are the ones now fighting the new law. Let these papers show in what way the rich man escapes without being touched. They can't do it.

THE Dispatch calls it "a democratic trick" to reduce county and township levies when commissioners and trustees see the assessment will be higher. In most of the republican counties and townships, this "trick" was not practiced, and people were made to pay double taxes. In DeKalb county, as should have been done in all counties, the commissioners wisely reduced the tax levy, because the total assessment was higher. We don't see any trick about this. Republicans believe in high taxes, state and national, and hence, any attempt to relieve the people of a needless burden, is in their eyes, a "trick." The Dispatch also complains because the commissioners of this county did not make their ta levy high enough.

THE Democratic nominees for county offices will be found in the report of the convention. We have no hesitation in saying they are men who are capable of filling the offices they seek, to the advantage of the people and to their own credit. They should be elected by handsome majorities, and we believe they will be. At an early date we shall speak of them more fully than is possible just now. For the unsuccessful candidates, we can say all were good men, as good as any, and they have the good will of all, for the manly fight they made and the courage with which they took their defeat. To chairman Wagner thanks are due for the able and impartial way he controlled the great meeting. As the COURIER was the first one to favor his selection it feels particularly gratified at his success.

IT is nonsense to talk about "protecting our industries." They don't need it, and never have needed it. If these "protected industries" needed it why did not the unprotected ones need it? We never had any more important industries than farming; but farming has prospered without protection. It can't be protected. But you don't hear farmers whining for "protection or we can't get along." They go to work, take their chances like men, and come out with what they can get. The "protected industries" would make enough without protection, but they have found out they can make double with it and they find plenty of people foolish enough to help them trick the people into giving them this double profit. And whenever the people get tired of it there goes up a wail for fear an infant industry will die.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION

An Enthusiastic Gathering of Representative Men, put a Splendid Ticket in the Field.

The day shone out brightly last Saturday morning as the sturdy democracy of old DeKalb gathered at Butler to nominate a county ticket. The plucky few who constitute the party in Butler had prepared and decorated the hall to the best possible advantage so that when the convention assembled all had plenty of room. The big excursion special from Garrett and Auburn brought in a big crowd, adding to the earlier arrivals on morning trains from Waterloo and Auburn. The two bands, Garrett and Auburn, came with this special and added greatly to the enjoyment of the people, by the excellent music.

At ten o'clock, the doors opened, and, the crowd slowly pushed its way in They were soon called to order by Chairman Beeks Erick, when on motion of L. J. Miller, J. Wm. Wagner was made permanent chairman. He came forward, amid loud cheers, and made a brief but telling speech, the opening words of which were:

"Gentlemen of the convention. We are assembled to begin the preliminary work of a great campaign, and in our work to-day, we should be careful to make no mistakes and to leave no sores, but should organize to win."

He was loudly cheered and after he had concluded, W. B. Brown was made assistant chairman and J. F. Shuman, secretary, on motion of L. J. Gengler, seconded by D. Y. Husselman. Gen. Blair moved to add the democratic editors of the county. The Review and COURIER, took places at the reporters' table and to-day give the full report. Motion by W. H. Leas, that we proceed to name candidates. G. I. Patterson named Marion Franks of Richland for representative, and was followed by Gen. Blair in an earnest speech seconding the nomination. J. W. Boyle, named Hon. W. H. Madden, but A. J. Baxter, withdrew him, as he could not give his time to the canvass. Dr. Nusbaum, also spoke for Franks, and he was then nominated by acclamation. He was called on and made a neat speech, which proved him to be a man of ability, and won the hearts of the vast audience.

D. Y. Husselman named G. C. Ralston for sheriff; Frank Barney named G. W. Bleeks; Obe Leas named Chas. Bundy; a man, whom we could not see, named J. D. Rowley; O. P. Smith named John Koons; J. F. Shuman named Ab. Kelley.

Treasurer Reuben Sawvel was then renominated by acclamation, and made a brief speech.

For surveyor, J. J. Oberlin was named; C. C Shaffer named C. E. VanAuken; J. E. Dermott named Frank Scholes.

For coroner, the present officer was re nominated on motion of Hon. Freeman Kelley.

For assessor, David Maxwell, W. J. Frederick and Sylvester Kutzner were named. But Maxwell and Frederick withdrew, when Kutzner was nominated by acclamation. He is the present efficient assessor, and as good a man as could be had.

For commissioner, north, Fred. Schlosser named John Hoffelder, Hon. Free Kelley seconded this in a speech, in which he spoke of Mr. Hoffelder's sterling qualities, honesty and ability. Dr. Wood named James M. Henderson and Gen. Blair gave a high tribute to Mr. Henderson. So both these faithful servants re-nominated by acclamation. It was a well deserved tribute to honest and faithful public servants.

The chairman announced that Hon. W. F. McNagny, was in town and would address the meeting briefly after the nominations were concluded. On motion the meeting adjourned to meet at one p. m.

AFTERNOON.

On reassembling, Dr. Nusbaum made a motion that the call of townships be made in alphabetical order, and that each township should vote when called, and not be passed. But after some discussion the matter was dropped, and the townships called in alphabetical order, but any township that was not ready could be passed and be called later.

Voting on candidates then began.

Hon. W. F. McNagny was then introduced and made a brief, but brilliant speech, closing with a promise to meet them later, when time was not so pressing. The meeting then closed and the delegates took their several trains home. The meeting was harmonious and all went away, apparently satisfied with the ticket, and determined to see it elected. Our space is so much taken with the two conventions that we shall probably have to defer comments till next week.

Our Gentlemen's Furnishing Dept.

Some men take lots of pride
In being well supplied
With cuffs and collars, purest white,
And shirts with bosoms laundried bright.

They go to the store that pleases them best,
And buy only goods that will stand the test;
And they also look for the largest line,
Where all kinds of furnishings they'll surely find.

Ties, both four-in-hand and Teck;
Styles to suit most any neck.
Hose, in sizes made to fit, and
Colors that will not fade a bit.

Suspenders, of the Harris make,
With wire buckles, that will not break.
Summer underwear, all styles in light weights,
That can be worn in any state.

The LaPorte Herald says that Anthony Defrees, of Goshen, and his brother, published the first newspaper in South Bend. This was before Chicago could boast of a paper. The next meeting is next Sunday at the Lutheran church, at 3 p. m. The other branch is the Young Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The Auburn Iron Works are constantly improving things around the shop. Everything is in apple pie order, and farmers and machine men have learned that it is a good place to have repairing done. Several engines and boilers from the vicinity of Mayseville, are being brought here for repairs. We are glad to know that the honest efforts of a worthy institution are prospering. Long may the noisy hum of its busy wheels resound in sweetest echoes down the great corridors of business enterprise and competition, to awaken from its dormancy a living interest in the enterprise. Let the glaring forge, the ceaseless clang of hammer and anvil, open up the fruitful avenues of commercial thought to a just recognition real worth and energy.

Next Saturday evening June 4, the famous Nusbaum Family, will give one of their unique vocal concerts at the Opera House under the auspices of the Auburn Cornet Band. We clip the following from the press: The Valpariso Daily Sun of the 5th, in speaking of the concert by the Nusbaum children, aged from six to fifteen, who gave a performance there the evening before, says: To say that the children are wonderful musicians hardly express the feelings of one when he hears the famous "Roll on Deep Ocean" a bass solo of considerable compass, rendered pleasingly by an artist of six years. Of course a great share of the interest is centered in this prodigdy of the musical world still each member of the troup was excellent. Miss Dora as contralto and Master Winfield the eleven year old tenor displayed rare talent and a seemingly inexhaustible fund of musical knowledge. Miss Rosa the soprano was a revelation. She posesses a voice of rare sweetness, clear even tone and much volume. The exquisite pathos with which she rendered Graham's superb "If the waters could only speak as they flow" well merited the applause which came as a storm.

The Kiblinger factory began this week with a diminished force of hands, as the hard times, caused by the bad weather, had made itself felt even this early. His buggies are sold over a great extent of territory, and as the gloomy prospects made sales slow, and slower, and with a big force at work, the buggies began to accumulate. Last week Mr. Kiblinger informed us he had 800 finished jobs lying in the factory and representing about $40,000 in value. This was, of course too much of a load to carry long, and on Saturday, he had to cut down a part of his force, laying off about thirty hands. Of course, we suppose, if prospects get better, and the vast amount of finished work gets lower, the full force will go on again. At the Eckhart factory the full force is still at work, except four or five in the paint shop, as they have still more orders to work on, but don't know how long it may last. The great foundry establishment also feels the hard times, but all are at work so far. It is strange that the first bad effects of a poor crop prospect should hit the town before it does the country, but so it is.

A. S. Cramer, of Garrett, has fallen into the line of march with the great army of intelligent newspaper readers, and will welcome the COURIER to his home for the next twelve months. He recently bought property in Altona, and is prospering very nicely as a citizen of DeKalb county.

L. J. Miller's little Shetland pony, "Dude", died Sunday morning. She was one of his team, and a great pet in the family. The veterinary surgeons claimed the bones of the little horse, for a skeleton. It had been sold for $175 and the purchaser was expected to come any day.

J. J. VanAuken denies most emphatically that he is a third party man, and says that neither Mr. Lockwood nor anyone else had a right to announce his name in the convention Thursday. He is a democrat, and for Cleveland, reform in all things, and pure government. That's his ticket.

The young people of the Presbyterian church, after a trial or two, against the bad weather, held their musicale Saturday evening. Again it rained, and very hard too, a part of the time. But the few who came were well paid, for it proved one of the brightest and best of the church entertainments we have been having. It was all new, and well executed. Several things were unusually cute and laughable, among them being the "Steal away gently," and Oscar Hoffman's piano accompaniment. All did themselves great credit. The receipts were about $8.00.

Simp. Johnston, our genial, wide-awake and always-ready-for-a-job barber, located on north Main street, spent a few days 'mid the surging throngs, tumultuous whirl and clanging business activity of the Garden City of the West—the great metropolis, Chicago, last week. He reports himself as being greatly pleased with the appearance of the vast Columbian Exposition buildings to be seen there in all their magnitude. As to the brilliant electric light, which so many people thought was attached to a balloon high in the air, he says that glittering gem seems to be as far from Chicago as it is from Auburn.

The Warsaw Times says: An effort will be made to have the next legislature change the election law so far as it relates to the election of road supervisors. The statute now provides that the names of candidates for supervisors of road districts may be written upon township tickets, and as there is inextricable confusion resulting from this, ballots being cast for the wrong candidates, it is proposed to alter the statute so that each road district shall nominate its candidates for supervisor and certify the same to the county clerk. The names will then be placed on the tickets and voted for as the other candidates.

The next convention of the republican party will be held at Minneapolis, Minn., commencing June 7th, and the following information in regard to rates and arrangements for the transformation of delegates and visitors.

The North-Western Line will sell excursion tickets to Minneapolis and return at the very low rate of one fare for the round trip, and will provide the best of facilities for the transportation of delegates and visitors.

Three superbly appointed trains are run over this line between Chicago and Minneapolis.

The "Day Express," with luxurious parlor cars, leaves Chicago at 8:15 a. m., and arrives at Minneapolis in the evening, affording a delightful daylight ride through some of the most picturesque scenery of the northwest.

The "North-Western Limited," solid vestibuled train, lighted throughout by gas, and equipped with palace sleeping cars and dining cars, leaves Chicago daily at 6:00 p. m., and arrives at Minneapolis early the following morning.

The "Night Express" leaves Chicago daily at 11:15 p. m., after arrival of all trains of connecting lines from the east and south, and is equipped with palace sleeping cars, standard day coaches and north-western dining cars.

Tickets via North Western Line from Chicago to Minneapolis will be good via the direct line, through Janesville, Madison and Devil's Lake, or via the Lake Shore Route, which closely follows the shore of Lake Michigan and passes through Milwaukee, Waukesha and Madison, or will be good going one route and returning the other.

Circulars giving detailed information in regard to rates, arrangements, etc., and also containing map of the city of Minneapolis, will be furnished on application to W. A. Thrall, P. P. & T. A., Chicago & North Western Ry., Chicago, Ill.

THE wall-paper trust is bound to go to the wall.

BUDDY KIPLING says that New York is a long, narrow pig trough. Yet the food he ate there is about the only thing he praises.

STORMS, floods, and backward weather are unpleasant reminders that the great crops of last year may not be repeated when the harvests of this season are garnered.

TWO ROMANTIC young persons accompanied by a minister climbed up into the head of the Liberty Statue on Bedloe's Island, New York Harbor, and were married. The giddy couple!

INTEGRITY is the first moral virtue, benevolence the second, and prudence is the third. Without the first the two latter cannot exist, and without the third the two former would be often rendered useless.

POVERTY is, except where there is an actual want of food and raiment, a thing much more imaginary than real. The shame of poverty—the shame of being thought poor—is a great and fatal weakness.

SOME of the older cities of the East are trying to correct early blunders by arranging for parks. The city of Cambridge asks authority of the Legislature to expend $200,000 outside of the debt limit for such purposes. Parks are a necessity in every well ordered city.

WILLIAM WALDORF ASTOR is building a theater in New York. The Astor family is in some danger of being better known for its enterprises in the hotel and theater lines than for its aristocratic pretensions, but if William Waldorf will not stage any dramatized forms of his novels the public will not complain.

WARD MCALLISTER has visited a terrible punishment upon his son for marrying without the parental sanction and blessing. The erring boy can no longer live at home. He may grace the domestic hearthstone on an occasional visit, but he must reside at the club. Stern and cruel is Father McAllister.

CONGRESS is adding to the area of the Yellowstone Park. With its new boundaries it will be larger than Connecticut. When the people at large do more long distance traveling the value of these incomparable public preserves will become more generally appreciated. It is a credit to us all that Congress continues true to its trust, and is making this wonderland more attractive rather than narrowing its confines.

MRS. FRANK LESLIE doesn't believe in running wild, but she believes in running Wilde—at least to the extent of making him behave himself and earn his own living. Before she married him he earned an income of $5,000 per year by writing. Since then she has allowed him $25 a week, and he has exerted himself very little to add to that amount, though he has been sedulously devoted to gadding about, and has shown an indisposition to go to bed at seemly hours. Mrs. Leslie is reported to have given him to understand that he must work and earn money or she will have nothing more to do with him.

A DR. PARKHURST club is to be started in Chicago. Dr. Parkhurst is the sensational New York divine who played leap-frog and drank beer in Hattie Adams' establishment, and thereby secured the conviction of the woman and escaped punishment himself. The idea of the society must be for men to attend places of ill-repute and to secure indisputable evidence of their character by joining in the orgies. Armed with this testimony, they will institute prosecutions. The name of the society has not been definitely fixed upon. It will not probably be known as the stool-pigeon club. Young men found in houses of ill-repute in Chicago hereafter will have a good excuse ready. They will all be members of the Dr. Parkhurst Club.

REV. J. D. FULTON, more distinguished for bigotry than learning, has attacked Mrs. Palmer, president of the woman's board, for asking the Pope to facilitate the loan of "relics" to the World's Fair from conventual institutes in Italy. Rev. Mr. Fulton assumes that "relics" in this case means portions of the bodies of saints supposed to possess miraculous powers. Did Mr. Fulton never hear of "relics" of George Washington or of Thomas Jefferson or of Christopher Columbus? The relics to which Mrs. Palmer refers are illuminated books, embossed manuscripts, rare carvings in wood and ivory, gems of various kinds, missals, early transcriptions of profane classics and other vestiges of culture and science which were preserved in educational institutions in Europe during the middle ages, the libraries of many of these houses being among the finest in the world.

It is a curious and not especially pleasing comment upon the journalism of the present day that, as nearly as can be estimated, the London papers should have expended about $200,000 in getting cable reports of the details of the crimes, the arrest and the trial of Deeming, the rascal who has recently been condemned to death at Melbourne. The sum is said to be larger than was paid by the entire London press for telegraphic reports of the Franco-Prussian war, a fact which is of course to be accounted for to some extent by the fact that the amounts spent in getting telegraphic reports increases from year to year, but which is on the whole not an unfair indication of the comparative esteem in which sensational gossip, especially of a criminal nature, is held by the public to which the less wholesome of the daily papers cater. As a matter of fact the reading public would have been on the whole rather better off if it had known none of the disgusting details of the career of Deeming, a vulgar and blood-thirsty miscreant whose career has nothing even of daring to redeem it; who dealt in cunning instead of bravery, who was a disgusting combination of lust, avarice, and cruelty, such that the judge who sentenced the criminal pronounced him the most degraded he had ever had before him. To spread all the evidence out day after day in all its hideous particulars is simply to assist in the debauching of public taste—and there are sufficient reasons to feel that the debauching process has gone so far already in England that there is no need to expend $200,000 in incouraging it!

THE Board of Appeals of the National Troting Association, while assembled in Chicago last week, rendered a decision that would have been much more valuable had it come months ago, but which even at this time is of almost incalculable importance to the trotting turf. It was the decision by which the board refused to reinstate Nelson, the famous trotting stallion, and C. H. Nelson, the owner of the animal. Both were expelled two years ago because of a deal at Beacon Park, Boston, in which Frank A. Noble and C. H. Nelson agreed that Nelson, the horse, should beat Alcryon in a $10,000 stake race. Nelson admitted that he had made the agreement, giving Noble first money on condition that Alcryon should not be driven to win. His reason for so doing was that he cared more for the reputation than he did for the money. The expulsion created great interest and excitement in horse circles, as Nelson, the owner, is a wealthy man and Nelson, the horse, is one of the most noted performers in the world. Had it been otherwise there would have been no interest in the case, the expulsion would have been accepted as final and nothing more would have been heard of it; but the matter has been hanging fire before the board ever since, until some suspicions have been aroused that the board was hunting for a way to restore the standing of both. The application for reinstatement was based on the argument that at the time the race was trotted the track over which it was trotted was not a member of any trotting association, and that therefore the National or the American had no jurisdiction. The track subsequently became a member, and it is claimed that at the time of the race the application for membership had been filed. These, however, are mere technicalities and so far as form goes the turf laws offer very little safety to any one. It is the enforcement of the spirit of the rules which must be looked to for protection from "ringing," trades and other frauds on the track, and the board is to be congratulated on enforcing the spirit of the law in this case. Nelson will be a loss to the turf, but not so great a loss as would have resulted from his reinstatement. That would have been a practical admission that a man of wealth and influence owning a really fast horse could tool through the rules at will. It would have destroyed whatever faith people have in the honesty of the turf, and would have established a most dangerous precedent. The refusal to reinstate, on the other hand, gains additional weight from the prominence of both, the horse and the man.

God's Rose.

A lady who was going into a picture gallery on the avenue, dropped a single red rose she held in her hand and it lay on the threshold when a thin-faced ragged child stopped to look at it.

"You can have it," said the lady who was returning to her carriage.

But the child did not seem to connect the richly-dressed lady with the beautiful flower. She looked from it to the blue sky long and earnestly.

"Well," said the lady, amused at the scene, "why don't you pick up the rose?"

"I dassn't," answered the child humbly, not offering to touch it.

"But I told you to take it, child. It is mine," said the lady.

"Oh," responded the child, drawing a long breath. "I thought it was God's rose, and that mebby He dropped it there."

"You poor child," said the lady, kindly, "it is God's rose, and yours and mine, too," and she picked it up and handed it to the little girl.

But the child put her hand behind her and run off without touching the red rose. She could not comprehend how a rose could drop from Heaven like a star to lie at her feet, and she was afraid of a bounty that was of so unusual a nature.

A Puzzling Question.

"Mother, don't angels wear any clothes?" asked a little Texas girl of her mother."

"No, my daughter."

There was a pause and the little girl asked:

"Where do the angels put their pocket-handkerchiefs?"—Texas Siftings.

M'KINLEY'S ACCOUNT.

IT CONTINUES TO SHOW UP IN THE DEBIT COLUMN.

Wage Reductions, Strikes, Closed Mills, and Vanishing Industries Are the Principal Items—We Make Tin Plate, but It Is Used Principally for Campaign Thunder.

A Very Bad Record.

Verily, this "brave measnre," this "trust-killing tariff," as the New York Tribune calls it, is making a record for Bill McKinley. But what a record? As every one knows, this act was to "boom" American industries, raise wages, and make everybody prosperous. Ever since its passage we have been hearing of wage reductions, trusts, closed mills, etc. As no important wage advances were heard of, we began, a few weeks ago, to keep a record of the effects upon labor of this bill. So far we have found nothing worth reporting to the credit side, but more than we could find space for on the debit side. The situation is still unchanged. In a few of the sixty-two May Day strikes reported, the strikers have been promised slight reductions in hours, or slight advances in wages, but none of these appear to be in protected industries. Most of these strikes are still on, and are causing numerous sympathetic strikes. Thousands of stone cutters and pavers in New England are out because owners of quarries will not sign the customary agreement for the scale of wages for the next year. The owners wish to postpone the date of this agreement until next January, when work will be slack, and it will be easy to take advantage of the situation and reduce wages. It is now expected that nearly 100,000 pavers in Eastern cities will soon be on strike. The following are a few of the items charged to McKinley:

May 9. To the report that the miners of the Wyoming Valley, Pa., are preparing to make an organized effort to prevent reductions caused by the Reading coal deal.

May 9. To the report that the new wall paper trust will have $20,000,000 capital, and that it will save $500,000 a year by throwing out of employment 300 drummers. The old pool which went to pieces in 1887 made profits of 200 per cent. by selling at 40 cents per roll wall paper now sold for seven cents. Wall paper manufacturers have not forgotten those golden days, and will make an effort to get back to them by advancing prices, reducing expenses, etc.

May 10. To the report that seven packing companies have combined into the International Packing and Provision Company with a capital of $6,500,000. Offices will be in Chicago and London.

May 10. To the report that the safe trust, as completed, contains five big firms, and has a capital of $3,300,000.

May 11. To the report that the naval stores operators of Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, and Alabama have formed the Turpentine Operators' General Association. The objects of this trust are to reduce the price of labor and to regulate the supply and prices of their wares. It controls more than 70 per cent. of the world's supplies of naval stores.

May 12. To the report from Norristown, Pa., that the puddlers in Hoovens' rolling mill have accepted a reduction from $4 to $3.50 per ton, after a strike of several months, during which time the mill has stood idle.

May 12. To the report from Fall River that the Narragansett mule spinners are on strike because of a scarcity of backboys and doffers, resulting in a reduction of wages.

May 12. To the report that the Union silk mill at Catasauqua, Pa., has closed because fifty weavers are on strike; 170 employes are affected.

May 12. To the report that Maine has lost her smelting industry. The Katahdin iron works, which suspended in 1890, has now removed to Pictou, Nova Scotia.

May 12. To the report in the Iron Age that the manufacturers of the Mahoning and Shenango Valleys have agreed upon a scale of wages which they will present to the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers in June, and that "it is understood that a thorough rearrangement of prices has been made, and that quite a material reduction in the price of puddling has been demanded."

May 12. To the report of the Iron Age that the weekly capacity of blast furnaces has been reduced 7,576 tons since April 1.

May 12. To the report that the first move of the perfected sugar trust (after getting control of Spreckles' Philadelphia refinery) was to offer the sugar planters in Cuba, Porto Rico, and other West India islands a rate for raw sugar that will hardly pay expenses of production. The poor planters, now having only one market and one set of buyers, must accept. The consolidation has also had freights cut from 14 to 9 cents per hundred pounds from Cuba to Philadelphia. The trust is not asking for the removal of the ½-cent duty on refined sugar so that it can reduce the price to the consumer. It prefers 30 per cent. profits for itself to cheap refined sugar for the people.

May 12. To an advance of 5 cents per 25 pounds in the price of shot. A previous advance was made July 4, 1891. The shot trust was formed in 1890, and contains ten of our leading shot manufactories.

May 12. To the report in the Iron Age that the price of binder twine, which recently was 7½ cents, has been advanced to 12 cents per pound. The American Cordage Company has not lost its grip on the market, and does not fear that its friends in the Senate will desert it and pass the free binder twine bill.

May 12. To the report in the Iron Age that New York and Boston importers of French glass have advanced prices, and that "better" prices for American glass are likely to rule. This is what the window glass trust has been aiming at by closing furnaces to decrease production.

Degradation of Republican Politics.

The hope of the anti-Harrison Republicans that they will be able to defeat the President's renomination is grounded upon their belief that James G. Blaine is ready and willing to betray his official chief. The President's enemies are not, of course, honest enough to state the situation in these exact words, but, no mater how they put it, their case resolves itself into one where success is only to be accomplished through the blackest and most shameless treachery.

It is remarkable, but it is true, that not one of the Republican leaders who are plotting against Harrison expresses any doubt of Blaine's entire willingness to play the treacherous part which the operation of their scheme makes it necessary to assign to him. The idea of the "plumed knight's" loyalty to the President is not considered, because it is not supposed to exist. Nothing more forcibly illustrates the degradation of Republican politics than the widespread belief which obtains that the Secretary of State is prepared to show himself as a traitor to the President who made him what he is officially.

When Blaine published his letter of declination last winter the Herald predicted that the first persons who would cast doubts upon his and its sincerity would be among his most devoted and enthusiastic admirers. Behold them now, a long line of them, from the babbling Boutelle to the theorizing Thurston, all declaring that Blaine will certainly accept the nomination if it is tendered to him.

Their only fear is that an unexpected attack of illness, Mr. Blaine being peculiarly subject to sudden "spells" of sickness, may upset all their plans. They believe that if he keeps his health he will not undertake to interfere with their programme. Hence they pray without ceasing that his digestion may be and remain unimpaired until after the Minneapolis convention. On the score of treachery they have no forebodings. —Chicago Herald.

Raum's Record.

It is plain to every one that Commissioner Raum should have long since been summarily removed from the head of the Pension Department, says the Detroit Free Press. He has made a record far worse than that which led to the retirement of Tanner, whose chief offense was too great a liberality toward his old companions in arms. Raum has been selfishly crooked, violating his official trust for the benefit of himself and his personal friends. There has been manifest a widespread and natural desire to know through what influence this offender is retained in charge of the Pension Bureau. Only narrow and unscrupulous partisanship can claim that he has not forfeited all rights to the place. The evidence forcing this conclusion has been known to the President for months, yet Raum is retained. An exposure has been made that would cause decent men to seek obscurity, yet he boldly and confidently holds on to his remunerative job. What is his "pull?"

There are certain well-known facts that may afford at least a partial answer to this conundrum. For many years Raum has been a practical politician of the machine stamp. While he was Commissioner of Internal Revenue he mastered all the projects and political jobs for the furtherance of which revenue collectors and their army of assistants were made useful. When irresistible circumstances forced him from that office he was given employment by the party leaders to collect the assessments forced from government employes. At this despicable work he was a howling success and met with the highest approval from the Republican leaders. As Commissioner and Collector he not only schooled himself in methods but learned agreat many valuable secrets.

It is apparent that Mr. Raum can make himself a very valuable ally of President Harrison, and your Uncle Benjamin is not the man to overlook the fact. It is desirable to retain the services of the pension attorneys and claim agents of whom Raum has made friends. With the associations he has formed and the obligations he has placed through a long and favorable line of opportunities Raum is an invaluable man Friday. He disburses one hundred and twenty-five million dollars per year, and knows how to use that munificent amount as bait for votes. Harrison has a sure eye for all details, and has made plans from the execution of which Raum cannot be spared.

Yes, We Make Tin Plate.

According to the report of Col. Ira Ayers, Special Agent of the Treasury Department, our total output of tin and terne plates is as follows:

	Pounds.
July 1, 1891, to Sept. 30, 1891	826,922
Oct. 1, 1891, to Dec. 31, 1891	1,409,821
Jan. 1, 1892, to March 31, 1892	3,004,087
Total for the nine months ending March 31, 1892	5,240,830

The same report states our average yearly imports of tin and terne plates as 678,000,000 pounds. We can at this rate produce enough of these plates to run us nearly one day—about 1-12 of 1 per cent. of our consumption.

Considering the fact that we have, during the last thirty years, taxed ourselves at least $100,000,000 to start this industry, the result does not appear to be very great. It is, however, highly satisfactory to the New York Tribune and other high tariff papers which are now daily giving these figures to the American people.

C. S. Trench & Co., of 54 Cliff street, New York City, in their tin plate circular for May, give the result of an investigation made by their firm. It appears that twelve of the nineteen firms reported by the Treasury Department as making tin plates, buy their plates and simply do the dipping, only four firms make their own plates, and that only four make any bright plates suitable for the canning industry—all the others making only roofing plates. Whether there has been any bright tin plate made here—that is, made from beginning to end—is doubtful. The price at which the product is offered is for IC 14x20, 6¼ cents for brights, and $6 per box for roofing. These prices being above the present cost of imported plates, the reason is clear why "American" tin plate does not yet sell in commercial quantities or play any part in the market.

The real question is whether we are not paying too much for our tin plate, and whether the actual damage done to other and more important industries has not already exceeded all the chimerical gains for the next twenty-five years that the most ardent McKinleyite can conceive of. The canning industry is fifty times as large as our tin plate industry, and one hundred times more important to the farmer and laboring man. It consumes the farmers' surplus product and gives cheap food to the laborer. The greater cost of tin plate, glass, and sugar in the United States during the last twenty-five years has not only prevented us from exporting canned goods to all parts of the world, as we would have done under favorable conditions, but has so burdened this industry and increased the cost of canning goods here that England, less favored by nature, has not only been supplying the markets of the world but has been competing with us in our own markets with many kinds of canned goods. Thus, because of the lack of canning factories all over our land, large quantities of small fruits, vegetables, etc., are left to rot, and millions of hungry laborers are deprived of cheap food. The higher duty on tin plates under the act of 1890 is still further depressing this and many other important industries. The Tin Plate Consumers' Association has been investigating these evils. It has received replies from forty-one firms. These tell of increased cost of raw material, lessened sales, fewer hands employed, a decided check in business, and the substitution of other and inferior material for tin plate. These are only a few of the evils that should be put on one side of the scales when weighing the good that protectionists say will be done by the higher duty on tin plates.

Wages and Cost of Living.

We publish in another column a most interesting report from Carroll D. Wright, the Commissioner of Labor, on wages and the cost of living in certain industries of the United States, Great Britain and several other countries. The following table shows the average wages and cost of living per family in the cotton and woolen industries according to his statements:

	Cottons.	Woolens.
United States—
Income	$653	$663
Expenditures	611	394
Net income	$47	$269
Great Britain—
Income	$556	$516
Expenditures	502	482
Net income	$54	$34
Germany—
Income	$302	$275
Expenditures	283	283
Net income	$19	*$7
France—
Income	$366	$424
Expenditures	334	384
Net income	$32	$40
Switzerland—
Income	$358	....
Expenditures	347	....
Net income	$11	....

*Deficiency.

There is apparently an error in the cost of living for families engaged in the American woolen industry, as their expenses are doubtless about as great as for those engaged in cotton manufacturing. The net results of the cotton trade are, however, interesting. The surplus earnings in the United States are $47 per year; in Great Britain, $54; in Germany, $19; in France, $32; and in Switzerland, $11. It is also worthy of note that in this industry the annual amount spent per family for amusements is $9.36 in the United States; $16.02 in France; $19.33 in Germany; and $36.02 in Great Britain; and that the British cotton operative spends more for intoxicating liquors than any other. So far as the cotton trade is concerned, the net results are more favorable to operatives in Great Britain than to those of any other country, a fact supported by the light immigration of that class to this country.—N. Y. Daily Commercial Bulletine, May 12, 1892.

When we consider that money will go much farther in Europe than in America; that, according to Secretary Wm. M. Evarts, "one workman in the United States does as much work as two workmen in most of the countries of Europe;" and that, according to Secretary Blaine, "the inequalities in the wages of English and American operatives (in the cotton industry) are more than equalized by the greater efficiency of the latter, and their longer hours of labor," we are not surprised that English operatives do not emigrate, and that the emigration from Europe to the United is from protected countries, where tariffs depress industry and enhance the cost of living. To be sure, we have the meanest tariff system on the face of the earth, but then, too, we also have more free trade than any other country, except, perhaps, Great Britain. Put a McKinley tariff wall around each of our States (as is done in Europe), and there will be no need of immigration laws to exclude Europeans or anybody else. For, when, with our boundless and fertile prairies and our sparse population, we could not make as comfortable a living here as Europeans would make at home, and, with unrivalled opportunities, we would be the most cursed nation of the earth.

What Makes Millionaires?

The New York Tribune is publishing a list of the millionaires in the United States to show that "protective tariff is merely one of the causes in operation to prodcue millionaires." The list is completed for all States from Alabama to and including Ohio, except for New York City. Out of a total of 2,233 millionaires the Tribune admits that 667 have made their fortunes in protected industries. No man can earn a million dollars in a life time, except by speculative investments in a monopoly or corner of some kind. Of course there are other monopolies than those growing out of protection, but it will not be easy to find another that has produced 30 per cent. of our millionaires, though speculation in land would be a close second. The mortgaged farmer and the million of laborers out of employment will watch with interest the completion of this list. Some of them may feel proud to live in a country with 4,000 or 5,000 millionaires; but others, and their number is increasing, will contrast their poverty with all of this wealth, and wonder by what alchemy these 4,000 or 5,000 men were enabled to filch their millions out of the pockets—yes, and mouths—of the wealth producers, and what the final result will be on our democratic institutions and government. Senator Ingalls had a few words to say on this subject before he got "out of a job."

"We cannot," said he, "disguise the truth that we are on the verge of an impending revolution; the old issues are dead. The people are arraying themselves upon one side or the other of a portentous contest. On one side is capital, formidably intrenched in privilege, arrogant for continual triumph, conservative, tenacious to old theories, demanding new concessions, enriched by domestic levy and foreign commerce, and struggling to adjust all values to its own standard. On the other is labor, asking for employment, striving to develop domestic industries, battling with the forces of nature and subduing the wilderness; labor, starving and sullen in cities, resolutely determined to overthrow a system under which the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer—a system which gives to a Vanderbilt the possession of wealth beyond the dreams of avarice, and condemns the poor to a poverty which has no refuge from starvation except the prison or the grave."

GOOD COUNTRY ROADS.

A GREAT ADVANTAGE TO ALL COMMUNITIES.

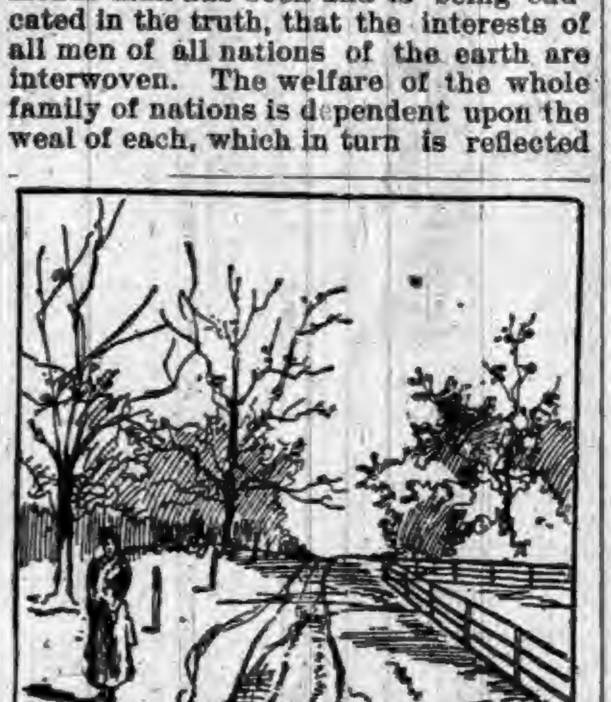
Saving the Labor of Draught Animals. They Would Expedite the Marketing of All Commodities—How They Should Be Constructed and Maintained.

An Important Subject.

Quite a good deal of space has already been given to the subject of good country roads, but, as there is nothing more deserving of attention than the condition of the public roads of our country, further discussion of a matter so important is surely not out of place.

Good roads are a potent factor in the material, intellectual, moral, and social well-being of a people, and any plan for their systematic improvement should meet with the hearty co-operation of all, without regard to class or occupation.

Perhaps nothing has contributed so much toward the civilization of the people of the earth as commerce has. The barriers of old ocean have long since disappeared. The east, west, north and south of a continent are no longer known, except in the happy interchange of the products of each. The perseverance and skill of man have practically removed the barriers that old ocean interposed. The same forces that have brought nearer to each other the people of any one of the vast continents of earth have checkered its broad expanse with the arteries of trade. By this means man has been and is being educated in the truth, that the interests of all men of all nations of the earth are interwoven. The welfare of the whole family of nations is dependent upon the weal of each, which in turn is reflected from the condition of its individual members.



AS IT GENERALLY IS.

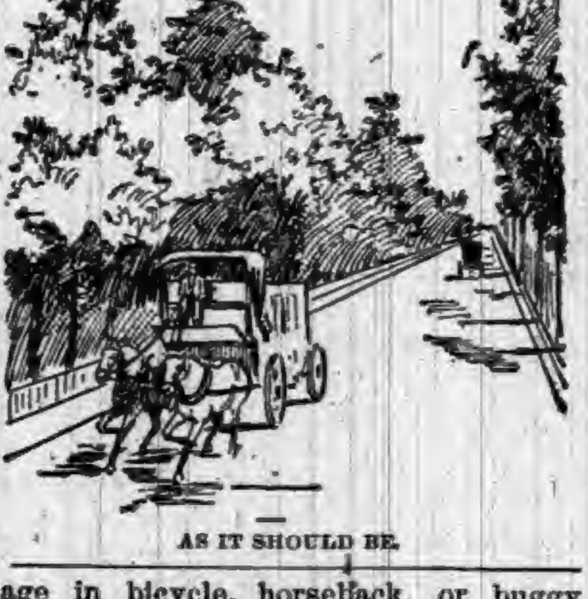
Advantages of Good Roads.

Through this influence of trade the nations arrive at a better understanding one with another. We think we are justified in believing that the dawn is fast approaching when nations will make war no more, but "Peace on earth, good-will toward men," will rule instead. What these great improvements that make commerce possible between nations are doing, good roads would facilitate between the people of any country or community. They are not only an evidence of civilization but a means to that end.

Attendance at church would be more regular, and whatever tends to promote the assembling of friends and neighbors in pleasant intercourse is a factor for good. The ride to church, to a neighbor's, or to a social gathering, either on a bicycle or other vehicle over good roads, would become a pleasure easily acquired and highly prized.

If, instead of being subjected to the almost superhuman task of walking through muddy roads, or of jolting over them when made exceedingly rough by freezing, we had smooth, hard roads to drive over, churches, schools, literary societies, lyceums, and all the kindred institutions intended to christianize and better the condition of man would be more numerous. Society would then be benefited by the advanced measures adopted for improvement of the mind, the expansion of the intellect, and the promotion of happiness. Good roads would, among farmers especially, promote sociability and create a desire for self-improvement, both moral and intellectual.

The thousands of persons confined to indoor work in factories, offices, stores, etc., need recreation and exercise. In this they have comparatively little time to indulge; but with good roads this time could be used to the best advantage in bicycle, horseback, or buggy riding.



AS IT SHOULD BE.

Commercial Benefits.

Among the commercial advantages afforded by good roads we note:

The rapidity, ease and convenience of transportation at small expense.

The opportunity afforded those remote from commercial points to take advantage of the market without great loss of time.

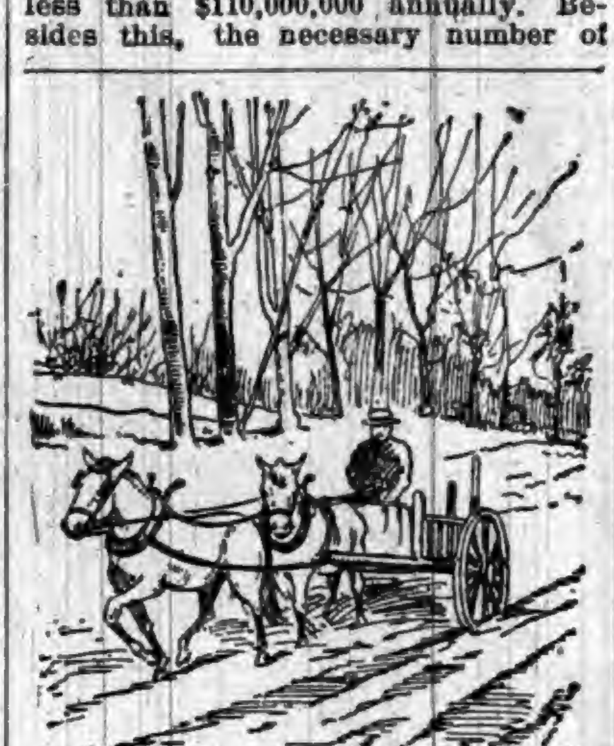
Obviating the fluctuations of prices on account of a rush of products to market when the roads are good, to be followed by a scarcity when the roads are bad, as traffic is often delayed for weeks at a time.

Good roads rank as one of the foremost causes of increasing the value of property. The uninterrupted means of traffic is alone sufficient to cause an increase of 50 per cent.; incidentally building good roads increases facilities for drainage, which progressive farmers will admit is of itself of almost incalculable benefit. Good roads would encourage and increase some of our most important and extensive industries.

The manufacturing of bicycles would be increased by them until it would rank as one of our foremost industries, both in extent and value.

Another important industry would be developed to an extent and value of which few have any conception—i. e., the manufacturing of carriages and other light vehicles, which are practically of little value except on good roads. Even now it forms one of the great industries of our country, the further development of which materially depends on the improvement of our country roads.

The material benefit derived from good roads can scarcely be estimated. The farmers undoubtedly would be the most benefited. Making a fair estimate of the number of horses necessary to furnish power to carry on agriculture, and all other work connected with it, we find that the farmers of the United States are keeping at least 2,000,000 more horses than would be necessary to perform the same work if we had good roads. These horses have a value of about $150,000,000, and are sustained at an expense of not less than $110,000,000 annually. Besides this, the necessary number of horses are idle a month or more in a year, waiting for the roads to become dry. This costs, at the least calculation, $140,000,000. To this we may add $100,000,000 for increased wear and tear on harness, wagons and other vehicles. This makes the sum of $500,000,000 loss to the farmers annually under the present condition of roads. Good roads will save this $500,000,000, and would increase the value of the farmers' land at least $1,500,000,000, which makes an increase of $2,000,000,000 in the financial condition of the farmers alone. To this we may add as much more as the increased financial condition of those engaged in other industries. This makes the immense sum of $4,000,000,000, which is sufficient to construct 500,000 miles of smooth, hard and durable road.



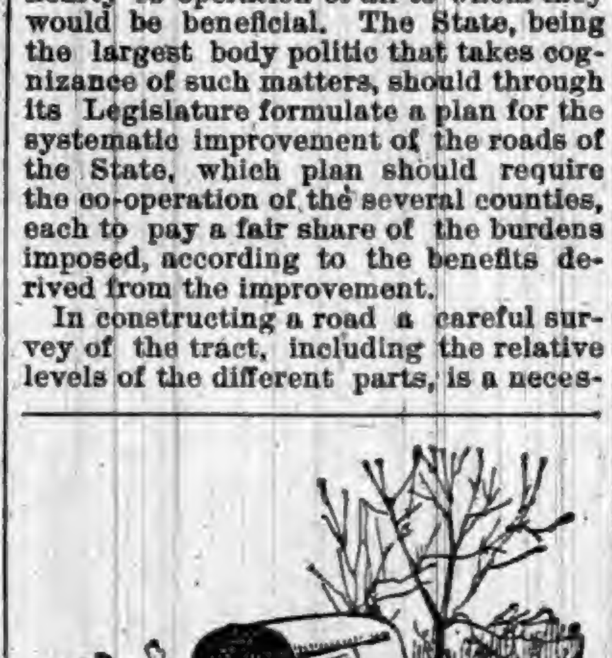
A FAMILIAR SIGHT.

Draining the Roads.

The drainage of a road is a very important part in its construction. Both sides should be perfectly drained, either by ditches or tile (tile are the best), and an occasional cross drain is beneficial. This will prevent the softening of the roadbed, thereby making the surface uneven. In order that no moisture whatever may remain on the roadbed it is essential that it should not be shaded. All particles of water which would otherwise remain would be evaporated and leave a perfectly dry surface.

To secure good roads needs only the hearty co-operation of all to whom they would be beneficial. The State, being the largest body politic that takes cognizance of such matters, should through its Legislature formulate a plan for the systematic improvement of the roads of the State, which plan should require the co-operation of the several counties, each to pay a fair share of the burdens imposed, according to the benefits derived from the improvement.

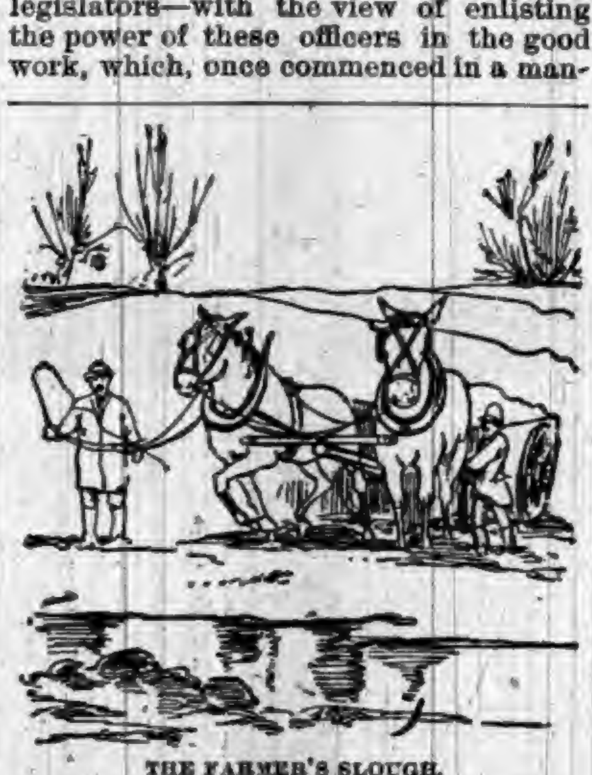
In constructing a road a careful survey of the tract, including the relative levels of the different parts, is a necessary preliminary in order to make a bed nearly level. What is the best method of constructing a road is a much debated question, but perhaps no better road can be made than one constructed of stone. In case that stone cannot be procured, vitrified brick, the manufacture of which has been recently established, may be substituted with nearly if not quite as good results, as they are made in all sizes and shapes necessary to requirements in road-making.



ABANDONED IN THE MUD.

The roadbed should be from sixteen to thirty feet wide, as may be required to accommodate the traffic, and thoroughly graded, so as to be slightly higher in the middle than on the sides; this would shed all water, but should not be inclined enough to obstruct traffic on any part of its width. After grading, a foundation a foot or more in thickness, according to the kind of soil upon which it is laid, should be made of large, irregular, insoluble stone. Upon this should be placed a layer of crushed stone, not more than an inch in any dimension, to a thickness of from four to six inches. These small stones will fill the spaces between the large ones, and will in a short time become pressed into a solid, smooth, nonporous mass. Such a road cannot be softened by water or cracked by frost.

The use of convict labor for constructing roads, as is now proposed in some of the States, would make these burdens comparatively light. To secure the blessings of good roads the matter should be agitated among the people. Meetings should be held, especially among the farmers; committees should be appointed to wait upon the proper authorities—the County Commissioners and the State legislators—with the view of enlisting the power of these officers in the good work, which, once commenced in a manner commensurate with its importance, would be pushed forward in a way characteristic of our people. Bad roads would soon be a thing of the past.



THE FARMER'S SLOUGH.

We have now comprehended the broad advantages and effects that good roads would have upon every branch of industry, the relation to the good of the country, and in behalf of civilization, Christianity, education, posterity, and all that tends to improve, elevate and make better. We should use all our energy in earnestly endeavoring to secure them.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

MEASURES CONSIDERED AND ACTED UPON.

At the Nation's Capital—What Is Being Done by the Senate and House—Old Matters Disposed Of and New Ones Considered.

The Senate and House.

On the 24th the Senate passed several bills for public structures, among them one providing for a $50,000 building at Owosso, Mich. Mr. Mitchell, from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, reported to the Senate a joint resolution proposing a Constitutional amendment providing for the election of United States Senators by popular vote. He said that the members of the committee were divided on the subject and would make separate reports. The joint resolution was placed on the calendar. In the House, Mr. Stewart, of Texas, from the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, reported back the river and harbor appropriation bill with the Senate amendments thereto with the recommendations that the Senate amendments be non-concurred in. The bill was referred to the committee of the whole. The balance of the time was spent on the sundry civil appropriation bill.

In the Senate, the 25th, Mr. Morgan's resolution introduced in March, instructing the Finance Committee to examine and report upon the effect of the silver law of 1890 upon the price of silver bullion, was called up, and after a lengthy debate, in which Mr. Sherman was the principal speaker in opposition, the Senate refused by a vote of yeas 17, nays 28, to refer the resolutions to the Committee on Finance. In the House, the sundry civil bill was taken up, the first item being the Government exhibit at the World's Fair. Mr. Houk, of Ohio, offered an amendment appropriating $100,000 to pay the expense of collecting statistics pertaining to the industrial advance of citizens of African descent from 1863 to 1893. This was ruled out of order. Mr. Dockery offered an amendment which was adopted, reducing the salary of the Director General to $8,000, and that of the Secretary to $3,000. A provision was adopted that the gates shall not be opened on Sunday, and another that no intoxicating liquors shall be sold upon the grounds.

The 26th, a bill extending for two years longer the act of March 2, 1889, for the correction of military records was passed by the Senate. By a vote of yeas 28, nays 20, the Senate decided to take up the Stewart free silver bill, and the measure is now on the calendar as unfinished business. In the House the World's Fair items in the sundry civil appropriation bill were under discussion all day. Most of the amendments were directed to the Sunday-closing question, and the matter was finally settled by the adoption of an amendment providing for the closing of the Government exhibit on Sunday, which leaves the larger question to be decided by the Exposition management.

Among the bills passed by the Senate on the 27th was one to reclassify and prescribe the salaries of railway postal clerks. Mr. Stewart's free coinage bill was before the Senate again, and after debate it was agreed that the bill be taken up as the unfinished business on the 31st at 2 o'clock. Mr. Springer appeared in the House (apparently fully restored to health) and moved, and the House passed, the Senate bill to establish a bridge across the Illinois River at Havana, Ill. After three weeks' debate the House passed the sundry civil appropriation bill. Mr. Hatch endeavored to bring the anti-option bill to the front, but the motion was defeated by a tie vote—yeas, 108; nays, 108. The postoffice appropriation bill was then taken up.

The Senate was not in session the 28th, having adjourned over till the 31st. In the House the legislative appropriation bill was reported by Mr. Forney and appropriately referred. The postoffice appropriation bill was then taken up, and after debate the House adjourned till the 31st. Mr. Durborow, from the World's Fair Committee in the House, reported a resolution authorizing the President to make proclamation relative to the observance of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America.

J. D. WILLCOX.

One of the Oldest Settlers in Pennsylvania.

J. D. Willcox was born sixty-seven years ago, and has lived most of the time in Olmsville, Tioga County, Pa., where he is a practical farmer and a successful country merchant. He is deservedly popular, known for miles around, and by strict integrity and honesty he has attached to himself a host of friends, and has received from the Government the Postmastership of his village. He says: I had been weighed down by poor health for a long time, and gradually grew worse until four years ago the crisis came. At that time four of our best physicians could give me no encouragement, and some of them said I would not live a year. I commenced to use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, Kidney, Liver and Bladder Cure. My doctors said your remedy might help me for a time, but that I would not be here a year hence. I took Swamp-Root for nearly twelve months three times a day, and used your U. & O. Anointment, rubbing in thoroughly over the affected parts, across my chest, liver and back, warming it in with a hot flat iron. The rheumatism was so bad that I could not get either hand to my face. My kidneys and bladder were all out of order—very painful—liver sluggish and refused to act. My health now is very good, in fact, I think I am as well as most men at my age—67 years. I give your Swamp-Root entire credit of saving my life, and the good health I now enjoy is due to its use. I have worked some on the farm of late, and do most of the chores myself.

This is not written for publication, but if it will give others confidence in your great remedy, I have no objection to your using it as best you can. With best regards, I remain, J. D. Willcox.

This is but one of the hundreds of letters received daily by Dr. Kilmer & Co., and five thousand dollars will be given to any one who will prove any portion of the above testimony untrue. Swamp-Root is beyond question the greatest discovery of the age.

The Sick Man Recovered.

A New York man who was ill with pneumonia called in a physician, who, he says, gave him this treatment: He blew something in the patient's face, and afterward scarified his hands, feet, and body with a razor, causing the blood to flow freely. The blood he rubbed over Sassano's chest. Then he cut off some of the sick man's hair, and wrote a letter to Satan, prince of hell. He burned the hair and the letter in the stove. These operations were repeated for four days, and for them Libertino demanded $140, but a settlement was made for $120, with the promise that if Sassano recovered he was to pay $380 more. The sick man recovered. This proves what I have long suspected, that in most diseases the cure depends less on the kind of treatment than on the kind of bill the doctor presents. If the bill is sufficiently outrageous any man whose constitution is not entirely destroyed will get mad enough to restore himself to health.—Buffalo Express.

A Dislocated Thimble.

A teacher in the grammar school of Charleston requires her pupils to form sentences containing the words in their spelling or defining lesson, in order to illustrate their meaning. The word dislocated was given to one young miss, who handed in the following astonishing sentence:

"I dislocated my thimble yesterday, therefore I could not sew."

The amazed teacher required an explanation, when the young lady, in an aggrieved tone, exclaimed:

"Well, I am sure it says dislocated means 'put out of place.'"

Thousands of Dollars

Mr. S. G. Derry.

I spent trying to find a cure for Salt Rheum, which I had 13 years. Physicians said they never saw so severe a case. My legs, back and arms were covered by the humor. I was unable to lie down in bed, could not walk without crutches, and had to have my arms, back and legs bandaged twice a day. I began to take and soon I could see a change. The flesh became more healthy, the sores soon healed, the scales fell off, I was soon able to give up bandages and crutches, and a happy man I was. S. G. DERRY, 45 Bradford St., Providence, R. I.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

HOOD'S PILLS cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache. Try them.

Way Off Color.

The hue of health! Who can mistake it? The white brow, the deepened tint of the cheek, these associated with brightness and animation of the eye, a cheery expression of the countenance, are infallible indicia that the liver is performing its functions actively, and that consequently digestion and the bowels are undisturbed. If, however, the complexion and eyeballs have a saffron tint, or the face is drawn and void of sprightliness and animation, the biliary gland is almost certain to be out of order. Rectify the difficulty speedily, thoroughly, with the paramount antibilious specific, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which promptly remedies not only the above outward and visible signs of biliousness, but also the sick headaches, constipation, vertigo, fur upon the tongue, nausea, sour breath, and pains through the right side which characterize it. The liver is always seriously involved in malaria, for which the Bitters is a sovereign specific. This medicine remedies, with equal promptitude and completeness, kidney complaint, dyspepsia, rheumatism, and nervousness.

The New Great South American Kidney Cure.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. This new remedy has been thoroughly tested by learned physicians and found far superior to any medicine yet discovered for quickly relieving all weaknesses, aches, pains and distresses arising from disease of any part of the urinary passages. It is a great relief for the old, middle aged and children, male or female. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. It may be worth to many a hundred times its cost. This is a remedy of great value to ladies, because they are very liable to weakness and pain peculiar to their sex. ALAS!

How wretched is the man who has fallen a victim to Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, or diseased Liver, with all the horrible attendants. Look upon the picture. Poor man, being tired of dragging out a miserable existence, he is the picture of despondency; altogether, he is rather a forlorn specimen. Do we pity him? Of course; but at the same time feel assured that in a measure he is to blame for the bad state into which he has fallen. THIRD PARTY CONVENTION.

The convention met in the opera house, Thursday, May 26, and at 10:30 was called to order by J. Y. W. McClellan, their county chairman, and he was afterwards elected permanent chairman and Cal. Husselman, secretary, with D. S. Haag, O. S. Davison and F. L. Britton, assistants. A committee of one from each township, on resolutions, and a similar committee on rules and order of business, were chosen, as follows:

ON RESOLUTIONS;

Fairfield, F. M. Dellenbaugh; Franklin, J. C. Hodges; Smithfield, F. C. Waterman; Troy, A. J. Price; Keyser, J. H. Kryder; Richland, J. Q. Squires; Union, Miles Baxter; Wilmington, G. W. Hanes; Stafford, T. E. Hull; Jackson, John Henderson; Newville, John Deardorff; Concord, J. M. Milliman; Grant, J. W. Jackman; Butler, M. J. Weller.

ON RULES AND ORDER OF BUSINESS;

Fairfield, Wayne Zonker; Smithfield, F. C. Waterman; Troy, G. B. Souder; Franklin, J. S. Lowe; Keyser, Edward Wells; Richland, John Sheffer; Union, W. C. Carmer; Wilmington, Geo. Bechtel; Stafford, Chas. Arford; Jackson, Eugene Carper; Newville, E. E. Headley; Concord, Henry Hull; Grant, Jacob Saltzman; Butler, Samuel Hawver.

The chair said there was no need of a committee on credentials, as each township would settle its own. Then a song, "Cheer, Brothers, Cheer", followed, Mrs. Hefty presiding at the organ and Mr. R. Kocht leading the singers. The tune was "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp", etc., and the words to the effect that we have labored early and late, and others got the benefit, but the sturdy men of toil would soon shake off their shackles and be free, and ending with "Down with salaries, down with fees," etc. The music was very good and the audience cheered heartily. A discussion as to announcements was then had, in which W. D. Boyle, W. S. Dancer, Albert Hogue, and others took part, but it was decided to go on and announce, leaving it open for other announcements after dinner.

REPRESENTATIVE.

W. D. Boyle named G. W. Hanes, but the latter declined. Albert Hogue and Sol. Harding were named, and W. S. Dancer made a speech for J. Y. W. McClellan.

TREASURER.

W. D. Boyle named Corbin Kiser; Cal. Husselman named H. A. Winslow; and added that if elected he would keep the door and office clean, though no one seemed to know what was alluded to. John Shugers' name was added to this list after noon.

SHERIFF.

John Ammon named Calvin Grube; Hogue named Silas Simons; Hanes named J. C. Hodges; W. Francis named H. P. Stroh; D. T. Smith named H. C. Shull, and W. S. Berry, of Wilmington, was also announced.

SURVEYOR.

Lyman Lockwood, present republican commissioner, announced J. J. VanAuken; and J. B. Scott was also named.

ASSESSOR.

D. T. Smith, J. S. Lowe, Jacob Saltzman, W. S. Dancer, S. Kutzner and Henry Hull were named, but Hull, Smith, Lowe and Dancer withdrew, the last named saying he did not believe his candidacy would help the third party.

COMMISSIONER, NORTH.

The following were named: J. S. Lowe, Wesley Jackman, E. R. Shoemaker, John Doty.

COMMISSIONER, S. E.

Solomon Shilling, E. E. Headley, Wm. Wilson, H. McCullough.

CORONER.

M. E. Chapman and Eph. Raub, were named, but later, Chapman withdrew.

J. W. Jackman asked where the committee on resolutions, and on rules would meet, and was told in the Alliance and P. I. hall, (Gandy's), and it was decided to meet at once.

A song, "Hope of the Nation," was then given by the choir, the tune being "Red White and Blue." The words were in substance, we will march on till our wrongs are all righted and the tyrants shall sink in their flight, and adding, we should open our markets over the world, send our ships over the seas, stop the tramp nuisance. Adjourned till 1:30 p. m.

AFTERNOON.

Additional announcements were made, A. J. Price for representative, J. C. Hodges for surveyor. It was announced that S. Kutzner would not run for assessor, and D. T. Smith named R. N. Crooks, but Crooks declined. F. L. Britton was named for this office, and J. W. Clark named J. W. Doty for commissioner.

The committee on resolutions here made a report, as did also, that on rules and order of business, and both were adopted.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

1. That we heartily endorse the political principles embodied in the platform of "Second Declaration of Independence" as adopted by that great great labor conference that convened at St. Louis, Mo., on February 22, 1892.

2. That we are in favor of the strictest economy in the administration of public affairs.

3. We condemn the democratic and republican parties for their corruption and extravagance in office and their system of political bossism by which the will of the people becomes thwarted and the people are burdened with taxation. Our officers should be truly our public servants.

4. We denounce the old parties for the demonetization of silver and for the lack of moral courage for not placing silver on an equal basis with gold. The old parties have not the moral courage to want to make a record and win or fall by that record until the presidential campaign is over. They would rather do the bidding of Wall and Lombard streets in order to raise their usual corruption funds.

5. We arraign the republican party for its reckless and extravagant use of the people's money in the billion-dollar congress and its almost total disregard of the welfare of the masses—the great plain people.

6. We condemn the democratic party for its aid in connection with the republican party in fighting sham battles before the people and then enacting class legislation, continually breaking their promises in their platforms, and thus robbing labor of its just reward.

7. We agree with patriotic Lincoln that labor should be above and superior to capital.

8. We agree with grand old Thomas Jefferson that honesty and competency should be the true basis for electing or appointing our public servants.

9. We denounce the promotion of such men as Judge Woods as a reward for his dirty political work. We arraign both old parties in this county, for their broken promises in the past, and their new promises to the people as a bid for votes. We believe that the people are reading and thinking, and fully realize which party will be true to labor.

10. We wish to express our contempt for the action of the last legislature in this state; for its tax law and for its fee and salary fraud. It betrayed the trust placed in it and is no longer entitled to the votes of a laboring people. We favor the enactment of a law reducing fees and salaries to a standard consistent with the pay for similar labor, and such a law to take effect at time of passage.

11. We denounce as contemptible the action of those officials in Indiana, who, to the people, claimed to be in favor of reform in general, and especially in favor of a reduction of fees and salaries, and said law to take effect at time of passage, and then later, while the legislature was in session, contributed to a corruption fund, or threatened legislators or sneaked off to the capital for the purpose of preventing the passage or the immediate taking effect of the act. We pledge the influence of our candidates, if elected, in favor of a reduction of fees and salaries, and such enactment to take complete control at time of its passage.

12. We favor the election of county superintendent by a direct vote of the people.

13. We favor the enactment of a law that will require public printing to be left to the lowest responsible bidder.

14. We wish to go on record in favor of a strict obedience to our election laws. We want a pure ballot and an honest count. We pledge ourselves individually to try to bring punishment to all violators of our election laws, that come under our observation.

15. We recognize the saloon as dangerous to society, and causes much political corruption. Therefore we demand its suppression.

16. We favor woman suffrage.

17. We denounce the practice of the county commissioners and the law that compels them to provide pens, paper and ink for the use of county officers in performing the duties of their respective offices as well as for their own private benefit, because it breeds extravagance in the use of the same and gives the lawyer the opportunity which we have reason to believe has been freely and extravagantly practiced by them.

18. We condemn the system of railroad companies in issuing free passes to public officials in order to get representatives to legislate in their interest. We favor the passage of a law that will make the offering or acceptance of a pass a kind of bribery punishable by law.

19. We hail with delight this great awakening in the minds of the people regarding the welfare of our governmental affairs, our homes, ourselves. The condition of affairs is such that our principles should receive the earnest consideration of all home-loving and patriotic people. Our doors to our party are open toward all directions, and we invite you to come and help us. We are pleased that the hideous monster—prejudice—is being buried with its face downward toward its eternal home. We ask those who love principles better than prejudice, and whose love for their country is greater than their love for their old party, to come and help us with their votes in this great cause of reform.

Then followed two songs, both well applauded. It was decided to call the townships in alphabetical order, and to nominate commissioners first. Each of the 36 precincts in the county were allowed ten delegates, making 360 in all, 181 being a majority. If a delegation was not full it could cast the full vote. The candidates for commissioner of the north were called up and made speeches, all saying they were in full sympathy with the new party. Lowe and Jackman did not care about the office. Shoemaker Headley and Shilling said about the same and that they did not expect to be elected. Wilson and McCullough were not present. Hogue said the speeches were taking too much time. The first ballot stood

COMMISSIONER, NORTH.

Lowe, 176; Shoemaker, 95 5-6; Jackman, 48 2-3; Doty, 39 1-6. There was some mistake in these figures, and they were footed up wrong, making a total of 350 votes, and Lowe was declared nominated. After the other nominations were made, a vote was taken, confirming his nomination, without regard to the vote.

COMMISSIONER, S. E.

Shilling, 111 1-2; Headley, 133; Wilson, 55 1-2; McCullough, 60.

SECOND BALLOT.

THIRD BALLOT.

While waiting Cal. Husselman volunteered a speech, and told the meeting that this was a pretty healthy infant and pretty soon the old parties would be wanting to feed us pap, but we won't eat. We don't want anything to do with them. (Cheers.)

REPRESENTATIVE.

McClellan, 215; Harding, 57½; Hogue, 87½. McClellan thanked them and said a public office is a public trust and an officer a servant of the people.

TREASURER.

Kiser, 99½; Winslow, 107; Shugers, 153½.

SECOND BALLOT.

Kiser, 142½; Winslow, 119½ Shugers, 98. Shugers withdrew.

THIRD BALLOT.

Kiser, 235½; Winslow, 122⅔; and Kiser got it.

SHERIFF.

Grube, 171⅓; Simon, 49; Berry, 54; Stroh, 84⅔. Berry was withdrawn.

SECOND BALLOT.

Grube, 213⅓; Simon, 66; Stroh, 80⅔. Grube was declared nominated.

SURVEYOR.

Before taking a ballot a delegate got up and asked that J. J. VanAuken be called on to define his position, and see how he stood or we will drop him. This was loudly cheered. Commissioner Lockwood got up and said he would vouch for Mr. Van Auken for he is with us tooth and nail.

FIRST BALLOT.

VanAuken, 29; Scott, 173½; Hodges, 157½.

SECOND BALLOT.

VanAuken, 3¼; Scott, 206¾; Hodges, 150, nominating Scott.

ASSESSOR.

Jacob Saltzman, 219; F. L. Britton, 141; giving it to Saltzman.

E. D. Raub was nominated for coroner by acclamation.

E. D. Spangle and W. C. Carmes were selected as national delegates. H. C. Shull reported money enough raised to pay the hall rent and four cents over. The meeting adjourned. In spite of the bad weather, there was a good attendance, there being nearly 200 delegates in the forenoon, though they gradually thinned out till at the close, after 5 p. m., about 100 were present in their seats. Of the men nominated, McClellan, Grube, and Saltzman have been democrats: Kiser, Raub and Lowe are republicans, Scott and Wilson prohibitionists.

Misses Reba and Edna Houser were the guests of Miss Birdie Beard on Tuesday and remained for commencement.

Thursday evening of this week the Nusbaum family, of Elkhart, called the "Hoosier Nightingales", will give a concert in the M. E. church.

Memorial Day, Sunday, May 29, was well observed. Services were held at the U. B. church at 2:30. Elder S. Moot delivered an interesting sermon to a large and attentive audience.

J. W. Sinclair has sold his interest in the hardware store to his brother, A. J., and A. V. Sinclair, groceryman and son of A. J., who will consolidate the hardware and grocery business.

Isaac Speer and wife started yesterday for a visit of a couple of weeks with friends in Ohio, closing their stay with an attendance at the graduation of their daughter, Flora, at Otterbein University.

Miss Zadie Mitchell, of Englewood, Ill., spent a day last week with her relatives, W. H. Leas and wife. Miss Mitchell is a teacher in the Englewood schools, and was on her way to Reading, Mich, where she will spend her vacation.

Saturday evening, May 29, the graduates of last year, from our high school, gave a banquet at the Hotel Locke, to which a large company of their friends were invited. A fine program was arranged for the occasion and well carried out. The banquet was dainty, toothsome and in the best of taste.

Monday, May 30, was as every one knows, Decoration Day. If not, the display of flags in front of business places made it known. Services were held at the opera house at 2, p. m. Rev. Alberton delivered the address. The clouds threatened rain, but withheld the shower until the decorating was over.

Sunday evening, May 29, the M. E. church was well filled, to listen to the baccalaureate sermon, preached by President Mosier, of Hillsdale college. It was practical, full of good thoughts, and suggestive of much that was unsaid. It was exactly suited to the occasion, yet to every one present some thought seemed especially spoken.

Monday evening, May 30, occurred the first annual contest of the Alpha Zeta and Amphictyon societies, at the M. E. church. The program opened with the Battle Hymn of the Republic, by both societies, followed by an oration by H. M. Fried, A.; subject, "Influence," well delivered and excellent in itself. Agnes G. Maxson, A. Z, oration, "Pansies". That's for thoughts. This was as beautiful as the subject, and full of thought, and also clearly and well delivered. Indeed, all were. A piano solo, "Le Leves Du Soleil", by Edith Farrington, A; a most excellent paper was read by Edson Beard, A., "Effect of Education on the Mind", showing a good mind and correct thought. Next, a paper, "Which Shall it Be?" by Lizzie Ditman, A. Z. What has been said of others and their work applies equally well in this case—indeed to all. The piano duet, by Blanch Jackman and Edward Willis, was well received and heartily applauded. The recitation, "The Unknown Speaker", by Gertrude Brand, was finely rendered, and was appreciated by the audience. The recitation, "The Quaker Meeting", was funny, and everybody laughed. It was nicely given, by Lena Rempis, A. "The Louisiana Lottery", an essay, was read by O. S. Benjamin, A. Z., and was full of good thoughts. "The Future of America Foreshadowed", by S. A. Harper, A., was greatly appreciated by the audience, and the speaker was heartily cheered. Music, "Waves of the Ocean March", by the orchestra, was fine, and was encored by the audience. Both societies than joined in a "Good Night Song". Through all the exercises it was noticed that God was recognized—His love, His power, His glory; which shows wisdom on the part of the young people if they put in practice what they put in words.

BUTLER.

Ella Gregg of Auburn, is making an extended visit among her Butler friends.

Very grave fears are felt for the recovery of W. A. Bard whose illness begins to assume more serious indications.

Mrs. Adam Sternberg, jr., was buried Sunday. The funeral took place from the M. E. church, Rev. Stone officiating. She leaves a husband and children.

A small company of glass blowers have been entertaining our people for the past week. They make all manner of small glass articles, which are given away to visitors at ten cents apiece. the piece being selected by lot.

Bertha Sickels of Pleasant Lake, is visiting her aunt Mrs J. A. Campbell. She has been a teacher in the Steuben county schools, and expects to resume her occupation at an early day.

The baccalaureate service at the Lutheran church Sunday, was well attended. The class consisting of twelve young ladies and gentlemen, made a creditable appearance. The discourse was delivered by Rev. Diffenbach and was one of his happiest efforts.

The Memorial service at the M. E. church Sunday evening, was a splendid success. The music was grand and Rev. F. M. Stone made one of the most masterly efforts that has ever been heard in our place. The immense building was filled to overflowing.

Decoration Day passed off very pleasantly, not enough rain falling to prevent its success. The oration at the M. E. church was listened to with close attention. The speaker, O. Z. Hubbell, of Elkhart, acquitted himself very creditably. The recitations by Miss Hardy, Miss Boland, and Mrs. Crain, brought down rounds of applause. The procession to the cemetery by the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, U. R. K. of P., Patriarch Militant, and I. O. O. F., was an imposing one.

It is not generally known among farmers that the same food that makes a pound of dressed beef would make a pound of butter. At the present price of cattle, the farmer gets about 5 cents a pound for his dressed beef, while butter is worth 15 cents.

Read this Letter from a Chicago Lady.

Chicago, 735 W. Adams St. Apr. 20, '91.
Mr. Norman Lichty, Des Moines, Ia.

Dear Sir;—A sample of Krause's headache capsules was left in my husband's office a few days since, and as I am subject to headaches—neuralgic, nervous, and in fact every other kind—he thoughtfully brought the sample box home. The very next day I had a chance to try them and one capsule relieved me in less than half an hour my head felt as well as ever, with no bad feeling as the after result. I have had these terrible headaches for twenty years, and have tried every remedy I ever heard of, but nothing I have ever taken has cured or relieved me as quickly as Krause's Headache Capsules. MRS. N. A. SKINNER.

Have I any objections to your printing a portion of my letter? No! If my testimony will induce any one who suffers with headache to buy your capsules I will be glad. MRS. N. A. SKINNER.

Physicians Outdone.

My wife has been suffering with female trouble of the severest kind for over three years. I have paid twenty-five dollars during the last three months, and she had no relief. She had doctored continually with the best of physicians. I bought three bottles each of Dullam's Great German Female Uterine Tonic and Dullam's Great German blood, liver, stomach and kidney cure, and can say to day that she is entirely cured.

A project is being perfected at Melbourne, Australia, whereby a large party of artisans of various crafts may be enabled to visit the exposition at Chicago for study and pleasure combined.

Don't get Imposed Upon.

Is a good motto to follow in buying a medicine as well as in everything else. By the universal satisfaction it has given and by the many remarkable cures it has accomplished, Dullam's Great German blood, liver, stomach and kidney cure has proven itself unequaled for building up and cleansing your system and for all diseases arising from impure blood. Do not experiment with an unheard of or untried article which you are told is as good, but be sure to get Dullam's. All druggists keep it. $1 a bottle. For sale by Casebeer & Matheny.

How plain to my mind are the scenes of my childhood,
As my recollection recalls them to view;
The soap-kettle hung on the poles of green basswood;
The Smoke and the Smell that my infancy knew!
But those days of SOFT SOAP and consequent anguish,
Have long since departed, we pray and we hope;
The use of the stuff 'gan to wane and to languish
As soon as they offered us

Refreshing Retreats.

Summer days are fast approaching and now is the time that excursionists, pleasure seekers and sportsmen should figure out a route for their summer vacation. In doing so, the delightfully cool summer and fishing resorts located along the Wisconsin Central Lines come vividly to view, among which are Fox Lake, Ill., Lake Villa, Ill., Mukwonago, Waukesha, Cedar Lake, Neenah, Waupaca, Fifield, Butternut and Ashland, Wis. Wisconsin has within the last five years become the center of attraction for more pleasure seekers, hunters and fisherman than in any other state in the union, and each visit increases the desire to again see the charming landscapes, breathe the balsam fragrance that is a part of the invigorating atmosphere, wander through the colonnades of stately pines and hook the speckled beauties with a hand-made fly.

Fell Dead.

These words are very familiar to our readers, as not a day passes without the report of the sudden death of some prominent citizen. The explanation is "Heart Diseases." Therefore beware if you have any of the following symtoms: short breath; pain in side, smothering spells, swollen ankles, asthmatic breathing, weak and hungry spells, tenderness in shoulder or arm, fluttering of heart or irregular pulse. These symptoms mean heart disease. The most reliable remedy is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which has saved thousands of lives. Book of testimonials free at F. E. AUBURN AND VICINITY.

Then those Auburn boys grew enthusiastic and brought pleasure to the home circles, as they told of standing upon decks and seeing the army moving up the river to Pittsburg Landing, an immense armada of steamboats sweeping two by two majestically on their war-like mission.

With the early days of April came news of Shiloh's bloody battle, and conspicuous in bravery were the volunteers from this county. From that Alcedama came up a great cry for help, and the response under the loyal, masterful lead of Oliver P. Morton, Indiana's war governor, was prompt and generous here as elsewhere throughout our state.

At Auburn, April 16th, a special session of the Board of county commissioners was convened to supplement the aid authorized to families of volunteers with an appropriation to assist in bringing home and caring for such wounded and sick soldiers of this county as might need assistance. An order was made for $200, but, for some cause was rescinded at regular session, but the people promptly and cheerfully resumed the noble duty and soon a number of the boys had been furloughed home and were being tenderly cared for.

The crimson clouds of war lowering heavily over the swamps of the Chickahominy and the blue glass region of Kentucky swept like cyclones northward during the closing days of summer and called for heavy reinforcements to check the veterans of Lee and Bragg.

Stirring war meetings were held at Auburn, Waterloo, Newville and elsewhere amidst great enthusiasm and unanimity of sentiment. Recruiting was stimulated by appeals to patriotism and money was freely given to provide a volunteer bounty fund and for support of soldiers' families during absence of their dependence.

Pursuant to notice from the auditor to the county commissioners, a special meeting was called to consider measures needed to forward enlistments in the regular service of the United States and it was ordered "that each volunteer under the present call of the president who shall enlist in an infantry company, or a fractional company to be organized in this county or to help fill up companies from this county, now in organized regiments or in cavalry or artillery service shall be allowed $25, bounty on muster into United States service," but later it was ordered that no warrant be issued to any volunteer till the September session.

To provide means to pay the proposed bounty, it was ordered that any person or persons who would loan the county the sum of $4,000, should take therefor the treasurer's receipt and present the same to the county auditor who would issue to him or them, county orders for the amount so loaned. A sum somewhat less than that specified was so advanced and by the county commissioners' paid out on account of the volunteer fund.

Undaunted by the horrors of war, knowing that they took even chances with death, recruits came forward in large numbers and Auburn together with other localities in the county had soon raised her quota of volunteers from among her bravest and most estimable young men.

A company recruited almost exclusively in the town of Waterloo and a second principally from Newville with some from Jarvis and Auburn were on Aug. 29th, mustered into service as companies A. and H. of the 88th Indiana Infantry and sent to Louisville, Ky.

Meanwhile Marquis L. Rhodes using his little red brick store on the southeast corner of Main and Ninth streets, as a recruiting office, speedily raised a full company from the young men of the town and vicinity. With him as their captain, they were mustered into service as Co. A. 100th I. V. I. on Sept. 10th at Ft. Wayne, and a month later left for Memphis, Tenn.

With this regiment went Rev. Charles A. Munn as chaplain commissioned, Nov. 8, and David J. Swarts as assistant surgeon. The former resigned Aug. 10, 1863, the latter served with his command through all its trying and honorable experience till its final muster out.

During its service, company A. had five captains as follows: Captain Rhodes, a brave and meritorious officer who though young had become well known as an upright, energetic business man. For eight years he had lived at Auburn engaged in mercantile pursuits and had fully identified himself with the history of the town and the county. Responding as we have seen to the call of his country, he gave up his business, received his commission, recruited his company and led it to the field. He died at Memphis, Tenn., on Dec. 10, 1862, in his twenty-eighth year, leaving a wife and two children. His remains were brought home and buried with masonic honors at Spencerville. An attendance at the funeral of nearly a thousand persons, attested public esteem for his manly character.

Ezra D. Hartman was commissioned captain on Dec 11, 1862, and as such served until Nov. 6, 1863, when he was honorably discharged. At time of enlistment, Captain Hartman was a student at law in Waterloo and on his return resumed the practice of his profession. He served as representative from this county, was prosecuting attorney on this judicial circuit and for a time was associated with J. E. Rose as the firm of Rose & Hartman. He is a present resident of Auburn, an experienced attorney and enjoys the respect of the community at large.

Lucius Barney succeeded Hartman in command and resigning Aug. 12, 1864, was followed by John H. Moore who dying of wounds received in action during the Atlanta campaign, on Oct. 1, 1864 was succeeded by Eli J. Sherlock, who was mustered out with his regiment. The three living ex-captains were present at the annual reunion of the 100th Indiana, held at the Opera House in Auburn on Oct. 14, 1891.

The first military burial known to the citizens of Auburn was the funeral of Daniel W. Squires of Co. K., 44th Ind. He died at his home in Butler township, and was interred with the honors of war in the old cemetery.

In addition to those named, a company had been raised for the 74th Ind., in this county and many recruits had joined regiments in the field, so that by the middle of August, four full companies had been organized and not less than five hundred volunteers had gone to the front from DeKalb county.

Again the patriot pulse beat high and strong but along the cold, dark days of December sorrow and disappointment settled heavily upon a myriad of homes as news came of the terrible fight in the cedar thickets of Stone River and of the shot swept slopes of Marye's Hights thickly strewn with thousands of our boys, wounded and slain. Then Abraham Lincoln proclaimed that slavery must go, and from Jan. 1, 1863, the armies of the Union had a mission and thenceforth marched to victory.

(To be continued next week.)

The Graduation.

The exercises of the graduating class closed Friday evening at the Opera House, in the presence of a vast audience of their friends, the friends of education, and our people generally. The stage was beautiful with a profusion of flowers, and on a table in front of the stage were numbers of lovely boquets of choice, and in some cases, expensive flowers, that had been sent by friends of the graduates. We believe as a whole, the boquets, were the richest we have seen on any similar occasion. The graduates, themselves, made a fine appearance, seated on the stage, flanked on one side by Mr. Harrison and the other by Mr. Coe. The latter called the meeting to order, and a double quartet sang "Oh, Italia," and an appropriate prayer was offered by Mr. Healy. Mrs. Sadie Yesbera and Mabel Hartman sang a duet and this was followed by the first oration of the class, "Our Duty to the Future" given by Stella Tarney. Miss Tarney is evidently an independent speaker, and takes hold of an exercise like this with the feeling that it is to be done, and that she can do it, and will do it. And she did succeed. This was followed by a fine violin solo, given by Estella Merica, whose work on this most difficult instrument shows steeady improvement. "Thumb Marks," Nettie Willis' subject, was a most excellent choice and gave good opportunity for valuable points—opportunities that she improved with readiness and ability. She was very much in earnest and impressed her hearers with the idea that she had given her subject, a thoughtful investigation. Before the next, Mrs. F. J. Yesbera sang a solo. It was excellent of course. "Success—the World's Ideal of Greatness," was the subject on which Lila Baker spoke. She had her oration thoroughly mastered, and has had practice and training in this sort of work and exceeded even her former successes in this line. It was very fine. Maggie Buckley, came on after the "Jolly Serenaders" a piece played by the orchestra, but much of which for some cause could not be heard. Those who were near, say it was a bright and witty thing. The subject Miss Buckley had chosen, was "An Unhewn Rock." This was a grand theme, and the young lady had evidently given it a good study. She is apparently a young lady, of some strength of character and mind, as she put a great deal of force into her work, laboring as she did under a recent attack of throat trouble. It was evidently, with quite an effort, that she could speak at all, but she mastered the trouble, and everyone in the great room could hear her. Mr. Harrison then presented the diplomas. His address to the class, was in some ways an improvement on any he himself had given before. His language is always clear, strong and well selected and his manner impressive. After giving the diplomas, he added that Miss Tarney had received the honors of the class for her high standing in her studies, and presented her the scholarships that entitle her to the benefits of the Indiana colleges. The "Class Song" followed, and then the double quartet sang "Good Night." The meeting was dismissed with the benediction by Rev. A. S. Wooton. The M. E. Sunday School orchestra furnished music, which was excellent, and highly appreciated. Altogether the commencement exercises were gratifying to the people of Auburn who have reason to be pleased with their school and its teachers.

The Encampment.

The Sons of Veterans' encampment to be held in Ft. Wayne, during the first week in July, promises to be rather a "scrumptious affair Many will be the opportunities afforded for genuine pleasure and real enjoyment, and the boys there are sparing no pains and expense to make it one of the most enjoyable and interesting features of social and benevolent entertainment in that historical city, this year. Many hundreds of dollars are being spent to make the occasion a complete success and well worthy of commemoration upon the sacred pages of fraternal history. Let every Son of a Veteran in northeastern Indiana, see that his influence is cast in the direction of bringing this to a desirable issue, and the further retention of encampments in the north half of the state, for at least another year. These annual meetings are important to the inculcation and development of true and loyal patriotism in the hearts of all who attend. Ft. Wayne people are generously hospitable and a good time can be had as well as effective work done. Remember the time and watch for further announcements.

Queen Victoria's Crown.

From Harper's Young People.

If Queen Victoria were compelled to wear the beautiful crown, of which she is so worthy, all the time, she would be a woman greatly to be pitied and never to be envied, for that magnificent affair weighs nearly two pounds. "Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown" is a proverb easily understood when one realizes this; and yet when one considers what the crown of the Queen contains, it ought not to be difficult to realize that it is heavy. It holds more than 3,000 precious stones, more than 2,700 of which are diamonds. The golden head-band holds two rows of pearls, the lower having 129 and the upper 112 of these treasured stones. Between these bands in front is a large sapphire, and behind is a small sapphire—small only when compared with the one in front, however—with 6 still smaller ones, and 8 emeralds. Between the sapphires fore and aft are ornaments containing 286 diamonds. Surmounting the band are 8 sapphires, above which are 8 diamonds, and 8 festoons which hold 160 diamonds, and in the front, set in a Maltese cross composed of 75 large diamonds, is the magnificent ruby given to the Black Prince in 1367 by Pedro, King of Castile, and which was worn by that dashing monarch Henry V., on his helmet at the battle of Angincourt

In addition to these, three crosses containing 386 diamonds are set around the upper part of the crown, between which are four ornaments, each holding a ruby in its center, and containing respectively 84, 86, 85, and 87 diamonds. From the crosses rise four arches composed of oak leaves and acorns, the oak leaves containing 728 diamonds, and the acorns—32 in number—made each of a single pearl set in cups composed of diamonds. Surmounting the arches is the base of the cross which surmounts the whole. The base, or mound, as it is called, contains 548 diamonds, and the cross—the crowning glory of all this magnificence—contains a huge sapphire and 112 diamonds.

Of course, anything so grand as this is worth a great deal of money, and the value placed upon it by experts is 1,500,000—although it may be doubted if any one could buy it for twice that amount.

It is kept in a great iron cage, along with the other crown-jewels, in the Tower of London, which is at all times strongly guarded, as well it may be, for with the rest of the precious stones and crowns and other valuables comprising the regalia, the contents of the cage are estimated as being worth £3,000,000 or $15,000,000.

THE HISTORY OF A WEEK

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS OF THE WORLD.

An American Sealing Vessel Caught Poaching—Explosion in a Quarry—Four Drowned—The Mississippi Overflowing It's Banks—Two Persons Burned to Death.

CAUGHT POACHING.

An American Sealer Taken Red-Handed.

The steamer Aiki has arrived at San Francisco from Sitka. While the steamer was in Sitka the American sealing schooner Challenger was in Ouna, Alaska, in charge of a United States deputy marshal. The crew was caught raiding the Pribiloff group of islands and the vessel was seized. The captain and crew were tried and the former got ninety days and eleven men got thirty days each. The schooner will be sold to the highest bidder some time this month.

The Mohicion and the Adams are patroling Behring Sea. Said Capt. Plummer: "The Mohician left Sitka on May 23 last, and the Adams the day before. Hassler is now at Westward Island with the McGrath survey party. The story about the murder of Rev. Sheldon Jackson is not true. A missionary named Edwards was murdered last January and the Indian who brought in the news probably confounded the two men."

The Mississippi Overflowing Its Banks.

A special from Burlington, Iowa, dated the 8th inst., says: The Mississippi River has risen nearly a foot in twenty-four hours. Should a heavy wind come up the expanse of water now flowing before the city would be turned into an ocean of breakers which would dash many buildings and other property to pieces. Travel has been suspended on the roads leading north from Burlington on account of the high water. The river is fully ten miles wide at this point, either side being inundated clear back to the bluffs. Much fine farm land is from two to ten feet under water and in many places the farmers have had to move to this or neighboring cities, leaving their homes at the mercy of the waves.

World's Fair Money.

Indiana has a World's Fair appropriation of $75,000, and some idea of how it intends to spend this money is indicated in the report of Executive Commissioner Hayden to the full board. Thirty-seven thousand five hundred dollars is set aside for the State building. For encouraging a live stock display $8,000 is to be used. The woman's committee needs $5,000 for collecting the woman's exhibit throughout the State. For an agricultural exhibit $4,500 is fixed, and for an educational display $3,500 is provided. To make a proper exhibit of the mines and mining industries $2,500 is appropriated.

Two Burned to Death.

Michael Crye and Martin Kowitch were burned to death and Joseph Plovoticz, Frank Plovoticz, and Aliko Rostikusk were very seriously burned by the explosion of an oil can in a Hungarian boarding-house at Braddock, Pa. Twenty-one boarders, occupying three small tenements that were destroyed by the fire, were drinking "polinka." All were terribly drunk, and that any of them escaped is a wonder. Joseph Polvoticz started the kitchen fire by pouring oil from the can. The usual consequences followed.

Four Drowned.

A cloudburst between Harold and Blunt, S. D., flooded a large section of the country, doing damage to crops and washing out a stretch of the North Western railroad track. Mrs. K. M. Foote and three children, while returning from a visit was drowned in attempting to cross a ravine with their team.

Premature and Fatal.

At Hillis' stone quary near Greencastle, Ind., the workmen had just dislodged a ledge of rock by a blast and were in the act of recharging it when an explosion took place, and Charles Williams sustained injuries that resulted in his death. His brother, John Williams, and Fred Goddard were also burned, but will recover.

The propeller Progress of Milwaukee, coal laden, bound up, collided with the propeller Britton of Rockport, and the Progress was sunk in twenty-five feet of water, disappearing in less than three minutes. Captain Sullivan and the crew of sixteen men were saved and were brought to Detroit. Neither the captain nor crew would talk about the accident. The Britton was badly damaged and was towed to Detroit. The Progress was a 1,300 ton vessel valued at $87,000. Her cargo was worth $5,000. She is owned by the Milwaukee Transportation Company. The Britton belongs to the same company, is a 1,800 ton vessel and is valued at $200,000. She carried a cargo of iron ore.

The Tornado's Terrible Work.

Harper (Kan.) special: Reports are now coming in from districts lying away from the railroad and telegraph wires, which were supposed to have escaped from the ravages of the cyclone last week, and it is learned that great damage was done to wheat crops all over this part of the State. While it was generally supposed that there would be 100,000 acres of wheat in this county, it is now estimated that fully 15,000 acres have been destroyed by the storm.

Must Have been Born Lucky.

John Conklin, living in Noble County, Indiana, started to Churubusco in a top buggy, and was caught in a thunder shower. Lightning struck his buggy whip, burning the cover off for about two feet at the point or small end, and down the stock through the buggy into the ground beneath. The explosion was directly beneath the buggy, and caused his horse to run away. Conklin was badly frightened but succeeded in stopping his horse. He took an invoice of damages, and found, aside from the shock and the burning of his whip and some of the leather about the buggy, that he was all right. The lightning, too, tore a couple of buttons off his shoes.

A Jewelry Store Blown Up.

An explosion of dynamite occurred at Kensington, Pa., in the house of J. K. Turner, a jeweler. Two persons were killed instantly. They are J. K. Turner, jeweler, and Miss Emma Scheffer of Emlenton, Pa. The wife and two children of Turner were badly injured. That the house was blown up deliberately seems certain, as Mr. Turner was never known to have dynamite in his dwelling or store. The explosion was of great force, breaking windows and doors at some distance. A posse has been organized, and is now endeavoring to find some clew to the fiend who caused the explosion.

Mrs. Harrison Very Ill.

A special from Washington says the many friends of Mrs. Harrison are alarmed at the report that she has grown worse within the last few days. The report proves to be true, but it is not believed that Mrs. Harrison is in any immediate danger. There is no doubt that she is extremely ill—so ill, in fact, that it has been deemed unwise to attempt to remove her to the Cape May Cottage. It has been found necessary in order that Mrs. Harrison should have absolute quiet to order the Marine Band, which has for years played in the White House grounds, to play hereafter in Lafayette park.

A Lecherous Brute.

It is alleged that on the evening of May 23, at a children's meeting at the hall, Brown accompanied Miss Decker to the basement of the hall to get her a drink of water, and while there attempted the assault.

A Horrible Find.

Buffalo (Wyo.) special: A party of cattlemen who were preparing for a round-up when the injunction of the Judge was served upon them, have returned to this town and report the finding of a relic of the recent war between cattlemen and rustlers in the shape of four human bodies swinging to the limb of a tree. The bodies had evidently been hanging for several weeks and were dried and shriveled to such an extent that it was impossible to tell who they were. They were dressed in the regular cowboy style. An investigation has been made to find who were missing.

One Hundred Bodies Found.

Vienna special: One hundred bodies have been recovered from the pit of death at Przibram. It is believed that not less than 100 are still in the mine and there is no hope that even one is alive. Even if some of the imprisoned miners had survived the fire it was certain that the smoke and heat must have smothered them. The rescuing party remained at work all night by the light of torches, while hundreds of the relatives of the victims remained camped around the mouth of the mine, hoping against hope that their friends might be brought up alive.

Shipwreck on Lake Michigan.

Milwaukee (Wis.) special: The schooner Persia, lumber laden for this port, is a wreck on Racine point. She was waterlogged during a gale and a man was landed to go to Racine for assistance. He procured a tug, but the Persia could not be found, and it was feared that she had rolled over and drowned the remainder of the crew. It transpires that the vessel did roll over, but the crew escaped in the yawl. The Persia drifted upon the point in her capsized condition and is rapidly going to pieces.

Troops Called to Quell a Strike.

The trammers strike at Osceola mine near Red Jacket, Mich., is still on. Governor Winans issued orders to the state troops to quell the disturbances. The strikers have many sympathizers. The sheriff is on the scene and will call armed forces when necessary. Many strikers are drunk and an outbreak is feared.

He died in a few hours. All were married. The concussion was terrible and the mill was completely demolished.

A Horrible Suicide.

A horrible suicide occurred at the Michigan asylum, at Kalamazoo. Mrs. Belle Talbot, when alone, broke a looking glass and cut her throat, nearly severing her head from the body. The woman was 57 years of age and was the wife of a painter at Battle Creek. She was taken to the asylum a short time ago, and was not thought to have a suicidal mania.

A Falling Wall.

A falling wall at Chicago killed Eddie Clancey, aged 13, and fatally injured Fred Slicht, aged 12. Henry Grossman, one of their companions, is supposed to have been buried in the debris and two of a gang of workmen are missing. The wall was part of the building being demolished by the Brand Brewing Company to make way for a new structure.

Murdered for Money.

An old veteran at the Dayton Soldier's Home, named Nicholas Doolen, was hit on the head with a stone and killed. The veteran was at the south gate, and it is supposed that some one followed him from Dayton, or from some of the West Side dives, for the purpose of robbery. At any rate a deep gash was found in his skull, and his pockets rifled.

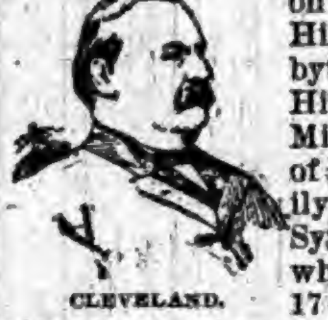
POSSIBLE CANDIDATES.

SIX DEMOCRATIC STATESMEN IN THE LEAD.

Brief Biographies of the Most Prominent Democratic Presidential Possibilities—Cleveland, Hill, Boies, Palmer, Campbell and Gorman—Good Men and True.

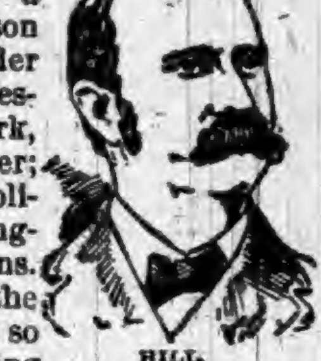
Grover Cleveland.



CLEVELAND.

Born in Caldwell, Essex County, N. J., March 18, 1837, of English descent on paternal side and of Irish origin on maternal side. His father a Presbyterian minister. His mother's name Miss Annie O'Neill, of Baltimore. Family moved early to Syracuse, N. Y., where, at the age of 17 years, the young man became an assistant teacher in an institution for the blind. Later they moved to Buffalo. The Democratic Presidential candidate was known as Stephen G. Cleveland till made Sheriff of Erie County, when he dropped off his father's name and became Grover. Admitted to bar in 1859 and practiced with success. Made Sheriff in 1870, Mayor in 1881, and became known as the "Veto Mayor." While Sheriff, it is said, hanged a man with his own hand. On cry of "Reform" chosen Governor by nearly 200,000 majority, the largest ever given for a State candidate. Re-elected with David B. Hill as Lieutenant Governor, who led the ticket. Chosen President in 1884, defeating Blaine. A rotund man who weighs 290 pounds and speaks in a prophetic vein. On June 2, 1886, married Miss Frances Folsom, the daughter of his old law partner. She is rich and has one child. Only marriage of a President in the White House.

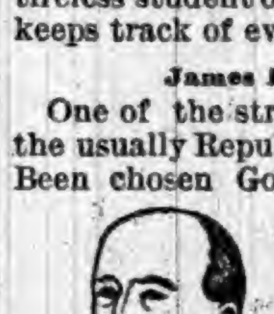
David Bennett Hill.



HILL.

"I am a Democrat." He could have added: "I am a confirmed bachelor." Born in Havana, N. Y., Aug. 20, 1843. His father, a boatbuilder in a small way, and son climbed the ladder step by step. Salesman, teacher, clerk, editor, and lawyer; but above all a politician, and strongest of partisans. Always studies the effect of his acts so as to avoid being "put in a hole." Immediately after admission to the bar made District Attorney of Chemung, and held several local offices. He used his newspaper to solidify the Democratic elements, and his success was undoubted. His first State office was Lieutenant Governor under Governor Grover Cleveland, and became Governor when Cleveland assumed the Presidency in 1885. Twice nominated and elected to the office. Declined a third nomination last year, as he preferred to go to the United States Senate as successor of William M. Evarts. Was a candidate for Governor in 1888, when Cleveland ran for President. He led Cleveland 30,000, and was elected by a big majority, while Cleveland was beaten. Disloyalty to Cleveland was charged, but never proven. Hill is a tireless student of current events, and keeps track of every movement.

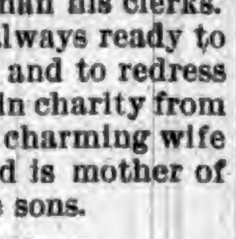
James E. Campbell.



CAMPBELL.

One of the strongest Democrats in the usually Republican State of Ohio. Been chosen Governor of the State, and the only man in Ohio who made it hot for McKinley. Was born in Middleton, Ohio, July 7, 1843. Captain John Parker, who commanded colonial troops at the battle of Lexington, was one of his maternal ancestors. Is known in political circles as the Butler County "Mascot." At the age of twenty-four was admitted to the bar, and began practice in Hamilton County. Chosen Prosecuting Attorney in 1877, and served till 1880. Beaten for race for State Senator in 1879. His friends elected him to Congress in 1882, and again in 1884 and 1886. Became very popular by watching the interests of his constituents and of ex-soldiers. Received the unanimous nomination for Governor in 1879, and came out of the campaign with flying colors, beating the previous Democratic record by 46,218 votes. His record as Chief State Executive won plaudits from adherents of all parties. Is a hard worker, and more regular in his attendance at his office than his clerks. Is easy of access, and always ready to inquire into grievances and to redress them. Gives large sums in charity from his private means. His charming wife is a society leader, and is mother of one daughter and three sons.

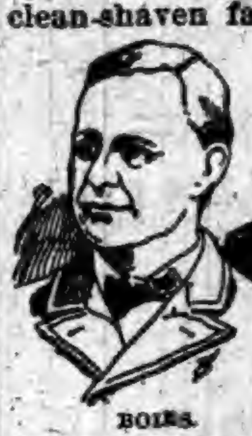
John McAuley Palmer.



PALMER.

The "grand old man of Illinois" was born, 1817; admitted to the bar, 1839; Probate Judge, 1843; member Constitutional Convention, 1847; County Judge, 1848; member State Senate, 1852; re-elected as an independent and anti-Nebraska Democrat; left the Democratic party on the slavery question, and resigning his seat in the Senate on that account, 1856; delegate to the Republican State Convention and President thereof, and delegate to convention which nominated Fremont, same year; supporter of Lincoln against Douglas, 1858; candidate for Congress, 1859; Presidential elector on Republican ticket, 1860; member Peace Conference at Washington, 1861; Colonel of volunteers, and promoted to Brigadier General, 1861; prominent in the military operations of 1862, promoted to Major General, 1863; prominent in the campaigns and battles of Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge, and Atlanta; commanded military department of Kentucky, 1865-6; elected Governor of Illinois, 1868; supported Horace Greeley in 1872 and Samuel J. Tilden in 1876; three times nominated for United States Senator and three times defeated; delegate to National Democratic Convention, 1884; nominated for Governor and defeated, 1888; nominated and elected Senator, 1890-1.

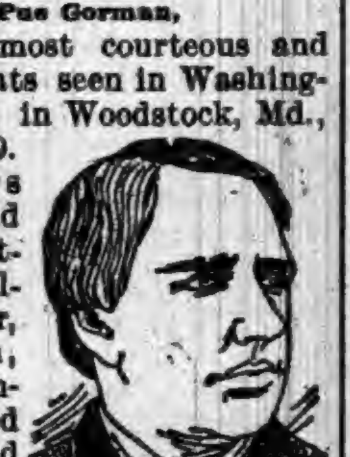
Horace Francis Boies.



BOIES.

In Iowa they call him "one of the boys." A big, handsome man, with clean-shaven face, and strong, pleasant expression. A great horseman, and in youth was passionately devoted to equestrian exercise. Was born in Erie County, New York, in 1827. Went West with his parents at an early age, and grew up with the State of Iowa, which chose him as its Governor on the Democratic ticket. Had been a Republican up to 1881, when he joined in the anti-Republican crusade, which was a war also on monopolies and prohibition. He acted with the Democrats in all the campaigns from 1882 to 1889, and acquired a wide reputation as a vigorous and forcible speaker. It was this course which secured him the Democratic nomination, which resulted in his election as Governor. He defeated Hutchinson, the Republican candidate, by 6,753 votes, although the rest of the Democratic ticket was defeated. Boies is a hard worker, and is at his office daily at the unusually early hour of 7:30 a. m. He has two sons and one unmarried daughter, Miss Jessie. He is a lawyer by profession, but gives his chief attention to cattle-raising, being a very extensive land-owner. He is a firm believer in the doctrine that a grand future lies before Democracy in the West.

Arthur Pue Gorman.



GORMAN.

One of the most courteous and popular Democrats seen in Washington. Was born in Woodstock, Md., March 11, 1839. His ancestors came from Ireland in 1784 and settled in Pennsylvania. His father, Peter Gorman, was a thrifty farmer, who acquired a competence and became a railroad contractor. Was one of the builders of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and while in this enterprise settled in Maryland. Young Arthur was always a Democrat, and when a mere youth was a State Convention delegate. He gained the friendship of Senator Douglas while a page in the Senate and rose rapidly through his influence. Was a champion of Douglas in his race for the Presidency. Made Postmaster of the Senate in 1860. Made Collector of Internal Revenue in Maryland after the war through the influence of Reverdy Johnson, Montgomery Blair, and Thomas A. Hendricks. His accounts fell in arrears in a large sum, but the difficulty was adjusted. He was made director of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal in 1869. He served in the House of Delegates from 1870 to 1872. The next year he was chosen Speaker of the House. In 1875 was elected State Senator, and in 1877 was made Chairman of the Democratic State Committee. Has been in the United States Senate since 1881. A keen and dignified politician with a warm heart.

A Pretty Cage Bird.

The common redstart makes a pretty cage bird, though it is not often seen in captivity in this country. It visits Missouri and Illinois every summer, leaving for the south on the first approach of cold weather. It is a beautiful bird, and takes its name from a bunch of brilliant red feathers under the long plumes of the tail. When taken from the nest the birds are easily reared, and their liveliness and cheerfulness in confinement dissipate the idea that they are longing for freedom. They have a pretty song, and are in every way so far superior to the canary that it is a wonder that they are not frequently caged and kept.

A Queer Patnership.

Here is a cat that didn't "kill the rat that ate the malt." Dr. E. F. Everist, of St. Mary's, Ohio, found in his barn a few days ago a large rat nursing three kittens. When the mother cat returned she relieved the rat, which went to sleep in the hay. Next day the Doctor and some friends saw the cat go up to a large rat-hole and mew several times, whereupon the rat came forth and took its place among the kittens. At least, this is the story as it comes to us.

Boiling a Planet of Ice.

One of those scientific gentlemen who spend their time in determining results on impossible hypotheses, estimates that if the earth should come in contact with another body of the same size, the quantity of heat generated would be sufficient to melt, boil and completely vaporize a mass of ice fully seven times that of the colliding worlds, or, in other words, an iced planet 150,000 miles in diameter.

Pigeon's Milk Not a Joke.

The joke about pigeon's milk has a foundation in fact. After the incubation of the young has been completed the crops of the parent birds become thicker and secrete a sort of curd with which the young are fed. This description of nourishment is necessary for them, for if the young pigeons are deprived of it during the first week or two after hatching they are sure to die.

So DISTINGUISHED a poet as William Morris going bail for an anarchist editor who has been arrested for inciting his readers to murder naturally shocks London, just as the utterances of the artist Crane shocked Boston a while ago. Inasmuch as Mr. Morris has always professed extreme socialist doctrines, there seems to be no occasion for astonishment at his action in bailing out an anarchist who was anxious to attend the funeral of his wife. The world owes much to William Morris, including our Morris furniture, our Morris wall paper, our "Earthly Paradise" and thousands of lines of epic poems that are a delight to this generation, and will be to generations to come.

WHAT a young man who has a best girl wants is to hold his own.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

MEASURES CONSIDERED AND ACTED UPON.

At the Nation's Capital—What Is Being Done by the Senate and House—Old Matters Disposed Of and New Ones Considered.

The Senate and House.

The postoffice appropriation bill was up in the House the 1st, nearly the whole day being consumed in discussing points of order, and only one page of the measure was disposed of. In the Senate it was agreed that no vote should be taken on the free coinage bill until after the 14th of June. The new Senator from Virginia, General Eppa Hunton, took his oath of office. David B. Hill cast his first direct vote on a financial question, and it was recorded with the free silver men. The conference report on the bill in relation to the lands of the Klamath River Indian Reservation was presented and agreed to.

In the Senate, on the 2d, bills were passed as follows: For holding terms of court in the District of Montana; providing for two additional Associate Justices of the Supreme Court for the Territory of Oklahoma, and creating two additional land districts in Montana. The Senate then adjourned until the 6th. Mr. Hatch reported the agricultural appropriation bill to the House. In committee of the whole the postoffice appropriation bill was farther considered. Mr. Hooker asked unanimous consent for consideration of a joint resolution appropriating $30,000 for the relief of the Mississippi flood sufferers, but Mr. Long, of Texas, objected, and the House adjourned.

There was no session of the Senate on the 3d, the chamber having adjourned until the 7th. The House further considered the postoffice appropriation bill in committee of the whole. An amendment was adopted prohibiting the Postmaster General from making contracts hereafter under the provisions of the act to provide for ocean mail service between the United States and foreign ports.

Mr. Hatch's anti-option bill was passed by the House on the 6th, by a vote of 168 to 46. Bills admitting New Mexico and Arizona to Statehood were also passed by the House. Conferrees were appointed on the river and harbor and naval appropriation bills. The bill appropriating $50,000 for a pedestal for a monument to General William T. Sherman passed. In the Senate the consular diplomatic appropriation bill was laid aside and Mr. Vest addressed the Senate on the resolution recently introduced by him to discharge the Finance Committee from the further consideration of the bill to place wool on the free list. Without action on the matter the Senate adjourned.

Business Is Better.

R. G. DUN & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The tone of commercial reports from various parts of the country indicates that business has to some extent improved. Collections throughout the country are better, and, excepting the bursting of a speculative corner at Chicago, there is no especial excitement of any kind in business. The fictitious price established for corn at Chicago lasted just long enough to bring into that market enough of the actual grain to bury the speculators, and the corner broke with great losses, not merely to the operators but also to the brokers. Wheat is declined half a cent, the Western receipts being unusually large, though the exports from the Eastern ports have also been quite large. Oats are a shade lower, pork products unchanged, and oil is a little lower. The stock of cotton in the country continues far beyond the record of previous years, and there is every reason to believe that even a great reduction in the yield will surely reduce the aggregate supply for the year below the quantity usually required for consumption.

CHAPTER VII.

MYSTERY.

The snow fell deep that night. It was the first wintry storm of the season, but the over-freighted clouds hovered low until dawn, and field, forest and farm lay clothed in a robe of spotless white when day broke.

There was not a tremor in the form of Farmer John as he came down to the breakfast table, not the quiver of a muscle was visible in his sturdy face.

He was even cheerful, and he spoke to the hands and to Ralph Prescott as if nothing in the world had happened to disturb the serenity of the home circle, as if the vacant chair at his side did not exist.

If the iron had pierced his soul he had cauterized the jagged wound with the pride, stubbornness and endurance that would have made of him an excellent martyr in the days when they burned men at the stake.

He gave his orders calmly. When he apportioned Ruth's customary work to the dairymaid there was not the token of a tremor in his voice.

Anxious-faced Ralph Prescott approached him as he bustled to the door in his great coat.

"Mr. Elliott," he said timidly, "I want to speak to you——"

"About that girl?" demanded Elliott, turning sharply.

"About Ruth—yes. You know——"

"Stop! I forbid you ever to mention her name under this roof again. She is as dead to me as if she were buried fathoms deep in the sea. I'm sorry for you, my boy, but you and I must try and work some comfort out of the muddle a lying thief and a disobedient daughter have left us in."

Ralph Prescott looked glum and then crafty. Affairs were bad, decidedly so. He had lost Ruth. A far more sordid thought oppressed his mind just now, however. Would he lose old Geoffrey Forsythe's money as well?

He wandered about restlessly that day, over the farm, through the village. There was no trace of Ruth. The storm might have swallowed her up, for all the clue the most persistent inquiry brought as to her whereabouts.

"She's gone with him," muttered Prescott, sourly. "They were married, sure enough and legally enough, for the minister says so. Paul Dalton has won the prize, but if I can win the money——"

He reflected over that phase of the case for many hourse. Old Geoffrey, as he understood it, had left his fortune equally divided between himself and Ruth. That of course had the tacit condition attached that they would eventually wed one another.

Now, as soon as the old recluse understood the new complications in affairs, he might make an entirely different disposition of his wealth.

He was whimsical and crotchety. Getting older, he disliked to be disturbed.

"Since he talked to me about that money I lost at gambling, that some busybody told him about, he hasn't been so bland to me," solliloquized the anxious Prescott. "I half believe, if he did not think I was to marry Ruth, he'd change the will, and cut me off without a shilling. I only wish he'd die while the will stands in my favor! Had I better go and see him? I will. I must look sharp, or I'll find myself in a pretty bad position. My revenge! Bah! Matters are far worse for me than before I tried to down that miscreant of a Dalton. I've lost everything, and he has gained everything he was after—the girl."

Ralph Preston did go to the home of the recluse. He found Geoffrey propped up in bed, and looking like a man at his last gasp.

He greeted his visitor crossly, and with a searching glance that Prescott did not like.

"You don't seem to be feeling as well as usual, Uncle Geoffrey," suggested Ralph.

"No!" snapped the recluse. "Do you think anyone is worrying very much about me?"

"Why——"

"Oh, I know you all. Waiting for my shoes after I'm dead."

"Hadn't I better stay and help you till you get better?"

"I've got help."

"What! you've got——"

"A nurse. What are you staring at? Am I begrudged that little outlay, in my old age?"

Ralph Prescott was silent, none the less amazed. For ten years the recluse had tabooed all kinds of help.

The schemer caught sight of a feminine form in the next room, her somber black dress, colored spectacles, and close-fitting cap making her resemble a woman of fifty.

He found that he could neither cajole nor entertain his crusty host, and he took his leave.

"I don't like the looks of things," he muttered.

He liked it less that evening. A chum at the tavern informed him that old Geoffrey had sent that afternoon for his lawyer, and that later a doctor had been hastily summoned.

"I'm going to have a talk with old Elliott to-night," mused Prescott. "I'm going to know if I'm to expect a fortune or nothing. I've been abused and deluded all around, and I'm going to get something out of the wreck in some way."

There was an alarm at Maple Leaf Farm, however, before he reached home.

A messenger had come from old Geoffrey in hot haste.

The invalid was dying, he said. And when Farmer John reached the lonely house in the village the old man had breathed his last.

At the funeral the next day few noticed particularly the reticent, plain-looking nurse who had been with Geoffrey Forsythe in his last illness.

Her presence was not questioned even when, after the funeral, the few mourners gathered at the house to meet the lawyer of the recluse at his own request.

Farmer John looked glum and uninterested, but Ralph Prescott's crafty face glowed eagerly.

"I simply wished to inform you of the last requests of the deceased," spoke the lawyer. "He made a new will yesterday, destroying the old one."

"Ah!" Ralph Prescott fluttered restively.

"To your daughter, Mr. Elliott, he has left this house and ground, with the expressed wish that the nurse here, Mrs. Easton, keep it in order till she chooses to appear."

Farmer John set his lips savagely.

"To you," addressing Ralph Prescott, "he has left four receipted bills—debts you contracted at the horse races last week."

The plotter turned white with rage and chagrin.

"Maple Leaf Farm, Mr. Elliott, goes to you individually."

"And what of the rest of his fortune—the stocks, bonds and money in bank?" gritted out the baffled and disappointed Prescott.

"All that he has bequeathed, for some strange reason best known to himself, to Mr. Elliott's former superintendent, Paul Dalton!" was the lawyer's amazing reply.

CHAPTER VIII.

LIGHT!

The affairs of Farmer John and his family had become a source of unremitting speculation for the gossips of Ridgeton, and the disappearance of Ruth and the strange will of Geoffrey Forsythe constituted a veritable nine-days' wonder.

People were amazed. Just as a cyclone, terrible, sudden and blighting, sweeps over a smiling landscape and leaves ruin and devastation in its track, so the unexpected had come to Maple Leaf Farm, wrecking hearts, destroying the home rest, and leaving traces of bitterness, hidden only by stubborn pride and the mute endurance of a stoic.

People talked, but Farmer John gave no explanation of it all; only from the farm hands could they gain the particulars, and rumor at last sifted the situation down to several very significant and startling facts.

Paul Dalton, an ex-convict, had robbed his generous master and had stolen away his daughter.

John Elliott had indignantly evicted his former superintendent, and had disowned his child for wedding him secretly.

These two, man and wife, fugitives, banished, had undoubtedly met again, and in some obscure town were eking out an existence, that could only end in dire punishment for an unfaithful steward and a disobedient child.

Ralph Prescott, a baffled, disappointed schemer, had come out at the extremely small end of the horn.

Unmasked as a spendthrift, he had been left a pauper and a sullen, brooding, revengeful man; he was harbored by John Elliott out of sheer pity and sympathy for his double loss of bride and fortune.

As to Farmer John himself, he accepted the gift of the farm without gratitude or interest. Life had been robbed of its sweetness, and his future seemed barren, vapid, well-nigh unendurable.

The nurse of old John Forsythe still remained at the former home of the recluse. She saw but few, and spoke to none. Her position as protector of Ruth Elliott's interests until the latter should see fit to return and claim her legacy was sanctioned legally, and Farmer John did not care enough about it to question her right of wardenship.

Only one point electrified all the village, and mystified surly Ralph Prescott—the strange will that Geoffrey Forsythe had made.

Why had he left the bulk of his wealth to an utter stranger—what subtle influences had induced him to disinherit a former favorite, to practically beggar his own kith and kin, for a man he had never exchanged a dozen words with, whose very existence even he might not have known up to a few days previous to his death.

"There's trickery in it," said the gossips.

"The will cannot be broken," affirmed the lawyer, stanchly.

"There's mystery under it all," solliloquized Ralph Prescott, darkly. "Why, and how did old Forsythe make that will? Where is the fortunate legatee?"

Over the solution of this double problem the baffled schemer cogitated until he nearly went mad.

He thirsted for revenge. He coveted Dalton's good fortune. He longed to humiliate Ruth. From a sneaking, cowardly schemer, Ralph Prescott was fast emerging into a dangerous plotter.

A comfortable home was guaranteed him at Maple Leaf Farm as long as he wished to remain there, but that did not suit him.

He wanted money for his gambling exploits, and Farmer John was close-fisted.

He visited the tavern early and late. Seeking solace for his disappointments in the wine cup, he became a silent, sullen devotee at the festal board, drowning his cares in inebriety, and ready to quarrel with the first man who even gave him a pleasant word.

At the end of the week he was no nearer guessing the rights of the matter of the singular will than before.

One night, however, there came a development that interested him, staggered him, aroused him out of his apathy with a shock, and set in vivid action all the scheming elements of his of his evil nature.

A great crony of his was a young fellow named Evans, a clerk in the village postoffice.

He came to the tavern to drink with his friend, and upon this especial evening he made the casual remark:

"I say, Prescott! that nurse, Mrs. Easton, up at old Forsythe's house, is getting to be more of a mystery than ever."

"Is she?" growled Prescott, wearily.

"Yes. She comes and goes with that black veil of hers drawn down, like some specter. To-day, though, she mailed a letter at the postoffice that I saw."

"Did she?"

"For a fact; and say, Prescott, who do you think it was directed to?"

"Well, who?"

"Guess?"

"Oh, don't bother me What do I care about it?"

"You will when I tell you that the letter was directed to your esteemed friend, Paul Dalton."

Prescott looked up, a startled, evil, lurid glow in his wicked eyes.

"What!" he ejaculated.

"Yes, Paul Dalton."

Ralph Prescott sat looking into nothingness, but his breath came fast, and his eyes emitted scintillations of hatred and revenge.

"What was the address?" he asked.

"I only saw the name. I was going to fish out the letter later, but forgot it."

The information set every crafty instinct in Prescott's nature agog.

It suggested much. Why was this mysterious, unknown Mrs. Easton corresponding with a man whose address even the lawyer did not know.

Was she the head and center of some plot that had induced old Geoffrey Forsythe in his dying moments to change his will in favor of the outcast of Maple Leaf Farm?

"I've struck a clue," muttered Prescott convincedly, as he left the tavern alone. "I've wanted to find out where Ruth has gone to, where Walton is. That woman knows. She knows, too, every detail of the will business, I'll venture. She is the one to watch. What a dolt I have been! I'll find out something about all this entangling mystery now, or know the reason why."

Straight to the vicinity of the former home of old Geoffrey Forsythe the schemer betook himself.

He was too familiar with its gloomy surroundings not to be able readily to gain a point of vantage to inspect the house unseen.

The grim-looking, closely shuttered domicile promised little to reward his quest, until he came around to some bushes upon which faced a wing of the old structure.

Two rooms here were used as a sitting-room and kind of library, and the window shades of the latter apartment were not yet lowered, and a table-lamp illuminated its somber furnishment.

At a little stand sat the nurse, Mrs. Easton. She was writing, and several closely written sheets of a letter lay beside her.

As though tired of her task or uncertain how to proceed with the epistle, however, as Prescott peered, she arose, and with a gesture of weariness, proceeded to the adjoining apartment, closing the door after her.

To the shuttered window of this room Prescott hied himself briskly.

A chink through the rotted wooden slats offered a full view of the apartment.

He saw the woman approach a mirror. She removed her glasses, manipulated her hair and close-fitting cap, and then, turning, she lay down on a lounge as if to rest.

Her face was turned now so that Ralph Prescott saw it plainly.

As he did so, a cry of utter incredulity, comprehension and bewilderment escaped his lips.

For a startling transition had taken place.

Mrs. Easton, the nurse, was Mrs. Easton no longer!

All that pertained to that mysterious personage had disappeared with the removal of the spectacles, the coil of white hair and closely fitting widow's cap.

Instead, a fresh young face, a little careworn, a little anxious, but clear as a rosebud, and bewitching as that of an houri, looked forth from a mass of golden ringlets.

"Marvel of marvels!" gasped the astounded schemer, a great light shining in upon his mind with the force of electric radiance—"it is she!"

Inefficient.

Good-will counts for very little by itself in a sick-room. Of all persons in the world, a nurse must know how to go ahead and do what needs to be done, without questions and without fuss. Mrs. Swisshelm had a new appreciation of this truth when she came to need a nurse for herself after wearing herself out in nursing wounded soldiers.

When I lay ill, a friend told me of an excellent woman who had come from afar, and tendered her services to the government. She had exerted much influence and spent much effort to get into a hospital as nurse, but had failed.

Hearing of my illness, her desire to be useful led her to tender her services. Her generous offer was accepted, and I was left for an afternoon in her care.

I wanted a cup of tea. She went to the kitchen to make it, and one hour after came up with a cup of tea, only this and nothing more, save a saucer. To taste the tea I must have a spoon, and to get one she must go along a hall, down a long flight of stairs, through another hall and the kitchen, to the pantry.

When she had made the trip the tea was so much too strong that a spoonful would have made a cup. She went down again for hot water, and after she had got to the kitchen remembered that she had thrown the water away, thinking it would not be wanted.

The fire had gone out, and the woman came up to inquire if she should make a new one, and if so, where she should find kindling.

She had spent almost two hours in running to and fro, was all in a perspiration and a fluster, had done me a great deal of harm and no one any good, had wasted all the kindlings for the evening fire, had used tea enough to serve a large family for a meal, and had fairly illustrated a large part of the hospital service rendered by women oppressed with the nursing mission.

A Prehistoric Canoe.

"A prehistoric canoe was unearthed not long ago in digging a canal through Barton, near Manchester, England, and it appears to be an extremely interesting relic," said a traveler at the Laclede. "It was brought to light by the steam shovel and was imbedded in the sand about twenty-five feet below the surface. With some difficulty the canoe was removed to a shed in the vicinity of the engineer's office and examined. It was found to consist of a portion of an oak tree, roughly hewn and fashioned. In length, this relic of a long past age is thirteen feet eight inches from end to end, with a width of two feet six inches. Notwithstanding the lapse of centuries the marks of the ax are distinctly visible in the interior of the canoe, the width of the blade of the instrument used—whether of flint or iron—being apparently about three inches. Unfortunately the vessel sustained some damage in the ruthless grasp of the 'navy,' the bottom having been cut through at the bow end while a portion of one side was broken in. But for this mishap the canoe would probably have been recovered practically intact. I saw the boat just after it was taken out. The bow is shaped so as to have a projecting block, through which a hole is driven, evidently for the purpose of fastening it by means of a rope. A gunwale runs clear around the canoe, which is shaped just like a modern Indian canoe, and fastened by means of pegs of wood. Not a particle of iron was used in its construction, and it was practically impossible to fix the exact period of the canoe."

A Bid for Custom.

"The Southern darky," said the traveling man, who was regaling us as we sped along with bits of travel, "is the most cunning of his species, and I can never forget an old fellow I met at Columbia, S. C., who cleverly tried to outwit the law."

"They can any of them do that," responded the major domo of the party, in parenthesis.

"We got into Columbia just at dark, and as we had all become tired of sitting made up our minds to walk up to the hotel. There were a lot of hacks with old bony horses and colored drivers but they did not dare solicit our custom, as the law forbade it. But they gesticulated with their whips and made grimaces and sounds, to which we paid no attention. We had about run the gauntlet when, as we came abreast of the last old rackety-shacklety vehicle, the driver rolled from his seat and lay in a fit on the sidewalk at our feet.

"'Apoplexy!' said one of our party as we all stopped and bent over the suffering man.

"'Epilepsy,' suggested another.

"I was about to lift his head when his contortions ceased, and he whispered in my ear:

"'Jump in de hack, massa, for de lub of Gawd. I take yo up dar free ef you don't tell dem odder niggahs. I'se done killed for wantin' de custom. Jump in, sah.'

"The rascal all this time was wriggling at my feet, and telling him to get on the box I entered the hack with three others, and saw him jump to his seat like a cat. Away we went, while a howl from the other drivers followed us. I doubt not they would gladly have mobbed us, then and there.

"We paid our fare and added the customary lagniappe, and I doubt not that cunning old darkey grinned in his sleeve for many a day over the success of the ruse which he so cleverly carried out."—Detroit Free Press.

The Supply of Whalebone.

A fact which is likely to cause women immense pain and difficulty is the failure in the supply of whalebone. When one considers that nothing can take its place or cause a gown to fit so well the outlook is truly alarming. As a matter of fact the supply has fallen off just one-half in the last few years. Until recently the American market handled 500,000 pounds annually, now it is barely 200,000. In the matter of price, in 1842 the best quality of bone in the raw state sold for 29 cents per pound, now the same grade costs $5.75. Adding the profits of manufacturers, the cost of the finished bone is $10 per pound to-day. The reason for all this is that the bowhead whales, which furnish the bone, are moving further north every year and become constantly more difficult to capture. These animals, each of which is worth about $10,000, have an enormous head, larger than all the rest of the body. The mouth is furnished with a double row of whalebone blades, about 500 in number, varying from seventeen to three feet in length. These are used by the creature to strain its food. It is a very difficult matter to capture a whale even after it has been harpooned. Last year at a whaling station bombs were shot into 200 whales, but only fifteen or twenty were captured. The greatest catch last year was only twenty-one. The average catch is eight, but many steamers get only two or three. The preparation of the bone is not difficult. It is taken in quantities of 500 pounds and soaked in water till it becomes soft enough to work. It is then cut into strips. The bone is sold by the gross, and a gross weighs about two and a half pounds.

The Czar's Jewels.

The present Czar of Russia is a great admirer of precious stones, and delights in purchasing rare and costly specimens. His uniforms and military trappings are decorated with gems of great value, and his jewels are probably the most gorgeous in Europe. In the Russian scepter is the famous Orloff diamond, weighing 194¾ carats. This stone is rose cut, resembling half a pigeon's egg. It is supposed to have been the eye of an Indian idol, which, after being stolen by a French deserter, passed through may hands, until it was purchased by Count Orloff for Empress Catherine. The price paid the Armenian merchant who then owned it was £90,000, an annuity of 4,000 rubles, and a royal title. The Czar's private collection contains numerous large and valuable diamonds and pearls.

Prince Gussupow of Russia, who died a few years ago, owned a collection of preciousstones many of which were historic. The collection was valued at 2,000,000 rubles, or more than $500,000. One of the largest pearls in Europe is the property of the Russian Prince Youssoupoff. It is pear-shaped and weighs 524 grains. This pearl, in 1650, was purchased by Philip IV. of Spain for 80,000 ducats, a sum equal to about $75,000.

Why They Don't Marry.

The Shanghai Debating Society has been considering why the young men of Shanghai do not marry. The impression is that the fault is in the "chit system," the local name for the credit system, by which things are charged at high prices, instead of being paid for at low prices. The majority of the young men were in favor of abolishing this system, but the young women were against it and swamped the boys.

To Abolish a Nuisance.

A rule has just been introduced at all the theaters of Italy by which performers are forbidden, under pain of fine, to receive flowers during a representation, or to notice in any way the presence of the audience. This will now put an end in Italy to bouquet throwing in the middle of a scene or at the end of a song.

A Heathenish Practice.

In Mashona, when twin babies are born, both are drowned. This is one of those savage customs which discourage the native census-taker, and make him a strong advocate of conversion to Christian privileges.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN

NERVINE TONIC

—AND—

Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

Beautiful—Useful.

Dr. Ford, perhaps, has one of the finest little maple groves to be seen in this part of the country, at his home on North Main street. A few years ago, he set out several rows of thrifty, undersized maples in his south yard, which, through the silent, developing influence of weather, care and climate, have become very pretty and useful. The density of the shade is so great that the green leaves form a foliaged roof, through which, the burning rays of the sun cannot penetrate, while over the street sidewalk is formed a perfect arch of emerald loveliness.

Reciprocity.

We find the following list of unanswerable questions in a late number of the Lagrange Democrat:

If it be a benefit—as undoubtedly it is—to South America, Cuba and San Domingo to be relieved from tariff taxes on staple necessaries of their people, why would not the same amount of free trade benefit the United States?

If the tariff be not a tax on consumers, why are these foreign people congratulated on getting American products free of duty?

Are foreigners better than our own people that they should be relieved by American diplomacy of tariff burdens, while our own duties are heaped thirty-three per cent. higher?

If a limited free trade with our poorest customers is so great a gain, would not a freer trade with our richer, greater and far better customers be a more desirable thing?

These questions concern the people,

The Minneapolis Convention.

No balloting will be done till to-day, and there are signs of quite a hard struggle. Tuesday chairman Clarkson of the national committee called the convention to order, and J. Sloat Fassett, of New York, was made temporary chirman. He is a Blaine man, and was defeated in the race for governor last year by Gov. Flower. Other work of organizing was completed the same day. Yesterday, Wednesday, Gov. McKinley, of Ohio, was made permanent chairman. He is for Harrison. Committees reported, etc. Mr. Penfield, of Auburn, was seated as a delegate of course. Much hot strife goes on between the Blaine and the Harrison forces. Alger, of Michigan, will likely have a few votes, but no one can predict the outcome. A new man may be sprung. Voting begins to-day and may last several days.

* * *

LATE election in Oregon, Tuesday, republican, by about the usual majority.

DEMOCRATS and Alliance have united in Kansas.

BLAINE resigned as secretary of state Saturday and it was immediately accepted. So he is now a candidate.

TERRIBLE flood caused by broken dams on Oil Creek, Pa., Sunday. Huge tanks of oil and benzine were turned over, covering miles of water. This caught fire and swept down over Oil City too suddenly for escape. Many were burned in their homes and others in the water, or were drowned, amounting to over 100.

REPUBLICANS don't like the new tax law, but up to date they have not told just what part is wrong. Is it in the assessment, or in the rate levied? Is it in the way the assessments have been changed so as to make property pay what it should? Is it wrong because it makes the railroad pay more, or the banks, or wealthy men? Or, is it because they fear the money will be put to a bad use? Is it because the money raised is not needed?

THE South Bend Times seems glad to quote from anybody and anything, that refuses to support Cleveland. It goes to an extent rather surprising when it quotes approvingly the words of the immortal George Hazzard, once the pride of Auburn, and later its pest. The Times clips George's latest screed as it appeared in Times of Albany, N. Y. George, our own, and ownliest George, is now at the head of the democratic committee of the state of Washington, and his old neighbors in Auburn, would not be surprised to hear some day, that he had stolen Mt. Olympus and sneaked off with it. George, like St. Paul, has had an extensive experience with "stripes and imprisonment," but the people of Northern Indiana, are hardly prepared to accept him as to political or a moral guide.

THE Dispatch last week, quotes another column from the Indianapolis Journal about DeKalb county taxes. So far it has complained that taxes have been made too high. In this article the complaint is, that taxes were made too low. See what it says about a deficit reported last year, and the inference must be that our commissioner's should have levied more tax. Then follows the complaint that democrats have increased the state debt and at the same time they complain because the state levy was raised, as they themselves had asked to have done, to pay off this debt. How shall we suit them? The debt must either increase, remain the same or decrease. As it was largely a republican legacy, and as the heavy expenses of later years, were voted for by republicans, we think the Journal ought to furnish its weak country papers with an article explaining just what it objects to.

An Accident.

As long as we live in this world, we exist beneath the uncertainties of accident and frequently are made the victims of misfortune. Unlucky days come to all;—days when we are least prepared or at all events, least desire bad luck to befall us. It is at such times that the unmercifulness of misfortune is most keenly felt. Tuesday forenoon, while J. W. Shaffer, our veteran wagon maker, of the firm of Shaffer & Berg, was dressing a piece of hard, dry and well seasoned timber preparatory to using it in repairing, with a hand axe, in some way missed his stroke and cut a deep gash in his right knee over an inch long. It is a very painful wound and being in a dangerous place, will perhaps require a great deal of care, and will lay him on the shelf for some time, at least.

Miss Harte is a girl still in her teens, and has artistic as well as literary proclivities as one of the illustrations accompanying her first article show.

Partners, Are They?

Last week's Ligonier Banner, contained what is likely to be an eye-opener for this section of the state. Our attention had been called to the matter, but as we do not see the Indianapolis Journal, we have had no means of knowing just what scheme was being put up. The Banner says:

"This year the republicans expect to carry Indiana by a process of "subtraction," i, e, by diverting part of the Democratic vote to the "People's Party." And they have mapped out the campaign accordingly. Their scheme is to retain their normal vote and decrease the democratic vote. An over zealous republican correspondent of the Indianapolis Journal from DeKalb county, incautiously exposes the scheme in the following correspondence:

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

AUBURN, May 15.—The People's Party has polled this county, DeKalb, and claims 1,750 votes. If they have half that many votes cast at the polls the entire republican county ticket will be elected. There were only 6,221 votes cast in 1888, when the democrats had a plurality on the presidential vote of but 281. The People's party draws most heavily from the democratic ranks.

Evidently the Journal had not been taken into the confidence of the republican state committee. If it had, it would not have given away Chairman Gowdy's scheme to organize "People's party" in democratic counties and let republican counties alone."

Now put the above in a row with the Dispatch's jubilant assertion of last week, that we have two democratic tickets in the field." And as it needs three of a kind to make a row, we will add the pathetic appeal to republicans for help, contained in the People's Advocate of Waterloo, last Saturday:

"Republicans of DeKalb county, if you want to save $25,000, and also defeat your old enemy, help us in the struggle for the right."

And so they are partners it seems in their joint scheme to defeat their old enemies the democrats. Now, if we knew who sent that dispatch from Auburn, to the Journal, we would have the whole crowd treed. We know all the others, and give their names as above, and of course any correspondent to the Journal is a republican. We reserve comment on this precious scheme.

Great is Buncombe.

And the Editor of the Dispatch, is its prophet. May 19, the Dispatch had a choice bit of buncombe intended for its own glorification, and ears of Auburn business men from whom it hoped thereby to reap much profit. It was the item about Dr. Erlick, a traveling specialist, whose specialty is diseases of the eye and ear. It claimed to have refused the doctor's advertisement, because "the Dispatch has steadily maintained the policy of protecting its home advertisers and patrons." And so much did he glorify himself on this course, that next week he wrote still another article in the same vainglorious strain about the same matter. As it is a strain he greatly enjoys, we look to see it kept up all summer. Now let us see how well this boasting agrees with the facts. In the first place, Auburn has no physician whose sole specialty is treatment of the eye and ear. But if it had such a physician, then how comes it that the Dispatch advertises Dr. Wheelock, an eye and ear doctor of Ft. Wayne? Is it to protect home doctors? The Dispatch advertises a cure for the liquor habit; but Dr. Nusbaum, right here in Auburn gives a similar treatment. It advertises some nur series; but C. P. Houser, is selling all the stock he can in this same territory. It is advertising for the sale of Jackson, Studebaker, Turnbull and Mi bura wagons; yet Shaffer & Berg in Auburn, are working hard for a living by making a splendid wagon. It advertises bicycles, in which people are asked to send for a catalogue, thus spoiling the sale of a number of Auburn's local agents. It advertises many medical remedies, though Auburn has an unusually bright and able corps of home physicians, who can no doubt benefit people more than any of these nostrums. And so we might go on piling up evidence that the Dispatch's "disinterested honesty" is nothing more than cheap buncombe and self glorification. The Dispatch if it would be honest, would admit that it takes advertising for the money there is in it. All papers do this, just as the COURIER does. And in taking advertising, it is impossible to avoid conflicting with "home business." Home business men know how this is, and expect it. It would not be an easy matter for a newspaper to "protect" its home men. Certainly none do it, And it is not often that any publisher is bumptious enough to claim that he does. The COURIER has often refused advertising of various kinds for various reasons, but never thought the public cared enough about such a matter, as to wish to see it in print.

Deer Park and Oakland.

To those contemplating a trip to the mountains in search of health or pleasure, Deer Park, on the dome of the Alleghany Mountains, 3,000 feet above the sea level, offers such varied attractions as a delightful atmosphere during both day and night, pure water, smooth, winding, roads through the mountains and valleys, and the most picturesque scenery in the Alleghany range. The hotel is equipped with such adjuncts conducive to the entertainment, pleasure and comfort of its guests, as Turkish and Russian baths, swimming pools for both ladies and gentlemen, billiard rooms, superbly furnished parlors, and rooms single or en suite, an unexcelled cuisine and superior service.

The surrounding grounds, as well as the hotel, are lighted with electricity, have cozy and shady nooks, meandering walks, lawn tennis courts and grassy playgrounds for children, within full view of the inviting verandas. Six miles distant on the same mountain summit is Oakland, the twin resort of Deer Park, and equally as well equipped for the entertainment and accommodation of its guests. Both hotels are upon the main line of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, have the advantages of its splendid Vestibuled Limited Express trains between the East and West, and are, therefore, readily accessible from all parts of the country. Season Excursion tickets, good for return passage until October 31st, will be placed on sale at greatly reduced rates at all principal ticket offices throughout the country. One way tickets reading from St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati, Columbus, Chicago, and any point on the B. & O. System to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, or New York, or vice versa, are good to stop off at either Deer Park or Oakland, and the time limit will be extended by agents at either resort upon application.

The season at these popular resorts commences June 22.

For full information as to hotel rates, rooms, etc., address George D. DeShields, Manager, Deer Park or Oakland, Garret County, Maryland.

A Wonderful Family.

The Rev. Mr. Kimmel, of Columbia City, has a very notable family. From fourteen children, eight have been selected who seemingly possess a special talent for music. Being a good teacher, he has taken great care to instuct each one in the heaven-born art, so that now it is merely a matter of pleasure for them to pick up the instruments and perform the difficult feats known in the execution of brass band music. This family when playing together, is called "The Kimmel Band,"—Mr. K., himself playing the tuba part. They are creating a great deal of sensational interest, perhaps will ere long reap a good reward for all time spent in practice and tedious preparation. They have been fully organized but a short time, so of course, as yet are not very widely known.

A gang of men, with teams went west through town Sunday afternoon, putting up two new wires on the Postal line. This gives the Postal fourteen wires on their poles. And the fire alarm wire makes them fifteen in the limits of Auburn.

John G. Ashley, one of the most popular young men in Auburn, was married at New Haven, in Allen county, May 25, to Mary E. Schnelker of that place. We received notice of our friend's good fortune in due time, but as we had become accustomed to see John do the right thing at the right time, we took it for granted it was all right and forgot to mention it. We welcome Mr. and Mrs. Ashley most heartily as citizens of Auburn.

There was quite a lawsuit in 'Squire Walborn's court Tuesday. Two women at Garrett, who had been enemies for some time, got into a fight and one knocked the other down with a club. She was fined in squire Blackburn's court over there, being prosecuted by L. J. Gengler. But soon after, she and her husband were ordered over here to be tried on a surety of the peace. They were bound over to court. The trial lasted all day, and there were nearly thirty witnesses, so constable Stoner informs us.

The whistle on Kiblinger's engine at the new power house, screamed out for the first time on Monday evening. It is the first whistle we ever heard in the heart of town, though we have an abundance all around the borders. The smoke stack is the only brick one in town, and is a beauty. Picker Brothers and Bumpus built it, and like all of their work it is a success.

Geo. Stafford, son of Samuel Stafford was here Tuesday with his head wrapped up carefully. He works in the boiler shop at Garrett, and he and a man named Kennelline were together, Stafford holding the chisel and the other using the sledge, when in some way, Stafford was hit on the side of the forehead, just over the eye, making a bad hit and a close call. He will be around again soon, if he takes no cold in it.

The deadbeat "heavy tax-payer," of the Garrett Clipper, was in town again this week on the usual protracted drunk. He kept out of the way as much as possible for fear the women he has so villainously lied about would get at him. A coward, who becomes afraid to face a man, soon gets so low he is afraid to face a woman, especially a decent woman. This is the condition now reached by Hank Little, the bilgewater editor of the Garrett Clipper. Young men with an ambition to become degraded drunkards, here is a sample for you.

Miss Mabel Hartman is succeeding finely in her chosen work, the profession to which she has given so much time and expense. As an elocutionist and impersonator, she ranks high, and her gifts in this line have been highly appreciated at all the points where she has been. On Thursday evening of next week she will be at Hicksville, and Friday evening, June 17, at St. Joe. In both places she will be assisted by good musicians. We can assure the friends over there that her impersonations and readings are all we are claiming for her, and more, and they will never regret attending to hear her. It will prove a treat that we are sure they will enjoy greatly. Notice the two dates.

Myron Hoisington, for some time publisher of the Dispatch, was here this week. He is traveling most of the time, and reports the country generally suffering, like ours, from the long continued rains.

L. Bowers and Ed. Eldridge are as usual ahead in the matter of beautiful lawns and close cropped grass in the streets. Even strangers cast a wishful eye, as they pass this lovely spot, and wish they lived in Auburn.

Our people are talking up locating at this place, of the buggy box factory at Waterloo. We believe it would pay well. All the difficulty it ever had was caused by want of capital, and if it could be started here on a good basis, there would be money in it.

Clean up the streets and alleys. Purify the water closets, remove all signs of garbage that has been accumulating during the winter and the long rainy season. If this is not done, Auburn may be visited with a summer of sickness worse than the season of "ager" that used to prostrate its people in pioneer days. In talking the other day, with Dr. Swarts, secretary of the board of health, he says that there is unusually urgent need, that this matter be attended to promptly and thoroughly. Let us, each "clean up before his own door."

Improve the Roads.

This is the crying need of DeKalb county, and especially of Auburn and vicinity. It is true, the long, continued rains are the worst we ever had, and that never before since we had roads at all, did we have bad roads in June. Yet every year, to greater or less extent, we are put into a state of siege by almost impassable roads. Mud, deep, rich mud is what we then have to contend against. There is, on the inside of last week's COURIER, a most valuable and interesting article on the subject of bad roads, and a full description of the construction of good ones. We hope everyone, especially township and town trustees, road supervisors, town marshals and county commissioners have read it and studied it. Our attention has been directed recently to the bad state of some of our streets right here in Auburn and the country roads leading to this place. They have been almost impassable. Look at West Seventh street; that on which nearly all the business of the Lake Shore road goes to and from. Then take a look at East Seventh, from the bridge out to the Eckhart carriage factory. This has been terrible. Teams could hardly get through, so deep was the mud, and the drays taking material to the factory, and bringing away the finished buggies, found it at times, almost impossible to get through. The factory has suffered greatly in its business from this cause, and if the siege continues, will suffer more. Mr. Eckhart has tried to come to some arrangement with the authorities out that way, or the town authorities whereby some relief could be obtained, but as yet nothing definite has come of it. It will pay our people, over this whole section of country to talk up this matter of better roads.

THE remarkable intelligence is sent from Cincinnati that a base-ball game was stopped because of the fact that the rays of the setting sun got in the eyes of the batsmen and pitchers. ALL England is agitated over the poisoning of the Duke of Westminster's racer, "Orme," on the eve of the races. The incident seems like a chapter out of an antiquated sporting novel, and will appear in the pages of scores of new ones. It illustrates how wide-spread is the English interest in racing and it illustrates also the fact that some of the most thorough blackgards imaginable were interested in Orme's not running.

NEW YORK has a guest just arrived from Rome and acknowledges that he is "a fugitive from Rome," and has doubtless left there for Rome's good. He candidly tells a reporter of the Recorder: "I am here to make propaganda for my cause. My principle is the abolition of private property, of capitalism, and government, which are all one—namely, the enemy of true civilization." He should be shipped home by the first boat with a notice to stay there.

THE question of "good common roads" is beginning to take prominence in all the wide-awake States. There is no question in which all classes of people are more directly interested. The ordinary methods of road making and road repairing are only "playing at road making." "The iron horse" has solid road-beds, beautifully ballasted and bridged—but the faithful four-legged horse goes on miring and wearing out his life in pulling the farmer's wealth to market. The times are ripe for a reform in country road building.

DOWNRIGHT trickery has been often resorted to for the purpose of extending the life of a valuable patent. It seems to have been repeated by the owners of the Bell telephone patents, and it is now claimed that by a combination of patents for certain immaterial devices joined with the Berliner rights the company will be enabled to extend its monopoly for another seventeen years. But the public need not be alarmed at the suggestion. Long before the expiration of that time there will be discovered substantial relief from this monopoly.

WESTERN colleges bent upon getting the best have formed the disagreeable habit of offering the right man for President a higher salary than Eastern colleges are disposed to pay. Now of course your really ideal President ought to be above sordid considerations. He ought to love learning for learning's sake, and supervise a college for supervision's sake. But most of them have families dependent upon them for support, and are obliged to think of lollars and cents. Hence—other things being equal—the college which pays the most gets the best President.

SWINBURNE'S essay in the dramatic arena will excite much interest among the poet's admirers. Coming so soon after the production of Tennyson's play, "The Sisters" will attract additional attention. The poet laureate has not proved himself a master of dramatic situations and effects, but he has produced a play which is a great treat for all lovers of good literature. If Swinburne has the dramatic instinct more highly developed than Tennyson he has not yet given evidence of it in his writings. He is, however, a superb master of English, a consummate lyrist, and a poet of exquisite taste. We shall probably have no exciting scenes in his new play, possibly no absorbing plot, but we are sure of melodious lines and delightful songs. And, after all, we shall find much refreshment in an occasional change from the tank drams, "Annie Rooney," and "The Bogie Man."

IF the manuscript of John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" is still in existence, and can be produced at the World's Fair, it will be, certainly, a matter of no little interest. Mrs. J. W. Patten, of Springfield, Ill., believes the manuscript to be now in possession of a family named Bates, living in Southern Illinois. It is said to have descended, as an heirloom in the family, from Bunyan's widow, to whom after his death the manuscript had been returned by the printers of the book. The unearthing of relics for exhibition at the World's Fair will probably become quite common; in some instances, no doubt—and we could wish it might be so in the present case—with supporting testimony that may be trusted.

JOHN is pouting. Deep down beneath the impenetrable mask of the stolid Asiatic peasant is a pride of race which has been deeply wounded. It is dimly dawning upon John that the Caucasian whom he inwardly despises has told him to "get out." As he seeks the reason for this—pouting meantime most tremendously—he discovers that he is not wanted because he comes here to get and carry away, and not to contribute anything to the general wealth. He is neither useful as a citizen, nor as an investor of moneys, nor as anything save a laborer. Alien and pagan, he is marked "N. G. Return to China." He sees it. And we shall now hear him clamoring for citizenship, and abjuring his false gods and vile habits.

PIRATES seem to have sprung up in the Mediterranean again. A Spanish sailing vessel was recently looted by them off the Morocco coast, and within hailing distance of the ocean lane on which steamships are plying night and day from the Mediterranean ports to New York. Is the old free-booting which so flourished at the beginning of this century to be revived? If so, the United States, which cleaned the Barbary pirates out of their nests and swept the coast of the Tripolitaine with the besom of destruction, must call out new Decaturs, Prebles and Bainbridges and do the good work over again. But is it just possible that the cry about pirates is raised by John Bull, who is anxious for a chance to interfere in Morocco?

ONE of the most famous institutions of the Presbyterian Church in the West, "Lane Seminary," Cincinnati, once presided over by Lyman Beecher, Professor Stone, and men of national fame, is in a turmoil. The peculiar views of Dr. Briggs have created wide discussion, and it is now stated that Professor Smith, of the institution, has boldly come out as an advocate of the Doctor's doctrine in a pamphlet entitled "Biblical Scholarship and Inspiration." The pamphlet has caused a genuine sensation. A storm of opposition to Dr. Smith's utterances was soon aroused, but he remained firm, and now it is announced that Trustees Alexander McDonald, S. J. Broadwell, and Peter Rudolph Neff, all prominent men and millionaires, have resigned, leaving the board, as a whole, in sympathy with Professor Smith. The next General Assemby, which meets at Portland, Maine, will likely tackle the subject, and will find it knotty.

A PORTION of Dubuque seems to be situated over a vast subterranean lake. Such a state of affairs has long been suspected, and the sudden disappearance a short time ago of half an acre of ground is strong proof of the theory. Fortunately no houses were situated on the ill-fated half acre. Had the phenomenon occurred in a crowded portion of the city, it would have occasioned one of the greatest catastrophes of history. Some such misfortune has been frequently predicted as on the programme for Chicago. Engineers have shown, or attempted to show, the possibility that her heavy buildings might sink out of sight, and one wild-eyed negro preacher has had a vision in which the waters of Lake Michigan were holding a riotous dance far above the city's housetops. According to his theory, Chicago is to be sunk by the weight of her own wickedness. None of these prophecies have as yet come true. On the contrary, Chicago real estate is going up all the time. Even a slight slump is improbable, and as for the bottom's dropping out, as it did in the case of that half acre in Dubuque, the thing is impossible.

Queer Bank.

A man in Milbridge, Me., was building a small schooner, and was about to cut down a tree for the stem-piece when he was approached by an elderly French-Canadian, who asked: "You cut down that tree?" "Yes," the shipbuilder replied. "Well, he my safe—I keep my money in there," the Acadian responded. Pulling out a carefully concealed plug at the base, he brought forth a tin box filled with coins.

Forgetful.

In 1871 a man in Auburn, Maine, deposited $2,200 in a savings bank, and, as he was growing old, forgot all about it. One of his relatives learned of the deposit lately, and the forgetful old man was agreeably surprised to find that his $2,200 had increased to $5,000.

FEAR guides more to their duty than gratitude. For one man who is virtuous from the love of virtue, from the obligation which he thinks he lies under to the Giver of all, there are ten thousand who are good only from their apprehensions of punishment.

THE SHODDY INDUSTRY.

WOOL TARIFFS BRING IT GREAT PROSPERITY.

Free Wool Would Be Its Certain Death—Some Tin Plate Facts and Fancies—McKinley's Account Continued—New England Farmers Driven Out by the Tariffs.

More Shoddy than Wool.

There can be little doubt that the American people wear more shoddy than do the people of any other country on the face of the globe. Here are a few of the proofs of this statement.

1. According to the census statistics of 1880, the total amount of raw material consumed in the manufacture of woolen goods was 404,000,000 pounds. After reducing wool to a scoured basis, we find that only 118,000,000 pounds of pure wool were consumed. This shows that the composition of woolen goods made in 1880 was 108 parts of adulterants and 118 parts of pure wool. The census of 1890 shows that the number of pounds of pure wool used had increased to 124,000,000, and of shoddy, cotton, and other adulterants from 106,000,000 pounds in 1880 to 154,000,000 pounds in 1890, thus giving a ratio of 45 parts of pure wool to 55 parts of adulterants.

2. Since the McKinley bill went into effect the shoddy business has enjoyed an era of unusual prosperity. As an indication of this, we quote the following under the heading, "Rags, Shoddies, Wastes, and Extracts," from the American Wool and Cotton Reporter of May 19, 1892:

"NEW CLIPS.—There has been a steady current of business during the past week, and results have been altogether satisfactory. Merchant tailors' clips, darks and black, are picked up as fast as made. The pronounced demand for darks and black worsted, noted last week, continues. There is more or less inquiry for all the various grades of new woolen rags.

"WOOLEN RAGS.—Some dealers aver that they have sold in the two weeks of May, 1892, within a few hundred dollars of all last May's (1891) sales. In the sale during the past week of red, blue, gray knit there has been no let up. White linseys have moved well, so has hood stock generally. Dark and light merinos are selling fast. Red and blue flannels are selling to some extent. Skirted seams and soft black carpets have been sold; delaines continue in good demand; some orders have been received for dark cut cloths.

"SHODDIES.—Business for the first half of May (Monday, 16) has favorably compared with last year's record in the same period. There is unmistakably an increased demand for finer stock.

"EXTRACTS.—Manufacturers in general are having all they can do to fill orders.

"WOOL WASTE.—There has been no falling off this month in this trade. During the past week a good deal of high grade waste has been sold.

"FLOCKS.—Business in this line for the month thus far has been quite satisfactory."

This same page of the American Wool and Cotton Reporter contains over twenty advertisements of shoddy manufacturers.

3. No other country has a duty on wools that will average 60 or 70 per cent.—thus depriving us of the purer wool and compelling us to use all kinds of adulterants—rags, hair, cotton, etc. That our tariff is a godsend to the shoddy manufacturers is testified to by the fact that in 1888, when the Mills bill proposed to give us free wool, seventeen rag and shoddy dealers signed a circular, used by the Republican National Committee, in which they denounced the Mills bill as a free-trade measure, and said that free wool would ruin their business. Further testimony comes from the petition of the Kensington Reform Club of Philadelphia (which contains about 250 wool workers), presented to Congress April 6, 1892. After asking for free wool to help the woolen business, and incidentally to provide steadier employment for more labor at higher wages, and to give cheaper clothing to the consumer, they say that the materials of manufacture are deteriorating and the manufacturers "dare not put their workingmen on the stand to testify under oath, for then there would be a full corroboration of the statement made to your honorable Committee of Ways and Means by the committee of the Wool Consumers' Association, that the McKinley law has largely promoted the adulteration of wool manufacturers."

Tin Plate Facts and Fancies.

During the debate on the McKinley bill we heard many promises made by McKinley and others in regard to the marvelous effect the increased duty on tinplate would have in building up this industry here. We have heard how sorry McKinley has been since he made such rash promises and will not ask him to face his record. Since the passage of the act the tin plate liar has been abroad and has has kept the newspaper reports busy looking for phantom tin plate factories. At last there is some evidence that minute quantities of tin plate are being made in this country, and we can begin to detect a grain of truthfulness in the statements of political tin plate manufacturers. The following is from the New York Daily Commercial Bulletin of May 13, 1892:

"Early in January the Tin Plate Manufacturers' Association issued a circular giving the weekly product of each establishment in the association. It will be interesting to compare the statements then made with actual facts as determined by Col. Ayer. The following is a comparison of the capacity as given in the manufacturers' circular with the actual production as given by Col. Ayer, in the case of the six concerns which make their own black plates:

Concerns.	Weekly production — boxes of 108 pounds. Manfrs.	 Col. Ayer.
Norton Bros.	5,000	64.6
St. Louis Stamping Company	3,000	333.3
P. H. Lanfman & Co	1,000	121.8
U. S. Iron and Tin-plate Co	3,000	85.2
Wallace, Bonfield & Co	1,000	37.6
Apollo Rolling Mill		157.7

Another evidence that tin plate is being produced in this country is contained in the Iron Age of, May 12, 1892. This journal devotes six pages to illustrations and descriptions of the St. Louis Stamping Company. This usually conservative journal allows itself in its ardor for this new industry to say that "tin plate produced by this company, from the process back to mine and forest, will give employment to 600 person at a daily expenditure of from $1,500 to $1,800 for labor and transportation." Putting this statement alongside that of Col. Ayers we observe that this company is producing 533 boxes of tin plate per week, in which the total cost is about $10,000, that is, nearly $20 per box. As imported tin plate is selling for between $5 and $6 per box, it is safe to say either that this tin plate company is not established upon a sound economic bais or that the era of tin plate exaggeration is not yet past.

That the duty on tin plate is a tax is certified to by every number of the Iron Age; e. g., on page 940, of May 12, we find IC coke tin, 14x20, quoted at $5.30. On the opposite page we find this same grade quoted in London at $2.94, leaving a difference of $2.36 in favor of foreign consumers—just about the amount of the McKinley duty. As we consume about 7,000,000 boxes a year we are taxing ourselves at the rate of about $50 per day to provide work for a few hundred laborers, many of whom have been imported for work in this new industry. This is what our protectionist statesmen call a good investment and point to with pride.

Agriculture and the Tariff.

"Our civilization rests upon agriculture. To it every strong state must look, not only for bread, but in large measure for men who are to uphold its society. We have won and maintained our institutions in peace and war by the aid of the sturdy citizens who were born and bred upon farms; therefore it is the first duty of our legislators to take care that the laws do not endanger the prosperity of those who till the soil.

"The present condition of agriculture in New England shows clearly that the protective tariff is harmful to the interests of the farmer. Thirty years ago this part of the United States contained thousands of small farms which are now abandoned. In every neighborhood we see these abandoned homesteads falling in ruins and their fields returning to forests. The traveler in these districts feels that some great plague has fallen upon the people. Thus in the towns of Tisbury and Chilmark, in Dukes County, Massachusetts, more than three-fifths of the district farmsteads, only eight remain, and the greater part of the fields has grown up in brushwood. Several of the New England States have been led to the extraordinary measure of making a census of their abandoned farms, with the hope that foreigners might be induced to buy them. Altnough these lists are imperfect, in that they take account only of those places where the houses and fields are still fit for use, the results are startling. They show that the small farmer is rapidly being driven from the land which for centuries has maintained his forefathers in prosperity. The census of 1890 shows a loss of population in 930 towns, in New England.

One reason why the small farmers have been driven to abandon their fields is found in the fact that the protective tariff greatly increases the expenses of their households. In a family of five persons engaged in farming, and living with strict economy, at least three hundred and fifty dollars has to be spent for clothing, household utensils, farming tools and the materials which are used in repairing buildings and fences. On the average more than fifty dollars of this sum is due to the protective tariff. This tax is great enough to make a life-and-death difference in the struggle of a man who has to depend for his success on his own strength and the natural resources of a small tract of ordinary New England land. With that amount of money on the right side of his account he can subsist his family and put by something for his old age. Without it he must fail.

When the system of the protective tariff was begun, the farmers were promised that the manufactories which it would induce would afford them a high-priced market for the products of their fields. This theory has proved to be utterly in error; except in the case of the market gardens near the great cities, which are owned by men of capital and tilled by hired labor, no part of our agriculture has had any considerable advantage from the establishment of factories in New England. It is now made clear by experience, as it is evident from reason, that the price of our soil products is determined by the market rates of European countries where our surplus is sold. The notion of the advantages of a home market is shown by the facts to be fallacious. Instead of being a blessing to the small farmer, the tariff is a curse which stealthily works for his ruin.—Prof. N. S. Shaler, member of the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture.

Debit These to McKinley.

It will be remembered that the McKinley bill was to boom business, raise wages, kill trusts, etc. The following few of the more than one hundred items on the debit side of the McKinley account for another week show how the bill is getting in its work:

May 15. To the report that all the tanners of the United States have signed an agreement to curtail production 50 per cent. for the next four months by shutting down all tanneries for two months.

May 17. To the report that Carnegie, Phipps & Co., Carnegie Bros. & Co, and the Keystone Bridge Co. will consolidate July 1 under the name of "The Carnegie Steel Company." The combined capital will be $10,700,000. It will be the chief of the great iron and steel concerns and will make it easy for all to sustain present high prices and exorbitant profits.

May 19. To a report, in the Iron Age, that an attempt is being made at Pittsburg to form a new trust of all the plate-glass factories in America.

May 19. To notices in the Journal of the Knights of Labor advising laborers to stay away from Pineville, Ky., because the miners there are on a lock-out against a reduction of wages; from LaCrosse, Wis., because a serious lock-out in the sawmills has thrown hundreds out of employment; from Wardner, Idaho, because of the strike at the Cœur d'Alene silver and lead mines against a reduction of wages; from Tarkio, Mo., because wages have been greatly reduced; from Little Rock and Argenta, Ark., because the cotton mills are shutting down and the railroads are laying off men. Sixteen other similar notices appear in this same journal.

May 21. To the report from Detroit, Mich., that 150 girls employed in the pearl button factory there are on strike against a reduction in wages. The factory was started soon after the passage of the McKinley bill, and was visited by Governor McKinley at the time of the Michigan Club banquet on Feb. 22 last. The girls who were making $3.50 a week will now be able to make only $3. Instead of striking, these poor girls should petition Congress to raise the 100 per cent. duty on pearl buttons to above 1,000 per cent. to enable the manufacturers to pay good wages, you know.

The Sugar Trust.

There is much food for thought in Representative Scott's recent motion to place all sugars on the free list, and there are thousands who agree with him that the sugar trust "has succeeded in completely stifling and destroying competition by its unholy, unjust, and cruel exactions." This is a bold statement, but the Representative backs it up by showing that the trust has lately added $25,000,000 to its capital stock and has thus absorbed all outstanding competitive refiners of sugar. The trust would receive a crushing blow if all sugars were placed on the free list; and since the interests of legitimate competition can be served thereby, we sincerely hope that they will be placed on the free list. Where an article of food is concerned no trust should be allowed to control the price and defy competition.—National Provisioner, May 14, 1892.

THE Iron Age of May 19 says: "The export trade in cotton goods is practically at a standstill. The demand from China is dead. Trade with South America is very quiet, and there is but little doing with Africa." Hasn't the Iron Age heard of reciprocity, that friend of the farmer which was to open up new markets for his products in these tea, coffee, sugar and hide producing regions of the earth? Is it possible that this "new corner stone of protection" is misbehaving so extensively and betraying the trust of its ardent supporters?

INCREASE OF CIRCULATION.

For the Month of May It Amounts to $6,437,985—Total Is $24.77 Per Capita.

The Treasury Department's monthly statement of changes in the circulation shows a considerable net increase during the last month. There was a decrease of $6,332,559 in United States notes, $639,124 in national bank notes, $457,532 in standard silver dollars, and $97,189 in subsidiary silver. On the other hand there was an increase of $5,566,902 in Treasury silver notes, $3,581,510 in gold certificates, $3,520,000 in currency certificates, $1,295,708 in gold certificates, and $269 in silver certificates. This shows a net increase during the month of $6,437,985. The total circulation of the country June 1 is placed at $1,620,010,229—a per capita circulation of $24.77, or $115,278,509 more than June 1, 1891. There was a decrease of $1,758,671 in the store of gold bullion, $1,403,606 in silver Treasury notes, $337,693 in gold coin, and $140,930 in subsidiary silver, while there was an increase of $6,332,559 in United States notes, $3,588,919 in silver bullion, $967,532 in standard silver dollars, and $661,898 in the Treasury store of national bank notes. WEALTH OF THE WEST.

Valuation of Central States According to the Census.

The Census Office has issued a bulletin showing by States and geographical divisions the total and per capita assessed value of property for 1890 and 1880, and the increase per cent. of such valuation. For the North Central Division, which, among others, includes the States of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Kansas, Iowa, and Missouri, the following figures are given:

TOTAL ASSESSED VALUATION.

State.	1890.	1880.
Illinois	$727,416,252	$786,616,394
Indiana	846,687,648	727,815,131
Michigan	927,577,728	517,666,359
Wisconsin	592,800,719	438,971,751
Kansas	348,459,944	160,891,689
Iowa	530,695,141	398,671,251
Missouri	786,343,753	532,795,801

The bulletin says that as the laws of Illinois provide that property shall be assessed for taxation at its true value in that State, but that the Board of Equalization for 1880 officially declared that the assessed value for that year was but one-half of the true value, the figures of the assessed valuation of Illinois property should be increased fourfold to show the true increase during the decade.

The per capita assessed value in the same States in 1890 and 1880 is given as follows:

State.	1890.	1880.
Illinois	$190.11	$215.57
Indiana	386.19	367.90
Michigan	442.99	316.24
Wisconsin	351.47	333.69
Kansas	244.17	161.52
Iowa	277.58	245.39
Missouri	293.50	245.71

For the decades ending with 1860, 1870 and 1880 the estimated true value of all property in the United States and the value of real estate and personal property as assessed is as follows:

Years.	Assessed valuation.	Estimated true valuation.
1860	$12,084,560,005	$16,159,616,068
1870	14,178,986,732	30,068,518,507
1880	16,902,993,543	43,642,000,000
1890	24,651,585,465	....

Should it be found upon completion of the inquiry in relation to the true value of all property in the United States that the same relation exists in 1890 between the assessed valuation and the true valuation as existed in 1880, the absolute wealth of the country may be estimated at $63,648,000,000, or more than $1,000 per capita, as against $514 per capita in 1860, $781 per capita in 1870, and $870 per capita in 1880.

Onsartin' Weather.

Now, thur ain't no use a talkin' 'bout yer smilin', buddin' Mays,
When the North wind, frost, an' snow-storms have such curious, startlin' ways;
For the corn's a sproutin' down'ards an' pertaters floatin' off,
An' thur ain't a nabur round us 'thout a raspin', hackin' cough.
Why, it's jes' as like as any, if they ain't stuck in the mud,
They'll be cuttin' ice at Natchez on the last Missouri flood.
All the robins an' the catbirds say they're goin' South again,
An' I'm havin' lots o' bother with my old brown settin' hen,
'Cos she'd tho't she got May fever, but she says the a'manac
Must a bin an old last year's one, an' I'd better take it back.
When I went to town a week ago, to get some summer close
An' a bonnet fer Mariar—why, whatever d'ye spose?
Why, a big chinchilla overcoat they tried to have me buy,
An' a fur-lined hood an' tippet fer my wife to take an' try.
All thur icemen got arrested for a-forcin' o' thur trade,
While the coalyards begged protection from a chilly people's raid,
An' I've been a-frettin' awful 'bout them poets—them as sing
All about the burstin' budlets an' thur signs o' early spring,
An' I hope they'll jes stop writing an' go out an' take a walk.
Then they'll find thur off'n the calendar a month by my blue chalk;
An' to make the records jibe, they ought when singin' out so gay,
Jes extend thur rhymes to take in June an' leave out fickle May;
It'll give 'em jes a little change—an' us a different tune—
For strewn, spoon, boon, moon, prune, noon, coon, dune, loon, all hitch with June.

DEAR SIRS:—The Bicycle came promptly. The boy is overjoyed. He acted like a crazy child for awhile. Thanking you for your faithfulness to your word, I remain, Yours respectfully, E. A. DAY, for Leo Day.

They poulticed her feet and poulticed her head,
And blistered her back till 'twas smarting and red,
Tried tonics, elixirs, pain-killers and salves,
(Though grandma declared it was nothing but "nerves.")
And the poor woman thought she must certainly die,
Till "Favorite Prescription" she happened to try.
No wonder its praises so loudly they speak,
She grew better at once and was well in a week.

The torturing pains and distressing nervousness which accompany, at times, certain forms of "female weakness," yield like magic to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and adapted to the delicate organization of woman. It allays and subdues the nervous symptoms and relieves the pain accompanying functional and organic troubles.

It's a legitimate medicine—an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and strengthening nervine, and a positive remedy for "female weaknesses" and ailments. All functional disturbances, irregularities, and derangements are cured by it. There's nothing like it in the way it acts—there's nothing like it in the way it's sold. It's guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or the money paid for it is promptly refunded.

Read the guarantee on the wrapper. You lose nothing if it doesn't help you—but it will.

HINTS TO THE TEACHER

MANY SUGGESTIONS THAT ARE PRACTICAL.

The Teacher Should Have Great Moral Force—How Seat Work May Be Varied—Spelling Matches—General Hints to Country Teachers.

The Teacher's Influence.

The teacher should tend toward the perfection of moral excellence as his ideal. Of course he will never reach this high plane; but if we examine closely we shall find that no great perfection has ever been reached in any sphere under the guidance of an ideal attainable at the time of reaching it. It is hard for a teacher to govern unless he is bulwarked by a great moral force. There is something in the breast of a vicious child even which compels him to respect and admire an upright and orderly life. As to whether teachers should engage in playing with the pupils, take part in their sports, and, in fact, be as one of them at recess and at other times of leisure, has been a question of deep concern to me. If the teacher can do this and still preserve the highest respect of his pupils, such an association between himself and them should by all means be recommended. This requires no little genius, and, unless fully conscious of power to rise above all obstacles, it is better to maintain a respectful distance. Intimacy no doubt breeds contempt. The pupils should feel that the teacher is their superior friend. Pupils should fear the teacher, but this fear should be so blended with love and admiration as not to be brought into consideration prominently. A celebrated writer and preacher has said that fear is one of the essentials of the highest types of respect.

A brilliant young educator once remarked in my hearing that students should feel as if their teacher was their master. While I did not agree with him, I observed that his discipline in actual work was sound. I do believe that the teacher should feel himself to be master of the situation, for self-confidence is as necessary in teaching as in all other vocations.

Personal magnetism is an essential in school discipline. This in a great measure is born in the teacher.

It is difficult to lay down fixed rules for getting it. I can well remember, when I recited the same branch to different professors, what a difference in magnetism existed between them. When Judge Somerville entered the lecture-room, most respectful quiet settled at once upon all the class. There was an untiring attention to his every word. All eyes seemed fixed upon him as he proceeded with the most prosy of lessons. He imparted to them a life and freshness peculiarly his own. He did not talk much, but to the point always. There is this fault of talking too much among many teachers. Pupils sometimes reach the point where they pay more attention to silence on the part of the teacher than to his lectures. The pupils should understand that, when the teacher talks, there is something being said of great worth and wealth to them, and that, if they lose it, they have lost something more precious than jewels of purest ray.—Educational Exchange.

Methods of Teaching United States History.

If the text book is faulty in arrangement of topics, the teacher may give black board outlines of each of the colonies and presidential administrations as they are studied, requiring pupils to preserve a copy in tablet for reference and to recite therefrom.

Spend a few minutes in assigning advance lessons, calling attention to important parts, briefly commenting on the same.

Encourage comparison of the statements of different writers, and notice any worthy outside material bearing on the lesson.

Let prominent historical characters be the center of historical events as much as the subject matter permits.

Use maps frequently, locating all important places.

Send a number of the pupils to the board, require written work; conduct recitation with remainder of the class, closing in time to call attention to the board work for purpose of criticism or commendation.

Vary the monotony of daily recitation by the reading of historical poems or other appropriate selections, by conversational study of the lessons, then have a general written recitation on the topic considered, thus giving each child a test in spelling, grammar, and expression, as well as history. Return papers to pupils that they may correct mistakes.

Let pupils write dates, as the teacher names important events, or reverse the process, then have pupils exchange papers and correct errors.

Have general review questions given by teacher, alternating with members of the class.

Use historical cards, divide class into sections, and credit the sections which give the greatest number of correct replies

Use one day in the week for general news; credit the pupils for brief mention of important events in current history, thus encouraging an interest in the world of to-day.—C. Krell, in Popular Educator.

How to Vary Seat Work.

Have pupils bring cards, old picture books, magazines, illustrated papers, guide books, etc. Then having classified them somewhat, let the scholars cut out all the faces, and then let a few paint them with mucilage. Let this dry. Have a few of your class arrange some of these faces in a page of your book. Then wet and stick just as you would a stamp. What a fuss and muss this method saves.

In another book have pictures of animals classified according to countries or to zones.

In another have pictures of the different varieties of birds, and have your best writers place suitable gems underneath.

Devote another to flowers for the different seasons.

Another to leaves, according to form, margin, etc.

In another, place pictures of the different nationalities.

In another, place pictures illustrating the definitions in geography.

Another may be given to gems on different subjects, such as Kindness, Thanksgiving, Truthfulness, Courtesy, etc.—Educational Journal, Toronto.

Hints to Country Teachers.

Do not slight the smaller for the older. Remember that with the little ones you are laying the foundations of future scholarship.

The atmosphere of your school can be neither primary, intermediate nor grammar. The ideal primary school should be a free, busy, happy, motherly place. The teacher, above all, should feel free. The grammar school is more formal and conventional. Its ways do not suit the little folks fresh from home, and the playful, affectionate manner of presenting knowledge to little children often proves distracting to the always curious, easily diverted older pupil.

There is a place where the line must be drawn, but just where, you must discover for yourself; no one can tell you. You will live in a sense of hurry, for it will be your lot to rush from one thing to another, with the feeling that nothing is well done. This is a misfortune that cannot well be remedied so long as schools exist. All that you can do is to learn by constant experience how to condense, both in time, energy, and special effort. Remember that ten minutes of effective teaching is more telling than half an hour of languid effort.

Visit other schools as often as allowed, and be especially active in culling the various little economic methods to be found in noticing.

You are lonely, isolated, therefore you must all the more come out of yourself. Do not scorn educational papers and teachers' conventions; above all, do not conclude that the good things that proceed from both sources apply only to graded schools.—South Dakota Educator.

Spelling Matches.

If the interest in spelling words is at a low ebb and carelessness is fast becoming a habit, a good plan to restore enthusiasm is to have an occasional spelling match. Every teacher will recall how spelling matches were conducted in the days when the spelling book had an honored position in the school-room. Appoint two leaders, one each side, and let them choose sides. Let all the children in the class be selected and let them arrange themselves on opposite sides of the room. The teacher gives out the words, having previously selected them from preceding lessons in spelling. Let every child have two chances at a word and in case of failure on the second trial, to sit down. Spell down all and announce another match, the words of which are to be chosen from those used in the daily lessons. The teacher will find that this old-fashioned method will do much in reviving interests in spelling and will go far towards correcting habits of inaccuracy in writing words.—Teachers' World.

The Old Chest.

The children found it one morning when they went down to the beach; it must have been washed up by the last tide, for it had not been there the night before.

"It may be full of gold," said Charlie, "and that would be a very fortunate thing, for then we could buy all the peanuts on old Jim's stand when we go home."

"I don't believe that it is gold," said Alice, "or we would see it shining through the cracks."

"Well, whatever it is, it is mine," said Archie, peering in at a hole in the side; "I saw it first, so of course it is mine!"

"Of course it's nothing of the kind!" protested Harry, indignantly; "it belongs just as much to me as to you, and more, for I'm the oldest."

"I call that mean!" said Archie, half crying; "when a fellow finds a chest, then to say it isn't his. I will have whatever is in it, so there!"

"I'll ask papa if you need have it all," said Harry; "there he is on the cliff now. Papa! papa!" he cried, waving his cap, "come down here."

"Oh, papa!" cried Archie, when his father was near enough to hear, "I found this chest, and now Harry says I can't have what's in it; may I not, papa?"

"I said he could not have it all, papa; I think we ought to share it," said Harry, "and I ought to have the most, because I'm the oldest."

For a moment their father said not a word, only stood and looked at them, then, turning to Alice, asked: "And you, Alice, what is your share to be?"

"Oh, I don't mind, papa; let the boys have it, they want it so much."

"Very well," said her father, looking sadly at the selfish boys, "they may have it all, unless any one of them will give his share to Alice and go for a row with me instead; if not, Alice will go with me. What do you say?"

The boys thought for a moment, then shook their heads and said they thought "Alice had better go;" and Alice, with a little sigh and a glance at the now fascinating chest, said, "All right."

Their father turned the chest on its side, and behold! there was a great hole in the bottom, and it was quite empty!

"Papa!" exclaimed Harry, "did you know it?"

"No, Harry, I did not know it, but I am going over for the mail, and we must hurry to be in time for the tide." And, taking Alice by the hand, he walked away, leaving them looking dismally at the empty chest.

It was a hard lesson, but I think the boys learned something from it. If nothing else, they learned certainly to love Alice better, and perhaps through her to see the beauty of unselfishness.—Christian Observer.

Curious Antipathies.

Gretry, the composer, and Queen Anne both abhorred the smell of roses, and Faverite the Italian poet and Vincent the painter are known to have had similar aversions. Scaliger tells of a woman who was always thrown into convulsions by the sight of either a lily or a cabbage.

Though passionately fond of a dog, Henry III. would faint at the sight of a cat. So, too, would the Duke of Schoenberg.

Marshal Breze once shot and killed a companion while out hunting rabbits, and ever afterward would faint at the sight of one of those harmless little animals.

Le Mothe de Nayer delighted to listen at the loudest thunder, but sickened and turned faint at the sound of any musical instrument.

Nicano fainted upon hearing a flute, and a lady in Namur swooned every time she heard a bell.

The smell of fresh fish always threw Erasmus into a fever, and King Vladislas declared that he would rather meet 1,000 armed foes than to be confined in a room with a peck of apples.

The Emperor Augustus had a mortal dread of thunder and always retired to a vault built for that purpose at the approach of the smallest thunder-cloud.

Scaliger, who tells of the woman who so despised lilies and cabbages, was himself made sick at the sight of water cresses, and neither he nor Peter of Abano could drink milk.

Vanghelm, the great Hanoverian sportsman, who had slain wild boars by the hundreds, would faint if a roast pig or a piece of pork was put on the table.—Philadelphia Press.

How easy it is for one benevolent being to diffuse pleasure around him; and how truly is a kind heart a fountain of gladness, making everything in its vicinity to freshen into smiles.

Mrs. Missie A. Nunn, wife of Albert Nunn, colored, of Indianapolis, walked into a room where her husband was dressing carrying a smoking revolver, and with the simple remark, "It went off," she fell dead at his feet with a bullet through her heart. There was no suspicion that she contemplated suicide, but in the bosom of her dress was found a package of "Rough on Rats." She was aged 24.

Belfry.

The word "Belfry" had originally no connection with "bell," an idea which is now intimately associated with the term. The first meaning given is "watch tower," from the Middle English "berfry," a watch tower. The first part of this word is connected with "borough," the second with "free." As the practice grew of hanging "bells" in such towers, people reminded themselves of the fact by changing the word "berfry" into the modern "belfry." In modern times, with our wide diffusion of education, the spread of books and the steady influences of printing, the tendency illustrated above to sacrifice accuracy in terminology to simplicity in form and sound, cannot much longer hope to find illustration.

No Superhuman Strength, but Natural Vigor.

To attain the muscularity of the individual who snaps steel shackles like twigs by simply bending his arm is vouchsafed to few. But to acquire a reasonable amount of physical power and constitutional energy, to eat, sleep, and digest well, to possess an equable, quiet nervous system, is possible to the nervous, enfeebled, and dyspeptic invalid who begins and pursues a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The fruition of his hopes is not remote either. Speedily felt are the tonic effects of the inimitable invigorant, and they are no less permanent than prompt of attainment. The bowels, the liver, the stomach, the kidneys—all co-operate, under the benignant influence of this comprehensive medicine, to insure those stable guarantees of health, harmony, regularity, vigor of action. Never was there discovered a medicinal motor better calculated to actuate and keep moving the main springs of healthful vitality. Use it for malaria, rheumatism, indigestion, biliousness, kidney complaint, la grippe.

A Swedish Custom.

You take wine with your neighbor in Sweden in a peculiar manner. It is not enough that you should bow and place your glass to your lips. You must also, after having sipped the wine, bow again, or, rather, you must retain the glass in your hand and slightly bending over it, look for a moment straight in the eyes of him or her with whom you are drinking. This is a custom, and a very pretty one it is, particularly when the eyes in which it is your duty to gaze have that depth of liquid blueness which nature has bestowed upon so many maids and matrons in that northern land.

Challenging an Unknown Coward.

In the Hungarian Parliament the other day the Secretary of State refused to give the name of an officer who had been punished for cruel treatment of a private soldier, alleging that publicity would be a double penalty. Upon this a member of the opposition rose and said: "I call that nameless officer a pig and a scoundrel, and now I think he will be anxious to give us his name." Perhaps not. The unnamed offender is, ex hypothesi, a coward, and may prefer to remain in the safe shelter of obscurity.—London Globe.

That Tired Feeling.

You cannot always tell what may be its cause. Possibly it may be due to change of season, climate or life; possibly to overwork or overstudy, to mental suffering, nervousness, or various bodily ailments. But there is no mistaking its effects. You know you feel "almost tired to death," without strength to do anything; ambition seems to be all gone, and in its place indifference to how the world wags—an indescribable languor and weakness. You have no appetite, do not care about food, and only eat because it is the hour for eating, or from force of habit.

This must be stopped. Your condition must be changed at once, or like a ship drifting with the inward tide, you will soon be dashed upon the rocks of incurable disease and death. Rouse the torpid kidneys and liver, tone the digestive organs, create a new appetite, purify and vitalize the impure and sluggish blood, cure the headache and overcome all the prostrating effects of That Tired Feeling by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is just what you need, and to delay taking it is unwise.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

A little while ago, in Yorkshire, a mother brought her male infant and asked that he should be christened "Princess Beatrice." This name the clergyman refused to accept, but the proud mother would only give way so far as to substitute "Prince" for "Princess."

He considers it by far the best remedy he has ever used for Kidney Disease.

Blood Poisoning

Mrs. M. E. O'Fallon.

Mrs. Mary E. O'Fallon, a very intelligent lady of Piqua, O., was poisoned while assisting physicians at an autopsy 5 years ago, and soon terrible ulcers broke out on her head, arms, tongue and throat. Her hair all came out. She weighed but 78 pounds, and saw no prospect of help. At last she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and at once improved; could soon get out of bed and walk. She says: "I became perfectly cured by and am now well. I weigh 128 pounds, eat well and do the work for a large family."

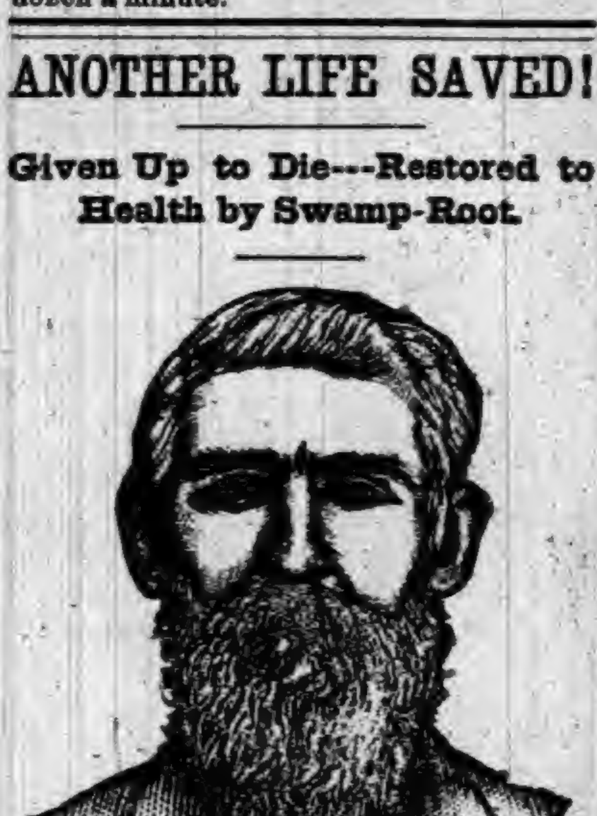
ANOTHER LIFE SAVED!

Given Up to Die---Restored to Health by Swamp-Root.



The above is a good likeness of Mr. Geo. C. Cradick engraved from a photo taken a short time ago and sent to Dr. Kilmer & Co., with his letter and package of gravel he speaks about, which was dissolved and expelled after using a few bottles of Swamp-Root. The following is Mr. Cradick's unsolicited account of his distressing and painful case:

Gosport, Ind, Jan. 18th, 1892.

Dr Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.: I do not know how to express my heartfelt thanks to you for the benefit I have received from using your Swamp Root Kidney, Liver and Bladder Cure. I am now 63 years old, and have suffered almost death for about three years. I had given up to die, but, as I profess to be a Christian man and a great believer in the prayer of the righteous, I prayed that God would send something that would prolong my life, and I feel thankful to him and you for the means that was sent. May God spare your life many years yet that you may hear the great good that your medicine is doing. On the 20th day of August, 1891, Mr. Frank Lawson, your druggist at Spencer, persuaded me to take a bottle on trial. I have taken a few bottles, and it has brought out of my bladder lime or gravel, which I have saved in quantity the size of a goose egg, and I now feel like a new man. May God bless you and your medicine.

I remain your humble servant,
Box 273. George C. Cradick.

SECOND LETTER.

Dear Doctor: I take great pleasure in answering your letter which I received today. You say "you would like to publish my testimonial in your Guide to Health for awhile." I have no objections at all, for I want to do all in my power for afflicted humanity. I send by this mail a lot of the gravel (about one-half of what I saved) that Swamp-Root dissolved and expelled.

Two years ago last September I was taken with pain almost all over me, my head and back, my legs and feet became cold, would get sick at my stomach and vomit often, suffering a great deal from chills and at times these were so severe that I thought I would freeze to death. My system was all run down and I felt bad all over. The condition of my urine was not so bad through the day, but during the night, at times, I had to get up every hour, and often every half hour. I suffered terribly from burning and scalding sensation.

Would urinate sometimes a gallon a night, then it seemed my kidneys and back would kill me. I had been troubled with constipation for many years, but since using your Swamp-Root have been better than for a long time. The medicine has helped my appetite wonderfully and it seems as though I could not eat enough.

I live about six miles in the country from Gosport. I was born and raised here, and have been a member of the M. E. church for forty-two years.

Pardon me for writing so much, for I feel that I would never get through praising your great remedy for Kidney, Liver and Bladder troubles. Your true friend,
Geo. C. Cradick.

Those who try Swamp-Root have generally first employed the family physician, or used all the prescriptions within reach without benefit. As a last resort, when their case has become chronic, the symptoms complicated and their constitution run down, then they take this remedy, and it is just such cases and cures as the one above that have made Swamp-Root famous and given it a world-wide reputation.

The New Great South American Kidney Cure.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. This new remedy has been thoroughly tested by learned physicians and found far superior to any medicine yet discovered for quickly relieving all weaknesses, aches, pains and distresses arising from disease of any part of the urinary passages. It is a great relief for the old, middle aged and children, male or female. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. It may be worth to many a hundred times its cost. This is a remedy of great value to ladies, because they are very liable to weakness and pain peculiar to their sex. A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

"I have been practicing medicine for twenty years and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectually move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system."

Forty tramps were in town last week, many if not all drunk. Some of them broke into two unoccupied houses, probably to spend the night under shelter.

Cyrus Boyer and wife have not been living happily together for some time and have finally separated, Mrs. B. going home to her parents. It is yet to be decided who shall have the children.

Mrs. Morell visited Mrs. McConnell in Angola last week. Mrs. M. is somewhat improving in health; after being very sick. Mr. M. spent several days in Elkhart at the same time with his son's family.

Earl and Anthony Brown both left Wednesday. Earl had a lay off and has been visiting his father's family. His brother Anthony has gone to Niles, Mich., where he has a position, in his uncle's dry goods store.

Tuesday evening, of this week, the G. A. R. and W. R. C., gave a pleasant surprise to Rev. and Mrs. Albertson, presenting the Rev. with an elegant upholstered arm chair, and Mrs. A. with a beautiful purse, in recognition of the address given at the opera house on Decoration Day, and the superior singing of a beautiful hymn on that occasion by Mrs. Albertson.

Those who attended the reunion of the Nusbaum children Wednesday eve at the M. E. church, enjoyed an unusual treat. They are spoken of as simply wonderful. Had the public generally understood this, the house would no doubt have been packed. So many frauds have come, making great pretensions and claiming high recommendations, people are becoming careful how they throw away time and money on pretenders. Were the Nusbaum family to come back, a full house would no doubt greet them.

BUTLER.

William Bard continues very poorly and but meager hopes are entertained of his recovery.

The water works and electric light plant drags its slow length along. There is one virtue in this delay—we have no expense for light, fuel and help.

J. A. Campbell contemplates attending a students reunion at the old town of Fredericksburg, Ohio, where he attended school in '57, since which he has never visited the place.

Mrs. Benjamin Weis, an old and well known resident of Troy township, died last week. She was an estimable lady, and will be sorely missed by a large circle of friends and neighbors.

Dr. Fanning has returned from Baltimore where he attended the railroad surgeons conventions. The doctor speaks in glowing terms of the many sights about Fortress Monroe and old Point Comfort.

The commencement exercises of our high school, held Wednesday evening in the M. E. church, in which twelve of our young people graduated with great credit, was a grand success. The graduates were Dessie Knisely, Clara Prosser, Lillian Ulum, Lenore Long, Alma Kehrer, Francis Brown, Grace Leiter, Frank Kinney, Geo. W. Walters, Emlin V. Campbell, Herbert K. Mudd and Frank D. Fanning. The house was packed to repletion. The door receipts at 10 cents amounted to over $65, besides perhaps 200 complimentaries. The addresses by the different graduates reflected much credit upon their efforts and that of their instructors. The music by an orchestra from Ligonier, called out rounds of applause—and reminded one very much of being in some Chicago theater, where a poor play is made intolerable by unintelligible music. Prof. Saunders, whom our people almost revere, made one of the finest little speeches that it has been our good fortune to hear. The Prof. is about a foot taller than when he left Butler.

Grandma Tarney was quite seriously hurt Sunday. It seems from report that Charlie Dull's team broke loose and in running collided with Mrs. T's buggy, throwing her out but breaking no bones. She is quite an elderly lady.

The room Mr. Olds left vacant at St. Joe is again occupied. In entering at the right you find Mrs. Copp and Mrs Stafford with a fine stock of bonnets, hats and beautiful flowers of most every design and prices correspondingly low; at the left is J. K. Stafford's selections of pianos and organs, also at the rear is the dressmaking shop of Mrs. Alice Warner and Hattie Shearer.

Clarence Reynolds of Sedan, visited with Will Pattee's on Sunday, also Mr. Deetze's of Fairfield, Mrs. Pattee's parents.

The lecture Tuesday eve to husbands and wives was fine and the small attendance of husbands was a thing to be regretted as they got the worst of it.

T. P. French of this place, will move back to Hamilton instead of St. Joe, as he anticipated. He is teaching a select school at present and has a goodly number in attendance.

The revival meeting of the Christian church, which is being held by their state evangelist, Prof. Coombs, is very interesting. He is a fluent speaker and has had vast experience lecturing on the platform, also as professor in several different colleges. His sermons should be heard by all. The rain and bad roads keep many away that would no doubt be glad to hear this noted orator.

The safes in the post office, one belonging to the trustee, were again blown open Wednesday night but there was not much stolen except about 12 dollars worth of stamps and a small amount of money. Three Italians who have been working on the new railroad north of here were arrested, but were not found guilty, so were let go. This may occur once too often and the real thieves found out. They will be watched.

The Oak Grove Convention.

The annual meeting of the Ministerial Association and Sabbath School Convention of the Indiana Eldership, held at Oak Grove, Whitley County, Ind., which began Thursday, June 2, 1892, closed its sessions Sunday evening, after three days' earnest and devoted consideration of the very excellent program which had been previously arranged and fully announced. Owing somewhat to the inclement weather and muddy roads, however, the attendance of ministers, delegates and visitors, was below the average in numbers, but these momentary hindrances seemed to have but little effect upon the interest manifested and energy exercised throughout the entire Convention. Friday was consumed in discussing the subjects pertaining to ministerial and missionary work. Several very able speakers, both ladies and gentlemen, were present and succeeded admirably in treating their various subjects in a masterly way. Mrs. I. W. Markley, of Columbia City, secretary of the Woman's State Home Missionary Society, read an excellent paper, which in a brief, concise and pointed way spoke of the many fostered and often overlooked errors that so distinctly outline the failures which attend the efforts of that society to succeed in many of its purposes. Miss Elma Paige read a very eloquent essay on "Christianity," in which she displayed a talent and skill in the use and application of meaning words as rare as it was pleasing. She is an accomplished young lady and her labors in the church are invaluable. Saturday was consumed in the consideration of S. S. work. The speeches were all interesting and gave rise to a great deal of earnest eloquence in that line. This closed the business part of the meeting, and in the evening, Elder G. W. Komp preached an able discourse upon the "Manhood of Christ." His strong voice, manly bearing and superior powers of reason, coupled with genuine eloquence, held the vast audience in rapt attention, while he poured sweet inspiration, as it were, into the soul. He is comparatively a young man and an earnest worker. Sunday being the "Day of Pentecost," a day so reverently associated with the historical lives of the apostles, a sermon appropriate to the occasion, called the "Pentecostal Sermon," was preached by Elder J. W. Bumpus, of Lagrange, in the forenoon. He, by his simple eloquence, good logic, sound doctrine and earnest christian zeal, so moved the hearers, that but few dry eyes were to be seen in that vast audience of people, held enchanted as it were by the sweet, enrapturing influence of a heavenly sitting together. This convention very fittingly closed with an able sermon by I. W. Markley, of Columbia City, and all join in accrediting the citizens in the vicinity of Oak Grove, with possessing a large degree of genteel hospitality and the ability to properly entertain an assembly whenever it chances to come among them. All expressed many a wish that the time might come soon, when they could meet thus again. The time and place of the next convention will be fixed by the Eldership, at its annual meeting to be held at Olive Branch, next September.

Oratorical.

Of W. H. McNagny, present candidate for Congress, from the twelfth district, a native of Whitley county, it is said, that at the Decoration ceremonies held at Columbia City, he delivered one of the most decidedly eloquent speeches ever made in that picturesque little city. It He possesses the very rare ability, when occasion demands or justifies it, to dip the nimble finger of fancy into the rich colorings of imagination and drawing it forth, to outline through the delicate powers of inspiration, a picture so sympathetic in its nature as to gently excite an easy flow of tears, because of the tender recollections so vividly brought to view. Old Indiana puts out about as good a grade of orators as are found anywhere;—they are genuine Hoosiers, too.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Mr. Norman Lichty, Des Moines, Ia.

Dear Sir;—A sample of Krause's headache capsules was left in my husband's office a few days since, and as I am subject to headaches—neuralgic, nervous, and in fact every other kind—he thoughtfully brought the sample box home. The very next day I had a chance to try them and one capsule relieved me in less than half an hour my head felt as well as ever, with no bad feeling as the after result. I have had these terrible headaches for twenty years, and have tried every remedy I ever heard of, but nothing I have ever taken has cured or relieved me as quickly as Krause's Headache Capsules. MRS. N. A. SKINNER.

Have I any objections to your printing a portion of my letter? No! If my testimony will induce any one who suffers with headache to buy your capsules I will be glad. MRS. N. A. SKINNER.

A curious and interesting exhibition has been opened in Vienna on behalf of a charity. It is a model on a large scale of the battle of Custozza, in which the Austrian troops, commanded by field marshal the Archduke Albrecht, defeated the Italians in 1868.

Physicians Outdone.

My wife has been suffering with female trouble of the severest kind for over three years. I have paid twenty-five dollars during the last three months, and she had no relief. She had doctored continually with the best of physicians. I bought three bottles each of Dullam's Great German Female Uterine Tonic and Dullam's Great German blood, liver, stomach and kidney cure, and can say to day that she is entirely cured.

Don't get Imposed Upon.

Is a good motto to follow in buying a medicine as well as in everything else. By the universal satisfaction it has given and by the many remarkeble cures it has accomplished, Dullam's Great German blood, liver, stomach and kidney cure has proven itself unequaled for building up and cleansing your system and for all diseases arising from impure blood. Do not experiment with an unheard of or untried article which you are told is as good, but be sure to get Dullam's. All druggists keep it. $1 a bottle. For sale by Casebeer & Matheny.

Save Your Eyes.

Refreshing Retreats.

Summer days are fast approaching and now is the time that excursionists, pleasure seekers and sportsmen should figure out a route for their summer vacation. In doing so, the delightfully cool summer and fishing resorts located along the Wisconsin Central Lines come vividly to view, among which are Fox Lake, Ill., Lake Villa, Ill., Mukwonago, Waukesha, Cedar Lake, Neenah, Waupaca, Fifield, Butternut and Ashland, Wis. Wisconsin has within the last five years become the center of attraction for more pleasure seekers, hunters and fisherman than in any other state in the union, and each visit increases the desire to again see the charming landscapes, breathe the balsam fragrance that is a part of the invigorating atmosphere, wander through the colonnades of stately pines and hook the speckled beauties with a hand-made fly.

For pamphlet containing valuable information, etc., apply to D. W. Janowitz, T. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind., or Jas. C. Pond, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

OREGON LETTER.

BAY CITY, ORE., May 19, '92.

EDITOR COURIER: I promised in a recent letter to your paper that at some future date, I would tell the readers of the COURIER something about this state. Of course in a short article and the brief period I have been here anything like a complete picture in words were I otherwise able, cannot be given or will be expected. Again the different eyes from which people view their surroundings make an article of this kind necessarily imperfect and as a rule unsatisfactory. Hence experience (while sometimes expensive) is the only sure guide in satisfactorily settling upon the site for a home or the many other things that pertain to life and comfort.

Oregon generally speaking, has five or six distinct climates, with only two of which can I claim any persolal acquaintance, that of the Willamette valley and of the coast, the dividing line being the coast range of mountains. The climate of the Willamette valley is very healthful. It has a mild temperature which is free from extremes of heat or cold. Snow falls rarely in the winter, and when it does, never exceeds four to six inches and remains but a short time. The frosts of spring and autumn are usually accompanied by light fogs that prevent injury to fruit and vegetation. Heavy thunder storms or tornadoes are unknown to the oldest inhabitant. The heat of summer is tempered by a cool ocean breeze from the northwest and the cold of winter by a warm sea current. The absence of thunder and lightning are ascribed to the evenness of the temperature. The rainy season begins late in the fall and lasts from four to six months. The rain falls rather in showers than continuously, with intervals of warm pleasant weather lasting for several days together. During summer, there are long intervals of dry weather.

I am told good crops have been raised in the valley that never saw rain, the only moisture they received being heavy dews. What has been said of the valley climate will apply to the coast, with these exceptions, the rain fall is heavier and it is warmer in winter and cooler in summer. The only complaint heard or can really be termed disagreeable feature of these climates is the rainy season. The soil of the valleys along the coast is a black sandy loam loose and porous (similar in appearance and richness to the swampy soil of the eastern states,) and is fit for cultivation within 48 hours after the most protracted rains. The same can be said of the soil in the Willamette valley only it is more solid, with occasional streaks of easily worked clay, hence does not dry so rapidly. All kinds of vetetables are grown in the valley and on the coast and as for quality and quantity per acre, I do not believe can be excelled by any state in the union. Indian corn is not raised in quantities as the days and nights are not warm enough to mature it, but bountiful crops of wheat, oats, rye and hops are raised in the Willamette valley, but not enough grass to make hay or even good pasture, grows, farmers having to depend on hay made from wheat, oats and chess that is cut and cured before maturity, hence stock does better along the coast where grass is luxuriant and yields heavy crops of hay. Harvesting and haying are later by from two to four weeks here than in Indiana. Fruits, such as apples, pears, plums, prunes, cherries and grapes and all small fruits grow in abundance and are not excelled by the famed fruits of like kind in California or any other state.

Along the coast, dairying, stock raising, lumbering and fishing are the principle lines of business that give renumerative returns to capital and labor invested, but it is too cool in most counties to mature grain.

In the Willamette valley raising grain, hops and fruits yield large returns, hence are the principal industries. Canning fruits and vegetables is at present receiving some attention and will soon, no doubt, be a profitable business. All kinds of labor demand and receive better wages here than in the East, but are not paid as well now as some years back. The following are some of the wages now paid: Carpenters and masons, $3 to $4; helpers, from $1.50 to $2; common laborers, $1.50 to $2 per day and board themselves; painters, blacksmiths and other kinds of skilled labor, similar to above, according to ability. School teachers command from $30 to $100 per month. Wages in the lumber woods range from $30 to $80 per month and board, and farm hands from $20 to $30. The cause of higher wages here is not due to scarcity of help, for the labor market is well supplied for all present demands, but is on account of the extra cost of the necessaries of life and transportation, which in many ways are dearer than in the East. I will make a few comparisons and quote some of the retail prices here. A good suit of wool clothes that sell in the East at $15 or $16, bring $20 here; underclothes, hats and ladies' dress goods, at the same ratio. A bed room suite that sells in the East for $25 costs $32 here, and most household goods are in like proportion dearer. Boots and shoes are fully as cheap here as in the East.

Board, from $3.50 to $6 per week. Flour $4 to $6 per barrel according to brand and quality. Dried fruits from 8 to 12 cents per pound; teas from 25 to 50 cents and coffees from 15 to 30 cents per pound, Arbuckle's package coffee, 22 cents; potatoes from 25 to 75 cents per bushel; fresh meats from 5 to 10 cents and salt meats 10 to 15 per pound; eggs have averaged 25 cents per dozen for the past four months, and butter 30 cents per pound; lumber such as studding, planks, rough sheeting and joists sells from $8 to $12 per thousand, and planed lumber from $12 to $20; shingles from $1.75 to $2.75 per thousand. Milch cows bring $18 to $25; sheep $3; horses $75 to $125 each. Good improved agricultural lands can be purchased within a few miles of good sized villages close to rail and water transportation in the valley from $10 to $50 per acre, that would bring $50 to $75 as close to markets as in the east. It is also true that there are hop and fruit bearing lands in the same counties, with no better soil nor location that are held at from $75 to $250 per acre. On the mountains and foot hills back quite a distance from present settlements there are large tracts of public lands subject to entry for homesteads, the distance from present transportation facilities does not make them very desirable but being as a rule heavily timbered some day will prove valuable. There are no public lands in the Willamette Valley. The growth of timber in the coast countries is very large and dense, some trees are from 12 feet to 14 feet through and from 100 feet to 300 feet tall. Trees 5 feet to 8 feet through are very common and to avoid the projection of the roots, are sawed down 10 to 12 feet from the ground. The population of Oregon is made up from nearly every state in the Union with a few foreigners. The work in salmon canneries, hotels restaurants, on the railroads, and in many private families in cities and large towns is principally performed by Chinamen because they work cheaper and submit to more abuse than Americans or any other nationalities will. Thus thousands of worthy white people are deprived of labor. The sympathy expressed in many portions of the east for the Chinese because of the Exclusion Act is very disgusting to the white residents on the western coast, and they think that the best cure that can be applied to such false philanthropists is to be pestered with the myriads of the almond eyed pigtails now resident here, and whose retention and residents of the state are winning more mortal and immortal lives than have been saved since the introduction of christianity into China. Residents of the state are nice named "web-feet" and those of Washington "Fin-backs" typical of the rainy season. I have met many residents of Indiana since coming to this state. Among them J. R. Harter formerly of Churubusco who is running a meat market here; Dr. H. Petrie formerly of Hamilton who has a good practice at Tillamook, the county seat: Rev. B. T. Bonnell, formerly of Newville, at present pastor of the Christian church at Monmouth; Wm. Headley, formerly of Butler, now working at his trade, painting and running a small paint and wall paper store at Dallas; H. S. Ball also of Butler, who is running a jewelry store in Portland, also J. W. Swaysgood, formerly of Butler, now an agent for a patent washing machine with head quarters at Salem, and a number of others whose former residence in Indiana was so far distant from Butler, that the names would not interest your readers. I will at some future period try to tell something about the timber, lumbering, game, fish and song birds of this portion of the state.
